Rylston

RYLSTONE — One of our residents is getting rather tired of keeping some one else supplied with meat. One night last week, thieves broke into Don Stewart's hen house and made off with several of his prized hens. Then on Saturday night, after he had visited his locker in the cold storage, and taken several packages of frozen meat to his car, they followed him out of every bit of it, though the car was parked in a well lighted section of Front Street in Campbellford.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Harry Mumby, on the birth of a daughter, at the Sloe Nursing Home at Harold.

W.I. Enjoys Educational Talk on S.A.

ROSLIN

ROSLIN— The October meeting of the Women's Institute was held on Thursday evening at the home of Miss Alice Wilson, with 15 present.

The president, Mrs. D. Chisholm, presided and read a thanksgiving poem.

It was decided to give a donation to assist the muscular dystrophy work and a letter of regret at not being unable to be present was read from Mrs. W. A. Paul of Tweed.

Canvassers also reported $74 received in the canvass for the blind.

The Women's Institute area convention will be held in the Masonic Temple, Belleville, Oct. 23 and 24 and delegates were appointed. Plans were made to hold a Hallowe'en party in the hall on Friday evening, Oct. 30 the latter part of the evening to be spent playing cards.

A pot-luck supper will be held on Nov. 13th, in the hall, when it is hoped the warden, Mr. Harold Price, will be the guest speaker After supper bingo will be played.

In the absence of the leader, Mrs. Slingerland, Mrs. J. Parry, conducted the program and gave the motto prepared by the leader on "News Today is History Tomorrow".

SOUTH AMERICA

The topic which had been prepared by Mrs. W. Harrison, on South America, its people, growth and customs, was given by Mrs. H. Sills. She said that the continent, though older, was economically much younger. The climate was tropical to temperate. Brazil is the largest country. The language is mainly Portugese. Agriculture is the chief industry. Seventy percent of the world's coffee is grown here. There is a rich store of minerals, but these are undeveloped, owing to lack of coal and electrical power. Coffee is used freely, with as many as 13 to 24 cups being drank daily by one person. The giving of a cup of coffee is a mark of hospitality.

The llama, a sure-footed animal, is used as a beast of burden in the Andes in Chile. Argentina needs development and could be one of the rich producing areas. Mrs. Harrison's brother and family live in Rio De Janiero and part of a letter from him was read telling of the country and customs there.

Community singing was enjoyed.

Miss Velma Chapman gave a reading, "Harvest Inn".

Mrs. A. Sharpe gave the report on Historical Research, with an article on Madawaska where the watershed arise and Maynooth.

After the close of the meeting, several contests were enjoyed.

Refreshments were served by the hostess and her assistants and a social time spent.

Mrs. Charlie Brintnell and Ruth are spending Thanksgiving week in Ottawa, guests of Mr. and Mrs. Wilson and family.

At The Royal Bank of Canada
MAKING PERSONAL LOANS
is part of our everyday business

When you need cash for some personal purpose, the logical place to go for a loan is to your local Royal Bank branch. There are four good reasons for this:

1 The cost of your loan is usually less — often substantially less — than elsewhere, as the table below clearly demonstrates.
2 You can pay back by instalments, at intervals most convenient to you.
3 You can borrow as little as $25 and up to $500, $1,000 or even more.
4 Once established, a good credit standing at the bank becomes one of your most valuable assets, particularly useful should you have occasion to borrow again.

You do not have to be a depositor to borrow from the Royal Bank. We often make loans to people who have had no previous dealings with us.

NOTE HOW LITTLE YOU PAY IN INTEREST AT THE ROYAL BANK

When You Borrow	For	Each Month You Repay	The Interest You Pay Totals
$120	6 months	$20.00	$ 2.07
	12 months	$10.00	$ 3.78
$240	6 months	$40.00	$ 4.13
	12 months	$20.00	$ 7.56
	16 months	$15.00	$ 9.79
	24 months	$10.00	$14.13
$480	12 months	$40.00	$15.12
	16 months	$30.00	$19.57
	20 months	$24.00	$23.95
	24 months	$20.00	$28.24
$600	12 months	$50.00	$18.89
	15 months	$40.00	$23.08
	20 months	$30.00	$29.93
	24 months	$25.00	$35.30

Personal Loans are made for any reasonable purpose; to pay doctor and dentist bills; to buy a car or household furnishings; to pay taxes; to meet insurance premiums; to pay for home repairs; for educational expenses; to consolidate debts and for countless other sound reasons.

What about security? We often make Personal Loans simply on the reputation of the borrower and his proved ability to repay as arranged. Or loans can be made against the security of life insurance, or good stocks or bonds. Or by having your note signed by a responsible endorser. Whatever the method, you will find it a simple, straightforward business transaction.

Ask For This Booklet — You will find answers to all your questions in our booklet "LOANS FOR PERSONAL PURPOSES". It takes but a few minutes to read, tells you clearly how to go about applying for your Royal Bank Personal Loan. Ask for it at any of our branches.

Canadian Sisters in Nyasaland

Canadian Sisters from various parts of Canada help to staff a mission school and hospital at Katete in central Nyasaland. The Sisters all speak French and English fluently as well as the local native dialect, Chitumbuka. Above, Sister Superior Marie de Lourdes of Montreal extends a friendly greeting to a young patient whose mother has brought him to the well-run modern hospital for treatment.

A new baby receives his official "weighing in" as a young African girl who is being trained as a nurse's aid looks on.

An African workman strikes the gong which summons the native workers who help run the hospital and school.

Sister Imelda, chats with a native child—one of many who find the Canadian-run mission a pleasant place to visit.

WELLINGTON

Lakeside Chapt. Past Matrons Hold Election

WELLINGTON — Mrs. Mabel Yott of Picton opened her home for the Lakeside Chapter 81, O.E.S. Past Matrons' meeting on Monday evening, October 6th.

The president, Mrs. Ruby Fleming, of Wellington, presided over the meeting.

It was voted the December meeting would take the form of a "pot-luck" supper at which the members' husbands would be guests.

Election of officers for the coming year followed. The results are as follows: President, Norma Foster; 1st vice-president, Ila MacDonald; 2nd vice-president, Florence Dick; treasurer, Ruby Vick; secretary, Doris McFaul; social committee, Gladys McFaul, Isabel Davern, Helen Harris, Inga Lazarowick, Helen Green, Mabel Yott and Laura Archard.

The retiring president, Ruby Fleming, was presented with a nice gift. She thanked the club members for their co-operation during her year in office and extended an invitation to visit her in her new home at Brighton.

Court whist then followed, with high prizes going to Mrs. Lazarowick and Doris McFaul; 2nd high to Mrs. Nellie Russell and Ruby Vick. Mrs. Florence Dick received the prize for having the lucky cup.

Delicious refreshments were served by the Picton and Bloomfield groups.

The first meeting of the Couples' Club for this season was held in the United Church Sunday School room on Monday evening.

Following the devotional by Mr. and Mrs. Ross Fierson, there was a short business session. Plans were made to attend the Fall Rally to be held in the Halloway United Church, Sunday, October 19th.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Lane were in charge of the program. They introduced Mr. and Mrs. John McKenzie, who have recently returned from spending three years in India. They presented colored slides describing the life and customs of India. This proved most interesting to all present.

Refreshments were then served by the committee in charge, which completed a most enjoyable evening. There will be a Hallowe'en party on October 27th. Members are asked to come in costume.

Junior A Colts Go to Post Winner Is Anybody's Guess

Written For The Canadian Press
By HUGH BOWMAN

Assessing the relative chances of junior A hockey teams before the start of the season is to what akin to predicting a colt's chances of winning racing's triple crown before it has been tested on a race track. Junior hockey players are as flighty as two-year-olds and just about as predictable.

The seven-team Ontario Hockey Association junior schedule opens in Barrie tonight with the Flyers host to Guelph Biltmores. The 56-game schedule closes March 11 with a doubleheader at Toronto's Maple Leaf Gardens.

Gone this season will be Ottawa-Hull Canadiens as the OHA has expanded the interlocking schedule and will concentrate on battling one another for the right to meet the same Habs in the Eastern Canada final.

TWO NEW COACHES

This year in addition to the usual big turnover in playing personnel, two new coaches will appear on the OHA scene.

At Peterborough, Scotty Bowman, for several years Sammy Pollock's right - hand man with Canadien juniors, takes over from the retired Ted Kennedy. Former National Hockey League star Harry Watson moves into St. Catharines replacing Glen Sonmor who has gone to Springfield of the American Hockey League after guiding Teepees for half a season when Rudy Pilous moved up to Chicago.

Back at the old stand will be Turk Broda with Toronto Marlboros, Gerry Brown, in Hamilton, Bob Goldham with Toronto St. Michael's, Rap Emms in Barrie and Ed Bush, who also assumes the role of general manager from the retired Roy Mason, in Guelph.

The quantity and quality of the holdovers from the previous year is the general pre-season rule of thumb in diagnosing a junior team's prospects. It doesn't always hold true since the rookie of October could be the star of January.

In the event that it does, however, the first division clubs of last year may well find themselves on the lower half of the ladder this year.

MARLIES HARD HIT

Hardest hit by graduation will be last year's OHA champion Marlboros, who lost goaltender Len Broderick who led the league defenseman Ian Anderson and Carl Brewer and high-scoring forwards Bob Nevin, Jack McMaster Wally Boyer, Bill Kennedy and Doug Rissely.

Broda will build around returning rearguards Ross Morrison and Roger Coke and forwards Jim Murdoch, Sonny Osborne, Don Curry, Bob Davidson and Jack Martin, who joined Marties from St. Michael's. Jacques Caron, who was on loan to Peterborough last season, will be available for goaltending duties along with Jim Cannon and John Miller.

Hamilton Tiger-Cubs, who finished second in the league race, also lost some top performers but still have goalkeeper Carl Wetzel, rated by many as best in the league. Jerry Brown, however, has lost his top defencemen in Hank Akervall and Dave Amadio and he'll have to find some scoring punch to offset the loss of Murray Oliver, Jerry Sullivan and Brian Smith, who scored almost half of Cubs' 300-goal output last season.

Stu McNeill, a clever playmaker from Western Canada, could be the key to the Hamilton offence this season. McNeill scored only 11 goals last year but had 57 assists.

Ed Cooke, Don Wilcox, Keith Walsh and Pat Baker are other front line returnees while Pat Preston and Lloyd Haddon will be back for defensive duties.

TEEPEES TOUGH

St. Catharines Teepees, who finished first last year, will be tough again despite losing their high scoring line of Ed Hoekstra, Mait Ravlich and John McKenzie. The Ron Brain, who lead the club with 55 points last season, is back along with linemate Georgs Ustalo and Leon Gochefort. Other returning forwards include Bob Ertel, Larry Favero, Eno Kraft, and Don McGregor.

Billis, however, have no returning defencemen with the exception of Al Lebrun, who saw only limited action.

PETES COULD SURPRISE

Peterborough Petes, who've been going with a young team the last two seasons and finished fifth last year, are expected to have about a dozen holdovers. They have lost their outstanding defencemen, Irwin Spencer, and top scorer Jerry Brisson.

St. Michael's could again be the dark horse entry. Last season's third-place finishers lost some top talent in Bob McKnight, Dick Maltbust, Tim Hook and Tom Micallef.

Dave Keon, top rookie in the league last year, is back after leading the team in points and in goals with 33. Jack Costello, Jim Sonoski, Les Kozak, Daryl Sly and Henry Marczak give Bob Goldham plenty to build on and Cesare Maniago is a talented goalkeeper.

"This game it's your turn to lose. Fate from going over the fence Ross!"

DRUGGED HORSE

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York State Harness Racing Commission Wednesday ordered suspension of the owner, groom and trainer-driver of the pacer Wildover Creed after a saliva test of the horse disclosed presence of a drug. Suspended were driver-trainer Howard F. Belsinger of Hamilton, Ohio, owner Thomas H. Lees of Swanton, Ohio; and Harry Johnson of Shelbyville, Ind., a groom. The saliva test was taken Sept. 20 after Wildover Creed finished third in the $20,000 Trans America Pace at Yonkers Raceway.

Yvon Durelle Scores Knockout in First Round

"This is always my easiest fight of the year . . . a knockout against winter in the first round of cold temperature," said the burly New Brunswick fisherman-fighter. "And the most conclusive, too! Because, once I've filled the radiator of my car with 'Prestone' Brand Anti-Freeze I know that I'm fully protected for all of winter. It'll pay you to knock out rust, corrosion, frost, foaming and clogging with "Prestone" Brand Anti-Freeze, too."

Good advice, Yvon! Because only "Prestone" Anti-Freeze has magnetic film—which coats every rubber and metal surface in a car's cooling system—gives it permanent protection against rust and corrosion. Insist on "Prestone" Brand Anti-Freeze—and make sure you get the Green Tag affixed to your radiator . . . that's your assurance there's "Prestone" Brand inside.

Sport Snapshots

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The Russians may not know it, but in this year's credit if the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association adopts the slogan "Join the CAHA and see the world." And the association may thank the Reds for putting its finances in good shape.

How come?

It goes back a couple of years to Cortina, Italy, when the Reds embarrassed hockey-proud Canadians by dumping Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen 5-0 in the final game of the Olympics. Canadians were in high dudgeon over the loss and their outraged screams echoed from Kitchener to Cortina.

SWEET MUSIC

Disbelieving Canadians clamored to get the upstart Reds to this country. We'd show 'em. This idea was sweet music to the CAHA—like the soft rustle of folding money — and the governing body of the amateur game in Canada saw an easy way to make a buck.

An eight-game exhibition series was arranged for last November and December. The Russians came, conquered, and the CAHA netted a neat profit of $92,324. Arenas were paid out in advance, the CAHA wanted the Russians to extend their two-week tour but they had a date in Stockholm and couldn't do it.

The Russians went home with a record of five wins, two losses and a tie. They departed also with the grudging admiration of many Canadians for their style of play which, under International Ice Hockey Federation rules, calls for no bodychecking by the defending team in its own zone, and no icing the puck.

The Reds played some pretty good clubs—some A teams in the Canadian Senior Association—and rapped their tour with a 10-1 shellacking of the Junior Ottawa Canadiens at Ottawa. Interest in the Russians and international hockey was high wherever and the CAHA, which had been paying the cost of sending teams to world and Olympic championships, revised its thinking.

NEW REQUIREMENTS

Any team that wished to represent Canada in these competitions in future would have to underwrite all expenses and, if necessary, strengthen the club with players that would give Canada a reasonable chance of winning.

Whitby Dunlops, 1957 Allan Cup champions, met the CAHA requirements and defeated Russia 4-3 at Oslo last spring to win the world title. A CAHA representative went along with the Dunlops to Norway.

Now, Kelowna Packers, 1958 Allan Cup finalists, will go to Stockholm and Moscow for an eight-game exhibition tour. These officials of the CAHA will accompany the team, and the association is assured of making money in the bargain.

Exchange games have been scheduled for Stockholm—Nov. 9, 11 and 13—and the CAHA is guaranteed $4,000 plus expenses. Swedish promoters have asked for a fourth game which would give the CAHA another $2,000, but this hasn't been settled yet.

SOME FOR PLAYERS..

"Of course, we'll give the players something out of this," says George Dudley of Midland, Ont., CAHA secretary-manager.

The CAHA pays the cost, estimated at between $16,000 and $17,000, of transporting the players to Moscow. This comes out of the profit made on the Reds' trip to Canada.

The Packerniff will be in Russia for days—from Nov. 9 to Nov. 24—and the Russian ice hockey association will pay all expenses during their five-game visit and share transportation home. The CAHA, in turn, will receive the same financial deal a year ago—$4,000. However, CAHA officials hope to make a deal whereby a Russian team will visit Canada in 1960. They can see a pretty good profit in the venture.

Queen's Students Will Marathon To Toronto

KINGSTON (CP)—More than 160 Queen's University students will break from a huddle in the science quadrangle Friday afternoon to begin the longest cross-field run in the history of football—197 miles.

That's the mileage to Toronto where Queen's will tackle their University of Toronto Saturday afternoon in their annual intercollegiate football game.

The marathon-like stint student organizers have re-cast it as "marathon" — is something new. The two centres of learning, however, have been football rivals since 1906.

The 130 taking part include both undergraduates and graduates who will drop them at pre-designated spots along the highway and pick them up when their stints are finished.

Figuring in the relay is a replica of the football used by the University of Toronto and Queen's in their first game 80 years ago. It will be passed from man to man along the route, winding up as the centre of interest at Varsity Stadium in a ceremonial midfield kickoff at Toronto by the president of the U of T's student administrative council.

SYMBOL OF RIVALRY

A presentation will be read to the thousands in the stands, declaring that the football, not a symbol of rivalry, is to be returned each year by a visiting team. The organizers hope the quarrelsome becomes traditional.

The marathon itself will take more than 24 hours. Most of the runners will cover a mile in a specified lap, although members of the track team will gallop farther.

Runners on the road during the night will wear white sweaters and carry flashlights so they can see where they're going.

They have been ordered to stay off the highways and comply with pedestrian regulations in cities and towns along the route. The motorcade has been instructed to park well off the road.

There also is a rule which says, "absolutely no drinking will be tolerated."

Toward the end on Saturday, Queen's supporters and bands will march through streets and Principals will escort the last runner to the stadium.

Ralph Dupas Wins Over Gil Turner

By W.R. WHEATLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP)—Ralph Dupas of New Orleans had too many legs and arms for Gil Turner of Philadelphia Wednesday night and the young Cajun boxer, probably on the move from start to finish, shot a steady stream of hooks and jabs to win a unanimous decision with ease.

The 19-round welterweight bout telecast nationally in the United States, attracted a crowd of only about 1,800 in Montreal Forum. Dupas gave away 7½ pounds in weighing 144½ to Turner's 152.

Dupas' shiftiness and speed confused the slower moving Philadelphian, whose attack was limited almost solely to swishing body blows that didn't appear to bother Dupas.

IN TROUBLE

Turner was in trouble in the sixth and eighth rounds. Dupas tried to set up his opponent for a knockout in the sixth but lacked the power to end the fight.

Turner had a small cut on his head at the hairline. Dupas was cut at the finish and smartened except for a tiny lump on his left temple.

Dupas went into the fight the favorite although currently ranked No. 4 in Turner is No. 8 in the National Boxing Association welterweight rankings.

After the fight Dupas said he hopes eventually to get a crack at Virgil Akins, welterweight title holder.

Turner, who clowned at times by jumping, cavorting and wiggling up like a baseball pitcher, wasn't given a winning round by any of the three judges. The fight was scored on the five-point must system.

presented false information when it learned Hurricanes used as another player under Sanders' name. After an investigation the lifetime suspension was given.

"The club officials didn't know the case was being discussed and were not told of the hearing," Schleier said. "We did not have official representation at the Kitchener affair hearing."

Junior B Hockey Meeting Slated For Tomorrow

A meeting of persons interested in the organization of a junior "B" hockey club here this winter has been called for tomorrow night starting seven o'clock in the city hall.

Town president Mel Richards wants to seek out the possibility of the organization of such a club, and is anxious that all interested attend the get-together.

Included in the possibility of a strong junior "B" league in the district with Kingston and Trenton already long clubs, and Picton and possibly Wellington being sure of entries.

However Richards says it is important to find out where Belleville stands and who are interested in such a club.

The meeting is being held for these people only and not for junior players.

John Wayne, Art Linkletter Latest Show Biz Grandpas

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Welcome to the club, John Wayne and Art Linkletter.

These two stalwarts have just become grandparents. There was a time when that would signify decrepitude. But Art still makes gains a strenuous TV schedule and with his grandchild's father, young Jack Linkletter, on the basketball court. As for Wayne, he remains one of the most rigorous and busiest heroes in the movie business.

OSCAR CONTENDER

The Oscar race is swinging into high gear and soon the year-end specs will be unveiled for the finals. The contender that wins the most respect, though no one has seen it yet, is The Diary of Anne Frank.

The picture is a 30th Century-Fox offering, but it nearly carried the imprint of Samuel Goldwyn. The saga producer dickered for the book and nearly got them served up. The play's authors, Frances Goodrich and Albert Hackett, and the director, Garson Kanin, were eager for him to do it.

"But the girl's father, Otto Frank, wanted to have final approval of the script," the producer told me. "I have never given that to any star or director in all my years in moving pictures. I wasn't going to start now."

Comedies are back in style, hurrah! I've been campaigning for them all these years and the laugh-getters are with us again. The trend started with two Warner Bros. movies, No Time for Sergeants and Indiscreet. More are coming.

Cary Grant continues the trend with Houseboat. Sophia Loren makes her best impression to date as a hip Italian girl who takes care as nurse for Grant's three children.

Promised and hoped for: Rut Russell's Auntie Mame, Leo McCarey's Rally Round the Flag, Billy Wilder's Some Like It Hot, The Mating Game with Debbie Reynolds and Tony Randall, Bob Hope's Alias Jesse James and others.

The Windsor Bulldogs, with a good stock of forwards, but slightly thin on defence, hits the exhibition trail tomorrow on an Eastern Ontario jaunt that sees them battle the McFarlands here Friday night, Kingston Saturday night and Hull-Ottawa Canadiens on Sunday afternoon.

The Dogs, some twenty-one strong, will arrive here Friday afternoon and "look for stern opposition from both the Macs and Canadiens, because of their high calibre and early training start."

Coach Murph "Hardrock" Chamberlain has Marv Edwards and Danny Gleslvitch battling for the goaltending's job. At this time of writing the Bulldog defence corps consisted of Elmer Skov, Lennie Speck, Eric Unger and Ross Hudson, former Barrie Flyer, now attending the University of Michigan.

According to sports writer Jack Dulmage of the Windsor Star, holdovers Ches Warchol, Pete Pilote and Bob Duncan have failed to report and complicate the picture. Warchol and Pilote may be traded. Duncan may go back to pro.

Andy Milne, who tried out with the McFarlands and was cut last Saturday, has rejoined the Bulldogs as has left winger Garth Hayes.

Writes Dulmage: "Another Windsor boy-to-be, Frank Battaglia, is trying out with the Belleville club. If Frank doesn't make it he'd go to Sudbury in exchange for Speck. If he does make it, Belleville must either satisfy Sudbury, or Windsor'll send on Speck will have to be consolidated some other way."

Battaglia has repeatedly told Sudbury and Windsor he will not play for either club. Sudbury coach "Peanuts" O'Flaherty has stated Battaglia will play for his club, or not at all. Battaglia told the Windsor club the only teams he will play for are Belleville or Kitchener.

Hayes, who is 21, played for the Trail Smokeeaters last season and was cut by the Saskatoon Quakers pro club last weekend.

Chamberlain is said to have been putting the accent on offence in the practice grinds. He has a large quota of forwards, including centres Wally Maxwell, Leo Bendo, Reg Abbott and Andre Morrissette, who tried out with the Macs "for a last season or two each year."

Patrolling the left boards, Chamberlain has Joe Hinkay, former Twonto Maple Leaf; Wally Fawkyshyn, Don McIntosh, Erwin Grosse and Fred Hillebrand, a brother of Ike. On right wing are Bob Brewin, Murray Costello, who was brought out of retirement, and Doug Kiesekamp. Milne and Hayes add to the total.

Gord Thompson, who was placed on waivers by the North Bay Trappers, was picked up by the Bulldogs, but thus far has balked at reporting. While on that theme we have been reliably informed that the CAHA-constitution has a clause that states a club cannot release a player to another club without the player's consent.

The Eastern Ontario senior league schedule has been released after revision caused by the withdrawal of the Pembroke Lumber Kings. The loop officially gets under way on October 23 with the McFarlands and Kingston opening here October 24. The Macs play for three successive nights, two of them "away" games at Whitby and Hull.

The Hilsdebrandts will tock away five games between October 24 and 31 while they play sixteen games in November, nine of them away. They will play ten games in December, six at home and will package 17 games in January, nine of them away. They wind up the aked against Cornwall on January 30.

The Macs 24 home games will be played on Tuesdays and Fridays, fifteen of them on fish day.

Dutchies Blank Windsor 13-0

KITCHENER (CP) — Windsor Bulldogs making their first start of the season, took a 13-0 lacing from the Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen in a senior hockey exhibition game here Wednesday night.

It was the Dutchies' third straight.

Left - winger Jack McMaster, rookie from the Marlboro Juniors, scored five goals and assisted in a sixth in a brilliant effort.

Other goal scorers were Butch Martin, Billy Flick, Joe Hogan, Bill Saunders, Ted Maki and Ken Lanihan.

On the Tracks

NEWMARKET, England (AP) — J. Bullock's Morecambe, the 11 - 2 favorite, easily won the Cesarewitch handicap Wednesday.

Jockey Joe Sime took Morecambe away in a canter on the last stretch of the 24-mile race and finished 10 lengths ahead of H. Joel's Predominate. Krohn, a 40-to-1 outsider owned by Mrs. E. Miller, was third.

TORONTO (CP)—Noble Roman scored his first victory in 13 starts this year and established a new record of 1.36 4-5 for one mile and one-sixteenth over the turf course as he won the featured Hamilton Traffic Club purse at New Woodbine Wednesday.

Colonist was second and Crown Third.

Blues Blow Four-Goal Lead, Tie With Boston 4-4

Bruins Flash to Life in 3rd Scoring Trio in 3 Minutes; Leafs Host Habs Tonight

By MEL SUFRIN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

New York Rangers are fit to be tied so far in the young National Hockey League season.

They blew a 4-0 lead in their home opener Wednesday night and had to settle for a 4-4 sawoff with Boston Bruins. It was the third tie in four games for the winless Rangers.

Before 14,009 fans largest turnout in nine years for an opening game at Madison Square Garden New York completely outplayed Boston for two periods.

PRENTICE GOT TWO

Dean Prentice scored two goals in the first period and Red Sullivan and Larry Popein added two more in the second, .

Mid-way in the third the Bruins suddenly came to life, Leo Labine beating goalie Marcel Paille at 8:33. Then in less than three minutes starting at 15:36 the Bruins added three more goals. Doug Mohns netted the first, Jerry Toppazzini scored 34 seconds later and Bronco Horvath, a former Ranger, got the tying goal at 19:07.

The draw gave Boston a total of four points and a share of second place with Black Hawks Canadiens who play host to last-place Toronto Maple Leafs in one of Saturday's two games. Rangers are fourth, a point ahead of Detroit Red Wings who are home to the undefeated, league - leading Chicago Black Hawks.

Paille, substituting for injured play-

Gump Worsley in the New Yorknet, seemed to become unsettled when Labine beat him on a passing play with Real Chevrefils and Mohns.

Then Flaman set up Mohns for a 20-foot screened shot, then Toppazzini neatly finished off a passing play with Lou Fontinato and Gus Gendron, another former Ranger, and Horvath got the tying goal on an angle shot that caught the left hand corner, assists going to Dutch Reibel and Fleming Mackell.

Andy Bathgate assisted on three Ranger goals, combining with linemate Larry Popein to set up Prentice for his first at 4:44 then feeding the puck to Prentice again for the second at 11:32 when Bruins were a man short. Sullivan stole the puck for an unassisted goal at 8:08 of the second period with Hal Laycoe also short. Popein deflected in Bathgate's low shot at 12:13 on another power play to end the New York scoring.

Harrison's Don Simmons and Paille each had 28 stops, Simmons handling all but one in the first period alone.

He turned out for a practice session Wednesday but pronounced after the workout: "The ankle hurt when I skated. But I'll know more this time tomorrow if I can play."

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP)—Charles Dillon (Casey) Stengel, fortified with a new two-year $80,000 contract, predicts his New York Yankees will make it five American League pennants in a row next year.

"If I didn't think we'd win again," he told a mammoth press conference Wednesday, "I would not have put my name on the paper."

The 68-year-old pilot, still flush with what he called his greatest world series triumph, said he would seek to strengthen the club for next year by way of trades.

WEAKEST HITTING

"We could use another pitcher, another outfielder and a right-handed pinch hitter. I'd say that this past year I was weaker than I've ever been during my 10 years here in the right-handed pinch-hitting department."

Stengel didn't identify any of the players he would seek but he hinted privately he'd like to get either Pedro Ramos or Camilo Pascual of Washington's top two pitchers, and Roy Sievers, the Senators' slugging left fielder.

"I read in one day where they (Washington) said we'd have to give up four or five players if we wanted to do business with them. Then they said that three of their players (presumably Ramos, Pascual and Sievers) were not for trade. Well, who else do they have besides those three?"

TOO MANY INFIELDERS

Stengel said he had a surplus of expendable infielders but did not say which ones would be offered in trade. He has three third basemen in Andy Carey, Jerry Lumpe and Bobby Richardson. Carey appears the most expendable.

Norm Siebern, benched after his unimpressive fielding mishaps in left field in the fourth game of the world series, will not be traded, according to Stengel. He said he might play Siebern at first or right field.

Stengel indicated Elston Howard, who led the club in batting this year in the league's only game Wednesday night. Then they went to work and won 5-4.

Hec Lalacker scored from the first line and Less Duff lolled in a long shot by Jim Berra to one goal going into the final period. Duff's second goal of the game at 10:14 of the final period tied the score and Jacques Gagnon's tip-in of Gordon Strale's long shot at 17:22 won it.

Russ Winning "War Games" In England

And the Russians are winning hands down.

Nobody at the pentathlon world championships openly admits the existence of "an atmosphere." Everything is on the friendliest level. But there are overtones generated by the military nature of the pentathlon itself and the current state of world politics that leave their mark.

When the Greeks first practiced the pentathlon 3,000 years ago, it was designed to find the best warrior of the day.

It delves beneath the technology of modern armies and ferrets away at men. It throws a man out on his resources and sets out to find how he would cope if he had to ride, run, swim, fence and shoot his way through enemy country.

A win for the Soviet Union in a championship of this kind is glorious propaganda. For the Americans, the implication that the touchest Joes are in somebody else's army is unpalatable.

The U.S. Army squad—Affable, easy-going, but no less determined than the Russians — is in trouble. Tying for third behind the Soviet Union and Hungary in the shooting Wednesday, the Americans now trail only the riding and running in which to make a stand.

They have a chance of catching the second place Hungarians, but the Russians, barring accidents or injuries, are out of reach—more than 1,000 points ahead.

Hershey Wins Over Indians

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Hershey Bears, well known for their come-from-behind style of play, are up to their old tricks in the American Hockey League.

The 1957-58 champions found themselves trailing Springfield Indians 4-1 at the end of the first period in the league's only game Wednesday night. Then they went to work and won 5-4.

Hec Lalacker scored from the first line and Less Duff lolled in a long shot by Jim Berra to one goal going into the final period. Duff's second goal of the game at 10:14 of the final period tied the score and Jacques Gagnon's tip-in of Gordon Strale's long shot at 17:22 won it.

1. England's Henry Cooper and Sweden's undefeated Ingemar Johansson are worthy challengers for Patterson's title.

2. Eddie Machen (knocked out in the first round by Johansson), Zora Folley (outpointed by Cooper) and Willie Pastrano (stopped on cuts by England's Brian London), were over-rated when they were ranked 1-2-3 among the contenders. (Machen, Folley and Pastrano are Americans.)

3. But since everyone had ranked them 1-2-4 before, then these same boxers must concede the worthiness of Cooper and Johansson.

4. He will consider a title fight in London next spring or summer with Cooper but he also intends to go through with a commitment for a summer title defence in Colorado Springs, Colo. He had promised London promoter Harry Levene that if Levene had a worthy opponent he would go to London and fight for him.

5. Patterson will not fight for anyone remotely connected with the International Boxing Club. And that's why he won't accept a big home television offer for a Dec. 5 fight in Madison Square Garden.

Ned Irish, executive vice-president of the Garden, says D'Amato has rejected a $300,000 bid from the National Broadcasting Company on behalf of a rango company, sponsor of the IBC's Friday night fights, for a Dec. 5 fight in the Garden.

The IBC said it will put on either welterweight or featherweight title fight on Dec. 5 in Los Angeles as a substitute.

Goalkeepers Are Stand-Outs As McFarlands Edge Dunnies 2-1 in Exhibition Thriller

TRENTON — Canada's senior champion hockey clubs, tangling in a pre-season exhibition battle, thrilled an overflow crowd in the Memorial Gardens here last night.

The Whitby Dunlops, conquerors of Russia in the 1958 world championship, and the, Belleville McFarlands, 1958 Allan Cup winners, played spine-tingling hockey that saw the Macs edge their Eastern League rivals by a 2-1 score.

It was hockey garnished with mid-season form, with a minimum of penalties and close, hard checking that kept the scoring to what it was.

Catching the eyes of the split-partisan crowd of 2,100, plus, was the near-sensational work of the goalies. Both Gordie Bell in the Macs' nets and Long John Henderson in the second half of the game came up with near-sensational efforts.

The teams split a pair of goals in the first period with the Macs scoring the winner in the second. The third heat was scoreless. The clubs split ten penalties, all minors.

Johnny McLellan and Paul Paystip were the McFarland trigger-men with assists going to Lou Szarke and Floyd Crawford. The Dunnies' big defenceman Chasczewski, who drew two of his clubs penalties, scored the world champions' lone marker. Jack Kane and Whitey Youngberg drew assists on the play.

None of the goals was scored when the teams were short manpower due to penalties. The respective power-plays had the crowd on the seat edge as both teams skating at top speed sought to capitalize on the advantage. Two-way checking shinbone-to-shinbone and close, goalie-work held charging front lines off the scoresheet.

The Dunlops rose to some sort of defence heights in the third period when consecutive sentences gave the Macs a brief two-man advantage. The Allan Cuppers moved on the power but the close-knit Dunnies penalty-killers and Henderson threw back their driving efforts.

Johnny McLellan brought the Belleville fans to their feet three minutes after the game started when his hard drive beat Jack Caron in the Dunlops nets. McLellan took a perfect pass from Lou Szarke on the right boards before letting go his paydirt blast. Caron is a junior goalie who played the first half of the game.

Myles went through alone but Bell stopped him cold. Crawford drew the first penalty of the game but Belle's box worked to stop driving Dunnies in their power plays.

Two seconds left in the period, a surprise shot blasted in high from the right boards beat Bell for the equalizer. Jack Kane slid a right-wing pass to Chasczewski who suddenly let go from ten feet inside the blue line, the puck hitting high in the far corner.

Henderson entered the game midway in the second period, and he was only at work two minutes before the Macs potted the winner. Floyd Crawford raced down the right boards and tobled a neat pass to Paul Paystie well out in front of the nets. His drive blazed through the surprised Henderson's pads for the game-winning tally.

Both clubs turned up the tempo in the third period in wide open efforts. The Dunnies thwarted the Macs with two-men off and Bell came nearly to the blueline at the other end to halt a Dunlops drive.

The McFarlands had the edge in play in the dying minutes of the game but again the Whitby defence was tight, and thrust back the Allan Cuppers drives.

The teams:

Whitby — Goal, Henderson and Caron; defence, Chasczewski, Treen, Sinden, Thompson; forwards, Walker, Tom O'Connor, Smith, Youngberg, Myles, Kane, Elcher, Samolenko, Attersley, Bahados, Alt.

Russ Will Use Top Players Against Canucks in Moscow

OTTAWA (CP) — As many of Russia's top hockey players as possible are likely to be used next month in eight games against the first Canadian team ever to visit Moscow.

This is the conclusion of a hockey enthusiast at the Soviet Embassy here after a study of Russian sports-page comment to fill a Canadian Press request for background information about those exhibition series next month.

Kelowna Packers, runners-up in the Allan Cup championship final last spring, are to play five exhibition games in Moscow, on Nov. 16, 18, 19, 21 and 22 following matches at Stockholm, Sweden, Nov. 9, 11 and 12.

The Canadians will meet the Russians on artificial ice in Moscow's Palace of Sports.

Players who have opposed Canadian teams both in international competition and last winter during an eight-game Russian tour of Eastern Canada will be among those playing against the Packers.

It will be the first time a Canadian team has ever played in Moscow, and Russian sports writers are pointing to the opportunity Soviet players will have to gain experience against the country which for years has dominated international hockey competition.

The Russians are sending a team on tour in the United States from Jan. 1-15 this winter and also will be visited in Moscow by Britain's Wembley Lions, most of whose players are Canadians.

The embassy officials said the Russian Canadians meet on a Moscow next month will be drawn from the Russian A league, the top one in the country. There are 17 teams in it, divided into two divisions, with the 9 best in one and seven in the other.

The Russians have been playing hockey for only a few years. Their first national champion-ships were held in 1947. The Dynamos, a team whose players' average age this year is 21, won it.

Last season, the army team lost only two and tied only one of its 28 games to lead the league.

The Russian hockey season runs from Oct. 1 to April 15. Army again leads the league.

There is a B league in Russia with 18 teams, which play in eight divisions. There also are about 20 junior teams.

ORIOLES IN DEAL

Property insurance gets out of date, too

Insurance is not one of those things you can buy and then forget. No doubt your property is worth more today than when you purchased it. And perhaps you've bought more appliances, done some refurnishing, even added a room or two.

Make sure your insurance covers the present value of your home and possessions.

Canadian Open Golf Tourney In Top Ten

MONTREAL (CP)—The Canadian open golf championship tournament has been accepted into the "top ten tournament players plan," it was announced, Wednesday.

As a result, the sponsors will pay $2,000 into the plan in addition to the prize money of $25,000 for the open itself.

The TTT plan is a system of awarding points and bonus money and assuring appearances of players on the tournament trail. The $2,000 goes into a pot established by various tournament sponsors and the professional golfers association of America.

NAME COACH

WASHINGTON (AP) — Andy Bruniган, bad boy of the American Hockey League, Wednesday was named player-coach of the Washington Presidents in the Eastern Hockey League. The team also announced that George Patrick Duffy will be general manager. Both have worked in the past for the AHL club, the Rhode Island Reds.

Harness Racing

MONTREAL (CP) — Mar's Maplecroft, driven by Pem Caldwell, did the mile 2:05 3-5 at Richelieu Park to win the featured $1,700 A and B handicap race Wednesday night.

The four - year - old chestnut horse, owned by C. J. Kirby and R. K. White of Prescott, Ont., paid backers $7, $4.10 and $3.40.

Mighty Cashier was second and Baroness third.

BATAVIA, N.Y. (CP) — Argyle Duke, owned and driven by Dunbar Scrapbook of Alba Craig, Ont., checked in with a surprising 2:05 mile Wednesday night to win the eighth race, a class B pace worth $1,200.

Small Nations Prod Big Three Toward Accord

Swedes Spearhead Drive For Nuclear Tests Ban

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — A move grew today among the UN's small members to prod the Big Three into working out a common front on the Geneva talks for a plan for halting nuclear weapons Geneva talks off to a good start.

Sweden is spearheading the move, which has received enthusiastic support from many small countries and which was noted with interest by the Western powers.

Swedish Foreign Minister Osten Unden has pointed out that there are marked similarities in the three rival resolutions to halt nuclear tests put forth by the United States, India and Soviet Russia.

Unden suggested to the 81-nation political committee debating disarmament that the three proposals be moulded into one proposal that would win unanimous UN support and enhance the success of the Geneva talks.

SMALL NATIONS APPROVE

Liberia, Yugoslavia, Greece and a spokesman of other small powers echoed his view. They noted the UN disarmament commission unable to win approval of all the nuclear powers has ever been established.

A representative of one of the big Western powers said such a move would be unfortunate if it did not prejudice the position of the powers that will be at the Geneva Oct. 31 to negotiate a ban on nuclear tests and ways to enforce such a ban.

Russia has been insisting that only a call for an immediate, unconditional halt to tests would contribute to the success of the Geneva parley.

DEMAND INSPECTION

The United States and Britain refuse to agree to an immediate ban on tests until agreement can be reached on an inspection and control system to ensure against violations. They have offered to join Russia in a three-year stopgap while efforts are made to agree on a control system.

But they feel that a General Assembly call for an immediate permanent ban, would constitute an attempt to influence the Geneva talks in advance and would also make them pointless.

U.S. Will Give Chiang Missiles In Year or So

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP)—Nike-Hercules missiles, the most deadly U.S. anti-aircraft weapon, will be turned over to the Chinese Nationalists in a year to 18 months, when they are trained to use them.

Maj.-Gen. Leander L. Doan, commander of U.S. Army forces on Formosa, announced the transfer plans today. He said National-ist soldiers now are training in the United States to handle the missiles.

A battalion of U.S. Army missile personnel is building launching sites on Formosa for 48 of the five-ton supersonic missiles. They will assist in training a Nationalist antiaircraft battalion, he said.

Doan said the missiles will be supplied under the U.S. military aid program that already has given the Nationalists some of the best weapons in the American arsenal. These include Sidewinder missiles that have helped Nationalist fighters score victories over Chinese Communist jets, supersonic F-100 Super Sabre fighters, tanks and heavy artillery.

NO NUCLEAR WARHEADS

Doan announced the plans to turn over the ground-to-air missiles at a joint press conference with Gen. Peng Meng-chi, newly-named chief of the Nationalist Army. The American general said nuclear warheads were not involved.

The 52nd Missile Battalion of the U.S. Army's 71st Artillery Regiment now is placing the missiles in four sites—two of them in positions each—in the Taipei vicinity, Doan said. He indicated they would be ready to defend the area by next week.

Integration of units of American and Chinese soldiers might man the positions before long, the Chinese are fully trained, the U.S. commander said. He said he was unaware whether any agreement would prevent the Nationalists from moving some Nike-Hercules to the offshore islands once they took control of the area.

The U.S. delivered a shipload of new tanks to the Nationalists today as part of the military aid program.

Dulles Plans To See Chiang In Formosa

WASHINGTON (AP) — State Secretary Dulles plans to make a quick flying visit to Formosa next week for talks with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, it was officially announced.

Informants who reported this today said Dulles probably will fly to Taipei from Manila where he is to attend ceremonies for the late Pope Pius XII.

Dulles' visit would follow up talks by Defence Secretary Neil McElroy with Chiang. McElroy was reported discussing a formula for easing the Quemoy crisis, possibly including withdrawal of some of Chiang's troops from the island.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) Synopsis: — The warm air has moved out of Northern Ontario leaving scattered showers and more seasonable temperatures there today. In Southern Ontario a weak weather system will bring cold weather from the James Bay region but this is not expected to penetrate far south as a large high pressure area west of the Great Lakes will push eastwards keeping the cold air in the north.

Temperatures Thursday night were in the upper 40s in Southern Ontario and near freezing in central and northern Ontario.

One of three cars wrecked by a military transport plane that crash-landed on Long Island's busy Southern State Parkway near here is jammed against the fuselage of the twin-engine C123. The "For Sale" sign in the car window adds a note of irony. The plane ran out of gas while attempting an emergency landing at a nearby private airport, and the pilot landed on the parkway to avoid hitting houses in the area. The wings and tail section were ripped off as the plane went through an underpass. One man in a shelter car was fatally injured. (AP Wirephoto).

UNION SEES WAGE FORMULA GIVING INDUSTRIAL PEACE

Judge J.C. Anderson Praised by Workers

SAULT, STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP)—The contract proposals calling for wage increases totalling 24 cents an hour over the next three years and fringe benefits worth an additional three cents hourly were endorsed Thursday night by workers of the Algoma Steel Corporation.

The agreement plan, worked out in secret earlier this week by a three-man conciliation board was immediately hailed by union leaders as forming a basis for formula for strike-ending agreements in two of Ontario's biggest industrial disputes.

More than 3,000 workers meeting in Memorial Arena voted unanimously to accept the proposal for a seven - cent hourly raise retroactive to Aug. 1, and other seven cents Aug. 1, 1959 and 10 cents Aug. 1, 1960.

William Mahoney, national director of the United Steelworkers of America (CLC), said the settlement terms "a victory for common sense" and expressed hope that it would prove helpful in settling strikes at Hamilton's Steel Company of Canada and at International Nickel Company of Canada at Sudbury.

In a statement announcing the membership acceptance he said:

Western Grain Producers Will Receive Grants

OTTAWA (CP)—Western grain producers next week will start receiving payments under an emergency $20,000,000 grant approved at the last session of Parliament, Prime Minister Diefen-baker announced today.

The money will be distributed on the Canadian wheat board on the basis of $1 a cultivated acre up to a maximum of $600 a farm. Payments will be based on wheat board permit books for the crop year starting last Aug. 1 and will be made by direct mail to producers.

Arlington Printer Admits Writing Letter Involved in Bombing Probe

ARLINGTON, Va. (AP) — An Arlington printer who turns out anti-Jewish literature acknowledged today he wrote a letter which has figured in the investigation of the bombing of a Jewish temple in Atlanta.

The printer described a "big blast." But George Lincoln Rockwell, 40, says the reference was to a picketing demonstration—not to any bombing.

Rockwell said the letter was written to Wallace H. Allen in Atlanta. Allen is one of five men held in Atlanta for questioning about the temple blast. Dynamite ripped through Atlanta's Jewish Temple last Sunday.

Rockwell told reporters that his letter to Allen was written last July at the time plans were being made for picketing at the White House and in Atlanta against "Zionist, Communist Jews."

"I am anti-Zionist and anti-Communist Jews and against any terms of treason," he said. "I'm pro-American republic."

He added that he and others had started formation of an organization called the "World Union of Free Enterprise National Socialists." He said: "We derive our ideas from Adolf Hitler. We admire him for his genius, his bravery, his ideals. . . . We are not German Nazis and we do not believe we should exterminate Jews."

Relatives Scream, Threaten As 3 Jailed for Dance Brawl

WINDSOR (CP)—A demonstration erupted in the municipal courts building Thursday after Magistrate Angus W. MacMillan gave reformatory sentences to three persons convicted of taking part in a brawl outside a dance hall Sept. 27.

Sentenced to one year determinate and six months indeterminate were Theodore Fedak, 18; Michael Fedak, 22, and Gerald Lesky, 21.

They were convicted earlier on a total of eight charges.

After the youths were sentenced, pandemonium broke loose in the courtroom. Relatives of the Fedaks jumped to their feet and began screaming at the magistrate.

Magistrate MacMillan ordered that they be removed from the courtroom and when the bedlam continued he adjourned court.

At the three men were being led away one of them shouted, "Never mind, I'll get that guy." One of two women demonstrators yelled, "Are the police allowed to beat people?"

Both women were escorted outside the courtroom where a crowd of more than 50 gathered to watch the outburst. The women began yelling and screaming at police officers, accusing them of lying under oath and beating innocent people.

Other relatives and friends of the accused men joined in shouting insults at the officers, and demanding that the convicted four be released. One group converged on assistant crown attorney Irene Mustelle, protesting the sentences and insisting that police officers be jailed.

Lebanese Crisis Terminates As 4-Man Cabinet Approved

BEIRUT, Lebanon (Reuters) — The Lebanese assembly today voted confidence in the new compromise cabinet of Premier Rashid Karami, ending a political crisis that has gripped the country since last May.

The vote was a formality, since the main parties already had agreed to the four-man cabinet. The government's statement of policy today avoided any controversial subjects that might again plunge the country into political turmoil.

Karami, a Moslem and one of the leaders of the revolt against former president Camille Chamoun, agreed Wednesday to bring two Christians into the cabinet as a gesture to appease the right-wing Christian Falangists, who had been in open revolt against Chamoun's pro-Western government.

Beddeir Karami, members of the cabinet are Pierre Gemayel, leader of the Falangists and minister of public works; Foreign Minister Dictate Hussein Oueini, foreign minister and minister of justice and planning, and Raymond Edde, a Christian who took the portfolios of the interior, social affairs and communications.

Meanwhile, American troops who were sent here at Chamoun's request continued their evacuation today. Lebanese spokesman said all American troops will be out of the country by the end of the month.

Ten Showhorses Burned to Death At Hawkesbury

HAWKESBURY, Ont. (CP)—Ten showhorses entered in the Royal Winter Fair in Toronto were burned to death early today in a $60,000 fire that destroyed four horse and cattle barns.

Gilbert E. Arnold of Arnold Farms Limited which operates about 75 farms in eastern Ontario said the fire apparently was started by a blichlihter who slept in the hayharn. About 200 tons of hay, straw and grain were lost.

GUARDS USE TEAR GAS, RIOT GUNS TO STOP BREAK

Uprising Quelled Within Two Hours

DENVER (AP)—Seventy prisoners, at least one of them a confessed murderer, made a desperate but vain bid to escape from the Denver County jail late Thursday.

More than 100 law enforcement officers, armed with submachine guns, riot shotguns and tear gas, quelled the uprising in a little more than two hours.

Four guards suffered cuts and bruises. The prisoners suffered only heavy doses of tear gas.

The riot grew from the last of some 25 prisoners who had holed up in a locked cell block after the maximum - security block apparently retreated through the same route they had used to gain entrance during the riot's early confusion.

SAY GUARDS BRUTAL

The men who took refuge in the prisoner - housing jail's air - conditioning system said those who stubbornly held out in the cell block protested what they termed brutal treatment from guards.

One prisoner shouted through a small window in a door at the rear of the block:

"They're slugging us and dragging us out and working us over one at a time."

Guards discovered the hole in the roof of the cell block in the penthouse shortly after the riot began. Searching beams and spotlights showered the small structure with daylight brilliance at a stream of the tear gas shells fired.

Oshawa Hotels End Strike With Sixty Waiters

OSHAWA (CP) — Agreements with five Oshawa hotels Thursday ended a 10-day strike by 60 beverage room waiters and restaurant workers.

The agreements left Oshawa's strike-free for the first time in more than three months.

A two-year contract grants a 10 per cent increase in wages plus to members of Local 280, International Beverage Dispensers and Hotel Employees. The agreement, 1958 waiters now working a 40 hour week will be guaranteed $60 paid $30 for a 42-hour week.

The Hotel Genosha also signed an inside two-year agreement with Local 254, Restaurant, Cafeteria and Tavern Employees Union. It included a 15-cent hourly wage increase.

The barmens' strike began July 4 against members of the Oshawa Hotel Association. Waiters' leaders rejected union demands. However, waiters went out because of a boycott but lost business from a boycott by Oshawa and District Labor Council.

Restaurant workers struck three weeks ago over union recognition.

START LONG HIKE

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A movie studio employee and an aircraft mechanic began a 3,300 miles hoofing the 3,300 miles to Moscow Thursday. They start with "the peace and the adventure," Bill Tynan, 27, said Wednesday. His companion Ben Van Doren and Miss von Horn have arranged to have any knowledge of answer-rigging contestants who have a number of other former contestants.

A sweeping inquiry was launched into all TV quiz programs; and the case now is in the hands of a grand jury.

A co-sponsor of The $64,000 Question said Thursday the program might be replaced if its rating did not improve. George Abrams, spokesman for the sponsoring for Revlon, Incorporated, said the program's rating has been dropping steadily, adding:

"We will either inject new elements in the program or lose interest or we will try to work out a different format or quit. Meanwhile we have a 26-week commitment with Entertainment Productions, Incorporated, which we intend to fulfil."

The show never has been mentioned as one of those under investigation.

Appearing before the grand jury Thursday was Glorianne Sadler, who helped prepare questions for Twenty-One. What she told the panel was not disclosed.

SIMCOE (CP)—An eight-year-old boy was found dead in a pool of blood Thursday night, his head brutally beaten and his throat cut, at his home in Fair Grounds 23 miles west of here.

The body of Joseph Tackacz was found by his mother, Mrs. Justina Tackacz, who with a boarder, Joseph Kovacs, went to the house Thursday night to pick up some furniture.

The body was found on the living room floor. Blood was scattered around the floor and walls.

Police said a small plank was found nearby with which they believe the boy was beaten.

Man Freed on Giving Up Claim To Land Ingredient

HAMBURG, Germany (Reuters)—A transport plane of the Hamburg Flugdienst Company, an associate of Lufthansa Airline, made a forced landing in Belgium today, the West German news agency DPA reported.

It said there were no passengers on board. The plane was flying from London to Duesseldorf and first reports said the crew member were slightly injured.

Quiz Show, Twenty-One, Victim Of Rigging Charges, Cancelled

NEW YORK (AP) — The NBC television quiz show Twenty-One was discontinued after Thursday night's performance in the wake of rigging charges by former contestants on several TV quiz programs.

Il Duo joined the oblivion, two other big-money quiz programs — Dotto and The $64,000 Challenge.

A spokesman for Pharmaceuticals, Incorporated, sponsor of Twenty - One, said the program's viewer rating had been falling steadily for the past three weeks. He said the company concluded that the widespread quiz show inquiry in the private sector was causing disinterest.

The firm said it will replace Twenty-One with Concentration, now a daytime audience-participation show that awards mostly merchandise prizes. The program will have Twenty-One's emcee, Jack Barry.

Charles Van Doren first brought fame to Twenty-One by winning $129,000. Later Elrida von Nardoff went on to win $250,000, making her top money winner for any TV quiz program.

To Tell Russians About Toronto's New City Hall

TORONTO (CP)—Villo Revell, winner of Toronto's international competition for a new city hall design, is going to Moscow to tell Russian architects about it.

The Finnish architect was invited to lecture on Finnish architecture before his design won the competition. Now he's to lecture on the competition and show Russians pictures of the eight semi-finalist entries.

City planning commissioner Matthew Lawson said Revell has asked for the pictures. He is believed due in Moscow in about a week.

Human Error Given as Cause Of Collapse

VANCOUVER (CP) — Dominion Bridge Company Thursday blamed the collapse of the Second Narrows bridge on human error. Tuesday's fatal accident.

Lyle Jestley, legal representative of the bridge company's agency, offered the human error explanation to answer accusations of negligence by a royal commission investigating the bridge collapse.

Hearings ended Thursday. Chief Justice Sherwood Lett of the British Columbia Supreme Court is to prepare a report on his suspended commission for the provincial cabinet.

He is to start summing up by the commission counsel, Vancouver lawyer John Farris, Chief Justice Gordon Wilson said Thursday. It is open to you to find that the cause of the fire was due to the negligence of the contractor, Dominion Bridge Company, . . . "

CHUTIST ESCAPES WITHOUT INJURY AT TRENTON STATION

Practising parachute jumping over the Trenton Airport, Cpl. F. E. Blank, of the RCAF, escaped uninjured this morning when he struck a telephone wire, his chute becoming entangled in the wires.

The mishap was reported to have happened north of the main station property. One of the two telephone wires was said broken in disentangling the chute from the wires.

WARDEN'S BANQUET TO BE HELD AT TWEED THURSDAY NIGHT

The annual Warden's banquet will be held at Tweed High School auditorium next Thursday night, October 23rd, when the Warden of Hastings County for 1958, Lloyd Price, M.P.P., Elzevir Township, will be host to Members of County Council and friends. His Honor, Judge J. Arthur Anderson, of Belleville, will be Chairman for the affair and among those who will take part in the program will be Charles Long, Reeve of Tyendinaga Township, W. A. Weeks, Reeve of Bangor, Wicklow and McClure; Harry Clement, Clerk of the County of Hastings; and "Art" Robinson, of Elzevir Township Council.

Hon. Dr. Sidney Smith, Secretary of State for External Affairs; Mayor Grant Hyde, of Belleville; and Mr. Ray Woolfrey are expected to appear on the program briefly, along with Reeve James Holt, of Stirling. The Tweed Chapter of The Eastern Star will cater for the affair.

Sidney Couple Hurt in Crash

A Sidney township couple, William and Lillian Chandler, R. R. 2 Belleville, received cuts and bruises early today when their light delivery car crashed into a hydro pole at the corner of North Front and Moira Streets almost completely demolishing the vehicle.

Mr. Chandler told police that he was northbound over the Upper Bridge and was in the act of turning left onto Moira Street when he failed to make the turn and struck the hydro standard on the northwest corner of the intersection. The hydro pole was not damaged.

The accident occurred shortly after midnight last night.

Thieves Abandon Loot at Stirling As Alarms Rings

—A quantity of cigarets was taken from the Mark Trim wholesale warehouse at Stirling during the night and then left outside as the intruders were apparently frightened away at the burglar alarms went off.

Provincial police at Belleville, who are conducting the investigation, said entrance was gained through a window.

The injured men were: William Chard, 18, of Frankford, who suffered a severe cut on an arm, a large cut to the forehead which tore eight stitches to close, several other cuts and bruises; Ray Lawson, 17, of Frankford, who suffered a fractured nose, fractured left leg, a deep cut on his hand and undetermined back injuries; William Box, 46, of R.R. 1 Trenton, who suffered several fractured ribs, cuts on the upper lip and nose, bruises and undetermined injuries.

The fourth man was Angus Rickley, 18, of Frankford, who escaped with only cuts to the chin and knee.

According to an eyewitness to the accident, the car being driven by William Box had pulled out to pass a truck on the brow of a hill on the road just as the other car came over the crest from the direction. Mr. Box was the only passenger in his car.

The driver of the car involved in the accident, W. H. Fritz of Brighton, who was driving a small panel truck and not the Box car trying to pass him and as he got to the top of the hill he saw the approaching car. The cars collided right beside his truck.

The oncoming car was being driven by Angus Rickley and the two injured men were the only passengers in his car. They were driving a small panel truck. Both Box and the mishap took place about 400 yards from the Woolcott Inn.

The two cars were about 50 feet apart after the mishap and it is not known if the one rolled back on its own or if they had bounced apart after the accident. Both cars were extensively damaged in the front ends and it is believed they will be a complete write-off.

The Brighton detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police investigated and Sgt. Gord. Steenburg of the Trenton police was also at the scene. The men were treated in the Trenton Hospital by Dr. W. L. Griffiths.

Name N. Fraser New President Of Kiwanis Club

TRENTON — Nick Fraser of 14 Sutcliffe Boulevard was elected president of the Trenton Kiwanis Club last night at the club's regular meeting held in the dining hall of the Hotel Gilbert.

Mr. Fraser was not present at the meeting, but had left word with President Grant Gooding to express his thanks to the club if he was elected.

Reports from some of the committees were also heard, with Paul Tripp informing the club that no early date to the child-care drive could be set. Meeting on a week from this Saturday, the club said there was still a need for coaches in all three leagues and that last year this had been a big problem. He urged as many members as possible turn out and lend a hand.

Jack Wilson, chairman of the "gasorama", issued 20 tickets to each member present. He said the "gasorama day" will be Saturday, October 25, and urged all the members to sell all their tickets and make the project a success.

Les Piati, chairman of the bulb sales, said about half of the bulbs have been sold and suggested a door-to-door campaign to sell the rest. After a brief discussion it was decided to undertake this on Monday night, October 19. Those taking part will meet at the Hilltop Drive-In Theatre and Paul Tripp will supply the trucks.

Frank Ashley reported that there were still 40 more trees to sell before the "tree project" will be finished. It will mean a total of 75 trees sold.

Speaker for the evening was C. E. McMullen, inspector of public schools, who spoke on education. He said that education should be a pleasant activity and that this is essentially the new theory of today's teaching and schools.

He was thanked by Norm Campey.

Quaker Oats Co. Complains Water Pressure Is Low

TRENTON — A letter of complaint from the Quaker Oats Company on Dufferin Street about the water pressure will be discussed by the town council at the next meeting of the Public Utilities Commission. The Commission met in the board room on Elgin Street yesterday afternoon.

A letter from the company said there was a severe drop in water pressure at 10 a.m. daily and it would affect the sprinkler system.

Wm. J. Page, manager of the PUC, told the board there were two straight mains down to the Quaker plant but that they both should be checked and if something is wrong it may mean that another main will have to be put in. He said there had been no complaints from the other users in the area about low pressure and they, too, have sprinkler systems. He said the commission has budgeted about $30,000 gallons of water per day for the Quaker plant and more on the pressure. There should be a 50-pound-per-square-inch pressure in the mains at all times, but this varies at times.

"We have a new main next year," he said, "but our pressure will not be any larger."

GROWING TOO FAST

"It means," said Mayor Roo Burtt, "that we are growing too fast for what we have underground."

The Commission under the chairmanship of Mayor Burtt will ask the town of Trenton for $2,000 to cover the cost of an easement to run a 4,000 volt line from Sidney Street into the new Bell Telephone building. Commission felt it would be easier to get the power from there and it would make this electrical line available to any other industry which may build in that area in the future. Sewer and water lines from the plant will be put in on Lenard Street.

REPORTS ON WELL

Mr. Page reported on a new well which is being sunk to a depth of Sidney St. and near the Quaker Oats property. He said it has been drilled 25 feet; to limestone and the drill is now in the rock. He said that the rock is an abundant supply of water. He said it is possible crews may drill a total of 25 feet into the limestone. He said crews which are irregular in the hours they are unable to do so. This will provide a good supply of fresh water. Mr. Page said samples of the water have been sent to Toronto to be tested and a report on these has not yet been received.

The well was located about two months ago by the Bell Telephone Company when its crews were putting in new poles. They were unable to drain the land two large pumps. Town crews have put a casing on the well and a manhole cover on the top of it. It is expected the water from this well may be pumped direct to the town mains.

The commission decided to shelve the proposal of buying two-way radios and will bring it up again next year. It would mean a cost of nearly $3,000 for the one company and five mobile units and members felt this would be too much for this year.

TO DRAFT REGULATIONS

The members approved in principle the set up of regulations for both electrical and water services and the manager will present a complete set at the next board meeting.

They approved the purchase of a new billing machine for the sum of $4,000, with $1,000 down on the office work by a great deal and also save the PUC a considerable amount of money. Two older machines will be traded in on it.

A new addressing machine, which was approved for purchase some time ago, has been arrived and was installed yesterday, Mr. Page told the members.

The tenders for a stationary diesel engine at the pump house were opened and a decision will be made as soon as possible. The engine will take over in the event of a hydro failure and pump town water into the mains.

School Board Employees Ask Conciliation

TRENTON — Negotiations between Local 74, National Union of Public Service Employees, and the Trenton School Board Section have broken down. The union will request a board of conciliation. There are eleven points in dispute.

The union has sent a telegram to Hon. Charles Daley, Ontario Minister of Labor, charging discrimination against some members of the union and requesting that the government investigator be sent to Trenton to probe this charge.

GEORGE ANKERS
Sydenham

SYDENHAM — The funeral of George Henry Ankers was held from his home to Grace United Church. The service was conducted by the Rev. K. T. Smith of Kingston, a former minister of Grace Church, assisted by the Rev. B. P. Smyth, rector of St. Paul's Anglican Church, Sydenham. A Masonic service was held in the home on Friday evening.

Mr. Ankers' death occurred in Kingston General Hospital after a brief illness.

He was born in 1909, at Inglewood, Ontario, a son of Thomas Ankers and his wife Edith Pyle who came to Canada from England and settled in Inglewood. He resided there until 1938 when he moved to Sydenham, where he was a well-known resident for the past 20 years.

As a youth, he learned the trade of a baker, and followed his career for many years. On his arrival here, he purchased the bakery business which he operated for the next 17 years, serving a wide surrounding area. He sold out his business and had been associated with the Canadian Locomotive Company here.

On June 15, 1932, he married Helen Lucia Cassidy of Hillier, a daughter of Mrs. R. H. Blair and the late Charles Cassidy.

Active in Masonic circles, he was a past master of Alclon Lodge, A.F. & A.M., Wellington, and a member of the Women's Auxiliary of the Women's Missionary Society, Mrs. Ankers was also a member of these two organizations of Grace United Church in Havelock.

Surviving are her husband, Helen Lucia Cassidy; one daughter, Mrs. J. O. (Gladys) Rollins, Plainfield, three sons, Allan Yorke of Havelock, Charles of Havelock, William Yorke of Belleville and one brother, Frederick Crocker of Victoria, B.C. Also surviving are eight grandchildren.

Resting at the John R. Bush Funeral Home, 80 Highland Avenue, Sydenham, the funeral moment appears elsewhere in this edition.

RODRICK McLEAN MITCHELL

The funeral service for Rodrick McLean Mitchell was held in the Pinkston and Luscombe Funeral Home on Wednesday evening, October 15th, 1958. Rev. Bridge Street United Church conducted the service in the chapel with many intimate and personal friends in attendance.

On Thursday the body was conveyed to Bowmanville cemetery, where the Rev. Harold Turner of St. Paul's United Church conducted the committal rites.

MISS LENORA SIMONDS

The funeral of Miss Lenora Simonds was held from the Thomas C. Thompson Funeral Chapel on Thursday afternoon. The Rev. H. M. Davis conducted the service in the chapel and read the last rites at Belleville cemetery.

IN MEMORIAM

MERKLEY — In loving memory of Lena Merkley, who passed away October 17th, 1957.

True was her heart, kind were her actions,
Her life was a pattern to those left behind.
God takes the best, for reason best known unto Him.
But memories last 'till the end of time.
—Ever remembered by Jim, Ken and Gwen.

MERKLEY — In loving memory of a dear wife, Dorothy, who passed away October 17th, 1957.
—Sadly missed but always remembered by your husband George.

EGGLETON. — In loving memory of Clara E. Syrance Eggleton, who departed this life October 17th, 1947.
Beautiful rest for the weary,
Well deserved rest for the true;
When our life's journey is ended,
We shall meet you there.
This body will sleep in the keeping,
Mark! Angels' music so sweet,
Will awaken this beautiful, beautiful sleeper.
Sadly missed but will always be remembered by her brothers, and highly appreciated by them.

CARMICHAEL. — In loving memory of Clara Carmichael, who died October 17th, 1950, at the age of 71.
At twilight when evenside draws near,
And sunset frames the sky,
Those of you, Clara, we remember,
And happy days gone by.
Thoughts of you are always with us,
Memories of you we treasure,
We know that you are resting
Where no sadness can enter nigh.
Still loved, still missed, longed for by many.
—Sadly missed by his Mom, Dad, brothers Fred and Butch.

Canada Pledges Aid Through UN

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP) — Canada Thursday pledged a total of $4,000,000 to helping underdeveloped countries through the United Nations.

Canadian representative Dr. R. P. Vivian told a conference of the expanded program of technical assistance that the Canadian government is seeking parliamentary approval for contributions of $2,000,000 each.

Belleville, Trenton Airmen Die in Camp Borden Crash

A full RCAF funeral for the two Trenton Air Force officers killed yesterday when their Expeditor aircraft crashed near Camp Borden, is expected to be held at Trenton either Monday or Tuesday, it was learned today.

Killed when the two-engine trainer crashed at a church summer camp near Camp Borden were Squadron Leader E. R. McDowall of Middleton Park, Trenton, and formerly of Victoria, B.C., and Flt.-Lieut. E. A. Elson, of 117 Bridge Street West, Belleville, formerly of Paris. Both men were married with two children.

The Expeditor plane, on a flight from Trenton, crashed at the Latvian St. John's Toronto-Lutheran Church summer camp, the 30-foot-long plane burying itself so deep in the ground that only 10 feet of the tail section could be seen. Rescue teams took three hours to dig the airmen from the wreckage.

Wing Commander R. M. Cox, Trenton commanding officer, said there was no definite time of what caused the crash.

Mrs. Elson told the Ontario Intelligencer that funeral arrangements were indefinite until her brother returned from Latvian scene.

She said the funeral and burial would be Brantford, her home town. Flt.-Lt. Elson and his family had lived in Belleville about a year. He is survived by his wife and two children, Linda 7, and Nicki 5.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — The stock market moved ahead today in active morning trading.

Industrials were the pace-setters, gaining 2.39 points on index and recouping almost all of the index loss of the first two sessions this week. Base metals and golds were ahead one-half point and western oils three-quarters.

Volume at 11 a.m. was 1,108,000 shares, compared with Thursday's 2,425,000 at the same hour. Increases were almost general and give golds an edge.

Weekend Livestock Review

TORONTO (CP) — Slaughter cattle prices ranged from steady to actively firm this week at the Ontario public stockyards.

Trading in the cattle section was active on all classes and most grades sold at stronger prices or at fully steady prices. Chief causes for the activity were the short week and the light receipts. Most of the action centered around the top grades of lightweight slaughter steers, heifers and yearlings. These kinds traded at prices fully steady to 25 cents a hundredweight higher in spots.

Slowest sellers were numerous breedy steers, weighing 950 to 1,000 pounds, that were too heavy to go for further feeding and yet lacked sufficient finish to grade better than low medium. Prices on these kinds were no better than steady. Cows were fairly numerous and this class sold actively with the top grades gaining 50 cents a hundredweight.

Bull prices were generally steady throughout the week with only scant numbers of good heavy beef bulls on offer. Hog prices were $1.25 a hundredweight lower. Veal calf prices were fully steady and lamb prices were steady to 50 a careful sort.

Cattle receipts were some 3,200 head fewer than last week and about 1,000 head less than the same week in 1957. Receipts of western cattle were 468 head compared with 809 head last week. In addition to the Western Canadian cattle receipts there were 340 head of western stock calves. Shipments to Eastern Canadian slaughtering trade totalled 1,100 loads, a decrease of two carloads under last week. There were 80 exports to the United States.

Slaughter cattle: Choice steers 34-34.50 with some at 34.75 and an odd top to $35; good 32.50-34; medlums 31.50-32; commons 19.50-31; a few choice heifers sold at 32; good 31.50-32.50; mediums 19-31.50; commons 17.50-19; choice heifer yearlings 25-28 with numerous steer calves at 26.50; good 23.50-25.50; good cows 16.50-18 with sales to 17; mediums 15-16 commons 14.25; canners and cutters 12-14; good heavy bologna bulls 19.50-19.75 with sales to 20; common and medium bulls 16-19.

Calves: Good calves 29-31 with choice to 34; mediums 26 - 29; commons 19-26; boners 14-18.

Hogs: Grade A bacon hogs 200 lb; light sows 21; slags 16 a hundredweight on a dressed weight basis.

Sheep and Lambs: Only top fancy lambs were purchased at steady prices and the few falling in this grade were sold at 31; mediums and heavies were mostly 18-19 with some at 20; most feeder lambs 18-19 with a few at 20; common lambs sold down to 17; sheep 4-6 according to quality.

Albert Seniors Record Fourth Consecutive Win

Albert College marched to its fourth consecutive COSSA Senior "B" rugby triumph Thursday afternoon by dumping Campbellford 27-0 on the latter's field.

Albert took a 13-0 lead in the first quarter, was held scoreless for the next two quarters, then wrapped it up with two more converted majors in the final stanza.

Major scores were recorded on a 15 yard pass to Tom Giles by Green, a 30 yard toss to Bob Snelgrove by quarterback Doug Forster, another 24 yard pass and run play by the same pair and finally an eight yard pass to Forster by John Cunningham.

Barstead converted twice while Snelgrove added the third extra point.

Campbellford had good success with their completed passes, 13 of 31, but Albert players stopped the Campbellford boys cold when it came to running. The losers gained only 84 yards and lost 81 on the ground.

Cheerleaders for B.C.I. rugby teams were in high form yesterday afternoon as both senior and junior teams from the Collegiate won over their Quinte Secondary School opponents. The seniors won 12-7 and BCI juniors downed Quinte 13-8. Members of the BCI senior cheerleaders team are shown (front), Bev Rose and Frances Dickens (standing), Ruth Slavin, Carole Wallbridge, Trina Janitch and Pat Olsen.

But there is consolation even in defeat, as is being realized above Stephen Wilson, Quinte Secondary junior player, who scored his team's only touchdown. Offering consolation to the linesman are two members of the Quinte decorating cheering section, Sharon Bush and "Sandy" Graves. Stephen's team went down to defeat 13-8 at the hands of BCI juniors.

Bowling Notes

A successful district bowling league was concluded on Wednesday evening, when members of District 15 gathered at the city hall chambers to wind up business of the year and elect a new slate of officers. Austin Putnam of Campbellford, thanked the members for the honor of electing him chairman for the past season and stated that bowling had enjoyed a good year and that tournaments on the whole had been successful. A splendid financial report was given by Bert Taylor, and the members voted $50 to the Benevolent Fund of the Provincial Lawn Bowling Association.

Horace Ormshaw, a strong advocate of bowling in the district and an enthusiastic member of the Trenton club, was the unanimous choice of the delegates for the post of chairman in the coming year. Robert Haken, also of the Trenton club, was elected secretary, while Art Armitage of the Kingston club, was named assistant secretary. Representatives from Campbellford, Belleville, Kingston, Trenton and Brighton were on hand. Dates for the district tournaments next year were set and there will be no conflicting dates.

The local bowling club will hold a joint banquet at St. Thomas' parish house on night of March 22rd. This meeting between the men's and ladies' sections of the club will be in the nature of a social evening, and the bridge and euchre will be played after the banquet has been concluded. It is expected that the annual meetings of both sections will have been held and the newly-appointed presidents will be the co-chairmen of the event. It is hoped that the members will keep this evening free and be on hand for an enjoyable night. Ticketing can be obtained from 'Ab' Wonnacott at his jewelry store on Front St.

The annual meeting of the men's section of the Lawn Bowling club will be held at the city hall council chambers on Thursday evening, October 30th. A nominating committee has been named by the president of the club, Percy Ferguson, to bring in a slate of officers for the coming year. At this meeting the reports of the various chairmen will be received and members are going to be pleasantly surprised with the financial report that will be given by the treasurer, Gordon Edwards. A large attendance is requested as big plans for next year's operation.

Workers Fail To Prevent Ship From Sailing

MONTREAL (CP) — Workers on strike against the International Nickel Company failed to prevent the freighter Birmingham City from taking on a shipment of nickel at the ship channel port on schedule Thursday night for Britain.

Efforts now were being made to have the ship boycotted by longshoremen in Britain.

The British vessel, carrying 1,900 tons of semi-refined nickel and cargo in her 7,700-ton capacity hold, sailed without a hitch at 7:15 p.m. EDT for Swansea and Cardiff in Wales and Avonmouth in the Bristol Channel.

A six-man picket line representing the 14,000 striking nickel workers at Sudbury and Port Colborne said they were there more than two days to prevent the nickel from being loaded. Montreal longshoremen ignored the picked line.

TO STAY IN MONTREAL

Jack Quesnelville, leader of the pickets and officer of the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers International said Thursday night that he and his men from Sudbury plan to stay in Montreal indefinitely.

He said he was awaiting word from the New York City headquarters of the international Longshoremen's Association (ILA) on what support, if any, the longshoremen plan to give his union. He said also that he was planned to spend some time trying to locate other cargoes of nickel in Montreal which might be destined for export from Canada.

Quesnelville had said that one of the reasons the Montreal longshoremen ignored his picket line was that "they have to check with their New York main headquarters before they can boycott the ship."

He said his men were still waiting for an answer when the ship sailed.

TRY U.K. DOCKERS

"It may be too late to boycott the ship here, but the longshoremen in Britain have connections with dock workers in Britain," Mr. Quennelville said. "We will see what can be done there."

The men drove here three days ago after hearing that nickel, taken from the mine before the strike began last Sept. 24, was to be loaded aboard the freighter.

The union called the strike to back up demands for higher wages.

School Welding Torch Used to Rob BCI Safe

Gaining entrance to the building by forcing their way through a basement window, yeggmen Thursday night or early Friday morning broke Collegiate office safe and escaped with cash and cheques from the strongbox.

Police Inspector J. Clair Hayes said the robbers burned the safe into an adjoining room and used an acetylene torch from the school welding classroom to cut a hole in the side of the safe.

The amount of cash and cheques taken was not immediately determined but was said not to have been a large amount.

The robbery at the Belleville Collegiate is the second school safe job to occur in the city within recent weeks. A month ago a safe at Quinte Secondary School was robbed of a considerable amount of cash and cheques when yeggmen used bars and sledges to pry the strongbox open.

North Sea Gale Wrecks 2 Ships, 23 Lives Lost

LONDON (Reuters)—Two ships and an estimated 23 lives were lost today in the seamas of shipwreck and rescue on the stormy North Sea.

A Russian trawler sank off a rocky islet near the northern tip of the Shetland islands, a Danish freighter went down in heavy weather off the east coast of England and a Dutch coastal steamer was reported in difficulties off the northwest German coast.

An RAF plane scouring the sea reported the fate of the Russian trawler SRT 9643 that was wrecked this morning.

Three Russians who scrambled ashore were taken aboard a British coast guard lifeboat by breeches buoy and three bodies were brought ashore in the coast guard lifeboat.

The number of crew aboard the trawler was not definitely known but it was estimated at 23. Other survivors gave varying details from the three survivors, none of whom could speak English.

BOSS DOWN WITH SHIP

Meanwhile, the 2,900-ton Danish freighter Svanholm sank in heavy weather off the English east coast, and the captain went down with his ship.

Twenty-five crew members were rescued by the British destroyer Diana and the captain refused to leave. His body was picked up later by a Dutch fishing boat.

The Svanholm went down 10 hours after sending an S.O.S. that she had sprung a leak.

The coastal steamer of the German coast, the 200-ton Dutch coastal steamer Willem was reported in difficulties.

LIFEBOAT STANDS BY

British, Polish and Dutch ships raced to the scene and a British and Dutch lifeboat lanuilnde radioed she was standing by the disabled steamer.

Gales kept ships bottled up in North Sea ports and heavy rains and tides flooded dockside streets and coastal land.

Meanwhile, gales blowing in the Irish Sea for the, last two days died down today, enabling shipping to move out from the shelter of the River Mersey at Liverpool.

The Cunard liner Sylvania with 370 passengers for Montreal and 200 passengers for Quebec and West Africa both prepared to sail on the afternoon tide.

Storms Spread Rain, Hail and Power Failures

The storm left a trail of downed trees and minor power blackouts from Lake Ontario to the Pennsylvania border.

Lightning hit a worker on the Niagara power project near Niagara Falls but he escaped death. He was reported in good condition with a head injury.

The Buffalo area caught winds up to 41 miles an hour and a mixture of heavy rain and hail.

Industry Boosts University Aid

TORONTO (CP)—Industry last year gave four times as much money to aid Canadian university education as in 1953.

A report by the International Association on Education for Industrial corporate giving by Canadian and foreign-controlled companies for scholarships, bursaries, operating funds, research and unclassified purposes totalled $4,700,000 in university year ending 1957, compared to $1,700,000 the previous year.

The contributions, which do not include aid to the provinces, represented .384 per cent of corporation profits in Canada in 1957 compared to .083 per cent in 1953. The 1957 donations amounted to $1.70 per $1,000 of corporate profits' total operating and capital costs.

FOX HAD RABIES

PICKERING (CP) — The first case of rabies east of Toronto was confirmed Thursday after tests on a fox killed by two teenagers Oct. 9 on the Bonerra Rd. near Pickering.

Provincial police said Constable O'Neill, 13, told police the fox snarled at them but didn't attack or run away. They clubbed it to death.

Belleville Grocer Dies Suddenly

Mr. Thomas Edward Bell, 70, of 19 Bleecker Ave., died suddenly at his home Thursday afternoon.

Mr. Bell was born in Belleville and was a grocer by occupation. He was a member of Bridge St. United Church.

He is survived by his wife, Mary Ann Bell, one son, Thomas Bell, Belleville, one daughter, Mrs. Ralph Hall, Belleville, one brother, Mr. Albert Bell, Belleville, one sister, Mrs. Ethel Hall, Belleville, and two grandchildren.

Funeral arrangements will be announced later by the Thompson Funeral Home.

Albert Seniors Record Fourth Consecutive Win

Albert College marched to its fourth consecutive COSSA Senior "B" rugby triumph Thursday afternoon by dumping Campbellford 27-0 on the latter's field.

Albert took a 13-0 lead in the first quarter, was held scoreless for the next two quarters, then wrapped it up with two more converted majors in the final stanza.

Major scores were recorded on a 15 yard pass to Tom Giles by Green, a 30 yard toss to Bob Snelgrove by quarterback Doug Forster, another 24 yard pass and run play by the same pair and finally an eight yard pass to Forster by John Cunningham.

Barstead converted twice while Snelgrove added the third extra point.

Campbellford had good success with their completed passes, 13 of 31, but Albert players stopped the Campbellford boys cold when it came to running. The losers gained only 84 yards and lost 81 on the ground.

Albert made 180 yards in the air while Campbellford picked up 141. The winners ran for 239 yards.

KNOWLEDGE TO THE Nth DEGREE

We can think of, no more unlikely moderator for a philosophical discussion than Martha Raye -- and no more improbable panel than the members of The Ontario Intelligencer's editorial staff.

What took place the other day, therefore, was not a philosophic discussion, the members of the editorial staff did not constitute a panel and Miss Raye was not, even in absentia, moderator.

Nevertheless, it was an interesting verbal brawl.

It started when a headline writer wrote "Martha Raye Going to Altar for Nth Time" and another headline writer okayed the proof as typographically correct.

It did not occur to either of them that the headline should be examined for another reason.

To them, its meaning was plain, and appropriate to the story for which it was written.

Immediately the paper was off the press, though, it became evident that "Nth" meant nothing to almost everybody within reading distance.

This precipitated a general discussion during which such points were raised as the level of the intelligence of people who did not know what "Nth" meant and the level of intelligence of headline writers who expected everybody to know what "Nth" meant.

No definite conclusion was reached in the debate. It was contended, with considerable vigor, that a headline writer had to assume that persons who read headlines had some general knowledge. It was contended, with equal vigor and with unassailable logic, that headline writers who take it for granted that everybody has a knowledge of the mathematical meaning of the term "Nth," and, therefore, of what might be termed its slang use in the head line in question, were assuming far too much.

This type of error, though, is commonplace. Just listen, sometime, to a baseball fan explaining the game to his wife's aunt, or to a teen-ager telling Grandma about last night's dance.

Human conceit being what it is, almost everybody thinks that he knows a little more than the average person. Yet, paradoxically enough, almost everybody presumes that all those things which are what might be termed familiar knowledge to him, (whether they be the meaning of "Nth", the correct oven temperature for roasting beef, the type of music which is "square" or what happens when a squeeze play is attempted), are familiar knowledge to everybody else".

As a corollary, we have to be true to form, we all believe that those things which are not known by us are very uncommon knowledge.

And then along comes Martha Raye and the Nth time to prove that what we know others do not -- and, conversely, that the general knowledge that such a headline is obscure is possessed by a host of people although two unfortunate headline writers were completely ignorant of that fact.

DIEFENBAKER AND THE SOCIAL REGISTER

Prime Minister Diefenbaker and his wife are among the 40,000 Canadians listed in the new "Social Register of Canada."

That is not an "honor" they sought. At first it was believed they might have been omitted. A reporter told the Prime Minister that all those listed in the book had been notified of this fact, and Mr. Diefenbaker said he had had no such notification. Later, though, he received it.

We do not believe though, that the Prime Minister would have been annoyed if not listed. Indeed, with his great respect for tradition, he may find his inclusion in the list of Canadian "aristocrats" somewhat embarrassing and something which he would have avoided had he been able to do so. He may believe that it is unseemly for a member of the Commons to be listed with the so-called elite. There was a time when the term House of Commons meant exactly that. It seems to us that it is much to be desired that members of the Commons retain this sense of identification with the common people. We may rest assured that the mere inclusion of his name in the Social Register will not rob the Prime Minister of this sense, which he has so abundantly shown on innumerable occasions.

THE LITTLE SOULS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

There's something wrong with you, my boy,
If you begrudge another joy;
If you despise a friend's success
Because perhaps your own is less.

Then you are bound by envy's chains
And slave to many bitter pains.

Some little souls are so shut in
They cannot see another win
But what they send their secret arrow afar.
When other people happier are
Than they themselves, they act as though
They'd lost the joy that others know.

And there are little souls that show
Delight when others meet a blow;
They glory in men's failures, too
And find excuses thing to do.
They live their lives from year to year
Belittling other people here.

There's something wrong with you, my boy,
If you begrudge another joy;
Let envy never rule your speech,
Keep malice always out of reach.
And never hesitate to tell
The praise of one who's doing well.

British View of France

The Times of London

A vast concentration of power rests in the hands of General de Gaulle. Voted into office by the last representatives of the Fourth Republic, he has now won a constitution tailored to his design approved by an overwhelming majority of French citizens at home and overseas. For the coming weeks he will be the master of France, with authority and duty to improve on much misgovernment and when the general election will take place, after what is to be the next step in Algeria. Thereafter the success or failure of the Fifth Republic will depend primarily on his political skill and judgment.

There is no sign that the prospect of so much dependence on one man frightens either the General himself or most Frenchmen, and it must be said that General de Gaulle has said and done nothing that should give cause for alarm. He has shown his intention to be a constitutional ruler of French liberties as well as of French greatness on both two, spoken, strictly speaking, inseparable.

The referendum was the end of the Algerian crisis, and France, and victory has proved in a way deceptively easy. No question has been produced of plausible alternative to General de Gaulle's policies. So he has been able to rally behind him not only the bored and uncritical but the majority of sincere republicans from every party. He even seems to have attracted a considerable number of those who usually vote Communist.

As a repudiation of the Fourth Republic the vote can not be more explicit, though among the Yes voters are many who have grave fears for the constitution alarming or downright unsatisfactory. It is obvious that in the coming weeks General de Gaulle must disappoint many of those who, often for quite contradictory reasons, gave him their support. One good consequence of the unexpectedly large Yes vote should be to give General de Gaulle more room to manoeuvre. No single section of opinion has gained the right to behave as king-maker.

This is particularly important in view of the decisions that must now be made in Africa. With the admission of Guinea all territories of French West and Equatorial Africa have formally become part of the French Community though there exact status will have to be worked out later. Guinea, however, will remain a problem child, officially now become an independent country, with all the risks involved in the immediate withdrawal to help from France. But M. Sekou Toure, architect of independence, has explained that he wants to create a new association with France "truly equal and fraternal." In Guinea to begin with we shall see whether the penalties of premature independence are in fact sufficient to undo some of the effects of colonialism.

Either way has disadvantages. It would be upsetting for the French Army at this time to see as neighbor a new State slipping into chaos, but on the other hand it would be small comfort for those who voted Yes to see a Fifth Republic in existence.

Algeria, more than ever, is the crux of the problem. When all allowances have been made the French Army activity to have cure a favorable vote and for the abstention of the Moslem population, the size of the vote is impressive. What does it mean? Something amazing must be that the Muslim trust General de Gaulle to end what has been an intolerable situation — and one which is intolerable for the Moslems rather than for political reasons. If it is intolerable for Europeans, it is only integration of the most thorough sort, which would give the privilege of metropolitan Frenchmen.

Moslems and Frenchmen may be justified in regarding the Algerian vote with mixed feelings, but then responsibility for swift and bold action if disillusion is to be avoided. Here again de Gaulle's first and hardest task will be to end the opinion on both sides of the Mediterranean to the implications of the Algeria vote.

Kitchener, Imperialist

By Philip Magnus, in "John Murray"

Kitchener was a terrific imperialist. A lonely and mysterious man in his private life. His imposing personality was compounded of strength and weakness, thoroughness and unparalleled drive. He developed both attributes to a point bordering on obsessional intensity, and they lifted him high above his fellows.

Kitchener conquered the Sudan and South Africa, and ruled Egypt with inimitable gusto. He fought Curzon in India ferociously as he had already fought Kruger and the Khalifa, temporarily defeated Curzon's career. Released like some Eastern djinn from a bottle, and made dictator of British strategy in The First World War, he called forth to work miracles of improvisation. He conjured up armies from nothing out of the ground, and became the infallible hero of the British imagination.

But the great war god and Indian proconsul — symbol of the British Empire's will to victory was incapable of teamwork; quickly yawned between his unpredictable genius and the cautious and the open distrust and concealed jealousy of his colleagues. His dramatic end, in the Hampshire on a secret mission, in June, 1916, afforded a drastic solution to an intolerable situation, and crowned with death on war service a career of unique period interest and flavor. His character, his career, his methods (particularly in Egypt and the Sudan) provide a revealing analysis of "imperialism" which is peculiarly topical.

Memories Flood Back

Boston Herald

The stalls are empty. Boys and girls trot by leading their horses; a friendly whinny when a barn door is opened in the morning. But there are men missing from the stables and in the harsh cacophony of clanging machines who remember how Old Jerry nuzzled their hands for a lump of sugar that he gladly shared.

The old barn is quiet now. Just the cobwebs mat the dust covered windows. Dried and brittle harnesses hang from oaken pegs. The can of linseed oil on the shelf still has a bit of the black material that Jerry's coat took after a bad washed the harness.

The younger generation would not know the names, lazy strap, bellyband, breeching, bridle, bit, blinkers, throatlatch, winker stay, bag swivel and crownpiece.

The old barn echoes the years through the years. Harnesses hang from their pegs, remember that it is gone. Gray stable blankets and the colorful jockey cap of the boy that trained in the winter when one went to the village across the corners of farm when 10 miles an hour was rapid travelling.

The old man walks into the old harness room he gets a faint, heady aroma. Harnesser and leather and sweat and clean. Horses that he knew as friends and pals. Then the memories flood back. One wishes just once more, he could open a barn door in the morning, hear that friendly greeting and go into the harness room and see clean, washed and oiled harness, ready to use on the farm or for a trip to the village store.

Find Water Fluoridated

Saskatoon Star-Phoenix

Without taking a survey, we'll wager the good citizens of Hawarden, Stronghold and Lucky Lake are not dying by the dozen of bone diseases and other terrible maladies. Yet this is what one would expect to see if the opponents of fluoridation were right in their dire predictions about what happens when people take fluorides in their water supplies. Fluoride is the residents of Hawarden, Stronghold and Lucky Lake have been drinking in their chemical daily for many years, thanks to waters supplies furnished by power with an ideal proportion of fluorides. This phenomenon has just been discovered. The discovery offers public health authorities in the area an unexpected opportunity to carry o u t some important research.

That is the view of the regional health officer for the Rostown Health Region, Dr. C. Leslie, and the dental health division of the provincial public health department intend to do. We wish them well and we await with interest the discoveries they make.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

SHARE-IT

We fail to gain a great deal of happiness merely because we are not alert in sharing it with others. Happiness held tight and unshared, soon loses its significance. It is the one thing that increases in human value the more of it we give away.

That which we share we really invest in others who return our gift share in the form of appreciation and interest. The more we pay it bonnage. The lack of it, however, has measured out starvation to many a worthy and deserving human being.

America is happier and greater because of all that she has distributed of food and clothes to needful countries throughout the world. She will not lose by this. As individuals we are always blessed for sharing with others. How very wonderful if we would try and share our love, our cheer, our understanding, and sympathy with those who so sorely need and crave it.

I love to share my love for books and art with others, and to encourage them in this appreciation. Beauty in all out-of-doors, and especially in the wonderful places, fascinates and enriches me, and so it will anyone. God never created a dull thing. There is endless beauty of design all through His work. And what miracles are to be discovered where science especially!

God created an over-supply of things so that we all might learn of the lesson and share what we can with others.

To Your Good Health

BLACKHEADS CLOSELY RELATED TO SECRETION OF SKIN OIL

"Will squeezing help get rid of blackheads?" a girl wrote to me. "I have a blackhead on from A to Z. Will I ever get rid of those ugly blackheads?"

Blackheads are cruel. They come at a time when youngsters are most sensitive about their appearance. Along with acne they are also one of the most common skin troubles of adolescence.

Blackheads (and acne) are closely related to the secretion of skin oil. Babies and old people don't have them, because in infancy the skin glands aren't yet active, and in old age the activity is much diminished.

Scrupulous cleanliness is the most important factor in controlling blackheads. But they don't mean that having blackheads means you are dirty. It's not that at all. You'll notice, when a blackhead is squeezed out of it is black; the rest is a whitish material that comes trailing out. This is a sebaceous (oily) material in the pore, plus a material change in chemical composition as it reaches the surface. This chemical change is responsible for color from whitish to black.

This scrupulous cleanliness means meticulous, frequent washing to remove the oils that are being created so copiously by the skin glands. Get rid of the oils, instead of permitting them to form little cores in a pore here and there. Wash frequently. Rinse well and dry well, alternately using hot and cold.

There are plenty of liquid soaps suitable for the washing. Often, however, the opening of the pores becomes coated with a film called keratin. To remove this film a stiff vegetable brush can be used. Don't use stiff, harsh brushes. Damaging the skin is no answer for blackheads! However, there are brushes which can be used containing a solvent which will soften the keratin, freeing the blackhead. A good daily material below it.

HOW TO SQUEEZE

Now as to squeezing — when blackheads become large and unsightly, squeezing is unavoidable, provided you do it the right way.

Be careful. Cover your fingers with a bit of cuticle cloth. Don't dig the nails into the skin. A blackhead remover is just right — one that is sterile. And whether you use the blackhead remover or the fingers, be gentle about it. Then depend on the washing and rinsing to keep the skin clear from forming again.

I'm not sure that diet plays much of a role in blackheads, although I don't say it doesn't. In any event, eat plenty of a balanced diet and let it go at that.

We do know that blackheads (or pimples) tend to lessen as the youngster becomes older. We also have observed that emotionally disturbed youngsters seem to have more pimples, but can't say the same about blackheads.

On the other hand, youngsters who think easily seem less likely to have them, leading to the use of a drug (nicotinic acid) to dilate the blood vessels and cause an artificial flushing. It will take a good deal of testing before we know whether that really helps, but so long as it is used with caution under medical supervision I don't see how it is likely to be harmful.

"Dear Dr. Molner: My son is 9 and has never been circumcised. Is it necessary? Would it cause him much pain now? I have heard some boys get it done after they reach puberty.—(C.F.)"

Not necessary — but advisable. If it were my boy, I'd say have it done now. A few days of discomfort, yes, but nothing to worry about.

Cookery Great Art

Fredericton Gleaner

We understand that a volume is being prepared dealing with the culinary art in the present status in New Brunswick of the various racial strains in the province. We venture to predict that one great form of art, practiced here by thousands of people and sometimes with superlative skill, will not be mentioned in this volume.

This is the art of cookery, perhaps the greatest of the arts, for it appeals not merely to our eyes but to our taste, sight, smell and taste — as well as to that super-sense which is the combination of all these greater than any one — the gestalthe sense, the sense of health.

Yet cookery is the great unappreciated art. We do not class the great cooks with great painters, musicians, sculptors and architects. We do not rate a great pastry as highly as a great painting, or a good soup as highly as a good song.

Good cookery suffers a fatal disadvantage. It is the only one of the arts of which the ultimate appreciation is destroyed when it is created. We do not destroy a painting by looking at it, a poem by reading it, or a building by living in it. But the best of food disappears when we eat it.

THE SEED OF TRUE WISDOM

We all remember the famous statement of Socrates, that he was the wisest man in all the world because he knew all he knew and his generation realized that he knew nothing.

One reason why it is so hard for people to learn is because they do not recognize the necessity f o r learning. They think they already know quite enough already. They may be failing in life, but this is because of God and they are not unhappy, but this because of the malice and devilry of their associates.

True greatness and humility of mind go together. Knowledge and Lincoln in our own national h i s tory are examples of men w h o were always eager to learn a n d

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Stodgy and old-fashioned people like myself find those terrible present cannot go through t h e light fixture department of t h e big store or through cocktail-dress shops devoted to lighting fixtures without being puzzled beyond understanding by the artistic style of the great majority of lighting offered for sale. It appears next to impossible to buy a perfectly plain, simple, unornamented lamp. To escape from the so-called modern trend seems out of the question.

I was complaining in these columns recently about the terrible tizzures departments when I encountered another old-fashioned character overheard us and joined in. The manager was in t h e middle of explaining:

"Don't you see," he said, "the Great modern idea is that you are trying to escape from the past. They want something different, something that has no connection with the past."

"I was in here last year," he said. "Everything now is different from what it was then. Why, I'll tell you what everybody is trying to escape from. They're not trying to escape from the past. They're trying to escape from the present."

With which startling observation, the conversation broke up.

'Europe's Toy Countries' Viewed By Large Assembly at Collegiate

The fine assembly of adventure lovers who came to view the opening of a six-series of travelogue films, "Europe's Toy Countries," sponsored by the Kiwanis Club, in the Collegiate auditorium, last evening, was well rewarded in the outstanding views displayed, and the intensely interesting narration given by the narrator, Mr. Nicol Smith.

Mr. Smith, who was introduced by the Kiwanian president, Mr. Charles Lusk, began his adventure travels at the age of 17, travelling the Danube River, and other luring spots. Born in San Francisco, educated at Stanford University, the author of five books, and serving as a secret agent, his background fitted him with a wealth of material which is so ably displayed in his running commentary.

The first of the four "Toy Countries" visited was the principality of Monaco, made doubly interesting by the real life story of the beautiful Princess Grace, and the handsome prince charming, Prince Ranier.

MONACO

Monaco, an eight square mile principality, lies between the Maritimes Alps and the Mediterranean, and is ruled by Prince Ranier, a scion of the Grimaldi House. His 300 room castle sits atop a lofty mountain whose sides are dotted with villas and hotels, overlooking the blue waters of the Mediterranean sea.

The people are tax free, only those of the fourth generation may be known as natives. The chief income is from the gambling casino, to which no resident is permitted to attend. Levies on cigarets and tobacco are another source of income.

The views showed the wedding procession; the lovely cliff gardens; the port and harbor; Prince Ranier's Jaguars, and other interesting scenes, and a close-up of the Prince and Princess, who is as lovely as a princess should be.

ANDORRA

The Land of Andorra consists of 191 square miles, is 20 miles in length, and 46 miles wide. Farming is one of the activities, but by the main, smuggling is indulged in. The country people are poor, but there are modern apartments in the towns. It is tri-lingual, French, Spanish and the native dialect. It is chiefly noted for its Andorra Radio.

Hotel rates are low, with fine meals served, averaging $5 per day. Mr. Smith said he had held a party for eight, and the total cost was $20.

The natives are fond of folk dances and their costumes are most colorful. The mature dancers are tall and slender, with dark complexions. They are very religious, and the country as a whole is a haven of rest.

Smuggling is a matter of income, here, as well, with approximately 77,000 pounds of tobacco being the highlight.

SAN MARINO

San Marino, so named from Marino, a stone cutter, who formed the settlement 16 centuries ago. The land is Christian, and the citizens sober, and hard-working. One source of income is by stamps. In area it consists of 22 square miles, craggy, near the Atlantic coast, and the last of the Italian republics. It is governed, by two captains, has a military force of 1950. Souvenir shops dot the hillside, and the making of ceramics also affords some income. The hills have numerous castles, the most famous mountain is Titanus.

Liechtenstein, on the right bank of the Rhine river, opposite the Swiss territory, is noted for its great castles, of which Gutenberg is foremost. The people are independent, not a beggar in the country. All own their own homes, a city home and a country home. Peculiar fences are a feature of the country.

DAIRYING

The main industry is dairying, and the making of butter. About 6000 cows are maintained, milked early, with milk taken to the head factory before 7.00 a.m. Another industry is the making of false teeth which requires great skill. Some teeth are for the invention of the little black. Liechtenstein is noted for the invention of the little stimulator which adds, multiplies, divides and subtracts to several decimal-points.

The pictures included tours of the castles, trips to the little farmlets with their droves of sheep; visiting industrial plants, viewing the art galleries, enjoying the native dances, truly a "magic-carpet" in undreamed of places of natural beauty.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

Mrs. Karl Langman, 363 1/2 Foster Avenue, is progressing favorably, following a recent appendectomy in Belleville General Hospital.

Holiday weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. McDonell, R. R. 6, Belleville, were: Mr. and Mrs. James McCoy and family, and Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Grummisch and Diane, of Ottawa.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lee, R.R. 4 Belleville, have arrived safely in Nottingham, England, via air from Montreal. This is the first time in 28 years that Mr. Lee has visited his former home.

Miss Lois Eyan Kelleher, Gordon Street, who underwent an appendectomy on Wednesday afternoon at the Belleville General Hospital, is progressing favorably.

Alpha Lambda Plans Black And Gold Ball

Mrs. R. Smith presided at a lush meeting of Alpha Lambda Chapter Beta Sigma Phi at the home of Mrs. Ken Simpson.

After the opening ritual the new guests were welcomed and introduced. All the members gave a brief resume of their lives.

Mrs. L. Reid gave a talk on the History of Beta Sigma Phi since its foundation in 1931. After the treasurer's report was given a short business meeting took place.

The report on the Black and Gold Ball to be held next month showed that all things are progressing favorably. It was decided not to hold the annual fall banquet this year because of the dance.

After the meeting closed the rest of the evening was spent socially by playing cards.

Refreshments were served by the hostess, Mrs. W. Simpson, and the co-hostess, Mrs. R. Irvine.

Don't Moan Says Housewife In Interview

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — A professional personnel interviewer took a look at married life here and produced some tips for the housewife.

Mrs. Hugh Hancock of Waterloo, Ont., gave this advice:

"Don't be a moaner. Everybody has problems, so try to master your own.

"Don't put a flap when you entertain. It should be fun; not a nightmare. If you are too exhausted and exhausted to enjoy yourself when company comes, take stock, girls—there's something wrong with you!"

CALM VIEW

Mrs. Hancock added these words for the harassed housewife:

"Don't try to keep up with the Joneses. If you can't afford to live in that special district don't preach to the old man that everybody you know is moving in.

"Do give your husband plenty of attention even if the children sap your time and energy.

"If you want to work when the children are now longer dependent on you, go ahead; you'll be less frustrated.

"In marriage, it takes two people facing their problems together realistically, with a sense of humor, using sympathy, thoughtfulness and above all a down-to-earth mutual love."

Wedding

ENGLISH — PURVIS

FRANKFORD — On Friday evening, October 10th, at 7.45 p.m. in Frankford Full Gospel Tabernacle parsonage, the Rev. Gordon Pierce united in marriage Joanne Gayle Purvis, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Purvis, of Belleville, Ont., R.R. 2, and Edward Earl English, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jim English of Trenton.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was lovely in a street-length gown of white satin brocade on crepe with black accessories and corsage of red roses.

Her only sister, Sandra Purvis, was her attendant, dressed in a street-length coral taffeta dress with white accessories.

The marriage was decorated with pink and white streamers and white wedding bells for the occasion.

Mr. and Mrs. George Blatherwick are pictured signing the register following their marriage in the [illegible] The bride is the former Audrey Lorraine Belshaw, only daughter of Mrs. Roy Belshaw, of Belleville, and the late Mr. Belshaw. BLATHERWICK — BELSHAW

A lovely autumn wedding was solemnized at high noon, on Saturday, September 27, in Christ Church, Belleville, when Audrey Lorraine Belshaw, only daughter of Mrs. Roy Belshaw, Belleville, and the late Mr. Belshaw, became the bride of George Bertram Blatherwick, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Blatherwick, of Shannonville, Ontario.

The double-ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Gerald Smith before an altar of white lilies and white gladioli adorned the chancel rail.

Mr. J. C. Withers, church organist, provided the traditional wedding music, and accompanied the soloist, Mr. Thomas Hinchey, of Shannonville, cousin of the bridegroom, who rendered "The Lord's Prayer", and during the signing of the register, "Ave Maria."

Given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. Robert Belshaw, of Campbellford, Ontario, the bride was radiant in a floor-length, white bridal gown of silk taffeta. The fitted bodice was adorned with a circular cowl collar in front with insets of French lace and iridescents ending in a deep "V" at the back, while long sleeves ending in lily-points over the wrists. The bouffant skirt featured a deep border of French lace giving a bustle effect on the wide panels which flared from a chapel train. Her finger-tip veil of tulle illusion was held in place by a lace coronet encrusted with iridescent and seed pearls. She carried a cascade of baby orchids, white heather, Bradshaw, and Mrs. Bert Newman of Belleville as bridesmaids, were gowned alike in Dior Blue crystelate with fitted bodices and tiny mandarin collars, the rounded necklines ending in a deep "V" at the back. The full princess skirts were adorned with large back bows. They wore matching feather headdress mists and ed.

NOLAN — CASSELMAN

A very pretty autumn wedding was solemnized on Wednesday, October 15, at 4.00 p.m. by the Reverend R. G. Fleming in St. Paul's Anglican Church, Marmora, when Ena May Casselman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russel Casselman, of Malone, became the bride of Edward James Nolan, of Belleville, son of Mrs. Archibald Harrigan, of Belleville, and the late Mr. Leo W. Nolan.

The bride was charmingly attired in white satin and organza with matching headdress and finger-tip veil of tulle illusion with shower bouquet of roses.

The bridegroom was attended by his brother, Mr. Leo Nolan, of Belleville.

Following the ceremony, the happy couple left for a short honeymoon to easterly points. Upon their return, Mr. and Mrs. Nolan will reside in Marmora.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents where the bride's mother and the bridegroom's mother received the twenty-five guests.

Classical Dance History Given at Ballet Guild

At its opening meeting of the 1958-59 season, the Belleville branch of the National Ballet Guild listened to a fascinating, dissertation on the history of classical dancing given by Miss Kay Ambrose, artistic adviser to Canada's famous Nations; Ballet Company and designer of its costumes and scenery. The speaker's background demonstrates an amazing versatility since, in addition to designing she has been a writer and illustrator for many magazines and a dancer in both European and Indian companies. This versatility was again illustrated by her ability as a speaker, and by the fact that her talk to the Ballet Guild covered entirely different ground from the one dress given earlier in the day to the Kiwanis Club.

Miss Ambrose traced the beginnings of Ballet back to the pageants and "disguisements" of the Middle Ages, and to a famous medieval wedding in 1581 when the entertainment of the sumptuous banquet were introduced and accompanied by suitably attired dancers.

KINGS PARTICIPATED

It probably came as a surprise to most of her audience to heard that French kings, Louis XIII, XIV and XV, all danced themselves in ballets presented at the courts, and that Ambrose executed a rapid blackboard sketch of one of these monarchs in costume, together with his partner, his horse, .

The ballet in the drama of the time, female parts were played by young boys, but soon the ladies began to appear and Ambrose in a series of delightful illustrated sketches, came on the scene, and the matter of costume assumed an added and unexpected importance. Two such ladies, De Subligny and Camargo, imported from Paris from France into England, and in the early half of the 18th Century appeared on an equality with the ideal of the period. Miss Ambrose traced the development of what has now become the traditional ballet costume, the bouffant skirt, the tutu, and illustrated with her three attractive sketches.

BALLET TO VISIT HERE

In her remarks at the opening of the meeting, Miss Leona Riggs, branch president, referred to the coming visit of the Grand Ballet Canadien and stated and mentioned that tickets were already on sale. The only one performance is being given this year, it is expected that there will be a big demand for seats, and members are advised to book early, either by mail to P.O. Box 91, or in person at Ed Thomas Cigar Store.

Miss Riggs announced that Guild membership dues were now payable, and pointed out that many Belleville citizens would take this opportunity of demonstrating their support of this wonderful company, which Miss Ambrose described as being already among the finest in the world.

The thanks of the audience were expressed to Miss Ambrose by Mrs. R. Hoskins who referred to the glowing publicity which had preceded the speaker, as "star treatment" said Mrs. Robbins "has not merely come up to the promise of the advance notices, she has far surpassed them."

NOTICE
WE APOLOGIZE LADIES!

We realize our dreadful mistake now and we humbly apologize with a promise, we rounded off on this miter!

We have made amends and have corrected this error, but regardless we still neglected you . . . we can only hope you'll read our correction ad in Saturday's paper and forgive us for this unpardonable error.

We have not changed our policy one bit, regardless of the promise of the advance notices, she has staff where the bride is employed.

DUNDAS EAST AT FARLEY

Mr. and Mrs. Francis Alanne Shandraw are shown signing the register following their recent marriage in Holloway Street United Church, Belleville. The bride is the former Miss Marilyn Yvonne Bird, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Garrance P Bird, of Belleville, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Shandraw, also of Belleville. (Photo by Loyola McCabe, Belleville.)

SHANDRAW — BIRD

A lovely, double - ring wedding was solemnized on Saturday, September 27, at 2.00 p.m. in Holloway Street United Church, Belleville, when Marilyn Yvonne Bird, of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Garrance Perry Bird, was united in marriage to Francis Alanne Shandraw, also of Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stirling Shandraw, by the Reverend C. W. Coleman, pastor of the church. Fall standards of pasted - tinted gladioli adorned the chancel, and white satin bows designated the guest pews.

Mr. Clifford Templer, church organist, rendered the wedding music, and accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Scriven, who rand the "Wedding Prayer", and "I'll Walk Beside You."

Given in marriage by her father, Mr. Garrance Bird, the bride was radiant in her bridal gown of white lustrelite lace and net featuring a fitted bodice and full, flowing skirt. She wore a crown of sequins and matching lace with tulle illusion veil, and carried red Garnet roses, mingled with fern and stephanotis.

Miss Patricia Galpin, of Belleville R. R. 6, as maid of honor was gowned in pastel blue lace and net with matching headdress and carried a bouquet of white mums surrounded by blue lace.

The two bridesmaids, Miss Brenda Bird, sister of the bride, was attired in pale green lace and net with matching headband and carrying a bouquet of white mums, edged with green lace, and Miss Norma Bird, cousin of the bride, wore yellow lace and net with matching headdress and matching flowers.

The two little flower girls, five - year - old cousins of the bride, Marlene Howard, of Canniffton, in blue lace and net over taffeta, and Darlene McTaggart, of Cherry Valley, in pink lace and net, carried baskets of flowers matching each other's dresses, and wore headbands of baby mums.

Mr. Stirling W. Shandraw, of Belleville, attended the bridegroom, while Messrs. Donald McTaggart, of Thomasburg, and Mr. Verdun Whitmarsh, of Belleville, ushered the guests.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Masonic Temple, with Mrs. Ruth Bird and friends doing the catering.

The bride's mother, wearing a dark brown wool suit with white accessories and corsage of yellow roses, received, assisted by the bridegroom's mother who was attired in light, powder blue lace with beige accessories, and corsage of pink roses.

For the wedding trip to Syracuse, New York, the bride chose a dark brown wool suit with pink accessories, and corsage of pink roses. Upon their return, Mr. and Mrs. Shandraw will reside at 176 Foster Avenue, Belleville.

Guests attended from Willowdale, Toronto, Malone, Tweed, and Belleville.

Previous to her marriage, the bride was entertained at miscellaneous showers by Mrs. William McCormick, Mrs. Reg. Bird, and Mrs. Lindsay Bird; by Mrs. A. King and Mrs. Arthur Bird also at a miscellaneous shower by Mrs. C. Moore and Mrs. Boomhour. At a pantry shower given by Mrs. Nora Kaiser and at a miscellaneous shower given by Miss Patricia Galpin.

Melrose 4-H Club Elects Officers

The first meeting of the Melrose 4-H club was held on October 2 at the home of the leader, Mrs. T. Howard, who welcomed the members.

The election of officers was held as follows; president — Shirley Pascoe; vice-president — Joan Milligan; treasurer — Carolyn Fox; press reporter — Barbara Wessel.

The name for the club was discussed and 'Melrose Modern Maids' was chosen. It was decided to have the meetings on Saturday afternoons at the homes of the leaders.

The leader discussed the suitability in occasion, style, and laundering qualities of clothes, also weaves and kinds of cloth were discussed.

So-Ed Opens Session With Travelogue

Wednesday evening was the second in the So-Ed Fall '58 session of the Y.M.C.A. and the scene of much activity as still more members registered for the course of classes. Total registration to date is approximately 70 young adults.

The "Effective Speaking" class conducted by Mr. Ted T. Simpson, M. Eng. of Northern Electric Co. Mr. Simpson was introduced by Susan Cambridge who is the committee member in charge of the class.

Johnny Meyers is teaching the art of making jams and planning out of doors meals. He had with him several lamps beautifully finished and some planters of most attractive design.

The fencing class under the direction of Mr. Syd Rose learned how to thrust and the stances. This class promises to be interesting especially to those enrolled in it. Mr. Rose was introduced to the boys by Rodney Burr, chairman of skills and crafts.

The give class is under the direction of the Dinent School of the Dance. This class as usual is extremely popular.

Travelogue was "West Indies" presented by Ronan Cambridge with color slides taken while visiting his home island of Barbados. Mr. Cambridge was introduced by Rodney Burr and thanked by Royden Thompson who presented him with a small token of appreciation from So-Ed in general and the travelogue registrants in particular. Mr. Davis mentioned that the present is the volunteered assistance to one of the islands shown during the picture was a Mr. Fred Davis from near Foxboro.

Dr. Harold Swann, who is teaching mathematics, science and religious knowledge at Albert College is conducting a course in geology. Dr. Swann was for 18 years principal of Naparima Teachers College in Trinidad. Miss Olwen Morris, chairman of courses and registration, introduced Dr. Swann to the class.

In the kitchen the class on cooking for entertaining prepared delicious cookies for the refreshment period under the direction of Mrs. F. Shoemaker.

After refreshments, the usual dancing party took place. The theme for the evening was "Harvest Hoe-down" and in keeping with this theme, square dancing as well as round dancing formed the program. Prizes for the elimination dance were won by Miss Barb. Williams and Jim Herrington.

Registration will continue next Wednesday evening in those classes which are not as yet filled to capacity. To date the number of registrants, their interest and quality of participation indicates a successful session ahead.

So-Ed is also planning on attending the Ice Capades in Toronto early next month.

Q.A. Assoc. Holds First Fall Meeting

The Queen Alexandra Home and School Association held its opening meeting Tuesday evening at the school with a large crowd in attendance.

The president, Mrs. B. Stinson, opened the meeting and extended a warm welcome to everyone.

Mr. Kenneth Harsden, who left the teaching staff last June, was presented with a gift by Mrs. Stinson on behalf of the association. Mr. Harsden expressed his appreciation for their thoughtfulness.

The principal, Mr. M. M. Hackett also gave a cordial welcome to all the parents after which he briefly explained the rotary system as it is used in this school, and presented the teachers from kindergarten to grade VI, introducing two new teachers, Mrs. Bryant and Miss Shaw.

The grade VII and grade VIII teachers were then called to the front and each in turn gave a summary of their work in the present school year. Mrs. Embery teaches home economics to the girls, while Mr. Collins, a new teacher, trains the boys in industrial arts.

Mrs. J. Thompson explained mathematics and guidance; Mrs. Spafford discussed social studies; Mrs. Szczerba enlightens the children with music; Mrs. Dier spoke about the science course; Mr. Jewell, another new teacher, stresses health and physical education; Mr. Lott impresses English composition and grammar on his pupils.

Dr. Evelyn Williamson graduated and thanked Mr. Hackett and the teachers for their informative talks.

Parents were then invited to have lunch in a group with the teacher of their child.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. A. Hubbs, assisted by the mothers of Mrs. Leland's class.

The meeting thoroughly enjoyed by everyone.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Beeckman

ABOUT "MISS" AND "MASTER" BEFORE CHILDREN'S NAMES

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. I have three nieces, all under three years old. This year I would like to have individual Christmas cards. How should I write their names — with or without "Miss" before the name? It does seem rather strange, though formal, to address such a young girl with "Miss" before her name. Is there a definite rule about this?

2. Also I have two nephews, one 12, the other 14. When I address Christmas cards to them, is it proper to use "Master" before their names? — "Auntie Jane"

1. Yes, there is a definite rule about this, "Auntie Jane." When you address the Christmas card envelope, you should always write "Miss" before the name of a girl . . . even if she is only two years old.

2. When you address t h e Christmas card envelopes to these two young boys, they will undoubtedly prefer to have you follow today's custom, omit the title "Master" before their names, and simply John Blake. ("Master" isn't incorrect, but nowadays young boys just don't like it, prefer their name written without title.)

Lingerie Lines

Lingerie, especially sleep and lounge wear, has undergone a change of line along with the rest of the wardrobe. Sheer white tricot is used for this pretty new nightie, nicely set off by red shoulder straps and front-tie sash. The belt, which goes all the way around in back, slips under two flared panels on either side of the accordion – pleated front panel.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Evelyn D. — I'm in love with another man.

Fred D. — I don't want to live in God's paradise any longer.

Evelyn D. — My husband and I have been married 15 years and have two young children. My husband is a fine person — a considerate husband and good father — but I'm afraid I have never been in love with him.

That is my problem. I managed to convince myself that Fred would be the right "match" for me, but I have never known the experience of being in love — until recently.

The man happens to be a business associate of my husband's. I have known him almost as long as I've known my husband, yet we've met each other only occasionally. He is always a great deal of tension when we are alone together. He is a bachelor and I have good reason to believe he has been in love with me all these years. I don't want to break up my home, but my husband says that if things are this way he'll release me and let me marry the other man.

Fred D. — This whole-thing has broken on me like a storm. I never had any idea Evelyn felt this way. I have always loved her and she has been a good and devoted wife. How can I to know she never loved me?

I feel that I have been living in a fool's paradise for 15 years and I don't want to live in one any longer. The night Evelyn told me about all this I wanted to pack my bags and go at once, but she persuaded me to remain on 1 h e basis that we mustn't do anything hasty for the children's sake.

Since Evelyn and my friend have now openly declared their love, I feel the first step is for her to talk it over with him. I feel that she should open the subject since his loyalty to me evidently won't allow him to speak up. Maybe some people would think I'm a fool to give up so easily, but I think I'd be a fool to cling to nothing.

The Council: Fred's immature flare-up seems to be serving as an effective check to his wife's immature romanticism. Without meaning to, he has called her bluff and put her in the position of being forced to deal with realities.

We have no idea of what Evelyn means by being "in love" but from the account she gives it apparently has nothing to do with human, social intercourse. S h e has known, and evidently liked, her husband's business associate for 15 years yet has rarely spoken to him. This suggests that she has exceptionally undeveloped socially and this is undoubtedly a reflection of her emotional life.

We don't doubt that there is tension when Evelyn is alone with a man and unable to make casual friendly conversation with him, but we emphatically deny that is a symptom of love.

On the other hand, we are fairly certain that Evelyn overlooks many of the real signs of love in her marriage. The fact that her husband considers her a good and devoted wife indicates that she has felt and shown loyalty, consideration and tenderness. We suspect that these feelings would become intensified if she had the maturity to recognize the genuine article and would try to express her feelings more actively instead of withdrawing into a self-induced dream.

Fred should know that he has been living in a fool's paradise. His wife has been creating a fool's nightmare.

The Experts Say

Wildest Parties Are Those Where Guests 3 Years Old

By EDNA USHER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — Despite all that's said about "wild" parties of adolescents, the problem age where parties are concerned is from three years, says Dorothy Millichamp.

Now assistant director of the Institute of Child Study in Toronto, Miss Millichamp has been observing children for nearly 30 years.

"Children aren't really interested in parties at two and three," she says. "usually because the gatherings are too highly organized and the children become frightened.

MAY BE SCARED

"Well-intentioned mothers arrange musical and action games, but this can scare a child until he doesn't want to go to parties any more.

"It's better with this age group to hand out coloring books and plasticine and let the children effect play together or separately, depending entirely on their own desires."

Children of two or three years, possibly up to five, are not ready to play together, and forcing them to join in games may frighten them, she said.

Another point is the party food. "It is a mistake to prepare lots of rich food, to which the children are not accustomed. At this age they like the familiar things, with perhaps just a touch of luxury—a cherry on top of the ice - cream will make it look partyish without making it too different."

FANCY DRESS

At these ages, too, children should not be forced to dress up for a party if they don't wish to do so.

"Generally, they like to dress up a little bit, but if it bothers them, don't insist."

Paper hats and the bangs in crackers should be carefully watched. "Small children often don't like paper hats, and being frightened by the bang of a cracker can make a child dislike parties for years," she said.

These comments on party-going arise from a study being made of development of a sense of security in pre-school children. Miss Millichamp is concentrating on the period between two years and entry into nursery school at four.

"Ideally, children should be so brought up that they trust adults and trust themselves," she said. "Parents must ensure this by behaving predictably, shielding the children from adults who don't behave predictably, and encouraging youngsters to tackle problems and develop self-confidence.

"By the time a child enters school he should be respectful to adults and have enough initiative to tackle school work."

WEE WOMEN

"Instead of our taking a two week vacation together, why don't you go off by yourself for a month?"

Half Dentists In Thailand Are Women

TORONTO (CP) — Half the dentists in Thailand are women, says Dr. D. Nashika Cravalh, 28-year-old woman dentist from Bangkok.

"There just happen to be more women than men in my country," she says.

Dr. Chavalit is studying dental public health at Toronto's school of hygiene and plans to establish a similar course at the University of Bangkok next year. She came here under the Colombo Plan which provides economic aid to develop south Asiatic countries.

"The Colombo Plan has been a great help in our country," Dr. Chavalit said in an interview. "It has given England and New Zealand have provided equipment and Canada is training students."

Four doctors from Ceylon are also studying public health in Toronto, while persons from other countries are training with private firms. Canada has trained 712 persons and given $1,907,000,000 to the Colombo Plan since 1951.

Readers' Friday Column

As conducted by Mary Moore

QUESTION:

. . . just returned from a visit home . . . mothers and I were swapping recipes . . . (Does this sound familiar?) Most of mine were from your column — chicken casserole, stream-lined chocolate cake etc. While discussing food a problem my sister has New Years . . . entertain "in-laws". Traditionally she serves roast turkey etc. . . . After a week of over indulgence most of us don't care . . . suggested buffet, with main-dish something similar to your chicken casserole . . . I also have problem . . . we are non-drinkers, what to serve guests . . . alcoholic punch and nibbling foods throughout the evening or a substantial lunch at the end? Thanks again for your help. We did a lot of pre-wedding entertaining this June and I am sure most of the food cooked was from recipes of yours clipped over the past few years.—M. M.

ANSWER:

Thanks for all of those compliments — but the bouquets still go to the cooks. They are the ones who have to do the work. Yes, I think your sister is right — some things served buffet style would be nice and I am receiving a release of July that has been received so well.

VEAL AND KIDNEY MOWBRAY PIE:

Excellent as the one hot item for an otherwise cold supper. English Pastry: (For sides and top of one 10" x 2" casserole.) Three cups unsifted flour, 1 tablespoon baking powder, 1½ teaspoon salt, 1½ cups shortening, ⅔ cup boiling water, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 1 egg yolk. Sift together the flour, baking powder and salt, and cut in ¾ cup shortening with pastry blender. To remaining shortening add boiling water and stir until shortening is melted. Add lemon juice, then egg yolk and stir. Stir into flour mixture, then knead for 3 minutes. Chill for ½ hour for easier handling.

MEAT FILLING:

Trim and cut up 2 veal kidneys and soak in cold water ½ hr. Drain and dry. Cut up 1½ lbs. stewing veal. Dredge all meat with ½ cup flour to which you have added ¾ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon each curry powder and MSG and ¼ teaspoon pepper. Melt ¼ cup butter or margarine in large frying pan and in it saute 1 small chopped green onions, with tops, until limp. Add floured veal and kidney to pan and brown on all sides. Add one 12-oz. can mushrooms (broken pieces and stems are fine) with liquid and 1¼ cups boiling water. Stir until thick. Simmer over low heat, while you roll out pastry. Divide pastry in halves. Roll out one half into long narrow strip and line casserole, fitting as you place. Pour in filling. Roll out top crust just to fit and gash top liberally. Press edges firmly to prevent side leaks. Brush top with beaten egg white. Bake at 450 deg. for 10 minutes then at 275 deg. for 2 hours .

CIDER PUNCH:

Combine 2 cups orange juice, 2 cups fresh cider, 1 cup lemon juice and 2 cups sugar. Keep in refrigerator until serving time. Add just before serving 1 - 32-oz. bottle of gingerale or soda water. Serve poured over crushed ice with sprig of mint or a maraschino cherry with the stem on. Men like this as it is not sweet or sticky. The meat pie might help you also and the finger foods will have to come direct by mail.

SHAMPOOS often mean uncomfortable and repeated carbuls of water. Small cotton plugs will help the most, but for a diversion, slip a tiny bowl cover over each ear. They won't fit snugly enough to keep the water out, but they do help take an apprehensive child's mind off the head-wetting.

STOLEN GEMS RECOVERED FOR $19

Mrs. Kenneth Carter lost a ring and brooch worth $10,000 and a number of other less expensive articles when her Toronto home was burglarized about a year ago. While shopping in Detroit with her husband Kenneth, Mrs. Carter was examining some knickknacks and jewelry in a peddler's suitcase when she spotted her stolen ring and brooch, both heirlooms that had been in her family for years. After paying the peddler ten dollars for the jewelry, Mrs. Carter rushed to find a policeman. By the time she found one the peddler had disappeared. However, she was "overjoyed" at recovering her gems.

Kingston Man Sent for Trial On Bribe Charge

KINGSTON (CP) — Arthur Mason, Kingston business man, appeared before Magistrate J. A. Hanrahan at a preliminary hearing today and was committed to trial on charges of attempting to bribe civic officials.

He was placed on $1,000 bail and will stand trial by judge and jury at the next assizes which begin Nov. 17.

Mason is charged with attempting to bribe Mayor Frank P. Boyce and Thomas A. Andre, a member of the public utilities commission, with at least $10,000 each to obtain the franchise for distribution of natural gas here.

Mayor Boyce testified he was shocked when Mason, a one-time mayoralty candidate, gave him a letter in March last year offering $10,000 if Consumers' Gas Company Limited won the Kingston distribution franchise.

The mayor said he put the letter in his private file until he showed it to his wife last month.

Mason was hired by Consumers' Gas as a part-time representative in April last year.

Kingston residents are to vote in December on whether they want the public utilities commission to continue in the gas distribution business or have the franchise taken over by Lakeland Natural Gas Limited, a private concern.

Consumers' Gas is also seeking the franchise for this city of some 30,000 but the commission has ruled that Lakeland should be the only company considered as an alternative because of lower rates. The commission has drawn up a lease arrangement with Lakeland.

It has also given final reading to a bylaw requesting city council to put Lakeland on a ballot for the public vote. The lease arrangement and bylaw still have to be approved by council.

Jesus' Call to Ministry

By Ray L. Smith

Few decisions any man ever makes have a more determinative or creative effect upon his life than his choice of a life work. Throughout the history of the Christian Church great emphasis has been laid upon the fact that from time to time God calls men to the holy office of the ministry. The whole matter has been surrounded with much mysticism, and no little misunderstanding. The layman is apt to hold the case in some thing like awe, and to the preacher who has been called it is an unforgetable experience around which every major decision of his life thereafter revolves.

YOUNG MAN OF THIRTY

We are accustomed to speaking of Jesus as "the young man of Nazareth," and at the age of thirty He would be called young in today's world. But in His own time He was considered well advanced in middle age. Certainly He was no youth. The High Priest Caiaphas was probably only a little older, and Pilate, the procurator of Judea, seems to have been only in his middle thirties.

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for October 19: "The Baptism of Jesus," Matthew 3:13-17; Luke 3:15-22.

Modern medicine has had the effect of lengthening the average life of man, and where seventy is with us an approach to old age, forty was an actual old age in Jesus' day. At the age of thirty Jesus was fully matured, at the height of His powers, and a man of commanding maturity.

ALWAYS A LAYMAN

According to any record we have in the New Testament, Jesus had never been anything but a carpenter, up to the time that He appeared at the fords of the Jordan to receive baptism at the hands of John the Baptist. There are those who think He may have spent some time in the Essene monastery on the west shore of the Dead Sea. They profess to find some reason for thus believing, on the basis of evidence contained in the Dead Sea Scrolls only recently unearthed. But such a belief can be nothing more than a conjecture.

At the time of His baptism Jesus had never preached a sermon, performed a miracle, or taken any leadership responsibility in the synagogue in Nazareth of which we have any knowledge. When He stood at the bank of the Jordan, His hands were heavily calloused, His muscles were hard and firm, and His speech was that of the common people.

WHAT MADE THE DIFFERENCE?

Except for a single brief, and inconclusive, reference to a boyhood experience, when Jesus seems to have been under the impression that He was destined to perform some unusual service, there is nothing in the New Testament to indicate that He had any great plans in mind. Eighteen long years had gone by and nothing had happened. He was by now well past the age when men of His times would have stepped out into the limelight. So far as Nazareth could see, He was to be the carpenter for the rest of His life.

Then came His baptism, and the announcement of divine endorsement. Precisely what the future might hold He could not foresee, and He had to go to the wilderness to think the matter over. But of one thing He was sure. He had been called. It was the critical moment and experience of His entire career.

HOME EXPLOSION INJURES SIX

All windows were shattered in the explosion at the Boutin household. A hole was torn in the roof and doors collapsed. Workmen are searching for evidence of a leaking gas main which may have led to the explosion.

Two of four children injured in an explosion of a home in Hamilton, Ont., Lisa Boutin, three, and Lucy, two, are treated by Nurse Joyce Stronks at St. Joseph's hospital, where the family of six were rushed for treatment of burns and cuts. The explosion was of such force that a chair and chesterfield were pushed through windows.

Thomasburg

THOMASBURG — All those who attended Tweed Fair on October 4, report a good Fair, with a record breaking crowd possibly due to fine weather and the change of day.

Mrs. Lucy Woodward of Trenton, Ontario, was a recent guest of her sister, Miss Phoebe Kerr, here.

Captain and Mrs. Ted Boldte and daughters, of Picton, were visitors last weekend at the parsonage with Mrs. Boldte's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Dyson.

The sympathy of the community is extended to Mrs. George Dyson, who received word that her sister had passed away in England the latter part of Sptembe:.

Mrs. Keith Baldwin and Mr. Marlow English, who have been patients in Belleville Hospital have returned home, much improved in health.

The installation of officers in the I.O.O.F. Lodge, Thomasburg, took place in the Lodge room on the evening of October 10.

Mr. and Mrs. H. K. Morton returned on Saturday, after enjoying a two week's motor tour to Saskatchewan.

The anniversarery services for Thomasburg United Church took place on Sunday, Mr. George Dyson, pastor, was in charge.

Special music was provided by the choir, with Mrs. W. Grant of West Huntingdon favoring with a solo in the morning and Mr. and Mrs. George Dyson rendering a duet at the evening service.

The thankoffering for the day, well over the objective, was most gratifying.

A large basket of bronze and gold chrysanthemums was placed on the communion table by Mr. and Mrs. John Clarke of Le Pac, Manitoba, and Miss Phoebe Kerr and other relatives in memory of loved ones who have passed on.

Mr. and Mrs. Lorne H. Thompson of Roseland Acres, Trenton, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Thompson.

Bay Street Blues?

It happens to most of us sometime or other: the dollar shares in Sanguine Enterprises that overnight are worth minus nothing. And one is always left with the question, "If I had known the way the market was going, could I have sold in time?" Ah, if 'ifs' were dollar bills we could all retire at 40. However, the investor who keeps an eye peeled on the Financial Section of the Toronto Star is less likely to suffer attacks of the 'Bay Street Blues'. Up-to-the-minute stock quotations from New York, Montreal and Toronto are listed. News of industrial expansion, new products and company flotation is reported. Specialists comment daily on mining, investment and industry. Whatever your subject is — finance or fashion, sports or science, news or national affairs — you'll find it covered completely and colourfully in the Toronto Star. 24-28

IN MOMENTS OF CRISIS—CONFIDENCE COUNTS
Imperial's 78 years of leadership has helped Canadians take for granted the reliability of oil and oil products
Reliability implies an adequate supply of the products you depend upon . . . when and where you need them, at reasonable prices.
Imperial has always been the leader in ensuring Canadians of an adequate supply of oil. Imperial's discovery of oil at Leduc, in 1947, opened the vast western oil fields.
The first oil company to supply consumer needs in all Canada's provinces, Imperial has nine refineries from Halifax to Vancouver (and in the Northwest Territories) to meet the local needs of Canadians.
Imperial has always been the leader, too, in a highly competitive industry which must seek . . . by broadening markets and increasing efficiency . . . to keep prices down. Over the past ten years, while prices of things in general have risen 134%, regular gasoline has gone up only 11%.

Above Leduc, Canadian crude oil reserves have increased 45 times.

Wallbridge

WALLBRIDGE — The Wallbridge W.I. meeting was well attended at the home of Mrs. Wilbur Shorey on Thursday night.

Mrs. J. Taylor, of Sarnia, and Mrs. E. Tucker, of Belleville, spent the past week with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Harris. Mrs. Tucker returned home with Mrs. Taylor to spend the winter months.

Thanksgiving Day was kept by many visiting relatives and many from this village entertained company.

Mrs. Malcolm Sine and children spent the holiday with her parents in Oshawa.

The heavy (run recently frosted the corn so that it was impossible to pick it with machine, so the Foxboro canning factory closed down on Sunday for this season.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Harris, Mrs. E. Tucker and Mrs. J. Taylor were recent dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Mangsberg, and spent the tea-hour with Mr. and Mrs. Claud Tucker, of Belleville.

A new machine shed is being erected by Sidney Councill to store their machinery in the village.

Mr. Walter Acker, of Brantford, was a tea-hour guest of Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Spencer. Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Striker were also callers in the afternoon on Sunday.

The Rev. and Mrs. W. E. G. Dovey and the former's brother, Mr. Harry Dovey, of Trail, B.C., were tea-hour guests of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Harris.

Wallbridge L.O.B.A. held its monthly meeting on Monday evening and plans are being made to hold the lodge 10th Anniversary party on December 5th with a turkey supper.

Bethel Zion

BETHEL-ZION — The October meeting of Bethel-Zion Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Ted Ray with a fairly large attendance of members and several visitors.

The president, Mrs. Tufts, presided and opened the meeting. It was decided to have a baking sale on the market on October 18th. Ladies volunteered to collect baking. Mrs. Roscoe Robson was named delegate to the area convention in Belleville, October 23 and 24.

The roll call, "a baby or child's picture of yourself", was well responded to with most members bringing a picture. Mrs. Delbert Bowe won the prize for guessing the most pictures.

The motto, "Each generation has its part to play in the making of a new and better world" was prepared by Mrs. Earl Sayers and read by Mrs. R. Cranston. Mrs. Laurison Ketcheson then gave a reading.

The topic, "Things Come to Pass", was ably given by Mrs. Ralph Sills. Mrs. Sills also displayed the Tweedsmuir history scrap book and asked members to bring items of interest for the book.

A social half hour followed the conclusion of the meeting.

First Time in Thirty Years Stores Stock up on Derbies

NEW YORK (AP) — For the first time in 30 years, men's stores are stocking up on derbies.

"We're turning out 3,000 a week," says a spokesman for Hat Corporation of America.

"The Fedora is the hottest item in your department for fall.

Compared to Hat Corporation's annual output of 2,500,000 hats and caps, its current production of 3,000 derbies a week—156,000 a year—looks like a drop in the bucket. But it does show which way the fashion winds are blowing. The company made practically no derbies last year.

Right now the derby fad is confined pretty much to youthful sectional executives in New York's Madison Avenue district ("Some retailers call the hat 'Madison Avenue crash helmet'").

The current derby commotion started when Arthur Sarnoff, one-time hat manufacturer who makes a specialty of designing new and unirled styles, came up with something he called the "Thomas Begg bowler."

A jazzed-up version of the old-time derby, Sarnoff's bowler bears only a superficial resemblance to the stiff and formidable iron hat that the cigar-chewing politicians of the Prohibition era used to wear.

It is low-slung, light in weight and sports a narrow brim. It comes in flannel grey, ancient bronze and Al Smith brown as well as traditional black.

The big hat manufacturers smiled while the new bowler got a trial run in a couple of posh mid-Manhattan shops. This fall they decided to try themselves on a mass production basis.

How long will it take for the fad to catch on? Away from Madison Avenue, the derby hasn't created much of a stir as yet. But it's back in all the big stores and the first time in years and there's an expensive promotion push. If the hat industry has its way the derby should be king on Main Street in about a year.

Nasser's Dream of Ruling Arab Empire Hits a Snag

By DAVID ROWNTREE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

President Nasser's dream of ruling an Arab empire from the Atlantic to the Indian Ocean appears to have hit a snag.

The rift between him and President Habib Bourguiba of Tunisia comes as a reminder that the Arabs do have a choice of leaders and that Arab nationalism can have a choice of friends in the world.

Tunisia and Nasser's United Arab Republic have broken off diplomatic relations. This can have some far-reaching effects.

Nasser caused the rift by meddling in the affairs of Tunisia and harboring enemies of Bourguiba who have plotted his death. The Egyptian dictator accused Bourguiba of being a tool of the imperialists.

DUAL LOYALTY

Tunisia is an important base for the Algerian rebels who have been fighting the French for four years in quest of the independence that Bourguiba—won for Tunisia in 1956.

Bourguiba is torn between the desire to help the Algerians — "my brothers" he calls them — and the wish to keep on co-operative terms with France — because "I am a Westerner." This dual loyalty put a severe strain on relations with France earlier this year.

Tunisia is also a leading force in planning for Maghreb, a proposed federation of Morocco, Algeria and Tunisia.

Nasser has also been helping the Algerian rebel cause and apparently trying to dominate it. Ferhart Abbas, leader of the newly-formed Algerian government - in - exile, has been shifting his headquarters between Tunis and Cairo. The break in relations between the two capitals will force him to decide on one.

OTHER SIGNS

If Abbas picks Tunis, as some observers predict he will, that will be further evidence that Nasser might not be the only man for the Arabs. There are other signs, too.

Iraq, which seemed ripe for addition to the U.A.R. at the time of the July revolution, seems inclined to pursue a neutral way. Premier Abdul Karem Kassem could develop into an important Arab leader. He has removed some early supporters who were pro-Nasser.

Shaky little Jordan did the same as Tunisia this summer in breaking diplomatic ties with the U.A.R. King Hussein, still bolstered by British troops, may be willing to accept political reforms that would cut some of the ground from under politicians who are working for union with Egypt and Syria.

Kuwait and Saudi Arabia know that with their oil they hold trump cards in Middle East power politics. They seem to think, for the present at least, that the West can give them the best deal.

The hands of all independent Arab politicians have been strengthened by Bourguiba's action.

CROFTON — Mrs. Charles Haight of Belleville was an over-night guest of her sister, Mrs. E. Crook, on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Jerrold Bongard and girls, of Picton, and Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Alyea and family, of Pleasant Bay, were Sunday guests of their mother, Mrs. Victor Bongard.

Mrs. D. B. Munro and Mrs. R. Moran called on Mrs. Clare Creamer at the R.C.A.F. station on Thursday.

Mrs. D. Jones returned to her home here on Thursday after a few days spent with relatives at Kingston and Picton.

Sgt. Kenneth Duncan of Ottawa called on Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Munro and Keith on Saturday.

The Ladies Aid met at the home of Mrs. E. Crook on Wednesday afternoon and next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Victor Bongard.

URANIUM EXPORTS SHOW SLIGHT DECLINE

A slight decline has been registered in Canada's uranium exports, which had been rising steadily since 1956. The decline is due to strict adherence of delivery schedules that various mining companies have with Canadian, U.S. and British governments. In spite of the decline, which is known to be temporary, total exports of the metal this year will be close to $250,000,000, representing one-sixth of our total exports.

Fishing Resort, Fur-Trade Centre, La Ronge, Sask. Is Exact Centre of Province

LA RONGE, Sask. (CP) — Quickly now, where does northern Saskatchewan begin?

Nope, Saskatoon's in the south. So, for that matter, is Prince Albert, 190-odd miles north of Saskatoon.

The geographical centre of Saskatchewan is right here...kinda smiling south of this fishing resort and fur-trade centre, says northerners, is in southern Saskatchewan.

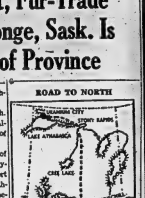
The province stretches more than 1,000 miles from the United States border to the Northwest Territories. La Ronge, nearly 500 miles north of the capital city of Regina and 300 miles north of Saskatoon, is the exact centre—north and south and east and west.

The country to the north is a wilderness, almost untapped and crying for development. Nevertheless, it's part of Saskatchewan and only a comparative handful have seen it.

Th provincial government has set out to convince southerners —and that means most of the 900,000 people in the province—that they should go north and see their own country before going abroad to spend their vacation money. By no means incidentally, the government also hopes to attract development money to the north, rich in mineral and timber resources.

The first step was an aerial tour of the west last month for a party of 18 members of the legislature. For in most MLAs, the northern half of Saskatchewan is almost an unknown land and, the government reasoned, how could they discuss intelligently th problems of the north when they hadn't been there?

So the trip was an eye opener not only to the 10 CCFers, six Liberals and two Social Crediters —specified of the 30-man House —but to an accompanying group of press and radio representatives and businessmen. It was dubbed Operation Closeup — a closeup look at the north.



They found a land of contrast, of poverty and squalor on one hand, luxurious living and gracious homes of the other. Mining centres such as Uranium City on the north shore of Lake Athabasca were beehives of industrious settlements like Portage la Loche on the west side of the province had little but hovels and idle Metis, half-white, half-Indian nomads living on family allowance cheques and social relief.

For while the wealthy tourists can live in luxury for a week at Flin Flonder's Lake fishing lodge, fishing 12- and 15-pound lake trout in crystal-clear, icy water. The native without means of earning a steady livelihood won't make half that amount of money in a year.

The showplace of northern Saskatchewan is Uranium City, hewed from the bush and rock after uranium was discovered there six years ago. It now has a population of more than 5,000 and modern bungalows have replaced the shack tents of yesteryear.

Uranium City is largely fed from Edmonton through the extensive system of waterways that begin with the end of steel at McMurray, Alta. All bulky supplies come by barge and Uranium City wants no change that.

It recently was announced that

Work has started on a highway which will link Uranium City to northern Saskatchewan with the province's road system and its more thickly populated areas.

The road will stretch more than 300 miles from La Ronge in the province's geographical centre through an almost untapped wilderness that needs development.

The new road will not only open up new territory but will help satisfy demands of northerners that the 5,000 people of prosperous Uranium City get their supplies from Saskatchewan. At present the mining city is fed from Edmonton through an extensive system of waterways leading into Lake Athabasca. (CP Newsmap).

a road, to be built with federal and provincial funds, will run from La Ronge north through the centre of the province, around the north shore of Lake Athabasca into Uranium City. Work on this has just started but, its opponents claim, it will be five years before it is completed.

It proposed as an alternative route is a road up the western side of the province from Meadow Lake to the south shore of the lake and then by ferry to Uranium City. This route's proponents say it will cost much less and be of more immediate benefit to a settled region than the Prince Albert-La Ronge-Uranium City road. Those opposed to the Meadow Lake route argue that ferrying across the turbulent lake Athabasca is impractical. The latter group has won out. There is no doubt that some day, both roads will be built.

MUST RETURN TO JAIL

NEW YORK (AP) — Gambler Frank Costello must surrender next Tuesday and resume his five-year prison term for evasion of federal income taxes, Costello, 82, had served nearly 11 months when he was released on $25,000 bail March 11, 1957, to appeal the sentence. Last March the U.S. Supreme Court refused to consider the appeal.

Three persons were taken to the Trenton Memorial Hospital at about 8 a.m. today after the cars in the above photo met in head-on collision on the Doug Hill Road near Trenton. A motorist said one of the cars had attempted to pass him on the brow of a hill and the two cars were taken to hospital by two Weaver ambulances. - (Photo by Georgeson.)

Soviet Claims Air-Space Over Strait Violated

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union has charged that an American airplane violated Soviet airspace over the Bering Strait between Alaska and Siberia Sept. 30.

Other flights over Kamchatka Peninsula, the Kurile Islands and in the area of Chukotsk Peninsula in July, August and September also were charged. The Kurile are a chain of islands extending northeast of Japan. The Kamchatka and Chukotsk Peninsulas jut eastward from Siberia.

The Russians charged that the Bering Strait incident was a deliberate invasion "or intelligence purposes." They pinpointed the area as near Raimanov, or Big Diomede Island.

Big Diomede can be seen from Little Diomede Island, which belongs to the United States. The distance across the strait from Alaska to Siberia is about 30 miles.

REFER TO ARMENIA CRASH

The Soviet note referred to the crash of a U.S. military transport in Soviet Armenia Sept. 2 in which six airmen were killed and 11 unaccounted for. It said the Bering Strait violation was at a time when the United States was "doing its best to deny the fact of a deliberate violation" of Russia's southern frontier.

Russia concludes that the United States is sanctioning such violations, the note said.

CHARGES LIBEL

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A $2,575,000 libel suit has been filed by actor James Mason, who charges that a television program accused him of being disloyal to England. Defendants are producer Mort Abrahams, National Television Associates and two of its officers, Mason, British - born, said allegations by Abrahams reflecting on his personal character and integrity were published in the London Daily Express Sept. 29.

Exonerate Firm Which Undersold Its Competitors

OTTAWA (CP) — A western wholesale firm has been exonerated by the restrictive trade practices commission of violating the Criminal Code by unreasonably undercutting other wholesalers in the Edmonton area.

As a result, Justice Minister Fulton announced today there will be no court prosecution of Macdonalds Consolidated Limited, accused by competitors of unfair competition.

T. D. MacDonald, director of investigation, reported to the minister there was no evidence that the firm's lowering of prices on cigarets, chocolate bars and chewing gum was designed deliberately to destroy competition.

But he said that its pricing policy — particularly on cigarets — could have this result on some small independent firms.

MANY COMPLAINTS

In making public the commission report, Mr. Fulton said a large number of complaints have been received concerning a section of the Combines Investigation Act forbidding manufacturers or other suppliers from fixing minimum or specific retail prices for their products. He did not specify any companies.

The complaints alleged that the section had led to widespread "loss leader" selling in some fields, particularly cigarets and small electrical appliances. Loss-leader selling is the practice of offering articles below cost to attract customers into a store.

Mr. Fulton said the recently concluded western inquiry should be regarded as part of a continuing general study being made by the justice department with a view to plugging any loopholes against loss leader selling.

Major complaint of competitors against the Macdonalds firm was the way it dropped prices on cigarets, the big selling item for wholesalers.

The commission's finding on cigarets was that they could be handled profitably at 3½ per cent markup.

Admits Killing Carnival Girl

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP)—Thomas Francis French, 20, has admitted he killed a girl companion carnival worker near Jackson, Miss., says Det. Capt. Elmer Adams.

Adams said French gave a statement to him without giving any reason for the slaying of Mary Louise Jungbauer, about the same age. Her body was found under a tree Tuesday.

Police said she apparently had been beaten in a motel and her body carried to a suburban area. He was arrested at his mother's home.

Police said that Miss Jungbauer of St. Paul, Minn., was pregnant. They said she and French had been staying at a motel in Jackson under the names of Mr. and Mrs. Tony Delong of Ottawa. They had no Canadian connections, however, police said.

OMA President Assails Federal Health Grants

TORONTO (CP)—The president of the Ontario Medical Association has criticized the federal government's policy of distributing $10,000,000 a year in health grants without giving the medical profession a chance to evaluate them.

Dr. W. W. Baldwin of Brooklin told a district meeting of the OMA the grants "appear insidious" and said the OMA executive thinks it is time health grants in Ontario are assessed by the profession.

Dr. Baldwin said while the federal government contributes the money, it exerts a control on the province receiving it.

BING'S SON FINED

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Drunk driving cost Bing Crosby's son, Lindsay, 20, a $263 fine on Thursday. Young Crosby without a plea of not guilty and pleaded guilty. His car hit a parked vehicle last Sept. 11.

Raising College of Cardinals To Normal Strength of 70 May Be Delayed Some Time

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The new pope will face the question of raising the College of Cardinals to its normal strength. But Vatican circles doubt he will move quickly to do so.

He may wish to delay appointing new cardinals until he can thoroughly study the qualifications of the possible candidates.

Normally the College of Cardinals has 70 members. Death has cut its numbers to 55. Assuming the new pope comes from the College of Cardinals, there will be one more vacancy, or a total of 16, when he is crowned.

Besides the vacancies, a number of prelates, aged and ill, are unable to devote full time to their duties. Fully a dozen of the 55 cardinals are more than 80 years old. Only six are less than 60.

Some circles believe the college even at full strength is not adequate to meet the present - day needs of the Church.

NUMBER ANCIENT

The number of 70 cardinals was set by Pope Sixtus V some 400 years ago. The question of increasing this number has come under Vatican consideration increasingly in recent years.

Pope Pius XII named no new cardinals until 1946, seven years after his reign started. However, his war marked six of those years.

The new pope need not fill all of the vacancies at a single consistory. If he feels it necessary to have the immediate assistance of new cardinals, he could call a consistory at any time to name one, two or as many new princes of the Church as he desires.

Such consistories called by Pope Pius were large. He raised 32 to the purple in 1946, 24 in 1953. Other popes frequently have preferred smaller consistories for one or two new cardinals. Pope Pius XI called 17 consistories, all relatively small — to create cardinals.

The question of new cardinals is important to many areas of the world. Roman Catholics in Africa, the Philippines and Mexico would like to have a cardinal. England is now represented. The United States, which had five at one period, now has three.

Greek Minister Talks to Spaak On Cyprus Issue

PARIS (Reuters)—Greek Foreign Minister Evangelos Averoff held private talks on the Cyprus issue with North Atlantic Treaty Organization delegates today after conferring Thursday night with NATO Secretary-General Paul-Henri Spaak.

Spaak is the key figure in current efforts to find a compromise solution to the Cyprus problem under NATO auspices. He has sponsored the idea of a round-table conference on Cyprus to be attended by Britain, Greece and Turkey with representatives of Greek and Turkish Cypriots.

Averoff, who arrived from Athens Thursday night, said he had come "with the firm intention of achieving concrete results."

Observers here said the prospect of an early round-table conference appeared good.

Averoff was expected to explain to the 15-country NATO permanent council Greece's conditions for attending a round-table conference.

Greece is understood to favor the inclusion of France, the United States and Britain as "neutral" observers if the conference takes place.

Britain launched a seven-year partnership plan on Cyprus Oct. 1 but Greece has refused to cooperate. The plan calls for the setting up of separate Greek and Turkish communal assemblies with Greek and Turkish government advisers to Governor Sir Hugh Foot.

Since the plan's inauguration, 22 persons have been killed and 100 injured. Nine of the dead and 25 of the injured were British.

New security measures for the island were announced Thursday night, giving the government the power to impose censorship of mail "to prevent the smuggling of arms by parcel post" and to designate danger areas where persons entering or staying "do so at the risk of their lives."

Troops in danger areas would shoot unauthorized persons on sight.

Chains' Markup On Fruits High — Says Wholesaler

MONTREAL (CP) — Wholesaler Shemon Yaphe says housewives are getting a raw deal from chain stores in fresh fruits and vegetables. Consumers allegedly were being "robbed" through high prices.

The burly secretary - treasurer of Karpman-Yaphe Incorporated, a Montreal fruit wholesale house which caters to the independent grocery trade, charged Thursday that the chains maintain a gross profit margin of about 100 per cent on fresh produce.

The Montreal chains, he alleged before the royal commission on price spreads, charged between 30 and 40 cents for 10 pounds of potatoes that cost them 15 cents.

They charged more than 30 cents a pound for onions that cost them five cents; 10 cents a pound for carrots that cost them 2½ cents.

The chains put on so - called "specials" that enticed consumers away from the corner store, but a careful investigation of the specials would show the consumer wasn't getting much richer all, Mr. Yaphe claimed.

ADJOURNED 70 NOV

Mr. Yaphe's verbal evidence would up the commission's two-day hearings in this metropolis. The seventeenmember body now adjourned Nov. 12 when it will open final hearings at Ottawa before preparing its report.

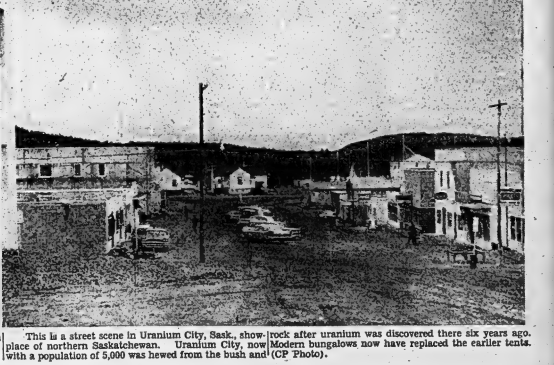
The Ontario Hog Producers Association suggested Thursday there is a trend towards complete integration of the pork industry, from the pig on the farm to bacon in the retail cooler. President Charles McInnis of Ingersoll, Ont., warned, however, that Ontario farmers are ready to invade the processing field to protect their bargaining position if packers try to invade farms.

He called on the commission to investigate whether through secret agreements or other ways, chain stores, packing plants and food companies are trying to integrate the entire food industry.

He suggested also that retail profit margins on pork products be calculated on a cents-a-pound basis and not through the existing method of a percentage of cost. This, presumably, would mean the retailer - consumer price gap widened as hog prices rose.

Seven American Airmen Rescued In Antarctic

WELLINGTON (Reuters) — Seven American airmen were airlifted today from the wreckage of their Globemaster plane in the Antarctic wilderness to the safety of U.S. Antarctic headquarters at McMurdo Sound, 60 miles away, Hugh Feat.



Since the plane's inauguration, 22 persons have been killed and 100 injured. Nine of the dead and 25 of the injured were British.

New security measures for the island were announced Thursday night, giving the government the power to impose censorship of mail "to prevent the smuggling of arms by parcel post" and to designate danger areas where persons entering or staying "do so at the risk of their lives."

Famous Irish Horse Enters International

NEW YORK (AP)—Ballymoss, Europe's most famous horse in recent years, will get a chance to show he can beat all comers, whether they be American, Australian, English, Italian, German, French or Russian.

The four-year-old Irish - bred colt, for whom John McShain paid $13,350 as a yearling, has been officially entered in the $100,000 running of the $150,000 Washington, D.C., International at Laurel.

McShane, Philadelphia contractor, advised president John Schapiro of Laurel that his colt is ready for the 1½-mile test on the grass course. Ballymoss was leveled last year but forced to withdraw because of injury.

The addition of the Irish colt gives the International a field of seven with at least four more to be invited. Acceptances have been received for Sailor's Guide, Australia; Taneteo, France; Orsini, Germany; Clem, United States and Garnyr and Zampyr of Russia.

Robin Loses Famous Gopher Ball Title

NEW YORK (AP)—Robin Roberts of Philadelphia allowed 10 fewer homers in 1958 than last year and relinquished the undesired gopher ball title he held since 1954 to Don Newcombe and Johnny Antonelli.

Roberts gave up 30 home runs. Newcombe, who was traded from the Los Angeles Dodgers last June, and Antonelli of San Francisco Giants shared the National League lead with 31.

Figures compiled by The Associated Press also disclosed that Pedro Ramos of Washington led American League pitchers for the second consecutive season. He yielded 38 gophers. Ramos set the league record in 1957 by permitting 43 homers.

Big Seven

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Eddie Litzenberger took over top spot in the National Hockey League scoring race Thursday night with some fine play-making boosting his season's output to seven points, all assists.

The lanky right-winger helped set up three goals for Chicago Black Hawks as Montreal's Henri (Pocket Rocket) Richard, with four assists, was the most productive player of the night's two games.

The leaders:

SPORT IN BRIEF

PAILLE RETURNED

NEW YORK (AP)—New York Rangers of the National Hockey League have returned sub goalie Marcel Paille to their Buffalo farm club in the American League. Paille was recalled Monday to replace Lorne (Gump) Worsley. But Rangers' regular net-minder who suffered a leg injury in a game against Detroit Sunday, General Manager Muzz Patrick said Worsley will be ready for only Saturday night.

REMARKABLE SCORE

GRIMSBY, England (Reuters) One of the most remarkable soccer goals ever scored came in an exhibition game Thursday night between the English League's Grimsby Town and the Dynamo Club from Czechoslovakia. The Czech goalkeeper scored from his own goal area with a 100-yard kick in the fourth minute of play. The ball bounced once about 20 yards from the Grimsby goal, soared over the head of the advancing Grimsby goalie and into the net. The game ended in a 3-3 tie.

TO THE PARENTS OF BELLEVILLE AND DISTRICT . . .

Six weeks ago, the Canadian National Recreation Association inaugurated their Teen-Age Dances which are held each Saturday night at the Club Canara.

At this time, the executive of the CNRA would like to take this opportunity of thanking the young people of Belleville and District for their wonderful support in this venture.

The conduct of our teen-agers in attendance at these dances has been above reproach and we feel that you, the parents, should be very proud of your sons and daughters who will be the citizens of tomorrow.

We would like to extend a cordial welcome to all parents to drop in to the Club Canara any Saturday night to observe the operation of our dances.

L. J. Train, President.

Last season, someone said the Toronto Maple Leafs were beating themselves by trading players to other teams in the National Hockey League. This year things are getting tougher for Leafs.

You can add Tod Sloan's name to the list of players who make it a habit to hamstring Leafs.

The 26-year-old centre scored the tying and winning goals at Toronto last Saturday as Hawks defeated Leafs 3-1 and repeated his two-goal feat the following night at Chicago in a 5-2 victory.

In both games Sloan was aided by a couple of other ex-Leafs, Eric Nesterenko, rolled to Hawks three seasons ago, set up both Sloan goals Saturday. Danny Lewicki, who belonged to Toronto in five seasons ago, scored a pair of goals Sunday.

Sloan said after Saturday's games that he wasn't bitter towards Toronto for selling him.

"They got rid of a 31-year-old player (Sloan will be 31 Nov. 30) who has only a couple of years of hockey left," he said. "But now I can retire happy."

TWO-YEAR DECLINE

Sloan scored a total of 27 goals in his last two seasons with Toronto following a 37-goal campaign in 1955-56. It was the drop from 37 goals to 14 and then no improvement last year which put the expendable tag on him at Toronto.

But Lewicki and Nesterenko were in the same position with Leafs and both players have improved since leaving Toronto.

It's bad enough for the Leafs' brass to be haunted by their past but sometimes the fans at Toronto join in with cheers when they score against Leafs. That hurts, too.

Tommy Ivan, dapper general manager of Chicago Black Hawks, isn't a racetrack man but he played a hunch at Toronto's New Woodbine track last Saturday. Taken to the races by his boss, Jim Norris, Ivan liked the name of a horse—Hot Ice. So he bet on them and they won. His Hawks were just as hot that night against Leafs.

Coach Hamp Pool of Toronto Argonauts of the Big Four Football Union thought he had heard of every type of casualty. But he got a surprise following Argos' last game.

While running down the list of injuries with trainer Art Sargeant, some person hollered that one casualty was missing. Argo office manager George Stockwell was yelling a message to the coach. His bottom plate popped out and a bystander stepped on it.

Quebec Hockey

CHICOUTIMI, Que. (CP)—Chicoutimi Saguenenns posted their first victory of the Quebec Hockey League season Thursday night, edging Trois-Rivieres Lions 3-2 on Jacques Locas' power-play goal late in the third period.

Jacques Caron got the first for Chicoutimi goal in the scoring period. Cec Hoekstra knotted the count in the second.

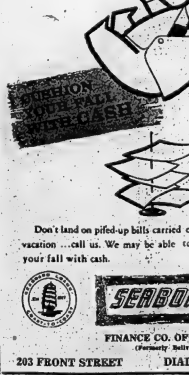
SAILER DENIAL



INNSBRUCK, Austria (AP)—World ski champion Toni Sailer says he has a clear conscience about the use of his photo in an Italian fashion magazine advertising fabric called "Sailer Tyrol." "I know nothing about the advertisement," said Sailer, three times Olympic champion and seven times world Alpine champion. "I will talk it over with my lawyer and decide on steps then. Toni could lose his amateur status and could be barred from the 1960 Olympics at Squaw Valley, Calif., because of the advertisement."

Hollywood Wasting Star Power Says Gloria Swanson

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Is Hollywood wasting its star power?

Gloria Swanson thinks so, and she isn't shy about saying it.

"Sure, I'd like to make pictures," she says. "But what can I do—hit the producers over the head and tell them they should hire me?"

She isn't the only one. Look at the famous names who have scarcely made a movie in recent years:

Greer Garson, Irene Dunne, Claudette Colbert, Bette Davis, Jean Arthur, Ginger Rogers, Ida Lupino, Jane Wyman, Loretta Young, Joan Crawford, Katharine Hepburn, Barbara Stanwyck, Betty Grable, Paulette Goddard, Ann Sheridan, Betty Hutton.

All of them have attracted millions of dollars into theatre box offices. Many of them have gone into television rather than wait for the studios to come up with good film roles.

Yet, many of the male stars with whom they starred a decade or more ago are still in heavy demand.

"It's all wrong," said Miss Swanson. "Many of those male stars are pushing 60, yet they are being teamed with girls who are 19 and 20.

"The situation is the fault of the producers. Many of them are old men who remarried young girls and think that is a normal way of life.

"But they are making a mistake. They have alienated a large portion of the movie-going public. I found that out when I made tours of the country for Sunset Boulevard.

"Nowadays, the movies have changed so you see only older men playing love scenes with young girls. A mature woman cannot identify herself with situation. So the movies have lost a large segment of the audience. The women who made the industry a success."

The actress said there would be a return to the theatres by these women if they could see mature love stories.

"They reject the idea that a mature woman is finished romantically after she passes 40," Miss Swanson said.

Gomulka Claims Victory Over Stalinists

WARSAW (AP)—Poland's Communist chief Wladyslaw Gomulka publicly claimed victory Thursday over the Stalinists and the liberals who led the 1956 revolution.

He also disclosed a sweeping party purge that removed 15 per cent.

He told a closed-door meeting of the country's leading Communists that his chief foreign policy aim is to strengthen ties with the Soviet Union and said his trip to Moscow next week is aimed at this.

Gomulka's 17,000-word speech was delivered at the opening Wednesday of the 12th plenary session of the United Workers (Communist) party. It was released to the press Thursday night.

He claimed his policies had worded off the average Pole's two chief fears—a dangerous deterioration of relations with the Soviet Union and loss of Poland's western provinces to a resurgent Germany which gained territory before the Second World War.

Gomulka is against the country's newspapers and magazines that the only popularity they should seek is that won by prvogating communism.

ROOT OUT REVISIONISTS

It was in the press, universities and other intellectual circles, Gomulka said, that revisionists—a red term for those striving for liberal reform—were strongest.

The main task of the party, he declared, "should be the complete liquidation of the poisoning fumes of revisionism."

Gomulka said 256,727 persons were dropped from party rolls during a vast "certification campaign" between November 1957 and May 1958—15% per cent of the total membership.

Most of these were ousted for not taking their duties seriously enough, he said, but there were party revisionists.

Gomulka said the party had completely wiped out nationalism which means Stalinism here—but did not say how many dogmatists were left in the ruling party.

This assurance meant to Poles that there is no need now to fear a return to Stalinist secret police terror.

APPLE COMPETITION

KENTVILLE, N.S. (CP) — Arthur E. Calkin, general manager of Scotian Gold Apple Co-operative, says importation of United States apples into Quebec and Ontario could cause serious trouble for the Canadian industry. He said in an interview U.S. apples were selling for as much as 15 cents a bushel less than Canadian apples in Central Canada. He said tariffs are only fifteen barrier to U.S. apples.

JUROR OUSTED, FINED

OTTAWA (CP)—Gerald Monty, 32, was dismissed from a jury panel Thursday and fined $50 for contempt of court for talking to the accused during a recess in a criminal action in county court. Monty, who said he had misunderstood instructions of the court not to talk to anyone, admitted he had talked with the accused after the latter sat down beside him in a hallway.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

The McFarlands, unbeaten and untied in four exhibition games, have slammed home 25 goals and 34 assists for an average of six and eight. The 10-1 defeat of St. Catharines Teepees here last Friday gave the record a considerable boost.

They defeated the Teepees 7-3 and 10-1; turned back the Peterborough Petes 6-2 and edged their league arch-foemen from Whitby by a 2-1 score in their toughest task to date.

They meet the Windsor Bulldogs at the OHA-NOHA here tonight in their fifth outing and trek to Clinton, N.Y., tomorrow, where they take on the Blair-mentored American squad in the first of a home-and-home series. The Clinton squad plays the return game here Monday night. Mass top off their exhibition schedule Tuesday with a game with the Kitchener Dutchmen in Kitchener, in what could be the hardest job they have faced yet.

"Wiener" Brown's brilliant display against his former club, the St. Catharines Teepees, in his first game in which he scored five goals, puts him on top of the goal-getters' heap. He added another in Peterborough to give him a total to date of six. "Wiener" has yet to earn an assist.

Actually Lou Sanrie tops the point-getters with seven, through three goals and four assists. Johnny McLellan and Frank Battagain each have scored four times with Johnny adding two assists for six points and Frank one for five.

Playing coach Ike Hildebrand and Earton Bradley, the other two-thirds of the "lightweight division" with Brown, have each scored a goal and been credited with three assists. Paul Payette, Eddie Marleau and Keith Macdonald each have tallied once and earned two helpers. Minnie Menard has two assists and Davy Jones one each.

Big Al Dewsbury tops the defence corps points-getters with a goal and three assists. Floyd Cowgan has yet to score but has three helpers to his credit. Hugo Raglan has a goal and two helpers with Floyd Crawford, Lionel Bolley one assist each.

Gordie Bell, who has given proof that he is in for another excellent season has had six pucks go by him in three and one-half games. The "Turk" has been scored on once in a half-game.

FAN IN PRAGUE

If the Macs signed Elvis Presley, Bill Haley or any other rock 'n roll cat for their overseas junket to Czechoslovakia, ...there is one Czech in Prague who would be happy.

Manager Drury Denyes had a letter from the Czechoslovakian hockey fan, who asked for a team picture — and said there would be one Czech who could say "Go-Macs-Go."

Manager Denyes forwarded the picture and received in reply a note thanking him and stating the fan was a rock 'n roll addict "and have great desire to have rocy 'n rock 'n roll addict "and have great desire to have rock 'n

Dear sir: very very thanks for your favor answer, which I even in dream have not hoped to receive.

I feel enthusiastic about your pictures of Belleville McFarlands team. They are wonderful. I'm especially glad to receive answer from your hands.

Excuse me, please, I am so impudent to ask you another thing. I am very sorry for it. Except ice-hockey I have another hobby, but which gives me much troubles. I love rock and roll. This thing is in Czechoslovakia almost unknown.

I personally listen to many musical stations from Colombo to AFN but by us, how I've said, this music is not played. I have great desire to have rock 'n roll record. Could not you bring me with you into Prague any record of Bill Haley especially. I would pay you that record here in Prague.

Thank you very much in advance for your readiness.

Black Hawks Pluck Red Wings As Habs Shade Leafs

Nesterenko, Ferguson Spark Third Chicago Win in Row, 'Pocket' Picks Four Helpers

By BEN WARDEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

No, those standings aren't printed upside down. Chicago Black Hawks really are leading the national Hockey League. The undefeated Black Hawks pasted Red Wings 7-2 in Detroit Thursday night.

While Hawks were making it look easy, Montreal Canadiens—who were picked to make another runaway this season—had a tough time pulling down the scrappy Toronto Maple Leafs 4-3.

Eric Nesterenko and ex - Red Wing Lorne Ferguson supplied the big scoring punch for Chicago with a pair of goals each.

Hawks made the most of every opportunity. Winger Forbes Kennedy was sitting out a charging penalty when Nesterenko opened the scoring with a hard drive that goalie Terry Sawchuk caught but dropped, the puck sliding into the net.

FERGUSON ROARED IN/

Ferguson made it 2-0, roaring in with two defenceman practically hanging on him to beat Sawchuk cleanly.

Len Lunde, brought up from Edmonton in the Western Hockey League, scored his first NHL goal in the second period to make it 2-1 while Hawks' Al Arbour was in the penalty box. But 17 minutes later, with Arbour still off, Ken Wharram fattened the Hawk lead with the second goal of his NHL career. . .

Chicago poured it on in the third with goals by Ferguson, Nesterenko, Danny Lewicki and ex-Canadien Dollard St. Laurent. Bill McNeill scored the second Detroit goal on a Lunde pass.

Canadians had to call on last season's league scoring champions, Dickie Moore and Henri Richard, to turn back Leafs, who finished last in the spring and have lost all three starts so far this season. . .

The Stanley Cup champion Canadiens have a 5-0 lead in the first period on goals by Maurice (Rocket) Richard and Moore when Leafs' Bobby Pulford exploded with two goals in 47 seconds.

MONTREAL JARRED

Leafs jarred 13,714 Montreal fans by grabbing a 2-2 lead at 1:36 of the second period when a shot by George Armstrong deflected off Dave Creighton's stick. Leafs held the edge for the rest of the period.

Boom Boom Geoffrion tied it up for Habs midway through the third period and it was a nip-and-tuck battle until the 17-minute mark when Henri Richard picked up his fourth assist of the night with a neat pass which Moore smacked past goalie Johnny Bower.

Leafs kept the Habs pinned down for most of the game with a hard - checking effort which forced the Montrealers into their most ragged showing so far.

Andre Pronovost of Habs and Frank Mahovolich of Leafs traded punches in the first period and drew five-minute major penalties plus 10-minute misconducts for delaying their departure. Pronovost drew another two minutes for interference.

Bert Olmstead, sold to Leafs by Montreal this summer, was given a 10-minute misconduct for banging his stick on the ice to protest decision of a referee.

Neatest goal of the evening came when Henri Richard dashed the length of the ice and passed out from near the side boards to brother Maurice who got around defenceman Allen Stanley and slipped the puck behind Bower.

Would Rather Sell Stock To Brother

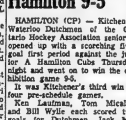
CHICAGO (AP)—Dorothy Comiskey Rigney says if she ever sold her controlling interest in the White Sox club, she would rather sell to her brother, Chuck Comiskey, than to an outsider.

Chuck and Dorothy currently are embroiled in a series of suits and countersuits over stock left by their mother, the late White Sox president, Mrs. Grace Comiskey.

Mrs. Rigney, White Sox secretary - treasurer, is the wife of John Rigney, co-vice-president of the club with Chuck.

She said she is against moving the White Sox from Chicago.

Asked if she would sell Chuck enough stock to give him control-ling interest, Dorothy said: "I'd rather not answer that, but if it ever came up, I would sell to him rather than somebody else."



Dutchies Trim Hamilton 9-5

HAMILTON (CP) — Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen of the Ontario Hockey Association senior A opened up with a scorching five-goal first period against the Jets for A Hamilton Cubs Thursday night and went on to win the exhibition game 9-5.

It was Kitchener's third win in four pre-schedule games.

Ken Laufman, Tom Micallef and Bill Wylie each scored two goals for Dutchmen. Jack McMaster, Jerry Theberge and Bill Saunders added the others.

Yankees Cut Series Loot Into 32 Slices

NEW YORK (AP)—New York Yankees cut their world series shares into 32 full slices with each worth $8,759, baseball commissioner Ford Frick revealed Thursday.

Each full losing share for 31 Milwaukee Braves amounted to $5,806. So, Bob Turley's fine relief job and the four-run rally in the eighth inning of the seventh game meant $2,953 for most members of the Yankees.

Frick fined 32 Milwaukee players $50 each Monday for premature disclosure of their financial breakdown.

Frick paid only 25 because they were the only ones eligible to vote on the series' cuts. Frick explained. "A player must be on the roster June 1 and remain until the end of the season to be permitted to be at the meeting."

Frick said Virgil Trucks is in for a full share. The veteran relief hurler joined Detroit in mid-June. Murry Dickson, who was acquired from Kansas City Aug. 26, received a three-fourths share worth $6,569.33.

Bill Virdon, released by New York June 14, was given a half share totaling $4,379.54. One-fourth shares were awarded to infielder Frank Brickell, outfielder Bobby DelGreco and pitcher John James.

The Yanks' winning share was $166, under the full share received by 30 Braves' players for beating New York in the 1957 series. On the other hand, the Braves' losing share this year was $750 more than that of 1957 Yankees (the Yanks had 33 losing full shares).

The full share for 32 members of Chicago White Sox, who finished second to the Yanks, was $1,518.94. Pittsburgh Pirates, runners - up in the National League, divided 32 full shares worth $1,507.04.

British Yacht Sceptre May End in Junk

HALIFAX (CP) — Crew members of the British yacht Sceptre say the owners and managers of America's Cup challenger may be junked.

"She's no good," said Harry Eagles of Limington, England. "I don't think she's badly hurt. She may be junked altogether or she may be completely overhauled. I don't know enough about her."

The sleek 25-tons sloop lay on a wharf at the navy's dockyard here, her hull marred and a gaping hole in the blunt-nosed bow.

A gale three days ago ripped Sceptre from cradle aboard the 8,000-ton British freighter Manipur taking her from New York to England. A ventilating pipe pierced the mahogany hull.

A hatch on the Manipur was stove in when the gale tore the cradle loose. She was taken aboard the Manipur when a new cradle has been constructed and continue into England.

The 70-foot, $100,000 craft was built by a syndicate of 12 members of the Royal Yacht Squadron.

Will she ever race again?

"Who with?" asked Keith Mackay-Smith, designer. "And what for? We didn't win anything."

"The syndicate will talk it over when we get back whether she should be overhauled, or scrapped in favor of another design."

Bobby Simpson Says New Rule Would Aid Players

Bob Simpson, flashy all-Canadian end with the Ottawa Rough Riders says the rule he'd like to see adopted is this: "Every player should put "Prestone" Brand Anti-Freeze in his car early in the season. Then he could keep his mind on the game, wouldn't worry about frost, foaming, clogging, rust or corrosion. "Prestone" Brand is the one anti-freeze that gives positive and complete protection to the cooling system of your car."

It's a good rule for everyone to follow! Because "Prestone" Brand Anti-Freeze has exclusive magnetic film that coats every surface in the cooling system. Get "Prestone" Brand right away. Quebec Edges Cornwall 4-2

CORNWALL (CP)—Three late goals in the third period Thursday night gave Quebec Aces of the Quebec Hockey League a 4-2 exhibition victory over Cornwall Chevies.

Chevies, of the Ontario Hockey Association's eastern senior division, led 2-1 early in the third period on goals by Knobby Clarke and Ted Scydlowski.

Retains Empire Bantam Title

GLASGOW, Scotland (Reuters) — Peter Keenan of Glasgow retained his British Empire bantamweight boxing title here Thursday night when he outpointed Pat Supple of Montreal, the Canadian champion, over 15 rounds.

Defending his title for the fifth time, Keenan, 30, gave a brilliant performance. He came from behind to give tough little Canadian nine years his junior, a boxing lesson during the last nine rounds.

Keenan fought under the handicap of an eye cut in the sixth round but instead of fading away he improved.

Riders Host Hot Argonauts, Als Face Vengeful Ti-Cats

By HAL CORELLI
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Like a demolition expert awaiting the arrival of a new-type bomb, coach Frank Clair had a right today to feel a little apprehensive.

The bomb, the Big Four football league's Toronto Argonauts, will be planted in front of Clair's Rough Riders on the field at Lansdowne Park in Ottawa Saturday.

Whether it goes off is another matter.

The Toronto team was not always a bomb. In its first nine games of the season, no amount of stomping, booing or general abuse would make it go bang.

Once it went sort of "phhut" and Montreal Alouettes lost that game 15-14.

OFF WITH BANG

Last Monday the bomb went off as Argo coach Hamp Pool, in the pre season workouts, used to imagine it one day might.

The blast created a fearful mess of the Hamilton Tiger-Cats, whose eight victories and a tie had them leading the league on Thanksgiving Day with almost as many points as the other three teams put together.

The score was a resounding 37-0, was the Tiger-Cats' first defeat of the 1958 schedule. It also showed what Toronto might have done to the rest of the league if quarterback Ronnie Knox had been on hand since the first game.

Despite Knox's late arrival, Argos still have a slight hope of catching one of the three playoff berths. To do it they must either win their four remaining games while Als lose three or win three while Als lose all four. Ottawa could clinch a playoff spot with a win in either of its two games with Toronto. Hamilton is secondly in the playoff picture but needs one win to tie down first place.

MONTREAL REINFORCED

Hamilton, out to reassure supporters that Coach Mosley is not lacking was just one of those things, was to be reinforced by Montreal squad at Hamilton Saturday.

The reinforcement, veteran fullback Pat Abbruzzi, has been sidelined with a back injury suffered in a Sept. 20 game against the Tiger-Cats at Montreal.

There had been hopes that Abbruzzi would be joined by flanker end Hal Patrick but Alouettes said he won't have recovered sufficiently from injuries.

Tiger - Cats hustled through a practice Thursday night, falling all over each other in their eagerness to show they haven't forgotten how to play.

After an hour and a half, coach Jim Trimble, obviously pleased by what he saw, prophesied: "They'll come back!"

Barrie Shades Biltmores 3-2 In Lid-Lifter

BARRIE (CP) — Guelph Biltmores tied the score twice Thursday night but couldn't do it a third time and lost 3-2 as they opened the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A schedule against Barrie Flyers.

The baptism of the 1958-59 season continues tonight when Biltmores open their home season against Toronto Marlborros. Hamilton Cubs won't start league play until Tuesday ,when they visit Barrie.

Guelph coach Eddie Bush pulled his goaltender and threw in a sixth attacker with 56 seconds to play to try and gain a tie against Barrie. But Flyers cleared the puck to keep out of danger.

Danny Patrick, Barrie's only veteran forward, scored the winning goal half-way through the third period while Guelph was in front man Marcel Pesalie and Wayne Haig had the winners' other goals.

Biltmores caught up to Barrie twice in the game, both times on goals by Roc Brain, the club's leading point-getter last season.

Eskimo Fullback Leads Western Ground Gainers

REGINA (CP)—Johnny Bright will have to average 118 yards rushing in each of his three remaining games to break Ken Carpenter's all-time Western football conference record of 1,079 yards, set in 1948 season.

League statistics released Thursday show Bright, Edmonton Eskimo fullback an average of 102 yards in 13 games so far. He has carried 326 times, 32 short of his 1957 record.

Bright's total gives him a wide margin over runner - up Cookie Gilchrist of Saskatchewan Roughriders who has netted 1,017 yards. Halfback Leo Lewis of Winnipeg Blue Bombers is third with a net gain of 920 yards. Edmonton's Normie Kwong is fourth with 885 yards.

Saskatchewan's Frank Tripucka is the leading passer, completing 123 of 228 forwards for 1,955 yards and 11 touchdowns for a completion per cent. He has thrown the most touchdown passes, 14.

Casey Stengel, fresh from the signing of a new two-year contract as New York Yankees manager, talks—with gestures—at yesterday's news conference.

Like the walrus and the carpenter in Alice in Wonderland, Casey talks of things of Eston Howard, of his own health, and the greatest player he ever managed, Joe DiMaggio. (AP Wirephoto).

BCIVS Grid Squads Capture Twin Victories Over Quinte Secondary

In COSSA Junior and Senior "A" football action yesterday, BCIVS grid squads romped to twin victories over their Intercity rivals, Quinte Secondary School. The BCI Seniors threw Quinte for their first loss of the season, winning 12-7, while the Juniors posted a 13-8 victory.

The Senior game was the most important encounter of the season thus far, as it gave BCI a first place tie with the previously undefeated Quinte squad. Both teams, displaying a sound defence, fought each other to a standstill in the first half with neither making any substantial gains.

As the second half started, however, Quinte's Ron Hull opened up to lead the Quinte drive into BCI territory, where he plunged to within inches of the goal line. BCI, aided by the fine kicking of quarterback Don Masters, forced Quinte back to their five yard line, where linesman Terry Kellar blocked a kick and recovered behind the line, on the last play of the third quarter.

B.C.I. led by backfielders Ralph Boomhower and Gerry Rowenthorn, dominated play throughout the final quarter. With three minutes of play remaining Carl Mowers, speedy B.C.I. halfback, plunged over from the one yard line. Quinte was not to be denied, however, as Hockey Rookie and Jack Stewart moved the Saints into scoring range. With seconds remaining Ron McBride passed to Bill Green behind the line. Denzes recovered, and the game was over.

B.C.I.'s win was due largely to the defensive efforts of Terry Kellar and "Stan" Adair while Ron Riddle and Ron Hull were Quinte's top defenders.

JUNIOR GAME

Quinte Juniors jumped to an early 1-0 lead on quarterback Bob Follwell's rouge, but B.C.I. behind the determined running of Stu Muirhead and Larry Soule retaliated midway through the second quarter, when Soule scored to give B.C.I a 7-1 lead. Quinte, doggedly fighting back, marched to B.C.I.'s four yard line near the end of the half but failed to penetrate their opponents defence.

Both teams battled evenly as the second half commenced, but despite the defensive work of Quinte's Bernie Ladouceir and Stan McMillen, B.C.I.'s hard driving backfield, composing Muirhead and Brian Mackenzie, forced its way down field. Muirhead plunged the final line to give B.C.I. a 12 point edge.

Quinte's single TD came at the four minute mark of the final quarter when halfback Steve Wilson, Q.S.S. offensive standout recovered a B.C.I. fumble on his own 20 yard line and raced 80 yards making the final score B.C.I. 13, Quinte 8.

Two Int. Loops Will Operate

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—Two intermediate hockey leagues, in 13 clubs in all, will operate in the Niagara-Lake Erie district this season.

Thorold, Port Erie, Stamford, Dundas and Dunnville make up the eastern section. Aylmer, Tillsonburg, Port Dover, Delhi and Simcoe are in the western.

The leagues will play 24-game schedules with the top clubs decided by play-off. The winners will meet for the championship. Only Stamford and Port Erie who played in the Niagara District Senior B League last year, are new to intermediate.

Both schedules open early next month.

Stamps Must Defeat Saskys To Glimpse Playoffs Berth

By THE, CANADIAN PRESS

Regina is the focal point of this weekend's Western Interprovincial Football Union play as the league's five teams nurse injured squads into the home stretch with three games. The Regina league's schedule ends two weeks from Saturday.

Outcome of the Calgary Stampeder - Saskatchewan Roughrider game Saturday will have an important bearing on the playoff fortunes of these teams.

A Saskatchewan victory would assure both Saskatchewan and Edmonton Eskimos a playoff berth. Stampeders must win to stay within reach of the third and last playoff spot.

Edmonton can wrap up a sure playoff spot by defeating British Columbia Lions in Vancouver Saturday night and Winnipeg Blue Bombers can clinch first place by downing Riders in Winnipeg in Monday's only game.

INJURY LIST

Stampeders have lost Canadian halfback Harvey Wylie for the season through a knee injury suffered last weekend against Edmonton and halfback Chick Halbrook has been slowed by an injury.

Nobby Wirkowski's back hasn't healed fully and he'll probably share quarterbacking duties again with Tex Coulter, normally a halback.

Eskimos are doing some lineup juggling. De'e Alexander's fullback Steve Bendiak was knocked out for at least one game with a knee injury and linebacker Gino Fracas will sit out another with a similar affliction.

Halfback Rollie Miles will move from his halfback slot to Don Diak's halt position, and Joe Mobra will see much duty at quarterbacking spot and halfback Don Flynn will go in Fracas' linebacking slot.

Coach Bud Grant of Bombers will have only flash Kenny Ploen back in his lineup by Monday, moving him to right half and leaving Jim Van Pelt at quarter.

East Gets No Satisfaction At Senior Hockey Conference

TORONTO (CP) — If some teams in the Ontario Hockey Association's senior A groups are exceeding salary limits the other groups themselves, the matter will not be well until player contracts are received at the OHA office.

That was the conclusion at a joint meeting of the Northern Ontario Hockey Association — OHA and Eastern Ontario Hockey Association councils Thursday night.

The eastern group, comprising Belleville, Whitby, Cornwall, Kingston and Hull, asked the meeting be called in iron out several controversial items, mainly those that teams in the NOHA-OHA group were violating salary limits.

At a joint meeting at Kitchener June 13 the NOHA-OHA set a $1,750-weekly team salary limit in hopes of saving the group from pricing itself out of existence.

NO BONUSES

It also included was a ruling that no player receive any bonus of any kind except those board while staying in the city of the team for which he played.

The eastern group agreed to similar terms but made the salary limit $1,500 a week per team.

At a meeting of the eastern group at Cornwall Oct. 9 it was learned that some players have said they had been offered bonuses and salaries above the limit by NOHA-OHA clubs.

After lengthy discussion, George Dudley, secretary of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, said that the OHA would have to wait until all contracts and signed affidavits by the clubs are in.

Geo. Chuvalo 7-5 Favorite Over Pat McMurtry Tonight

NEW YORK (CP) — George Chuvalo, 21 - year - old Canadian heavyweight boxing champion, will be 7-to-5 favorite when he goes into Madison Square Garden ring tonight against Pat McMurty of Tacoma.

But the young Canadian, touted as "a young Rocky Marciano," isn't impressed by the glamor of the big town.

The bull-necked butcher's son had always considered a training session at Stillman's Gym, followed by a bout in the Garden as the peak of a fighter's career.

BAD PLUMBING

"Stillman's is an old grimy building with bad plumbing. The Toronto Athletic Club, where I train at home, is a mansion in comparison," he said.

A pro only 28 months, the 6-1, 218-pound Canadian has impressed many observers with his punching and potential. Jack Dempsey has predicted a bright future for Chuvalo.

He has an 11-0-1 record, including eight kayos. The losses were to veteran Bob Baker and Howard King. He avenged the loss to King by flattening his conqueror in two rounds. Baker was matched with Argentina's Alex Ghiloff, then a high - ranking contender. He flattened Mitoff in the first round.

LIK' 'EM NOW

Mcmurtry is no stinking viejo either. The ex-marine has posted a 29-9-1 record. He has kayoed rivals, although he is rated more of a boxer than a puncher.

Chuvalo — Pat is 5-5 and scaled about 185 pounds. His losses were close decisions to Willie Patterson and Willis Besmanoff. He said he had a cold when he fought Besmanoff. He was ranked No. 8 before the Besmanoff fight.

Maintenance Men Move to Spread Strike Overseas

LONDON (Reuters) — Four thousand striking British overseas Airways Corporation maintenance men at London airport Thursday night moved to spread the strike to the airline's bases abroad.

This followed a unanimous vote to continue the stoppage by which has grounded most of BOAC's fleet since Monday.

Strike leaders now are trying to block BOAC's policy of maintaining flights via Continental airports.

Skilled workers at BOAC's overseas bases were instructed to refuse any work which was not "normal." Those stationed in London were told not to go to overseas stations for maintenance work.

Last week, costing BOAC $380,000 a day, began when maintenance men stopped work because they said five fellow employees were fired for refusing to work overtime.

ON TRIAL FOR 10,800 MURDERS

Pan-American Starts Atlantic Jet Service

The Boeing 707 jet airliner with its crew and 30 guest passengers landed here at 8:38 a.m. (EDT) completing a 3,810-mile flight in seven hours, 38 minutes flying time.

Before its takeoff from Baltimore Thursday night, the 180-passenger plane was christened Jet Clipper America by Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower in a brief ceremony.

Pan American plans to launch regular transatlantic jet passenger service today with a Baltimore-Orly flight and scheduled departures of two more planes each week.

BRUSSELS (AP)—Pan American World Airways inaugurated American transatlantic jet passenger service today with a Baltimore-Orly flight and scheduled departures of two more planes each week.

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER

Saturday, October 18

Aries (March 21 to April 19) — An argument between an influential person and a fascinating associate could mean a serious involvement for you. Steer clear of it, since it does not concern you at all. Let them straighten it out by themselves. Get in a game of golf instead.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) — Much time could be wasted today discussing trivia with partners, since there seems to be no common meeting ground. Avoid this and utilize energies getting surroundings cleaned, etc. Make everything as sanitary as possible.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — You are loaded down with taxis this day. Plan your work intelligently if you are to get a good deal accomplished. P. M. take care you are not too extravagant in P. M. where entertainment is concerned.

Moon children (June 22 to July 21) — There is a fine opportunity today to go to a new beautician, health expert who can bring out the inner radiant you. Later, be sure not to be extravagant in buying articles and furnishings for the house. Be smart and prudent in this.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — This is the day to really get your residence in A-1 condition, using plenty of soap and water. Also good for putting clothing in street order. P. M. avoid that battle brewing between partner and a stranger. Keep working diligently.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 23) — Be sure you zip your purse today, for the temptation to be extravagant on luxuries is very strong. Buy carefully, wisely. Later, analyze correctly the reasons behind the activities of comrades, kin, home ties.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) — Be careful in your actions today or you could frittata close family ties. And take no heed of any hasty remarks made. Courtesy is the best mode by which you can achieve more harmonious relations.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) — Don't dash hither and yon with not a fixed purpose in mind. Sit still a while and let powerful intuitive forces come through; then deliberately and calmly set your goals and follow them. P. M. don't argue with pal over some little thing.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — A fine day for ferreting out those things which have perplexed you in the past. But do it quietly and without letting your nerves get the best of you. P. M. be gentle to dear pal whose resources have dwindled down to nothing.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — If you are not careful, a higher up can truly move you down today, or you can be severely reprimanded. See that you stick to regulations and modify your speech. Be with trustworthy pals and do what they suggest is best for you.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — Step out of dull doldrums over some petty worry or other, and be active in the outside aggressive world. Get the backing of influential men by seeing their side of things and going along with them respectfully.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — Don't endeavor to get those entangling ties down to a workable formula with comrades and partners today. Seek more detailed data first that will give you the upper hand. Then you can have real advancement, if you are broadminded.

If your child is born today — The wonderful child born today is the kind who will always be his or her own greatest taskmaster before trying to demand the best of others also. But it is your duty to see to it that your progeny does not overdo this to his detriment and that of others in the long run, for there is remarkable driving force in this child. A fine horoscope for the banker, the doctor, the attorney in particular.

ABSENTEEISM PROBLEM

BRANTFORD (CP)—So many students are missing several weeks of schooling each year during the shelter harvest that the Delhi District High School board has ordered a study of the problem. Principal Gordon Allison reported 2,346 pupil - days missed with as many as 228 students absent on one day. Some trustees favored cancelling Christmas holidays while others favored expelling the students concerned.

The new contract, which will affect nearly 6,000 Algoma employees, still awaits ratification by Algoma's directors. The company has given no indication that it will not support the offer agreed to by its negotiators.

COVERS ANOTHER 1,000

The increase is also expected to cover 1,000 employees at the Algoma-owned Canadian Furnace Company in Port Colborne, and Algoma Iron Ore Properties Limited at Wawa, 190 miles north of here.

In Toronto, Lawrence Sefton, District 6 director for the steelworkers, said the Algoma settlement should lead Stelco at Hamilton to moderate its hold-the-line position.

He said "the next move is clearly up to Stelco" and indicated the union negotiators would be willing to meet Stelco either directly or through a mediator.

The added benefits in the new Algoma plan include four-week paid vacations for employees with 25 years service; an increase in insurance and accidental death or dismemberment policies to $5,000 from $1,500; increased weekly indemnity for sickness to $40 from $35 for a period of 26 weeks, in place of 13 and higher payments for certain medical plan services. They take effect next Jan. 1.

Algoma and its employees will share the increased costs of the higher benefits, which total six cents an hour.

WAGE SCALE

The basic wage at Algoma now is $1.71½ an hour leading through 30 job classifications to a top pay of $2.27½. Average pay rate is $2.20 hourly.

The new proposals had the unanimous recommendation of the conciliators—Judge J. C. Anderson of Belleville, chairman, Sharman K. Lesrle, a St. Catharines lawyer nominated by the company and F. W. Dowling of Toronto, an officer of the United Packinghouse Workers of America (CLC), the union's nominee.

Mr. Mahoney paid tribute to Judge Anderson's work, terming him "an able and intelligent chairman who . . . made a real attempt to bring the parties together."

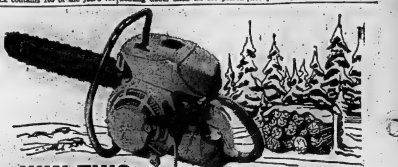
was fired into the penthouse.

One of the first prisoners who emerged from the cell block was Donald Zorens, who has confessed he killed Denver patrolman Donald Selick last January.

WARDEN'S ACCOUNT



Warden David Kiebach estimated 70 prisoners jumped two guards as the guards opened the cell doors to lead the prisoners to the mess hall. The prisoners grabbed keys and dashed down a corridor.

Near the corridor entrance they met guard Capt. John Staiger and guard Floyd Galyean. Both were knocked down as the prisoners scurried toward an exit.

Kiebach, hearing the disturbance as he stood near the jail's front-office admitting desk, grabbed a tear - gas rifle and two shells. He greeted the oncoming prisoners with tear-gas fire.

The prisoners retreated into the cell block. No guards were taken hostage.

The maximum - security cell block contains 103 of the jail's 138 prisoners. Kiebach continued a search of ventilator shafts and heating ducts until all 103 prisoners had been returned to the cell block. He said some prisoners did not participate in the rioting.

26 ACCOMPANY DIEFENBAKERS AROUND WORLD

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker and his wife will be accompanied by 26 others, including a 13-man RCAF crew on their round-the-world trip this fall.

The RCAF's Big C-6 airliner will touch down in 14 countries during its journeyings from Oct 26 to Dec. 19.

The prime minister will have a five-member secretariat, including two officials from the external affairs department. The staff also will include an air force group captain as commanding officer, an RCAF inspector as security officer, and a personal assistant.

Medical officer for the group will be a Progressive Conservative Commons member, Dr. Philip B. Rynard, MP for Simcoe East. The new making trip will be the prime minister's constituency neighbor, Diefenbaker of Saskatoon, who is an official of the Saskatchewan Retail Merchants Association.

Government officials still are working out details of Mr. Diefenbaker's trip, but have announced that itinerary for the first two weeks—a visit to the United Kingdom from Oct. 30-Nov. 5, and then France, Germany and Italy Nov. 5-12.

TO MEET DE GAULLE

Highlight of those two weeks will be Mr. Diefenbaker's first meeting with Premier de Gaulle in Paris Nov. 5; a lunch with the Queen in Buckingham Palace, Nov. 6; and talks with Italian Prime Minister Marcullian Oct. 31 and Nov. 1. Talks in Bonn and Rome with German Chancellor Adenauer and Italian Prime Minister Zoni.

Mr. Diefenbaker also will make a side trip to the Scottish Highlands to Kildonan, from which his great - grandfather left with the Selkirk settlers to Manitoba's Red River settlement in 1813.

The prime minister's five-member secretariat will include Basil Robinson and James Barker of the external affairs department, Lloyd Secretary Gowan Guest, press secretary James Nelson and Miss Marion Wagner.

Conducting officers will be Group Captain Dudley MacWilliam and the security officer will be RCMP Superintendent Charles A. Sweeny. The steward at the prime minister's residence here, Don Longchamps will act as personal assistant to Mr. and Mrs. Diefenbaker.

Given Four Months

TORONTO (CP) — A construction worker who sought revenge on the former boss by firing a rifle at him was sentenced Friday to four months in jail.

Cologero Serio, 42, was sentenced for possessing a weapon dangerous to the public peace. An Ontario Supreme Court earlier had convicted Serio of attempted murder and shooting with intent to wound.

Soviet Tug Chases Lifeboat Which Saved Russian Seamen

LERWICK, Scotland (Reuters) — A British coast guard lifeboat outspeed a pursuing Russian deep-sea tug and landed the three survivors of a Soviet coastal trawler crew on British soil Friday.

After the three men were given a good meal, they were handed over to the crew of a Russian launch which called for them. A police official at the handover said it was "quite amicable."

The Russians were found clinging to a boulder after the trawler Ste 4442 went down Thursday night. The British lifeboat, which battled heavy seas for two several hours to get to the wreck scene, took the trio aboard by breeches buoy. Lifeboat engineer Robert Laurence said the three men were shocked and bruised but "screamed blue murder" during rescue operations.

Soon afterward, the Soviet trawler's parent ship, the Ussuri, demanded by radio that the three Russians should be transferred to her instead of being taken ashore. The demand, repeated several times, was ignored because of the danger of such an operation in heavy seas.

As the lifeboat headed for the Shetland isle of Unst, a Russian tug gave chase. The tug tried in vain to catch up before they don't want these men to go ashore. I don't know why."

Then the local secretary of the lifeboat rescue organization said there had been "some misunderstanding." The Russian tug "followed the lifeboat but did not interfere," he said.

Men aboard the lifeboat on its 50-mile run here to the scene of the wreck said, however, the Soviet vessel had closely chased them.

A Soviet trawlerman jumped his ship in the Shetlands last year. Russian seamen chased him for several miles over the North Atlantic before he was. The latter obtained political asylum in Britain.

POLICE ARREST FIFTH MAN IN TEMPLE BOMBING

Last Held Described As Central Figure

ATLANTA (AP)—Police today arrested the last of five men charged with bombing a Jewish temple in Atlanta.

Richard Bolling, 25, described as a central figure in the case, offered no resistance.

Two detectives, working on an anonymous tip, came upon Bolling as he drove his automobile along a residential street in northeast Atlanta only a few blocks from the Temple—the bombing target.

Detectives R. W. Davidson and W. Conyers said when they first informed Bolling was trying to leave the city.

Named in the indictment returned by a grand jury Friday in addition to Bolling were his brother, Robert A. Bolling, 25; Wallace H. Allen, 32; George Bright, 30, and Frederick Lee Griffin, 32.

Under Georgia law all five could be given death sentences if convicted.

The four men arrested earlier said they had nothing to do with the bombing.

HELD IN CUSTODY

Judge Virlyn B. Moore ordered the four held without bail pending action by the Fulton County grand jury. Paul Webb said he would oppose releasing them on bond.

J. Ben Moore, foreman of the grand jury, and Bob Van Camp, executive secretary, reported receiving telephoned threats Friday night. Van Camp is president of Incorporated, publishers of The Constitutional and Journal.

Van Camp said a caller identified himself as a member of the "Confederate underground" threatened to blow up the house and newspaper plant with explosives unless he quit publishing editorials opposing racial violence.

Police Capt. R. E. Little said extensive investigation by police and FBI agents throughout the Atlanta group was supported

Five Kingston Prison Officials Held Hostage

KINGSTON (CP)—Five prison officials were being held hostage by 11 convicts during a half-hour disturbance in Kingston Penitentiary Friday.

The officials were released unharmed after the convicts locked them in the prison tailor shop in a vain attempt to negotiate. The 11 prisoners were locked in after the disturbance was quelled.

Warden Gordon Fairweather, J. P. McLaren, Daniel Hunter, Ken Jackson and Frank Cook, Jr. is also president of the Ontario Hockey Association.

Warden Fairweather, Johnstone said he knew no reason why the convicts took the officials hostage. Damage was limited to several broken windows.

Three Of Family, Brother Of Wife Burned To Death

One-Roomed Log Cabin At Pembroke Destroyed

PEMBROKE (CP) — Four persons were burned to death early today when fire swept a one-room log cabin beside highway 17 about eight miles west of here.

Dead are Ernest Hammel, 44, Wife Freda, 37, their son, Ezra, 3, and Mrs. Hammel's brother, Leonard Burger, 18.

Police said the blaze broke out at 1:45 a.m. but the fire department at nearby Camp Petawawa did not receive an alarm until 3:30. Company Sgt. Maj. Ken Hall said they reached the home the blaze was out of control.

Firemen said the blaze was probably caused by, an overheated stove pipe.

The fire was first noticed by truckload of soldiers returning to Camp Petawawa from a dance in Pembroke. They thought the fire department had already been called and did not stop.

After the bodies were found at the camp one of the soldiers checked with the fire brigade and a unit was dispatched.

Hammel was a construction worker in the camp. Two children had been boarding with the family for two months and was a bush worker in the area.

When firemen managed to get into the cabin they found the mother's body in bed and the father's body underneath the bed. The father had apparently been trying to escape. Leonard Burger's body was lying on the floor near the doorway. Burger's body was also on the floor near the door.

Boy's Stepfather Object of Police Search

SIMCOE (CP)—Provincial police have launched a search for the stepfather of an eight-year-old boy whose body was found by his mother Friday in their former home at Fair Ground, 36 miles west of here with his head crushed and his throat cut.

Police said they scoured bushland near the farm's former home and were searching in the Goderich area where Joseph Takacs Sr. 33, is believed to be living.

The body of Joseph Jr., was found by his mother, Mrs. Juzsia Takacs when she went at the deserted house with two friends to collect some of her belongings. She and Joseph now had moved to another home a week ago, after the family split up.

Police said a small child was found nearby with which they believe the boy was beaten to death.

The Takacs came from Hungary after the 1956 uprising.

World Diplomats Assembling For Final Tribute to Pope

VATICAN CITY (AP) — World diplomats gathered in Rome today for a final tribute to Pope Pius XII while cardinals of the Roman Catholic Church made plans to bury one of their number.

Celso Cardinal Costantini died Friday night of heart failure just before he was to leave hospital to participate in election of a new pope. His death put to 32 the number of cardinals expected to begin voting next Saturday for the next pontiff.

The cardinals already in the Vatican for the conclave were expected to arrange funeral services for the 82-year-old Italian cardinal for next week, after the nine - day mourning period for Pius XII ends.

The papal mourning will conclude Sunday with a requiem mass in St. Peter's Basilica to be attended by high-ranking representatives of many lands.

Already in Rome are President Sean T. O'Kelly of Ireland, Premier Joseph Bech of Luxembourg and Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville of France.

The Communist newspaper Paese Sera today suggested the foreign officials would negotiate over who would be the next pope, while world political considerations excerting considerable influence on the cardinals.

Communist papers in predominately Catholic countries of Western Europe have been circumspect in discussing the death of Pius XII on Oct. 9 and the choice of a successor.

L'Unita's comment followed the charge of Izvestia, the Soviet government mouthpiece, that government leaders were coming to Rome not so much to participate in the Pope's funeral as to influence the election of his successor.

The cardinals continued preparations for the conclave without making public notice of any candidacies. At least 42 of the 54 remaining cardinals already are here. Four more are expected.

Two cardinals behind the Iron Curtain will not be able to attend but a third, Stefan Cardinal Wyrzykski, left Warsaw by train Friday for Rome. About 500 per-

Rescue Sailors Adrift on Lake Twenty Hours

OSWEGO, N.Y. (AP)—A tugboat captain and his one - man crew were rescued Friday after drifting on stormy Lake Ontario more than 20 hours on a raft made of an inner tube and board.

Capt. Lon Prophett, 29, of Ogdensburg, said their small tug sprang a leak Thursday about eight miles northeast of Oswego, after it was swamped by waves 10 to 12 feet high.

Both Prophett and Ernest Burnett, 36, also of Ogdensburg, were in good condition at Oswego Hospital.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) Synopsis:
Cooler air pushed southward across Southern Ontario Friday night, dropping temperatures to near 40 degrees. The mercury fell to the low 30s south of Lake Superior. Today will be sunny but cool across the province. The high - pressure area bringing the sunny skies will move east of the province by Sunday. Southerly winds will then bring warmer air into Ontario. Skies will cloud over early Sunday morning over the northern regions and Sunday evening in the lower Great Lakes area. Showers will spread into the north country Sunday afternoon.

Private Tea-and-Champagne Party Starts Canada's Social Register

MONTREAL (CP)—Canada at long last has a social register of prominent people.

It was previewed Friday night at a private tea-and-champagne party.

All that seemed missing was a burst of trumpet fanfare as the social directory of 40,000 Canadians—and some others—bearing the "select" reporters in a hotel suite normally reserved for royalty.

The book, a 700-page register of the "who's who" of events said to be stamped in pure gold, was displayed in a glass crib about 20 inches long and six inches wide on a bed of white satin. A single light bulb of soft pink illuminated two pages of closely - printed names—from Gagnon to Cardinal-Lajoie, all Montrealers.

A security guard in a blue uniform stood by, unarmed, to make sure reporters didn't mass-handle the book or scratch for names. A mysterious official in another room of the royal suite—locked for safety's sake—checked names submitted by reporters.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker is listed. So are former prime ministers Louis St. Laurent and Arthur Meighen. And Governor-General Massey.

"The church, the bench, the scapel, the professions and Parliament are well represented," said a social register spokesman. "So are some people who've inherited money in a cockeyed sort of way."

The book was compiled after some 300 arbiters across the country nominated names of society's prominent people. It lists names and addresses, titles, decorations, clubs and phone numbers.

Host at the party was Toronto publisher John Lovell, who is also president of the Social Register of Canada Limited, sponsors of the book. He said he is the first to register.

But then neither is hockey player Maurice Richard or comedians John Wayne and Frank Sinatra.

Mr. Crombie said almost 10,000 persons already have signed the Social Register Association of Canada, incorporated in 1956, and have possessed membership card and a copy of the register. The only way to get in, he explained, is to get your name in the book itself, and pay a $25 membership fee.

"The book is not for public distribution," said Mr. Crombie. "It will not be sold, nothing may not be bought in book shops, and I question the advisability of it ever being available to the general public."

He said copies were being mailed — second class mail—to members of the association.

Resignations Predicted Unless Wages Are Raised

CALGARY (CP)—J. C. Best of Ottawa, president of the Civil Service Association of Canada, says the federal government can expect resignations of highly trained civil service personnel unless wages are brought into line with industry.

He said scientific, professional and technical ranks will be disturbed first unless the government acts. Mr. Best made his remarks Friday at a meeting of the association's executive and at a press conference.

He said the association is protesting to Prime Minister Diefenbaker and Finance Minister Fleming over a recommendation that a general increase in the salaries paid to civil servants is not necessary at this time. Mr. Best said the association is asking for a general 15-per-cent increase.

He said salary scales cause the high turnover of civil servants.

"There is a turnover of an average of 18 per cent a year but it goes as high as 30 per cent in some departments. The government makes much of the fact that there were 200,000 applications for civil service jobs last year but it doesn't point out that 60 to 70 per cent were from those who are just trying to better themselves."

Best predicted that Canada's 180,000 civil servants will have complete collective bargaining rights within 10 years.

"Since the war working conditions in government have lagged behind industry and civil servants have suffered financially as a result. is because of their unions that workers on the outside have it so good.

There are about 2,000 civil servants employed in Ottawa earning $1,200 a year for office boys and $13,000 for assistant deputy ministers and senior department directors.

The CSAC has a membership of 30,000. Another 80,000 are members of the Civil Service Federation of Canada and about 70,000 are unorganized.

Expect Seamen Will Not Handle Nickel Cargoes

SUDBURY (CP)—A seamen's and longshoremen's embargo on nickel from the strikebound International Nickel Company of Canada was predicted here Friday.

After discussions with "Canadian, U.S. and British waterfront union leaders, the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Workers (Ind.) which has had 14-cent-an-hour wage parity since 1954, said there is every indication longshoremen seamen, rail-road workers will refuse to handle nickel cargoes.

The embargo was declared at Montreal earlier this week "came with too short notice for proper handling." The union spokesman claimed.

MONTREAL (CP)—The International Longshoremen's Association (CLC) says it will continue to ignore any picket line thrown around docks by the 5,000 striking nickel workers from Sudbury, Ont.

"We'll respect picket lines of unions affiliated with the Canadian Labor Congress," said Director Marchand.

Leaders of the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (Ind.), on strike against the International Nickel Company picketed a ship in Montreal harbor Thursday and persuaded longshoremen from loading here with nickel from the company's mine.

FALSE ALARM

LONDON (Reuters) — An advertising spokesman said reports that a submarine sank today off the Isle of Wight were a "false alarm." The spokesman said the alarm was given by a discoverer of a marker buoy lost recently by the submarine Teredo, which is in harbor.

DIED IN POVERTY

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Court records showed today that only the fancy assets of Myrtle Fields are his instruments—valued at $300 to $500. The jazz saxophonist died Sept. 17 of an overdose of sleeping pills. Debts were listed totaling about $20,000.

Dulles to Seek Understanding With Chiang

WASHINGTON (AP) — State Secretary Dulles intends to seek a clear understanding with President Chiang Kai-shek next week on major policies of Nationalist Communist China's political offensive against Formosa.

Dulles announced the result of the meeting at Taipei will be to strengthen relations between the Nationalist government and Washington. They also expected the talks to reduce the chance Chiang's political offensive will be successful in driving a wedge between the two allies.

Dulles said privately the Communist purpose in maintaining a political offensive is to, if unquestionably, to break up the Nationalist-U.S. alliance.

Dulles, his associates said, felt that the best answer to the invitation received from Chiang several days ago and to go to Taipei as soon as he could to up his present mission to Rome.

Dulles on Friday night to represent the United States at ritesof Pius XII. He is due in Taipei by mid-week.

Prince of Wales May Broadcast To Children

LONDON (AP)—The Queen is considering a suggestion that the Prince of Wales, 9-year-old heir to the throne, broadcast a message to children on Christmas Day.

Mrs. Eilia Hagger, a 77-year-old spinster, made the proposal saying the sound of Prince Charles' voice would be "an inspiration" to children all over the world. She said today she had received a reply from Buckingham Palace that the suggestion had been noted.

The Queen traditionally broadcasts a Christmas Day message to the commonwealth. She was 14 when she first spoke to children on the radio.

Woman Choked To Death Says Toronto Coroner

TORONTO (CP)—Coroner Fred W. Tickett said Friday night a 62-year-old Toronto woman who was found sprawled on a bed while her children played nearby choked to death when she vomited.

Asphyxiation was found to have been the cause of death in an autopsy on the body of Elizabeth Gallagher. Mrs. Sara Barth, her daughter, looking for the source of smoke noticed by another tenant in the apartment house found the body.

Mrs. Barth said when she reached over to awaken her mother she found flames were eating through a pile of paper and rags and a broom. A burner on the gas stove was lighted and she turned it off before stamping out the fire.

BODY ON BED

She went in the bedroom and found Mrs. Gallagher sprawled. There was blood on her face.

Mrs. Barth said Mrs. Gallagher children, Michael and Patrick, 2, and Darlene, 6. They told police they found their mother sleeping and asked her for something to eat.

Walter Gallagher, the husband, has been working as a roofer in North Bay since Tuesday.

District Fire Chief William Cornwall said there was no fire hazard, said the only food in the three-room apartment was a tomato in the refrigerator. The children were half-dressed.

Anti-Marxist Book by USSR Citizen May Win Nobel Literature Prize

STOCKHOLM (AP) — An anti-Marxist book by a Soviet writer, banned in Russia "for political literary value," may be rewarded with this year's Nobel prize for literature.

The writer who is reported to be the first Russian to win the Nobel prize candidates is 68 - year - old Boris Pasternak, who still lives in Russia.

The book is Doctor Zhivago, a novel about a wealthy Russian doctor and his trials through this period of war and revolution.

The 15 members of the Swedish Academy will meet Thursday to pick the winner of this year's $41,420 literary prize next Thursday.

The theme of Dr. Zhivago is that Communism has failed to live in the Soviet Union, and what this has done to 200,000,000 people.

To get the manuscript printed, Pasternak had to give it to a friend who smuggled it out of Russia. The book first appeared in Italian in Italy last year. The Russians have tried to interfere with its publication elsewhere.

Boy Confesses Slaying Of Mother

CHICAGO (AP)—Police said today a 15-year-old boy confessed he killed his mother with a hammer and then set fire to the family home in an effort to cover up the crime.

Police said the boy told them he struck his mother, Mrs. Mary Ann Kuzniar, 39, with a hammer Thursday night after she had scolded him for playing hooky from school.

Police said the boy then set fire to the home in an effort to destroy evidence of the crime.

Mrs. Kuzniar's body was found in the basement of the home by firemen who were called to extinguish the blaze.

Police said the boy told them he struck his mother with the hammer after she had scolded him for playing hooky from school.

Police said the boy then set fire to the home in an effort to destroy evidence of the crime.

Mrs. Kuzniar's body was found in the basement of the home by firemen who were called to extinguish the blaze.

Three Killed in Crash

MONTREAL (CP) — Three persons were killed and two injured in a two-car collision on Highway 2 near Vaudreuil, 20 miles west of here, Friday night.

Provincial police said the dead are Mrs. Rose Lalonde, 40, of Montreal, her daughter Lise, 15, and Mrs. Lalonde's mother, Mrs. Rose Lalonde, 70, of Vaudreuil.

Police said the accident occurred when a car driven by Mrs. Lalonde crossed the centre line and collided with a car driven by Mrs. Lalonde's husband, Roland, 45, of Montreal.

Mrs. Lalonde and her daughter were killed instantly. Mrs. Lalonde died in hospital.

Mr. Lalonde and his son, Roland, 17, were injured.

RCAF ASSISTING TO LOCATE BODY

The assistance of the RCAF has been called in by provincial police headquarters at Belleville to help locate the body of Mr. Jack Hudson, Omaha, Nebraska, tourist and fisherman, who was drowned in Loughborough Lake, Kingston, several weeks ago.

Yesterday Constable Kenneth Williamson with Flt. Lt. Baird, and F/O Larmour of Trenton, flew in the seaplane at Belleville in an Otter aircraft but a search of the lake bed, from the air and the surface, failed to locate the body.

FIREMEN ANSWER THREE CALLS FRIDAY

City firemen had three brief runs yesterday, one of them being for a "contained" oil fire where a cigaret was blamed for igniting the cushions.

The other runs were to the second concession of Thurlow, where old tires taken out of the road culvert were being burned, and to Zwick's Island for a brush blaze.

MOCK BOMB ATTACK

HAMILTON (CP) — Hamilton becomes a "contaminated" city this weekend when a mock hydrogen bomb will be exploded above James Street armories, signalling the start of an exercise for reserve army units from St. Catharines, Welland, Brampton and Hamilton. Two mobile reporter columns from the 17th Militia Group will be alerted into the city from Milton and St. Catharines as a test of communications, mobility and liaison with civil defence authorities.

"SEND AWAY GLOOMY FEARS"

(Author's Name Below)

In ancient days, as soon as people became sick, most of them immediately gave up hope and prepared for the end. Positive cures were almost unknown. One really had to be very lucky to recover.

Nowadays we have many medicines that can be depended upon to give positive help. Physicians know more about the cause of most diseases. They prescribe from the thousands of different drugs pharmacists stock, the one that will help most. They are no longer restricted to the few they can carry in their bag or office. Do not fear any sickness, just visit your physician quickly.

Queen's Students Get Lost on 401 Here in Football Relay to Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — A torch and a football replica passing through scores of eager hands neared Toronto today for the climax of an unusual event likely to establish a new Canadian university tradition.

Queen's University students stretched out in relay teams moved the emblems along the 167 - mile highway route from Kingston to Toronto in honor of the first Queen's and University of Toronto football weekend.

The runners had reached Oshawa, about 32 miles east of midtown Toronto, by early today and were expected to arrive here about 10:30 a.m.

The relay, dubbed a "quarantine" to denote a Queen's marathon, involves 190 students. The replica they carry is of a football used in the first game between the Kingston and Toronto college rivals in 1898.

During the night runners carried lights to warn approaching traffic. A dim, powerful beam of them, however, from going miles off course at Belleville.

Two runners, Jim Hamilton, Bob Sowden of Belleville, Paul Conyers of Toronto, Tony Kelly of Preston and Vin Hall of Kingston, made their error by taking highway 401 when they should have followed highway 2. Officials caught up with them at Belleville and put them straight.

Wonder What Man Meant to Do With Bomb That Took His Life

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — What he had left McCuiston planned to do with the bomb that exploded and killed him in Wichita air terminal on Friday?

Commit suicide? If so, he was unsuccessful. The bomb went off in a passageway just off the main lobby of the terminal, killing the 36-year-old McCuiston outright. Minutes earlier, he had deplaned on a flight from Kansas City, carrying that bomb in a seven-pound package.

But if he meant to kill himself, why use a bomb? In a brief case he was carrying? Or a .38-calibre automatic. And if suicide was intended, why had he taken out a $25,000 flight insurance policy? A spokesman for the company said the policy said it would be worthless if suicide were established.

RISENHOWER VISIT

The FBI and secret service agents joined city police in the investigation because President Eisenhower is to visit Salina and Abilene, Kan., about 90 miles to the north, later in the day. But the agents disclosed no evidence of a link between the bombing and the presidential visit.

Nobody but McCuiston was hurt by the explosion, although it shattered glass throughout the building and there were about 50 persons in the terminal lobby.

Twenty-three persons were aboard the plane that brought McCuiston and the bomb to Wichita.

INDIAN SUMMER

Indian Summer is nature's most dramatic hour.
She wears her radiant ribbons of award for distinguished service . . . she has produced
. . . she has yielded . . . she has merited her winter of rest.

So it is in our lives . . . our finest hour is the last of life for which the first was made.

Through death we return to our Maker and reward unfathomable . . . for a life well lived. It is to the loved ones left behind that death is a sorrow.

It is to the bereaved that our sympathetic understanding is sincerely expressed by directing a funeral priced within their means and complying with individual needs and personal requirements.

Large Variety Of Produce Seen on Market

A large variety of produce greeted the early-morning buyer who braved the cold to visit the market square today. Prices remained steady on the whole with the produce selling well.

A good supply of potatoes were on hand at the reasonable price of $2 a hamper. Pears sold for 50 cents a basket and plums for 75, onions also sold for 75 cents.

Apples and apple cider were on sale in large quantities with the cider running from $1.00 a gallon down—to 15 cents for smaller jars. Apples went at 75 cents a basket for Macs and from 60 cents up for other varieties.

Celery was offered on a few stands for 10 cents a bunch or three for a quarter. Butternut squash sold for 10 to 25 cents. Watermelons and canteloupes were selling at 15 to 25 cents. Carrots ran at 25 cents a hamper with tomatoes selling at the same price but in larger quantity. Cabbages were going from 10 cents to 25 cents each and beets at 75 cents a basket.

Bunches of 'mums, showing good color, were also sold by the bunch. African violets sold in one spot for $1 a plant.

Advisory Board To the Blind Holds Meeting

Hastings County Advisory Board to the blind met at the home of the chairman, Mrs. George Wicket, Victoria Ave., on Wednesday evening to hear the report of the field-secretary and discuss matters relevant to the care of the blind in the county. The minutes were read by secretary Leslie F. Reid.

In his report, Mr. F. L. Reynolds read a long list of the services given to members of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind in this district. Supplementary assistance was given with fuel and monthly allowances. Repairs to radios, batteries, and talking books were made. Several members were given Perkins shoes, clothing, Braille watches, and glasses. Eye examinations were provided by the service department, and two children with cataracts were to be treated at the Hospital for Sick Children in Toronto. Two women went to summer camp, and this trip was financed by the board.

Provision was made for phonograph records which several of the blind members enjoy, and any used records would be welcome.

Plans were made for a sale of Blindcraft products to be held in the week previous to Christmas with Mrs. Mollins to convene it.

A committee was formed to arrange Christmas gifts in the city consisting of Messrs A. E. Wishart, Everett Fairman, and T. J. Flurey.

Miss Eleanor Roblin reported that contributions from the county to the annual financial campaign were coming in satisfactorily. This year the city of Belleville is a member of the United Appeal, but the county conducts its own fund raising.

After the meeting, the hostess, Mrs. Wishart, served refreshments to the board members.

Iced Carburetor Grounds Flyer After 29 Hours

CORDOVA, Alaska (AP) — Defeat was made up of 29 hours of ice for Alaskan flyer Charles F. Bashe Jr. Friday night.

The 30-year-old commercial airline pilot from Palo Alto, Calif., was forced down at the Cordova city airport after flying 2,270 miles on a projected flight from Tokyo to Miami—a distance of 4,000 miles.

Bashe, his face etched with lines brought by 29 hours at the controls of his Mooney Mark 20A aircraft, said that frosted in the carburetor forced him down.

He was attempting to crack the non-stop, single - engine distance record established Aug. 2 by Captain Paul Bollay, a commercial airline pilot who also lives in Palo Alto.

Bolling took off from Manila and flew 6,979 miles to a landing at Pendleton, Ore.

Even as he shrugged off the weariness of his trip, Bashe was making plans for another shot at Bolling's record.

"I'm going to try it again," he told reporters at Cordova airport. "It will be the same flight, the same plane, within six months."

Six Long-Term Workers of OTC Resign Posts

OTTAWA (CP)—Six long-term employees of the Ottawa Transportation Commission were reported today to have resigned within weeks of the resignation of the municipally - owned system's general manager.

The OTC, operating at a deficit, is in the process of converting to an all-bus operation. The city is to raise $1,500,000 through a loan to aid this conversion.

Elizabeth M. Baron, secretary-treasurer of the OTC and an employee for 45 years, resigned after being informed on her return from vacation that her job was abolished. She was offered a new position at half her present salary. Miss Baron had two years of service left before retirement on pension.

Two weeks ago general manager J. J. Macdonald resigned after $12,000-a-year post over what he called too much political interference.

Other employees who resigned are Mrs. M. Gorman, secretary to the general manager and an employee for 11½ years; Miss Breda Murphy, stenographer and an employee for 7½ years; and Mrs. M. J. Champagne, a clerk for 5½ years.

Registrations to take effect next Friday were also submitted by Mrs. Inez Morency, cashier for 5½ years, and Ruth Gray, a stenographer for seven years.

Obituaries

FRED MANSON SIMMONDS

The funeral of Fred Manson Simmonds was held from the Grant Funeral Home, North Front Street on Friday afternoon. Rev. Everett Smith, of Christ Church, conducted the service in the chapel and also the last rites in Belleville cemetery.

The bearers were: Charles Sprague, Earl Pope, Jack Phillips, Kelvey Wilson, Lorne Innes and Howard Cooney.

ELLSWORTH "SAM" CURRIE

Toronto

The funeral service of Ellsworth S. "Sam" Currie of 18 Iona Street, Toronto, was held in that city from St. Bride's Church on Wednesday, October 15th, 1958, following Mr. Currie's sudden passing away in Belleville General Hospital on Saturday, October 11th. Interment was in Holy Cross Cemetery, Toronto.

Mr. Currie was the husband of the late Katie Houlihan and is survived by four daughters, Mrs. Donald Preston (Audrey), Mrs. Bill Thomas (Mary), Mrs. Jack Bell (Leona), and Mrs. Joe Parent (Geraldine), all of Toronto, a son, Greg of Toronto, and two sisters Mrs. Martha Stinson and Mrs. Annie Cameron, of Toronto.

The bearers were Bert Johnston, Jack Black, Lee Anderson, Fred Meyers, Leo Houlihan and Fred Bell. The first four named were also pallbearers when he was employed by the CNR. He had many friends in this area.

MRS. JOSEPH D. COURNEYA (Tweed)

Although a patient in the Belleville General Hospital for the past two months, the death of Mrs. Amelia Matilda Courneya was a great shock to her family.

She was apparently making a satisfactory recovery and was ready to return home, when she was stricken with a stroke last Wednesday, and passed away the following day, October 8th, 1958.

Born 81 years ago, a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Peter Matie Derusha, she had lived on a farm in the Tweed district nearly all her married life.

The mother of fourteen children, she received the honour of the birth of a great-grandchild, of being able to see the fifth generation in her family, (her mother is a great-great grandmother).

IN MEMORIAM

EGGLETON. — In loving memory of my dear son, Bert Eggleton, who passed away October 18th, 1952.

Sweet is the sleep, dear son, that knows no breathe thy name; In life I loved you dearly, In death I do the same.

Oh! I think of you, dear son, And sometimes I feel blue, But I know I'll see you again, Oh! I hear your voice again.

Sweet memories are dearer than ever, Never shall your memory depart, Never shall your face ever, Around the grave where you are.

Mother, Sister, Brother.

Sadly missed by mother, Mrs. Peter Stall.

WEESE. — In loving memory of a dear husband, father and grandfather, William Earl Weese, who passed away October 18th, 1957.

Our life cannot tell how we miss you,
Our hearts cannot tell what to say,
Our love could not tell how much,
A home that is lonesome today.

—Lovingly remembered by wife Renee, son and daughter-in-law Allan and Eleanor, son Lyle and daughter-in-law Verna and grandchildren.

KILPATRICK. — In loving memory of my dear husband, Percy G. Kilpatrick, who passed away October 18th, 1957.

Those we love go out of sight,
But not out of mind;
They are cherished in the hearts
Where they have left behind.

—Lovingly remembered and sadly missed by wife Edith.

KILPATRICK. — In loving memory of our dear father, Percy G. Kilpatrick, who passed away October 18th, 1957.

You're not forgotten, father dear,
Though you're gone a year;
Your life and memory linger still,
We shall remember thee.

—Lovingly remembered by daughter Shirley and Norman.

GREEN. — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Kenneth Green, who passed away October 18th, 1953.

We little knew when we awoke that morn,
The sorrow the day would bring;
The call to suddenly part,
To part with one we loved so dear,
Never remembered by wife and husband Bill.

KELLY. — In loving memory of our dear sister, Rose Kelly, who passed away October 18th, 1952.

Each dawning day is thought of you,
And every night we pray,
And in the silent hour we think of you,
And long to be there.

—Lovingly remembered by sisters Myrtle, Martha, Georgina and Helen.

Ex-Mayors of Ottawa and Belleville got together yesterday to give Belleville United Appeal a boost. Report Reveals Number in Care Of CAS Declines

Despite the fact that increased numbers of children are being admitted to the care of the Children's Aid Society, the total number under supervision of the Society continues to decline.

This was indicated in the report of local CAS director, Mr. Bruce Kerr, at the regular monthly meeting of the Board of Directors held Thursday, Mr. C. B. Morgan, president of the Society, presided.

In his report Mr. Kerr noted that at the end of September there had been 338 children in the care of the Society, this being a considerable reduction from the beginning of the year.

This had been accomplished through the efforts of a staff adequate in numbers and by careful planning for the future of the child.

LAW IS CHANGED

Not many years ago, Mr. Kerr said, it was not unusual for a child to remain in the temporary ward care of a Society for 6 to 10 years. Because, under such circumstances, the Society had physical custody only and not the legal guardianship which would enable it to make a permanent plan by placement in adoption, the child was more often than not destined to remain in foster home care without ever knowing the permanency of a permanent home with a family of his own. Now by the terms of law that a child cannot remain in the temporary care of a Children's Aid Society for a period of more than 24 months. If, at the duration of this time, the parents are still unable to offer a satisfactory plan for him, he can be committed permanently to the care of the Society, thus enabling it to work out a permanent home.

Continuing his report, Mr. Kerr said that a concerted effort is being made to stimulate interest in the work being done by the Society, and in foster parent placement in particular. Because of the high cost and time lost due to travelling, it is essential that we place our children in the foster care of families living within a maximum of a 25-30 mile radius of the offices at Belleville. Certain areas of the County and the Town of Trenton are virtually virgin territory insofar as foster parenthood is concerned.

Although there are more than 40,000 people living in the Town of Trenton, at the present time there is a shortage of foster families in the community. This is to be regretted because it is close at hand, accessible the year round, and adequate school, hospital, medical and dental facilities are available. At the moment, 27 of the children in our care were apprehended in Trenton.

In conclusion, Mr. Kerr said: "We have an excellent film through the courtesy of the Protection Department of a Children's Aid Society available for showing to Church organizations, service clubs, and the like, and I would like to see our own professional staff have volunteered to meet with Home and School Associations, Parent-Teacher Associations, etc. Already visits have been made to Madoc, Trenton, and Tweed and eight additional visits are planned for the month ened.

Mrs. E. E. Fothwell, chairman of the property committee, reported that the playground at the Receiving Home was now completely sodded and that the work assigned to her committee for the year 1958 had been completed. However, the committee will again meet within the next two weeks to discuss the redecoration of the Society's offices. Said Mrs. Follwell, "the offices were last decorated in 1954 and it is our opinion that by planning this work now, it can be carried out after the new year when employment in the building and decorating trades is at a low ebb."

Mrs. Jane Forrester reported on the progress of the United Appeal, saying that the response to date has been most satisfactory. It was also announced that 16 of the society's employees had already signed pledges and were participating in the appeal.

Mr. J. D. Adamson, recently appointed to the staff as case-work supervisor, addressed the meeting. Mr. Adamson told the Board that insofar as his work was concerned, he had two responsibilities. First, to ensure through regular supervision of the staff that the policies of the Society as laid down by the board of directors were carried out, and secondly, to teach through day-to-day supervision and a staff training plan the principles and practices of good social casework. Mr. Morgan expressed appreciation of Mr. Adamson's efforts on behalf of the board.

Albert College Board of Governors held their first annual board meeting in their new Manor board room on Highland Avenue Friday afternoon. Attending the meeting and shown in above picture, are (front), Rev. A. E. MacKenzie, college principal; Mrs. Walter Elliott, Stirling; Harry W. Ackerman; Mrs. Harold Keefer, Trenton; Mrs. D. W. Stewart, Renfrew; Mrs. Helen Hay, Kingston and Mr. William Morrison; (back row), T. K. Franklin, college bursar; J. C. R. Punchard, J. G. Demeza, superintendent O.S.D.; Lorne McDougall, Newton Thompson, J. R. Leslie, Judge J. C. Anderson, chairman of the board; A. O. Drysdale, C. C. Allin, W. H. Finkle and A. Stuart Robb. The city of Belleville assisted the college with a substantial grant on the new buildings.

TRENTON — Work on the Trenton town bridge is moving along on schedule it was announced yesterday and although traffic is proving to be a certain amount of hindrance it is expected the repair work will be completed on December 10 as scheduled in the contract.

All the work is under the direction of the Tatham Construction Company with sub-contracts going out to the McFarland Construction Company for the hard surfacing work and the Central Bridge for the necessary steel work.

The paving crews finished their work yesterday afternoon when the east approach to the bridge was raised and resurfaced. New sidewalks have also been built on that side of the bridge.

On the bridge itself, half of the old deck has been torn out and the steel crews are putting in two additional steel beams which run the length of the bridge and several cross members. Expansion joints which allow the bridge to move depending on the type of weather, are being put in at the centre of the bridge and at the east end.

At one end of the span, nearest to the swing bridge, labor crews are busy putting in the forms to hold the cement which will form the new deck. It is expected the first of the cement on this side of the deck will be poured next Tuesday. It will be dry and traffic allowed on it 24 hours after it has been poured. This work will be attended to by the Read-Mix cement company at Bayside.

Underneath the bridge repair work is also taking place with men chipping off the old cement on the abutments and others patching cracks where possible.

Although traffic may be a problem for the construction crews who now wish the bridge had been closed down entirely, it is proving little difficulty for the town traffic authorities.

POLICEMAN ON DUTY

During the slack time in traffic the automatic lights are put into use, but during the rush hours a policeman is stationed in the centre of the bridge and controls the lights manually. Another policeman is stationed at the east approach to the bridge to keep traffic rolling.

A phone set-up between the police station and the officer on duty at the control box on the bridge clears the line of all traffic to let emergency vehicles pass through.

However, acting Fire Chief Cecil Ellis has one of his men and a truck stationed on the east side of the river, in the town sheds, during busy traffic hours to make sure there is no traffic problems in cases of a fire on the east side of the river.

Some complaints have reached town authorities on the cars moving too slowly over the bridge, but traffic officials say things are going better than as anticipated before the repair work began.

Woman Injured In Collision, Heavy Damage

TRENTON — One woman was injured and two men escaped with only bruises and scratches when two cars collided near the Ray Wicken's Service station on Dundas Street West.

The driver of the other car was construction worker Lewis Martin, 27 of 77 Jane Street, Toronto.

LAC Ferdinand said last night that he and his wife had gone out to the service station to fill the car with gas and were returning towards Trenton when the second car, "seemed to appear out of nowhere". He said he swung hard to the right in an attempt to miss the oncoming vehicle but was unable to get out of the way.

It is believed both cars were close to the white line and after the accident they blocked half of the highway.

Damage to the front ends of both cars was extensive but no estimate of the amount was available. The accident happened about 11:30 p.m. last night.

Trenton police were called to the scene and directed traffic until the constable on duty at the Brighton detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police arrived. The accident took place just a few yards outside of the town limits.

Queen's Principal Speaker At Convocation at Albert

Memorial Chapel at Albert College was filled to capacity Friday evening as the college held its fourth annual fall convocation.

Guest speaker at the convocation, attended by parents of students, former students and friends, was W. A. Mackintosh, vice chancellor and principal of Queen's University, who gave a challenging address on the opportunities and responsibilities in education.

College Principal Rev. A. E. MacKenzie, presided over the proceedings which saw students presented with their certificates and other awards won during the past school year. Intermediate certificates were presented to Grade X students as well as Ontario Secondary School Graduation, Diplomas and Honor Graduation Diplomas to the graduating students.

The Governor General's Medal was won by Steve Sale, son of Alderman and Mrs. Ben Sale, while the N. A. Beach Award was won by Thomas Murdock of Blenheim, Ont.

Judge J. C. Anderson, chairman of the Albert College Board of Governors, presented the Governor General's Medal, with the recipient making a brief reply in appreciation.

Mr. Alec Gordon, organist at Bridge Street United Church, presided at the chapel organ. Miss Loretta McDougall was heard in a vocal solo while college students and the audience joined in singing the hymn "O Worship the King," and the Albert College hymn. Invocation was by Rev. C. W. Coleman, of Holloway St. United Church.

Following the convocation a reception was held at Ackerman Hall for visitors and students, the evening's program being concluded with the graduation dance, also held in Ackerman Hall.

Like To Be Thrifty, So...
I heat with oil

Yes . . . oil heat is thrifty heat. It's really economical . . . gives plenty of heat for every dollar. Since your oil supplier is in competition with other suppliers you'll continue to gain the advantages both of low cost and good service.

Are you planning to convert your present home to automatic heating? Or do you plan to build? In either case, insist on oil. (Quality home builders do).

Ask your neighbour why he heats with oil. We know he'll tell you about such things as dependability, safety and low cost.

Remember, more people heat automatically with oil than with any other fuel.

THE CONTRADICTION THAT IS DE GAULLE

Every rule must have an exception, and General Charles de Gaulle may yet prove the exception which proves the rule that military men make poor politicians.

When, in 1952, General Eisenhower first sought the presidency of the United States there were those who scoffed at suggestions that his military experience was a handicap rather than an asset.

Today an increasing number of people are dogged by the fear that Eisenhower's record as a politician may tarnish the lustre with his achievements as a general won for his name.

Comparing Eisenhower with de Gaulle, who would have supposed that the haughty, touchy, opinionated Frenchman would make a better politician than the pleasant, conciliatory American?

Yet it has been Eisenhower's readiness to compromise, to attempt to bring unity out of discord and to get men of diverse beliefs and habits of mind to work together as a team which has proven one of his major handicaps. He has procrastinated instead of acting.

De Gaulle, on the other hand, seems well on the road to turning his defects in character into the tools needed to work a miracle.

To judge a man solely by newspaper reports is difficult even when these reports are as extensive, and cover such a lengthy term of years, as those about de Gaulle. Nevertheless, the impression which these years have left with us is that the General is an aristocrat by temperament. Yet he has talked like a democrat. And now he is acting like one.

Perhaps this ought not to surprise us. The history books are full of the achievements of men who combined the aristocratic temperament with democratic convictions.

Such a combination, though, would not of itself have made it possible for de Gaulle to make such an excellent start on what must inevitably be a long and hazardous undertaking, the restoration of reason and justice to the conduct of government in Algeria.

Besides the democratic convictions which have led him to insist on absolute freedom for candidates of all tendencies in the forthcoming elections in Algeria, beside the aristocratic distaste for the mob which made it easy for him to spurn the "colons" and their public safety committees, besides the military experience which made it simple to give a sharp order to General Salan — and to expect instant and unquestioning obedience — besides all these attributes there was needed for such action an unshakeable belief in the correctness of his own judgment of affairs.

This welding of the willingness to be authoritarian with the belief in the principles of liberty, equality and fraternity and another person, less self-centred and opinionated, would not achieve. And it may well prove that this strange marriage of temperament and convictions may be the key, and probably the only key, to the unravelling of the chaotic tangle of red tape with which the Fourth Republic had bound itself.

Generals, it seems, may share certain military knowledge but still differ as widely as day and night.

HOW ABOUT A POST OFFICE QUIZ?

Fourteen thousand bucks and a mink stole seem to be a high penalty to pay for bad handwriting.

That, though, is what it cost Canadians last year because they did not properly address their mail.

The cash went into the government till. The mink stole, and the contents of 54,000 other parcels, will be auctioned off and the money will also disappear into the voracious maw of the Federal treasury.

All this may be businesslike but it is most unsporting. Altogether aside from the sentimental value of the undelivered parcels — who can accurately translate the value of a mink stole in terms of hugs and kisses? -- there is the fact that we, the people of Canada, threw these articles into the pot. Why should we not get a chance to repossess them — without paying tribute to the government? Doesn't the postmaster general watch television? How about a mail order version of "The Price is Right?" Has nobody in the capital grasped the vote-catching appeal of "The $14,000 Question?" With 11,000,000 letters and cards going astray, there would be a prize for everybody, even if some only got a note from Aunt Matilda saying that her rheumatism was bothering her and that she was wishing Johnny a pair of mitts for Christmas.

SOMETHING FOR EVERYBODY

Scientists say that not only could the moon serve as a relay station for worldwide television broadcasts, but on it "even the worst duffer could easily drive a golfball a mile." There's something for everyone in science. (Ottawa Journal.)

Japan's National Beverage

The New Japan

Although Japan is keeping pace with the 20th century in modern new buildings, new techniques in industry, great strides in communications, electronics and science, one facet of life in this island nation is changeless — the love for the traditional and distinctive Japanese beverage, sake.

Nobel Prize-winning author William Faulkner, who visited Japan two years ago, wrote afterwards that "the hospitality of Japan is kind and hospitable," and that "a visitor from a strange land will be well met anywhere, provided he knows three Japanese words: arigato (thank you), 'gohan' (meals) and 'sake.'"

Sake is to Japan what whisky is to the British Isles, what wine is to France, what beer is to Germany. Each owes its birth to the particular climate, natural resources, customs, manners and eating habits of its country. Each tradition has developed each to what it is today.

In the case of sake, it has been developed from rice — something almost sacred by the Japanese. After a bountiful crop of rice, Japanese farmers offer sake to the heavenly powers as a token of sincere gratitude for good crops.

In a wedding ceremony the bride and bridegroom exchange cups of sake in what is known as the "three-three-nine-degree" in the belief that this exchange of sake cups makes their wedlock indissoluble.

Sake figures not only in joyous festivities in Japan, but also in sad occasions. During the funeral of a friend, a funeral, or in a memorial service, it is usually served to pay tribute to the dead.

In short, sake is almost indispensable to life in Japan. It accounts for 40 percent of the alcoholic beverage consumed in the country.

Sake is brewed by what is probably the most complicated process of any alcoholic beverage. The brewer is said to put his heart and soul into the work, and individual skill, technique and effort have a telling bearing on the quality, flavor and taste.

Sake, which contains an average 15 percent alcoholic content, is brewed by saccharification of malt and fermentation of yeast fungus, which must go on at the same time in a well-balanced manner. The brew must have excellent rice, good water, as well as an ideal climate.

This brewing process has been nurtured by centuries of tradition. Sake brewers are any standing in Japan date back more than a century.

The brewing begins in the cold of December and takes about 40 days. A master sake brewer is called "toji" and under him work 10 to 20 people called "kurebito," who form a sake-brewing team.

Sake brewers are usually farmers who come out of the rural districts during the dull post-harvest season, and they spend 100 days of continuous work at a sake brewery.

The beverage itself is of a bright golden yellow color, with an aroma like that of a golden, delicious apple. It combines the fragrance of the rose, saffron, daffodil and plum. Sweet, acid, hot, bitter and astringent — many tastes blend harmoniously to make up the indescribable delight of Japanese sake.

Sake, like other alcoholic drinks, is often enjoyed mixed in cocktails or in highballs.

But the best way, the Japanese say, to drink the only proper way — is to mull, or heat the beverage slightly. It is then poured into a chinaware bottle and the bottle is placed in hot water until it reaches body temperature. Only then, the Japanese say, can the full flavor be appreciated.

Oddly enough, although there are many variations of sake, most Japanese restaurants offer only one brand. There are, however, sake shops which specialize in one or more of the fine brands available.

And one need never worry about getting drunk on sake. It takes an impressive number of the little goolets in which sake is served to get a drinker of any experience.

Many troops stationed in Japan after the end of World War II, and officials from overseas have learned to like sake as well as Japanese civilians. Japanese call it as sukiyaki and tempura.

Sake, finally, makes an inexpensive companion to a Japanese dinner, as also highly appreciated as a producer of joy as an accompaniment for hors d'oeuvres.

Exports to countries around the world have been increasing in recent years.

Sake, while not widely used in Canada, is sold through Canada Liquor Control Board outlets in the various provinces.

Emily Post Little Help

St. Louis Post-Dispatch

Emily Post came to grips the other day with the question of what to do when the ringing of the telephone interrupts a favorite television program. Her solution — "Mrs. Jones is unable to come to the telephone at the moment but asks if she may call you in 10 or 20 minutes" — unfortunately presumes that everybody who faces that problem has a butler. Such, we need hardly add, is not the case.

As Mrs. Post herself says, to say that "Mrs. Jones is looking at television" is to create a person's circumstances. How much more discreet, one might ask, to seem for Mrs. Jones to translate the Post formula into the first person and tell the peculiar fib of the butterless home? To say "I am unable to come to the phone at the moment but ask if I may call you in 10 or 20 minutes" is not only to sense that discourteous, it would be absolutely implausible. The discourteous lie, simply, how can Mrs. Jones have the nerve to say she'll come to the telephone when she is at the telephone?

Since Mrs. Post leaves the great mass of television viewers right where she found them, with the telephone ringing and the commercials blaring, she has failed to provide a whole year with a heart condition. Normally, a man is put to bed for six weeks or so, and told to take it easy for a couple of months. But this was a more serious matter.

Being a man of great energy and zest, his friends could not see how he was going to spend a year either in bed or near it.

But he discovered reading, for the first time in his life. Any reading he had ever done, since his schooldays, was paperbacked while riding in a day coach between cities, or maybe on the summer cottage verandah on rainy days.

Some genius in his family put him onto Sir John Franklin's "Narrative of a Journey to the Shores of the Polar Sea in 1819-20-21-22." They got him a spanking old 1824 edition in the two volumes.

And he was away. With no post-office boxes, he took his time over every detail of that wonderful adventure into the unknown and unexplored north of Canada, starting at York Factory on Hudson Bay and struggling to the Arctic Ocean by way of Great Slave Lake and the Coppermine River, by canoe and on foot. A tremendous tale, full of anecdote and particulars.

What a springboard into Canadiana! At the end of his year he knows more about Canada than most scholars, for he has read the whole literature of it, forgotten or overlooked by the rest of us.

Tickling The Ivories

Few people realize that the "ivories" - piano or organ keys — are produced by only two companies in the world. One is in Britain, the other in Germany. The British firm — Herrin and Company of St. Ives, Cornwall — was established in 1800 by the great-grandfather of the present proprietor, and they are regularly supplied piano and organ keys and stops to Canadian instrument manufacturers. For the past 50 years, Next April Mr. Harris will retire, but he is confident that if he might sell still more cut ivory.

Three small firm uses between 13 and 16 tons of elephant tusks every year — principally from Africa and Zanzibar. The cut and bleached ivories are exported to every country in the world.

Going on, we propose a mild suggestion or two. For those athletically inclined, we suggested pick up the phone, dialing, saying "Wrong number," and putting the receiver back on the hook; repeating the procedure as needed until the show is over. The sedentary might try the turn of television up a little louder and 1 s i l e n t l y mouthing the words. Either way is simpler than hiring a butler.

Durable Dusenbergs

Parent Magazine

What happened to the old Dusenberg autos?

These remarkable automobiles, first made in 1920 and discontinued in 1937, are still considered among the best and greatest cars ever made.

Fred and Augie Dusenberg manufactured only 373 of these vehicles, but they were custom made and had a price range from $13,500 to $25,000. Some had built-in vases, dressing tables, and one bought by a rich Indian, had solid gold fittings and inlaid steps gnawed out of our Gutineau chalet. And do we feel stuck full of quills!

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

WHENCE COMES COMFORT?

I wonder how many there are who recall the comforting arms of a mother? I recall this comfort vividly; I think of the childhood days, the trials, and the little disappointments and sorrows — but that mother smoothed them all away. She brought comfort, the same as Jesus brought comfort to His followers, and as an understanding friend has so often brought to each of us the same comfort that we all so much need.

There are persons whose presence immediately gives cheer and warmth to all about them. Although they were dedicated to be helpful and inspiring. How wonderful if we all might be this kind of a friend!

Much of our unhappiness can be traced to loneliness. But gifted and little alike, however, experience loneliness, and its quick comforts.

To Your Good Health

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

TRADE NAMES NEVER MENTIONED IN MEDICAL COLUMN

Let me talk frankly about one of the problems of writing a column. Not that I think I ever am un-frank, but I've got to admit that there are times when I can't write things that I would say if I were talking to one or two people, face to face.

Very frequently readers ask me to recommend this or that sort of medication by trade name, and I consistently refuse. Occasionally I mention using a medication which contains a certain chemical — for example, some time ago I mentioned dioctyl sodium sulfosuccinate as a softening and moistening agent for people with real (rather than imaginary) constipation.

There are half a dozen or more trade names for the drug, which often is mixed with other materials. To the best of my knowledge, all of them are good, and some may be better for certain people, I can't urge one preparation over another because I don't know the people involved, too. Anyway, it's pretty much like saying that the choice of painting a house and then having somebody say, "Why not color it white? That isn't any "best" color; it depends on you.

So I just avoid trade names completely. Besides, as you know, a great deal of money is spent on advertising. Advertising is useful; I heartily indorse it as an institution. But I've been in life doesn't include advertising. I never write for a magazine will indorse a particular product. When a celebrity "indorses" a product, I'm willing to bet everybody understands that it is for pay. I'm willing to bet, perhaps the cigaret is indeed the favorite cigaret of that celebrity, but I'm just offering that opinion, and everybody knows it.

SCIENTIFIC FACTS WANTED

I'm not trying to kill a fondly hope, readers want more than my personal opinion. They want the facts, so far as they are known, and I'm willing to supply them.

This column goes into many millions of homes every day, and my subscription list for this particular product would have consisted of Mrs. Molner and Mr. Husband until I were at breakfast and I said, "I wonder if I'm allergic to eggs?" I would then scratch my jaw and neck and probably use the salt if I didn't like it. I'm not going to relieve between two soups. I say soup, and a person might be allergic to the soup. Soup is the world over not allergic to the "worst."

However, soup won't prevent allergy. To be a wheeler and dealer is involved in this case, stop eating eggs for two or three weeks.

Not as a rule. In some instances, particularly chronic heart or kidney trouble, salt does affect the balance of the body and that is bad. For the healthy person, extra salt will be disposed of readily by the body.

Sergeants In Schools

Milwaukee Journal

Hiring retired army sergeants or retired policemen to preside over high school study halls, as Waukesha plans to do, may prove to be a good idea for many communities. Not only can teachers be freed from an assignment they dislike, and their special skill used to greater advantage elsewhere. The action by Wisconsin town a half century ago about a certain country schoolmaster whose hours it got so completely out of hand that the teacher had left, in succession, without completing their contract. Then a returning soldier who with teaching experience was hired and appeared on the first day of school with his service pistol, which he put on top of his desk. When he did he said to start classes the older rowdies kept talking and quieted down.

Without a word, the glowering teacher raised his pistol, fired, and neatly decapitated a small bust of Mark Twain over the door at the other end of the room. Mark Twain didn't mind, but the pupils did — after that.

The same general idea, minus the pistol of course, might work pretty well nowadays.

Strength for The Day

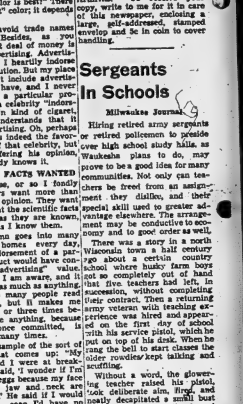
REJOICING, NOT GLOOM

One Sunday recently I visited a church where the minister preached a wonderful sermon. Taking his text from Ecclesiastes, he said things come alike to all: there is one event to the righteous and to the wicked . . . to the good and to the bad . . . to the sons of men is full of evil, and madness is in their heart while they live, and after that they go to the dead." So he went on to show that calamities and death and oblivion wait at the end for us all.



I do not recall now what t h e point of the minister was in the encouraging sermon was, but I gathered that he felt strongly that the aim of religion was to remove the blinders from our eyes so that we can see the glories of God's mind man of the unhappiness that is in life. I strongly disagree with him.

Almost nothing that we have in life is of any better by our being gloomy about it. Rarely do people hasten when we are down in the mouth. People become less friendly because we are less agreeable to them. The worst things go, the gloomier we feel, and the gloomier we feel, t h e worse they go.

Religion is meant to make men not gloomy but happy and triumphant. It is the story of God's gift to men. The word redolice is one of the most frequent words in the Bible — let us never

A Lift for Living

We Are Watching the Ramparts

By DR. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

Without doubt there are more watchers on the ramparts of the world than ever before in human history.

The reasons for this increase of watchmen are obvious. Our world is filled with lurking dangers. It is little wonder that people are living on the defensive.

Then too, another reason for the multiplication of watchmen, is that events move so fast these days. The faster we travel, the farther ahead we have to look. We think we cannot make our maps and plans on the basis of what happened yesterday; we want to know what is going to happen tomorrow. Hence arose the vogue of popular polls which predict next month's elections, tomorrow's trends.

Hence developed the increasing number of press columnists a n d news interpreters who peer ahead of the headlines. We are like motorists travelling at high speed through a black-out. And so, on every side goes up the cry as in the days of Isaiah: "Watchman, what of the night?"

SAFETY, PEACE OF MIND

Our safety and peace of mind depend on watchmen. While we keep at night our armed forces guard our coasts, the officers and men of The Strategic Air Command are on a 24 hour alert and the great battle fleets patrol eastern waters to keep dangers from breaking in upon us. When sickness overtakes us and we toss restlessly in those fitful snatches of slumber between the periods of fretful wakefulness, what a difference it makes whether we open our eyes to the empty unfeeling darkness or to the sympathetic gaze of a relative or nurse, who is keeping the silent watches of the night. When we are in deep trouble and enter those valleys of decision where each must walk alone with his God, it is good to know that some friend or loved one has come as far as another human being can come and is prayerfully watching with us at the gate of our Gethsemanes.

But it is not enough merely to have watchmen; much depends on the character of those who watch. Irresponsible watchmen are worse than none, for they deceive us with false security. Emotional watchmen are a menace, for they excite us without cause. Prejudiced watchmen are a peril, for they distort dangers and arouse us in the wrong directions, and so it behooves us to look to the character of our watchmen. We can thank God that Ireland, regardless of party platforms, we have patriotic watchmen.

In Old Testament times there were divinely inspired seers who watched the ramparts of Israel. Great and brave prophets like Amos and Jeremiah and Isaiah saw beyond the crowd to the real dangers and the sound policies of their nation. If the people had not forsaken the true prophets for "false prophets" ancient Israel would have escaped its suffering.

History also reveals what happens to nations when those w h o should be prophets of God forsake their sentinel posts. In Russia 50 years ago under the czars, t h e church of Christ failed in its function as guardian of the people's good and paid for its failure by the forfeiture of its privileges and the communist revolution. In Germany the church concerned itself with ecclesiastical and theological matters to the neglect of vital social issues until a ruling idle of Nazism submerged it into servility. When I think of those lands, I feel the force of the Psalmist's words: "Except the Lord keep the city, the watchmen waketh but in vain."

Last September I was driven a few miles south of Hong Kong to the barbed wire barrier between that free colony of Britain and the territory of Red China. I was told of the strict watch being kept along that border and the dire penalty inflicted on those caught crossing it.

But while armed guards may halt the passing of persons, they cannot check the invasion of ideas. We need to watch for poisonous ideas. Suppose I lived in your community and had a garden. On both sides of me were neighbors who let their gardens grow up with weeds. How could I keep my garden clean when the seeds of their weeds are in the air? Not by fences, but by cultivating the good plants in my own ground.

You see the point. If we are to keep free countries free, we must have workers as well as watchmen.

PEACE PRIZE WINNER

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Catholic Association for International Peace has announced its 1958 peace award will be given to U.S. Deputy Undersecretary of State Robert D. Murphy. The award is given annually to "an American whose outstanding achievements have helped further the Christian principles of justice and charity in international life."

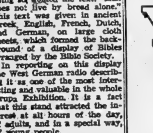
The Bible Today



Some 40,000 visitors, mainly from Europe, visited the Drupa Exhibition at Dusseldorf in May of this year. The Exhibition, displaying printing and paper, is held every four years.

This year the Vice-Chancellor, and Minister of the German Republic, Professor Dr. Erhard, opened the Exhibition, and in doing so quoted the text: "Man does not live by bread alone." This text was given in ancient Greek, English, French, Dutch, and German, on large cloth sheets, which formed the background of a display of Bibles arranged by the Bible Society.

In reporting on this display the West German radio described it as one of the most interesting and valuable in the whole Drupa Exhibition. It is a fact that this stand attracted the interest at all hours of the day, of adults, and in a special way, of young people.

The theme of the display was: "Contemporary Bible printing 1945-1958; the Bibles, Testaments and Portions exhibited were the production of the Bible Societies which belong to the United Bible Societies.

Wedding

MILLER — McQUAID

Wellington Pentecostal Church was the setting for a very pretty autumn wedding on Saturday, October 11, at 2:00 p.m. when the Reverend Lorne Wood, of Belleville, officiated at the double ring ceremony uniting in marriage Lula May McQuaid, of Wellington, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McQuaid, to Ronald Earl Miller, also of Wellington, son of Mr. and Mrs Howard Miller. Yellow and white chrysanthemums and ferns formed a lovely background for the ceremony.

Mrs. Louis Gilbert presided at the organ and accompanied the soloist, Mrs. O'Brien, who sang, "Love's Old Sweet Song to Me, Lead Us."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was charming in her floor-length bridal gown of white, brocaded satin, featuring a fitted bodice having long, lily-pointed sleeves and scalloped neckline. She wore a matching headdress with fingertip veil and carried a white Bible crested with red roses.

The bridesmaid, Mrs. Donald Noble, of Picton, was gowned in pink taffeta in street-length with Mrs. Laura Harris, of Wellington, in green taffeta in street-length. Both wore matching feathered hats, and carried white and yellow bouquets.

Mr. Donald MacDonald, of Wellington, attended the bridegroom as best man. Ushers were Bailey and Leon McQuaid, both of Wellington, were ushers.

The reception was held at the bride's home which was beautifully decorated with fall flowers and foliage. The bride's mother received guests in her navy blue crepe with corsage of red roses. She was assisted by the bridesmaid in a lovely backround for the ceremony.

The bride's table was appointed with white damask, and centred with a three-tier wedding cake flanked by pink and white chrysanthemums.

Those who served were Mrs. Rodney Blower; Mrs. Hazel Peat, and Mrs. Cecil Fritz.

For the wedding trip through the north country, the bride wore a green rayon dress with black accessories.

Guests were present from Highland Creek, Ontario; Peterborough and Greenbush.

Horizontal and Unconscious' Baby Makes Best Traveller

By SHIRLEY AND BOB ELDANE

(Q) "I would appreciate some hints on travelling a long air trip with a small baby. It will take 8 hours, including an eight-hour layover in New York. My baby will be three months old at the time.

"I was told by the airline that since I am taking the least expensive (economy) flight, which is usually full, there is small chance of having an empty seat to put the baby in. How can I make the flight more comfortable for us both?"

— Mrs. B. H. C., Lisbon, La.

(A) In the immortal words of United Airlines Capt. John Gearhart, who flies to entertain his passengers over the public address system while driving them, babies make the best passengers because they "assume a horizontal position and maintain a good attitude."

This factor is the biggest one in favor of travelling with children and you ought to make the most of it, getting a child to sleep as much as possible during the trip. At that age you never have enough room if it's comfortable. Since there won't likely be any empty seats on the plane, if you can keep your arms for 40 hours, that's your biggest problem.

You'll have to choose between a small, light bassinette or carried if you can manage it (some airlines provide one) or barring that, one of the reclining-seat infant seats (about $10) in which the child can be propped into a half-upright position without actually sitting, or can be stretched out flat.

It will sleep in this device some of the time but probably not for as long, nor as comfortably, as in the larger, more cumbersome bassinette. Therefore it will have to sleep some of the time in your arms or stretched out on your lap (which it will do with surprising ease) if you decide on the reclining seat.

One of the most important things for you to do is to make sure the airline advises its airport personnel that you are travelling with an infant. Arrive at the field early and arrange to board 1 h e plane before other passengers.

TAKE AN AISLE SEAT

Either at the ticket counter or on board with the stewardesses' help, take a seat in the row with the most room. Every plane that has at least one such row and it will be a lifesaver for you by providing enough room for baby equipment. An aisle seat will be best since you'll probably be up and down frequently and you won't have to climb over other passengers to get out.

Ask the stewardesses or t h e counter agents if they can fill the seat next to you last so that if there is even one empty seat, you'll have the use of it.

You should ask your pediatrician if he is agreeable to taking your baby off formula at that long a trip. If you are using one has an adequate supply of milk on board. This should be available at no charge as an economy flight, and the stewardesses will gladly fix it for you. You may, however, need your own supply of clean bottles and nipples, as well as a thermos to keep the formula heated on board also.

If you can't examine the formula, mix enough for about 24 hours and have it refrigerated on board the plane. Carry a reserve supply of ingredients that don't spoil (dextrose, canned concentrate or whatever your doctor prescribes) and mix a fresh batch with whatever fresh ingredients are needed — whole milk, water — in one of your stopovers. The airline can help you make arrangements for this, too.

An absolute essential is an insulated zipper bag for your baby's bottles and baby food. Diapers can be stored in this too, but you should have a supply of disposable, plastic lined paper ones which come in a box and can be carried in it.

Cloth diapers will be almost impossible to use, by the way, on a long trip and should not be considered. Disposable ones are by far the best clothing changes as possible and only one warm blanket.

The last thing you can do during your eight-hour layover is get a good night's sleep in a bed. There is a new first class hotel at New York international airport. This isn't exactly a desirable sort of trip for a lone mother with so young a child but if it can be done on this scale, perhaps it will seem easier for prospective travellers with children on shorter journeys.

Wedding Ring Club Meet

On Tuesday October 14 the regular meeting of the Wedding-Ring Club of Collges Hill United Church was held in the Sunday School room.

Mr. Charles Gray, president opened the meeting.

Several items of business were discussed, among these projects for raising of funds to help the club with its work within the church.

The devotional part of the meeting was conducted by group 3 under the direction of Mr. and Mrs. Bill McIlquham.

A social hour of progressive crokinole was enjoyed by all with prizes being won by Mr. Reg. Armstrong, Mrs. Fraser McDonald and Mrs. Lela Belcour.

Refreshments were served.

Dr. Charlotte Whitton Gives Interesting Address On Municipal Government

An intensely interesting address, scintillating with human interest, humor, and instruction in municipal government, under the title, "Life in a Mayor's Nest," was given by Dr. Charlotte Whitton, of Ottawa, tuesday evening to a capacity-packed auditorium in Sir Winston Churchill School, at the opening meeting of the Women's Canadian Club.

Dr. Whitton, former mayor of Ottawa, honored by the universities of Canada and the United States, was born in Renfrew, Ontario, of English parents, received her M.A. degree from Queen's University, Kingston, in 1917; became the first woman editor of the "Queen's Journal," entered Social Service Council of Canada in 1918, acted as consultant on war and civilian service during the war and from 1951 to 1956 served as mayor of Ottawa.

Introduced by the president of the club, Mrs. C. S. Fairman, Dr. Whitton said she was glad to be in Belleville again, which, Mr. Fairman, a native himself, hardly dared hope due to the "flu" ban on public meetings. She mentioned a few highlights of her grandfather, who greatly influenced her in the latter of whom on the distaff side, was the grandmother of the "Bloomfield Cheese."

MUNICIPAL GOVERNMENT

Following the introductory remarks, Dr. Whitton launched, at length, into a complete review of the municipal government from its earliest inception, harking back to the time of antiquity when man began the upward climb by the discovery of fire; the various stages of the formation of the family, tribe, nation, and what is and, known as "shires" from the word "share," to the origin of the word municipal; government, which comes from the Latin and Greek combined, but more from the Roman side, with its forum where study and government was carried on, the word "municipal," hence the word "municipal."

The clans became tuns or "towns," with a presiding official, and the older men became known as "aldermen." With the coming of Christianity, the parish became an ecclesiastical unit. The larger cities had a mayor, or headman, and out of this the government of Britain developed. The Magna Charta comprised all the rights of municipal government.

BENEFITS

Speaking on benefits of municipal government, Dr. Whitton listed the police protection; the safety of property; the harmony among neighbors; building by-laws; safety provided by inspection, and many other means by which people enjoy a well-protected existence.

Branching off, Dr. Whitton mentioned that heading a municipal government was something like running a business, when you wanted, if you don't get it before, you never will — afterwards, adding "put the pressure on before election."

As the head, the mayor is the intimate for every one's concern. Sometimes she was called in the wee small hours to decide what to do with a dead canary; to advise a man whose wife was out with a fireman; to ease the inmitted feelings of a man who found a fly in a restaurant on Rideau Street; to ease the feelings of poor ladies who were embarrassed by the snowblower; all of which received her personal attention, either by word, or deed.

Dr. Whitton stressed the point that people as a whole should be more interested in their municipal government, which would benefit by the election to it of women, as they would have more time than their husbands to do so. The government was run in a more efficient manner. To have a good government, one must have good men and women at its helm, with active friends and happy relations between the people and the heads.

Dr. Whitton was thanked on behalf of the club for her "humorous, historical and informative and humanitarian" address, by Mrs. J. H. Niers, former mayoress of Belleville, and also by Mrs. E. S. Fairman, president of the club.

St. Michael's Regis Club Elects Officers

The executive of St. Michael's Regis Club met recently to discuss plans for the coming season.

The first meeting of the Regis Club will be held on October 20th at the Knights of Columbus Hall, Front St. at 8.15 p.m.

The members of the executive for the coming year will be: president — Alex Allison; vice-president — Jerry Sheridan; secretary — Jeannine Obez; treasurer — Barbara Farquharson; committee — Ray O'Neill; membership committee — Gordon Kelsberg; publicity committee — Margaret Durkin.

Hastings-Pr. Edward Presbytery W.A. Meets in Bridge St. Church

On Tuesday, the executive of the Hastings , Prince Edward section of the Belleville Presbytery W.A. of the United Church held its fall meeting in Bridge Street United Church.

Mrs. R. C. Jackson, of Madoc, president, welcomed the ladies, and called on Mrs. D. Baxter of Bloomfield to conduct the devotions. The theme centred around Thanksgiving—the topic of the meditation being, "For What Are We Thankful?"

The minutes of the previous executive meeting held in March were read by Mrs. G. Roblin, and approved. Following this a roll call of the officers, and of the represented churches was taken. The various secretaries gave their reports.

Miss I. Johnson of Trenton, gave some information which would be most helpful in filling out the section on Leadership Education in the annual report blanks. She also mentioned that the Presbytery Rally at Foxboro on November 3rd would have leadership education as its theme. Mrs. C. W. Sine of Harold, gave a report on the amount of literature sold to date, and recommended several new books to the ladies.

FALL RALLIES

The dates and places of the fall rallies were announced as follows:

October 22—Centre Hastings, 1.30 p.m., at Eggleton;

October 29 — South Prince Edward, 1 p.m., Bloomfield;

October 30—Northeast Prince Edward, 10 a.m., Northport;

November 3 — West Hastings, 1 p.m., Foxboro;

November 5 — Southeast Hastings, 1.30 p.m., Front Road.

A letter was read from the Dominion Board W.A. stating a resolution adopted at the annual meeting in May, to the effect that it has undertaken to furnish the chapel, studios of the organ, in the new United Church house in Toronto. Any contributions to the fund should be in the form of cheques made payable to the Dominion Board, c/l W.A., 299 Queen Street W., Toronto, with an enclosed note explaining the purpose for which it is sent.

Mrs. Jackson reported on the semi-annual meeting of the Bay of Quinte Conference W.A. which was held in Kingston in Smiths Falls on September 29. She gave some of the highlights of the meeting, and a brief resume of the speech by Mrs. McMillan of the Dominion Board W.A. which had greatly impressed her.

At the conclusion of the meeting, the ladies surveyed the literature table and enjoyed a cup of tea and social half hour.

There would be a new moon in the sky indeed if anyone were fanciful enough to claim that housewives are scientifically inclined in our kitchens. Yet, it is a fact that our kitchens are becoming a veritable treasure house of scientific know-how. We turn a button and out pops heat. The electric current that fascinates the beat may come from hundreds of miles away or where water turns wheels on a remote river. We have come to take it all for granted, but T & T wonders how many of us ever look the story of soapless detergents and why they wash cleaner than soap.

Soap, whether it is in modern powder and liquid form or the old fashioned bar, is based today, as it has been throughout the centuries, on animal fats or vegetable oils. We have an article in UNESCO to thank for our information and authority that many housewives will be interested, we pass it along.

Soap is still used a great deal, but detergents are being used more and more all the time. We are told to remember that soap is itself a detergent. Detergence means to take away or remove dirt and that is precisely what soap does. Scientifically speaking therefore the correct name for the new articles is detergents. They should properly be called "soapless detergents." Did you know that these soapless detergents were "made by nature millions of years ago, and come from mineral oil, deep in the heart of the earth?" When petroleum is distilled the detergents (soapless detergents) are separated. During the last war and for a while afterwards, there was an acute shortage of vegetable oils and animal fats. The commercial use of detergents came into being. Before it occurred, our article explains that the great scientific advance in soap's claim for their very own is the fact "they make water wetter."

It is quite simple when you read it, but we had never stopped to analyze the simple fact that water has to wet dirt before it can remove it. T & T knows a woman who does house work for a living and we are certain that her reaction to the above assertion would be first a look implying "how can you be so stupid," and words that would say "that's logical, isn't it?"; and it certainly is. Anyway let's continue the story we are retelling, there is a heading which says "Speed of detergents — wet water" and that to the unscientific housewife surely isn't logical. Proof positive is given by using the example of oil. Oil has surface tension which acts like a toy balloon. The invisible skin refuses water or any liquid except the oil to permeate and release it. If we wanted a sharp ear a duck with a chemical detergent the sheep's skin would not be water proof and a duck would drown because its feathers would become waterlogged. In other words the detergent would make the water so wet or wetter than wet, that the oil on the fleece or feathers would be removed and the water's protective cost would be destroyed. We have all seen the action of a detergent on a greasy plate.

It appears that the uses to which detergents may be put have only been touched to date. Experiments are going on right now if detergents may be an answer to blood vessels clogging and if so, if they will prevent or lessen the grease from piles which are clogging up. Great care has to be exercised. Although not many of us need this warning, it is the warning to the housewife to use rubber gloves if she has a McLeod washing machine when using detergents.

The thought for this week-end is found in the much published statement of Lincoln's that "They said it couldn't be done." If anyone had told the Lincolns that daily help-er "soapless detergent" could make water wetter before reading the explanation in the UNESCO article — well, let's leave it at that. The next time you are washing your dishes and are tempted to think the water isn't wetter than water.

Centre Street United Church Holds Delightful Autumn Tea

Centre St. United Church, Hill-crest, was the scene of a lovely autumn tea Wednesday evening sponsored by the W.A. of the church.

The hall was attractively decorated with colorful maple leaves as was each little tea table with a golden candle in suitable holders on each.

The guests were welcomed by the president Mrs. Lula Longhurst, and convener, Mrs. Madge Vandewater.

The tea-table, with its lovely lace cloth, had as its centrepiece a beautiful bouquet of assorted baby yams flanked on both sides by double candle holders with golden candles; autumn leaves and Japanese lantern flowers making a beautiful color scheme.

Presiding at the silver services were: Mrs. W. G. Dovey; Mrs. Elizabeth Empson; Mrs. Lula Longhurst, and Mrs. Madge Vandewater.

The convener for the tea room was Mrs. Dorothy Hudgins, assisted by Mrs. Nellie Reddick. Serving were: Mrs. Beverly Shannik; Mrs. Sandra Palmer, and Misses Cynthia Pruden, Joan Murray, Jean St. Denis, Joan Reddick and Shirley Hudgins.

The menu of refreshments were: Mrs. Fanny Stapley; Mrs. John Kickold; Mrs. Pat.Richardson, and Miss Muriel Belch. Miss Laura Towner made the delicious tea.

There were many lovely and useful gifts on the fancy work, apron and children's wear table in charge of Mrs. Lula Longhurst and Mrs. Laura Markle, who were kept busy selling their wares.

BEAUTIFUL BRIDE DOLL

The beautiful bride doll in the centre of the candy and touch-and-take table, was most attractive. This table was in charge of Mrs. Walter Way and Mrs. Annie St. Denis. Their products were readily sold including the doll.

There jars of jams and jellies and the little pots of house plants were in charge of Mrs. P. O'Neil who had an excellent business.

The home baking table in charge of Mrs. Edna Ferguson and Mrs. Grace Draddy whose goodies included tarts, lemon, apple and raisin pies; buns; date squares; light and dark and chocolate cakes, and cookies, all of which found ready sale.

The treasurer was Mrs. Olive Wood. The conveners were Mrs. Madge Vandewater and Mrs. Dorothy Hudgins are to be commended for their splendid work.

Women's Activities

MARSH HILL W.M.S.

The October meeting of Marsh Hill W.M.S. was held at the home of Mrs. Frank Fiskle on Mrs. Leslie Finkle, with 12 members present.

The president, Mrs. L. Finkle, opened the meeting with a reading, "Blessing in Disguise" by Patience Strong.

The members reported sending 3 cards and one letter and sunking three house calls and one hospital call.

Invitations were read from Foxboro to attend their Thank offering meeting and their bazaar.

The autumn thank offering was received and dedicated with prayer.

A short discussion followed on "Temperance". Mrs. Searles, temperance secretary, gave a reading, "October the Month of Temperance."

Mrs. Bartindale, literature secretary, reminded the members that subscriptions for the Missionary Monthly are to be brought to the next meeting.

The sectional rally is to be held at Shannonville on October 29th.

Mrs. L. Finkle was in charge of the worship service, with Mrs. Frank Finkle reading the Scripture.

Mrs. Fred Campbell read, "Sermon of the Leaves", other readings and readings were given by Mrs. Allyn Finkle.

Mrs. Fred Campbell gave the chapter on "Alaska" from the study-book "Christian Concerns of North American Neighbors".

Refreshments were served by the hostesses.

Surviving Members of Dionne Quints Will Always Make News As Long as They Are Living

By CHRISTINE STEWART
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP)—The birth announcement read:

Born to Cecile and Philippe Langlois, a boy, seven pounds, 14 ounces. Mother and tot both doing well.

It would have been just another announcement but for the fact the mother is one of the famous Dionne quintuplets, and the first quint in the world to be a child.

MADE FRONT PAGE...

Many newspapers front - paged the birth, reporters telephoned husband Philippe for details, and topped their stories with Cecile's first words—"It's marvellous," and hunted for interesting sidelights.

As Cecile made news, so will sister Annette soon. The first of the four surviving quints to marry, Annette is the second to expect a blessed event.

One editor remarked:

"Let's face it. The quints were big news when they were born and they'll continue to make news as long as they are living."

Some girls themselves have always shied away from publicity. They have resented on more than one occasion that they want to be left alone, more so since the 1953 death of Emilie during an epileptic seizure at a rest home in a Montreal north of Montreal.

Reporters trooped in droves to the Roman Catholic retreat at Ste. Agathe, Que., and once newspapers said the death occurred under "mysterious circumstances."

RUMORS SCOTCHED

But Dr. Rosario Fontaine, a Montreal medico - legal expert, scotched the rumors by issuing a post-mortem statement saying Emilie died of suffocation in a pillow during an epileptic seizure.

It was then that Papa Oliva Dionne declared Emilie had suffered from epilepsy since childhood.

Three of the four surviving quints now are married, Cecile to Philippe, CBC television mechanician, Annette to finance company employee Germain Allard and Marie to Florian Houle, a Quebec government clerk.

When Annette married Germain in October, 1957, at Notre Dame de Salette Church in Montreal, about 70 reporters and photographers sneaked in or out of each back door. Photographers snapped pictures a few feet from the altar despite the couple's plea that they wanted no publicity.

About a month later, Cecile and Philippe were married at Corbeil, Ont., three days before parents now live and where quints' doctor lives ceased to be a local novelty. Their ceremony also was closely publicized, but the church was comparatively free of newspaper men and photographers.

Marie and Florian were married Aug. 15 in the chapel of Montreal's historic Notre Dame Church. They managed to keep their wedding a secret until about 12 hours afterwards.

THREE PHONES

Yvonne Dionne remains unmarried, and, in the opinion of brother-in-law Germain Allard, she will remain so.

"Yes," said Germain, "is not bohemo" exactly, but something like bohemian. She likes to come and go as she pleases."

Is she likely to marry soon?

"Not Yvonne!" was the quick reply.

Cecile and Yvonne graduated together at nurses last year from Notre Dame de l'Esperance Hospital in Montreal. St. Laurent, Ont., nettle was studying music and home economics in Nicolet, Que.

Marie twice entered a convent to become a nun. She left because of ill health never returned to take her final vows. In 1956 she opened a flower shop on Montreal's fashionable Pine Ave., named it Salon Emilie and painted the wall blue, the late Emilie's favorite color.

Marie closed her shop six months later. She complained over the telephone to a reporter one day that the trust company handling the quints' estate had "interfered." Other reports said the shop produced more publicity than profit.

Emilie was 20 when she died. The surviving quints, who turned 24 May 28, inherited a reputed $1,000,000 trust fund when they turned 21. It was from her share of this trust fund that Marie financed the shop she had named after the sister closest in her.

The quints were born to Oliva and Elzire Dionne May 28, 1934, in a modest farm house near Callander, Ont. The couple already were the parents of five other children, one of whom died in infancy.

E. H. Bunion, editor of the Nugget at nearby North Bay, Ont., recalled how that month a Callander garage operator, telephoned to say he was the uncle of five girls. Leon Jokingly wondered if it would cost him more for their birth announcement.

After some banter, Bunion was convinced it was no joke, rushed a reporter and bulletin to The Canadian Press, dispatched the Nugget photographer to the scene.

North Bay thrived on the thousands of tourists who paid to see the quints in their special one-way glass house.

The girls became wards of the crown on whose behalf the Ontario government engaged nurses to see to their daily care. The quints' parents were given little responsibility in their care, saw the girls only for a few minutes a day, usually when Mr. and Mrs. Dionne quietly resented.

RADIO SURPRISE

While the quints were still tots, their parents visited New York City where they made their first radio broadcast. In it, Oliva Dionne suddenly announced he had written a letter to (then) King Edward VII asking that the babies be "returned" to the care of their parents, "not for money but for my wife who is sad."

Far from being an illiterate farmer, Oliva Dionne has been described as a man with an alert mind and a vocabulary that would put many a university graduate to shame.

The girls remained close when they grew up. Bill of secrecy between the parents and children appeared to remain.

The quintuplets, sheltered for most of their lives, decided to have their own home when they were about 30, a year before they came into their inheritance, and chose Emilie died. They decided to settle in the Montreal area.

The four surviving quints did not attend the funeral of their father, with their parents, breaking an annual custom. This gave rise to speculation that all was not well between the parents and the quints.

CARD DELAYED

Papa Dionne was quoted by a reporter as saying he had received no Christmas card from the girls that year. Back in Montreal, Yvonne denied the statement, told a reporter tearfully: "We sent one. It is our fault it didn't get there."

The next day, the card, spaced and colored in the Christmas mail rush, arrived at the Dionne family home in Corbeil.

Papa Dionne a few months earlier had complained that a certain "friendly adviser" was interfering between the girls and their parents and was contemplating to speak for the girls even in family affairs.

One of the girls told a reporter over the telephone, "there is not interference. We can proceed now."

Lately, however, all seems rosy between the girls and their parents. Papa Dionne remarked after hearing of Marie's secretive marriage to the 30-year-old Florian Houle: "I have nothing to say. Florian, but if Marie picked him out by herself, we feel sure she will be happy."

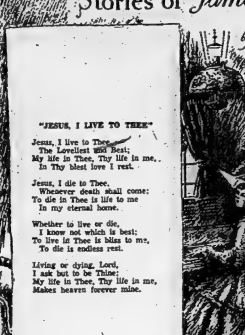
QUESTION:

Thank you for the help given in the past . . . may I ask for further help? My preserved strawberries always, almost without exception, develop mould on top within a few weeks . . . Does not seem to affect or spoil the fruit underneath or the flavor. I do not use the hot water bath method — just put the hot cooked fruit in sterilized jars (usually pints) and seal . . . Miss M. H.

ANSWER:



The method in use does work for some meticulous canners but you have to be 100% careful not to use any "contaminated" utensils. Why not make sure and give them final oven processing of 15 minutes? It is so maddening to have it happen after such effort and cost wise.

LETTER:

At last I have found a cookie recipe which is exactly suitable for a child and also guaranteed to add extra pounds to the mother. Cookies are shortening . . . It is delicious — crunchy and chewy. No more greasy crumbs on the floor as this cookie does not crumble. Dates help sweeten it and it takes only a few minutes to mix, few more to bake and I'm always delighted with its attractive appearance as it puffs and browns

Stories of Famous Hymns

By HORACE B. POWELL

Living or dying, Lord,
I ask but to be Thine;
My life in Thee, Thy life in me,
Makes heaven forever mine.

The Christian believer's close relationship with Christ is the theme of this matchless hymn of consecration.

It was written in 1850 by a German Reformed Churchman, the Rev. Henry Harbaugh, D. D., of Pennsylvania, but was not published until 11 years later. Isaac B. Woodbury, a Massachusetts musician and composer, created the hymn-tune.

Dr. Harbaugh was born in October, 1817, near Waynesboro, Pennsylvania. He worked on a farm, did some carpentry for a time, and taught school to earn funds for his education. In 1840, he enrolled at Marshall College, then located at Mercersburg, Pennsylvania. His funds gave out before he finished his studies but he became a minister and served pastorates in several Pennsylvania communities. In 1864 he was named professor of theology at Mercersburg.

Mr. Woodbury, a native of Revere, Massachusetts, spent part of his boyhood as a blacksmith's apprentice. But his love and talent for music led him to make that his life work. He learned to play the violin, spent some time in Europe in voice study, and after returning to America, he organ-toured Canada, giving a number of singing school-plarity".

In New England and directed some outstanding concerts. For a number of years he was in charge of music at the Ruleen Street Church in New York City.

"Jesus, I Live To Thee" was a favorite hymn for years at Mercersburg Academy. For a good while it was customary to sing it every Sunday, just before the sermon, by the headmaster of the school. Dr. William Mann Irvine, once wrote as follows about the singing of the hymn: "It is a hymn must not be sung too fast. In Our boys sing the third stanza softly, and pass on into the fourth stanza loudly and triumphantly".

The Council: Mark is right on at least one point. There is no easy way out of this situation. But he overlooks the fact the solution he proposes is also an easy way. Right now, he feels that it is the way that would be most painful to Louise and least painful to himself. However, time might change this. Nobody knows what the future will be and Mark will have to recognize that the child he now disowns could be a blessing to him.

We aren't suggesting that Mark should agree to a life of duty and while he is in his present frame of mind. Certainly, as long as he can say, "I don't trust myself to be a proper father," he would not be doing the child any great service by taking it into his home. We do suggest, however, that Mark explore his feelings and consider his position more deeply.

Both Louise and Mark probably need some trained, competent help in arriving at a decision. A clergyman will help them to explore some of the moral aspects of their problem and a family agency social worker will help them to understand some of the problems they will have to face — whether or not they choose to keep their solution.

It is entirely possible that, after a more thorough airing of the problem, Louise will be the one who favors adoption. In any case, this couple should avoid making a decision until they have considered every aspect of the problem and arrive at a point where each is at some measure of peace with the solution. Then, whatever the future brings, they should have no cause to blame one another or themselves.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Louise S. — I don't want to part with my baby.

Mark S. — I don't want to see it.

Louise S. — I made a terrible mistake and I want to put my life back in order as best I can.

After a marriage of two years, I fell deeply in love with another man and got involved in an affair with him. Now I am expecting a baby, and there is doubt about the parentage of the child. The man I was involved with insists that the baby couldn't have been his and washes his hands of the whole thing. My husband said he would be glad to adopt the child. He is willing to take me back and forget my past.

My husband says the child should be given out for adoption, that I don't want to part with my baby. In view of the fact that there is a good possibility that the child could be my husband's shouldn't he be more willing to at least see the child?

Mark S. — I don't care even if the baby is mine. I just don't want to see it. Maybe I'm being too hard about it, but I can't help myself. I know that every time I look at the child I'll wonder. I don't trust myself to be a proper father to the child.

I feel that Louise and I can start all over again fresh. I still love her in spite of everything and I believe she has learned her lesson and will be able to settle down and be a good wife.

I realize that it is hard for a mother to give up her child, but after all, Louise can't expect to get away with murder. She should realize she has done a terrible thing and she has to suffer for it. It isn't easy for me either and I think Louise should appreciate how decent I am being.

The Council: Mark is right on at least one point. There is no easy way out of this situation. But he overlooks the fact the solution he proposes is also an easy way. Right now, he feels that it is the way that would be most painful to Louise and least painful to himself. However, time might change this. Cottage pudding is delicious when baked in the oven. It is economical too!

DATE COOKIES:

(Contributed by Virginia R.)

Beat 1 egg with beater, add ½ cup sugar and beat again. Add ¾ cup chopped dates and ½ cup chopped walnuts. Sift together twice, ½ cup flour, ½ teaspoon baking powder, ¼ teaspoon salt and add to the date egg mixture. Grease by spoonful on greased cookie sheet, bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for approx. 7 minutes. This mixture will be doubled, brown the egg used instead of white, vanilla and cornstarch added, also cinnamon, nutmeg, grated orange or lemon rind, to make a change in flavor. These cookies will keep well for some time — if you hide them.

COMPANY CREAM PIE:

Bake a nice flaky pie shell, deep as possible. Take 1 tin of fruit cocktail and thicken it with 1 tablespoon plain gelatine.

(Note by Emmet: Virginia is talking of canned fruit and that you can beat a little of the fruit syrup to dissolve the gelatine in.) Add a few drops lemon juice. Pour into flat soup plate to set.* Make Cream Filling: Mix 2 tablespoons corn starch, ¼ teaspoon salt, ¼ cup white sugar, mixed smoothly with ½ cup cold milk. Scald in top of double boiler 1¾ cups milk. Add cornstarch mixture and cook stirring until thickened. Cover and cook for 10 minutes stirring occasionally. Beat 1 egg yolk, mix with a little hot liquid, then add to the hot mixture. Cook for only 1 minute more. To be perfect should be just thick enough not to run. Let chill thoroughly. Slice very carefully the jellied fruit over into the shell on the bottom, then spoon the chilled cream filling over the top. Decorate the top with whipped cream and sectioned maraschino cherries.

ANSWER:

Thank you Virginia. I enjoyed your letter and am sure that the readers will too.

Days and Customs of All Faiths

Putting the World in Order

By DR. HOWARD V. HARPER

Sunday, October 19 — World Order Sunday, celebrated today in thousands of Protestant churches, calls on every Christian to use whatever powers and influence he has to insure peace, human rights and fundamental freedoms for everyone on earth.

The movement is sponsored by the National Council of Churches to read from Protestant pulpits today points out that no one can be "egitimately" plain faith in G o d without being concerned for God's children. And this does not mean that some vague anonymous persons somewhere on the other side of the world; it means your neighbors and fellow townsmen.

A Christian wants every man to have the highest opportunity to know and fulfill God's will." And the first step in providing such opportunity for everyone is to see that it is provided for those within the circle where you live.

The next step is the development and support of responsible world organization "to meet the needs of the world community today."

This year World Order Sunday concentrates up on the United Nations' Universal Declaration of Human Rights, which will be ten years old on Dec. 10. The resolution adopted by the British Magna Carta, the French Declaration of the Rights of Man and The Citizen, and our own American Bill of Rights were basic documents in drawing up the U.N. Charter that is in this Universal Declaration that for the first time in history governments representing t h e greater part of the world's people have declared their faith in human rights and fundamental freedoms."

In this tenth anniversary year the National Council's Department of International Affairs will follow up World Order Sunday with a World Order Study Conference, to be held in Cleveland next year. At this conference clergymen and laymen will study to find workable Christian solutions to international problems of human rights.

Today's message states that is "the moral force of world opinion" is perhaps Christianity's greatest weapon in the war against injustice. "Methods of conflict and coercion can yield" says the message "to processes of persuasion and appeal to reason and conscience."

ABSENTMINDED SAINT

Also Sunday. Today commemorates St. Peter of Alcantara, a 16th century Spanish monk who lived in Spain when what is today would call a real character. Reading about him now it is sometimes a little hard to know which of the strange things he did came from deep piety and which came from just plain absentmindedness.

Peter ordinarily ate only once every three days — sometimes he let it go for as long as eight days. When he was in charge of the meals at the monastery t h e monks complained that for a long time he gave them no fruit. His innocent reply was that he hadn't seen any. He remembered only that he hadn't happened to look up for six months, for there was plenty of fruit on the trees.

Once he consumed a bowl of warm water in which the vegetables had been put in, perfectly satisfied that he was having all you either stood or knelt. He even liked kneeling. He never wore shoes, and no matter how hot the day or how cold he never put on or pulled his hood over his head.

Peter is the patron of night-watchmen because he had no sleep an hour and a half a night. Night-watchmen should do so well!

With all his other odd habits, Peter was a wise and holy man. He loved to preach to the poor and it is said that his very presence was a an inspiration to them whether or not he said a word. He never set out to be different; that is a recognized masterpiece of writing, translated into many languages.

Talking about the world's wickedness, St. Peter went right to the heart of the matter. "The remedy is simple" he said. "You and I must first be what we ought to be; then we shall have cured what concerns ourselves. The trouble is that we all talk of reforming others without ever reforming ourselves."

BRIDE'S HONOR ATTENDANT SIGNS THE MARRIAGE CERTIFICATE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My groom-to-be has mentioned to me that his oldest brother, who is to be his best man, will be his "official witness." I sign the marriage certificate. Should I have one of my attendants (my only sister is to be my maid of honor, and I'm also to have four brides-maids) as my "official witness," to sign the certificate?

— Theodora M.

Yes . . . your sister, as honor attendant, would be your "official witness," would sign the marriage certificate.

THE GOLDEN YEARS

Where You'll Find Your Paradise All a Matter of Personal Taste

By THOMAS COLLINS —

Wilbur R. Cogswell is about to retire. He is employed by an investment firm, has a couple of dollars ,and is one o fthose adventur ssuie who wants to stop the milk and move to paradise.

He wants to know which paradise to pick. "And I would appreciate no foolishness," he says, "and no outpouring of local pride. Specifically, I would like to know whether Arizona, California, or Florida — which seem to be the accepted locales for reifrement — is most likely to satisfy t h e needs of a reasonably successful retired businessman.

"And please don't tell me to go raise chickens in Arkansas. . . ."

This Golden Years column is printed in the leading newspapers in Arizona, California, and Florida. Reading these words, right now, are — as a guess — at least 1,000 retired persons in each of the states who would happily 'tell Mr. Cogswell that their particular states are the newer for retirement.

They would be sincere. What they said would be honest. Because for them, their particular spot has proved to be the answer. And in extensive travels through all three states I see no reason to argue with them. If you don't have to work anymore, Arizona, California, and Florida all a r e pretty nice places not to have to work anymore.

So it's a personal matter with you — and Mr. Cogswell. It's what you like.

OFFERS PROOF

This week, from a fine gentleman named Lowell Swarts, came proof of this.

Mr. Crum says his city is a fine retirement town, and he has evidence to support the claim. But it is a place you may never have heard of. It's Douglas, Ariz., a city that's knee-deep in the dust of the 49th West and in slingshot distance of the Mexican border.

"Retired persons are living comfortably and happily in Douglas, and nearby Nogales, on incomes of $255 per month or less," he says.

Then he cffers some figures on climate. On a 10-year average only 16 days have been hotter than 100° degrees. The average minimum temperature over 10 years has been 46 degrees. T h e average maximum has been 79. The number of sunshine days has averaged 325.

The sunshine, he says, is 95 per cent more than you'd get in Tacoma, Seattle, Ithaca, or Erie; 70 per cent more than Portland, Scranton, Cleveland, or Pittsburgh; 62 per cent more than Buffalo, Toledo, or Detroit.

Housing says Mr. Crum, stacks up like this: Douglas has a city-owned court composed of 100 two and three-bedroom apartments, and rents range from $38.50 to $56.50 a month, plus an additional charge for furniture rental. A new privately-owned apartment house, which might be more to your liking, has rents from 985 to $95 a month, unfurnished.

Mr. Crum says new subdivision homes in Douglas range from $7,350 to $11,750.

If you want any more information write to Carlton B. Crum, Douglas, Ariz. He's a prominent citizen in that city. He'll get the letter.

So that's how it is, Mr. Cogswell. Douglas and a thousand other places could make you happy, as they've made others. The answer to your problem lies in what you like.

The rest of your life in on the line. And you have a few dollars. If I were you I would look Florida over, carefully, then drive slowly across the Deep South, up the Rio Grande Valley, through Arizona with a hard look at Phoenix and Tucson, then the length of California. Be it'll cost you money! It can be the wisest investment of your life because in some spot along the way you're going to find a spot you like and invest your body and soul in it.

And I wouldn't be too worried about local pride. Retirement parishes don't went soreheads.

BOAC Planes Still Grounded

LONDON (AP)—Aircraft maintenance engineers whose strike has grounded all planes of British Overseas Airways Corporation said today there is little hope of an early return to work.

Leaders of the 4,000 engineers left the ministry of labor after 18 hours of negotiations broke down. The collapse, union leaders said, was caused by BOAC's refusal of demands to make any pay increases retroactive.

The strike began Monday. It threatens to put Britain's comet jet airliner behind in the race with Pan America's Boeing 707 to begin daily commercial services between London and New York.

Quinte Secondary Graduates Advised to Strive Not for Wealth But for Maturity

Last evening, Professor H. C. Dilts, Dean of the Ontario College of Education, Toronto, was the guest and main speaker at the graduation exercises held by the students and staff of Quinte Secondary school. Speaking to an assemblage of about six hundred persons, Prof. Dilts lent a note of serious thought to the light-hearted atmosphere inspired by the gaily decorated gymnatorium and by groups of young people receiving their scholastic awards.

Starting his address with the advice that those seeking careers should not overlook school teaching as a profession and that those attending university should set their aims high and take as honors course for four years rather than obtaining a regular degree in two years, Prof. Dilts implored those present to "follow the gleam of your own youthful idealism and never lose sight of it" and to forget about the "trivia of fame and fortune," the material wealth which do not represent the true character of an individual. Quoting a passage from Thoreau's Walden, "I have a great deal of company in my house, especially in the morning, when no body calls," Prof. Dilts asked those present if it were best to have material advantages or to have an insight into life which allows a person to live with himself. Insight, taste and judgment are the three most important factors in the creation of a life — the maturing of an individual's personality and all of these, stated the speaker, are creations of the mind.

MATURITY VITAL

It is the maturing of one's character which is most important to the individual; the ability to decide what is essential and what is irrelevant; the readiness to cope with difficulties; the recognition that personal resourcefulness is not enough, that one has to seek encouragement, help or guidance from others in his society; the recognition of the individual's and the readiness to take risks and make mistakes; the refusal to be regimented; the capacity to be inspired by things in life; all of which hinge on the individual's insight, taste, and judgment and all of which are a part of that overall quality which one may call greatness. From this description of the goals which a person may strive for, Prof. Dilts asked the graduating students to look to the language for the mysteries of life; to read imaginative literature, the "product of the most sensitive mind," which would provide experience and meaning to the receptive individual. Prof. Dilts pointed to Christ as having the model character, the chief characteristics of which were: to point beyond oneself; to know that truth can not always be explained or understood but that it can always be lived; to wonder at growth rather than to try and find out how growth occurs; let one's mind grow to expand to appreciate more and better things; to have such a personality that grows coming in touch with one grows more mature.

GIVES VALEDICTORY

The other speaker for the evening was Gary Chambers, the valedictorian of 1958's graduating class. He spoke about the privileges which his class had enjoyed in creating some of Quinte Secondary School's history and traditions. Thanks were given to the teachers for their guidance, and encouragement during the class's transition from freshmen to graduates as well for leading the students how to think.

Mr. Chambers urged following classes to live up to the school's motto — "Discendo omnibus crescemus" — to learn and to grow in all ways.

The program under the chairmanship of the principal, Mr. L. F. Reid, opened with a musical selection by the school band., resplendent in new blue uniforms, followed by the Rev. Robert F. Darke giving the invocation. In the chairman's remarks, principal Reid paid tribute to his assistant, Mr. W. J. Musgrove, who will be leaving Quinte school after this school year to become principal of the new composite high school in East Bellville. J. A. Trudeau, chairman of the Bay of Quinte District High School Board, expressed the greetings from the board and mentioned that this year's budget amounted to almost $800,000.

Various members of the staff of Quinte school presented the Intermediate Certificates, Graduation Diplomas, and School Diplomas. The school band played several selections under direction of Mr. R. J. Shroder during the program and at the finish. The speaker was introduced by Mr. C. W. Sloan and thanked by Mr. J. A. Connerty, both members of the staff and both former students of Quinte C.I. A choral selection was presented by several members of the student body under the direction of Miss C. I. McEwen. A presentation of prizes and awards completed the graduation exercises, which were followed by the singing of God Save the Queen.

AWAY THEY GO!

Trenton's new intermediate "A" hockey team is gradually rounding into shape preparatory to the up-coming thirty-game schedule, says temporary manager Len Gaudette, who is assisting at the coaching-mentoring with his official capacity as Community Gardens manager.

"We hope to have a good club," Len told this reporter the other night, "and we hope to use some Belleville intermediate talent. Some of the boys from your city are trying out now, but there is room for more and we welcome any in the Belleville district to work out with the club."

The Trenton team, which is angling for the services of former senior "B" star of Belleville and Peterborough, Jake Wade, as coach, will work out Sunday afternoon and every night next week. Starting Monday the practice grinds get under way at 7.30 and alternate nightly between that start-time and 6.30.

The schedule gets under way early in November with Trenton paying off the lid as the guests of last year's intermediate "A" champions in Napanee. The Trenton opener is slated for November 3. Other teams in the six-team circuit include Bancroft-Cancoa Combines, Cobourg-Port Hope Combines, Kingston and Minden.

"We hope to have a club which will compare with the other teams in the league," said Gaudette. "With a good entry representing Trenton, and other towns living up to advance notices, fans of the town and district should be in for some excellent puck fare this winter."

The new intermediate "A" league marks another milestone in the advancement of organized hockey under the aegis of the OHA in this part of Ontario.

If other plans of the parent body materialize, leagues in intermediate "C" and junior "B" will be in operation before the shops announce the January sales.

Arrangements for the organization of an intermediate "C" loop embracing squads from Marmora, Madoc, Campbellford, Bancroft and possibly one or more outlying centres are already under way. A preliminary meeting has been held, and it is expected organization of this aftermath of the old Trent Valley Hockey League will take place in the not too distant future.

While the outcome of the meeting of the Belleville junior "C" club officials held last night is not known at this writing, word from OHA officials believe that a loop of this category in this district is not beyond the realm of possibility.

Kingston and Trenton are sure of an entry with Gananoque practically a certainty. Picton, which relinquished plans to enter the intermediate "A" league due to player problems, has announced it favors a junior "B" entry, with topflight juvenile players as a nucleus. Napanee is another possibility.

It will not be too long before Doug Patterson, Ontario Minor Hockey Association executive member, swings into organizational action over a widely-spread Eastern Ontario front. Working with Bruce Hyde will be executives of senior leagues centred in the larger centres and individuals of smaller towns and villages. Last season the Belleville Minor Hockey Association had nearly 1,200 of the age limit bracket playing, and the prospects under its care. There will be as many if not more this season. Trenton is already organizing an auspicious minor hockey program.

Development of intermediate "A" hockey in this immediate district is a step in the right direction, and OHA prexy Lorne Cook and his district conveners should take a bow. Teams such as Kingston and Napanee proved a little too stout in stature for those of intermediate "A" calibre, and the passing of the Lakeshore Intermediate "A" loop, and the subsequent merging with eastern clubs should work out well in both areas.

It should prove something of a boon to junior players who inevitably reach the age limit and therefore have faced the sudden end to hockey careers. It appears there is no place in centres which boast senior "A" clubs for over-age juniors who cannot make the grade with senior "A" clubs. District intermediate "A" and "C" clubs may provide some of the answers providing OHA regulations are adhered to.

A number of city players who could not make senior grades have already distinguished themselves on district, lower bracket clubs. An intermediate "A" entry from this city would not be amiss in the next year or so.

Chuvalo Looked Like Boy Asked To Do Man's Job

Badly Beaten in Blood Bout Finds Potent Hook, Courage Won't Equal Cagy Experience

By KEN SMITH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK (CP) — Canadian heavyweight champion George Chuvalo found out the hard way Friday night that courage and a powerful left hook aren't enough in the fight game.

Chuvalo showed plenty of courage as he peered through a target of blood trying to find a target for his hook, but McMurtry showed all the caginess as he rounded Chuvalo's face almost at will with a hard jab and ripping right uppercut.

McMurtry, although outweighed 185¾ to 207½ and a 9-to-5 underdog, had the televised fight in complete control except for a minute in the second round when Chuvalo unloaded one of his lefts high on the westerner's head.

JAB IS DIFFICULT

But McMurtry jabbed Chuvalo off balance as the husky Canadian tried, with a knockout punch, and then turned the jab into a deadly offensive weapon that brought a big stain of blood from Chuvalo's nose by the end of the rounds.

The winner said after the fight that Chuvalo came up too fast."

It was the first Madison Square Garden appearance for both fighters, but McMurtry had 33 professional and 160 amateur bouts behind him, compared with 15 pro and 18 amateur fights for Chuvalo.

The win lifted McMurtry's record to 20-5-1 and left Chuvalo at 11-3-1.

Chuvalo was a bloody bulk from the fourth round on. Mc-Murtry's jab was jarring him, brought a steady stream from Chuvalo's nose and opened cuts by both Chuvalo's eyes.

The Canadian was smeared over the shoulders and chest from his own blood and his white trunks were stained red. Mc-Murtry was unmarked.

BLAMES NOSE

Chuvalo said in his dressing room after the fight it was his bleeding nose that beat him.

"My nose started to bleed in the first round, and from the second on I couldn't breathe through it," he said. "After about the fourth, I guess, I was swallowing my own blood and I couldn't breathe through my mouth."

The battered nose still was dripping steadily 30 minutes after the fight, and bits of gore were puffed.

The fighter also said that he hurt his right hand in the second round when he hit McMurtry high on the head while trying for a knockout.

The ring doctor ordered him to get it x-rayed, but Chuvalo said it was only bruised.

"It wasn't my hand that troubled me," he protested. "I just couldn't get a breath through that blood."

THE SCORING

Referee Ruby Goldstein scored the fight 5-4-1 for McMurtry. Judge Artie Aldala gave Mc-Murtry seven rounds and Chuvalo three, and Judge Al Forbes saw it 5-4-1.

For the first six rounds Chuvalo forced the fight, throwing his left while McMurtry met him with stiff jabs and uppercuts when Chuvalo got in close.

The Canadian tried to change his tactics after the seventh bell-pedalling and trying to catch McMurtry on the way in. But the American picked his own openings, shooting the jab into Chuvalo's face.

Chuvalo came out swinging wildly in the ninth, trying to land a knockout punch, but ran out of steam after McMurtry either slipped or blocked most of the blows.

Important Tilts For Top Teams

NEW YORK (AP) — Army, Oklahoma, Auburn, Wisconin and Maine top a full slate of intersectional games in the weekly Associated Press poll, entertained Virginia and, of course, Navy in the nation's capital to keep its lofty status. The cadets, with their lonely end offence, appear to be in no trouble, for Virginia has lost three of its four games and its top passer, Reece Whitley, is out with an injured knee.

Oklahoma, deflated by Texas last week, goes against Kansas in its first Big Eight game of the season. The Sooners haven't lost a Big Eight game since Kansas turned the trick, 16-13, in 1946.

Auburn, last year's national champion and currently No. 2 behind Army, plays Georgia Tech, which has had its own problem. The Bulldogs are made of the same stuff as Auburn—a defence, not much offence. Auburn, with a winning streak of 17 games, has the personnel to enough offence to get by.

Wisconsin, which hasn't claimed undisputed possession of the big 10 title since 1912, is believed to think it's in terrific championships and Rose bowls. The opposition is Iowa, a tough one.

Maine's Black Bears can be the first team of the season to clinch a conference triumph in a row and they get by Connecticut. That would give them five Yankee Conference triumphs in a row and the title. But Connecticut is the favorite.

In the only important game Friday night, Richmond defeated George Washington, 26-6.

Marlies Eke Three-All Tie With Guelph

GUELPH (CP) — Guelph Biltmores blew a 3-1 second-period lead Friday night as Toronto Marlboros gained a 3-3 tie in the second game in the Ontario Hockey Association junior A schedule.

Biltmores and Marlboros alternated power plays all night as the teams piled up 24 penalties, 13 to Guelph.

The 13th was the unlucky one. At Lebrun was serving Jack Aldis' penalty as Garry Begg scored the tying goal with a-minute and 36 seconds left in the game.

Biltmores had a 3-1 lead with less than a minute left in the third period when Jack Martin scored Dukes' second goal to put them in front. Goldsworth and Jack Aldis had their first.

He Probably Said It For the Kicks

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Mikhail A. Menshikov, Russian ambassador to the United States, had some kind words for the Milwaukee Braves Friday.

"I've heard a lot about the Braves," Menshikov said with a smile as he arrived for a speech. "It is a famous football team."

Someone suggested that the game was baseball.

Menshikov amended his compliment.

Wes rn Teams Win Fund Grid Tourney

TORONTO (CP) — Western Ontario teams won a narrow 4-3 victory Friday night in the 10th annual United Fund football tournament at Varsity Stadium.

The triple bill saw six-of Ontario's top high school teams split into eastern and western divisions—in fast, hard action before more than 22,000 fans.

Ottawa's Glebe Collegiate defeated Sarnia Central Collegiate 18-13 in the opener and Sault Ste. Marie Widcatsa took Smiffiest Township 15-1 in the second to give the east a combined 32-14 lead. But the west smashed back with a rampup event with Toronto's Royal York Collegiate rolling over Toronto Central Tech 30-7.

POWER VS PASSING

Glebe Collegiate threw a smashing ground attack against Sarnia's pin-point passing. Glebe struck early when Jim Sarnia 11-yard line where halfback Brian Bell O'Connor drove for the touchdown. His convert attempt missed.

Ottawa quarterback Rodney Blair completed four passes for 91 yards and climaxed the drive by flipping to Save Fleet to tie the score. The convert missed.

A few minutes later on the Ottawa 24 Blair fired to halfback Fleet for the second touchdown. The convert was made by David Gray.

Ottawa's Riley Hern took the ball around the end for a touchdown and O'Connor scored the convert to end the game.

A Sarnia fumble gave Ottawa the ball on the Sarnia 30 and halfback Bill Hendy passed to O'Connor in the end zone to complete the scoring. 19-13.

SOO POTENT

Soo Wildcats overpowered Sault Ste. Marie both on the ground and in the air with fullbacks Reno Barban and Doug Bradford combining for three touchdowns and Barban kicking the convert was made by David Gray.

Barban scored a touchdown on a one-yard plunge and Bradford went over from the three. Ken Hawkins converted.

Dick Shannick and Warren Swackhammer scored for Sault Ste. Marie's club's single point came when Shannick tackled Harvey in the Soo end zone for a single. A late Saltfleet drive led by Swackhammer was halted as time ran out.

Royal York quarterback Fred Wilkinson mixed a colorful ground attack with some accurate passing to keep the Central Tech team off balance. Fullback Ben Hutzel romped for three touchdowns.

Braves Veto Conley's Plans For Basketball

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Pitcher Gene Conley's plans to play professional basketball during the off season were jolted Friday by general manager John Quinn of the Milwaukee Braves who said the club would not permit it.

"He hasn't asked permission," Quinn said, "and I would not give him permission if he asked."

Conley left Milwaukee Monday to try out with the Boston Celtics of the National Basketball Association. Quinn said this was contrary to the Braves' wishes, and in violation of the standard player contract.

Providence Bows To Rochester, Barons Win

By the Associated Press

Cleveland Barons, who finished second in the American Hockey League last year, finally have found a winning combination this season.

After losing one and tying another, the Barons came through with a 6-4 decision over Spring-field Indians Friday night. In the league's other game Rochester moved into second place by downing Providence 3-1.

Bill Hicke and Gordon Velpiava paced the Barons. Each scored two goals and assisted on two others. Bob Bailey and Art Stratton had one goal each.

The Indians, who rallied for three goals in the final period, got goalies from Ken Schinkel, Harry Pidhirny, Duke Edmundson and Dale Anderson.

McNAMARA STARS

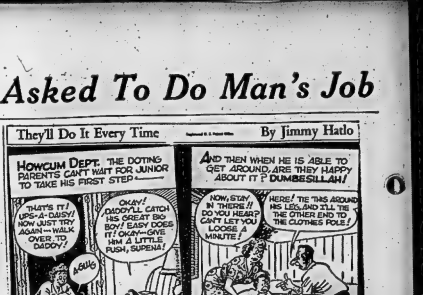
A big factor in the Barons' triumph was Gerry McNamara, last acquired from Toronto Maple Leafs of the NHL.

Murray Balfour was the big gun in Rochester's victory. He tallied two goals while Amaro defenceman Claude Labrosse came through with his fourth goal in four games.

The Providence scorer was Camille Bedard.

Gerry McNeil, Rochester goalie made 32 stops; Harry Lumley made 36 for Providence.

Wolves Whip Hull-Ottawa 5-2



SUDBURY (CP) — Sudbury Wolves scored three goals in the first period and held on to defeat Hull-Ottawa Canadiens 5-2 Friday night in an exhibition hockey game.

Five players shared the scoring for the Northern Ontario Hockey Association's senior A Wolves. They were Nick Tomlnik, Joe Malio, Mickey Redmond, Ralph Lamont and Hank Therrien. Bob Bucher scored both goals for the Canadiens in eastern division visitors.

Ottawa plays tonight in North Bay against the Trappers.

GOALIE TO WINDSOR

SUDBURY (CP)—Sudbury Wolves announced Friday they had sent goalie Ken Mather to Windsor Bulldogs. Mather is a rookie from Winnipeg Monarchs.

No Boston Tears for Leafs Says Hardhearted Bruin Boss

By Ben Ward
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Boston Bruins breezed into Toronto today prepared not to shed a single tear over the plight of Toronto Maple Leafs in the National Hockey League.

Leafs, beaten in their first three games and last in the league, meet the Bruins, third with a win and a tie, tonight at Maple Leaf Gardens.

Lynn Patrick, Boston general manager, explains the Bruins' lack of heart:

"Leafs were crying at this time last year when we came here after winning our first four games. It was heart-breaking. They had just lost in Montreal 9-3 and we felt sorry for them.

"So what happens? They beat us 7-0, that's all. I don't have any more tears left for them."

AFTERNOON GAME

The NHL's busy weekend schedule opens this afternoon in Chicago where the Black Hawks play host to Detroit Red Wings. Hawks, unbeaten in four starts, walloped Wings 7-2 on Detroit ice Thursday night.

At Montreal tonight the New York Rangers take on Canadiens and Sunday night will see Canadiens at New York, Rangers at Detroit and Boston at Chicago.

Patrick has plenty of reason to fear a mauling from Leafs tonight. The Toronto club was a powerhouse in Maple Leaf Gardens where they came within three minutes of at least tying the defending Stanley Cup champions.

A point of interest will be the performance of Bruins' Real Chevrefils and Leafs' Allan Stanley, a pair of defencemen who were traded by Leafs to Boston and Dollard St. Laurent and forwards Tod Sloan and Danny Lewicki.

Montreal plans to shake up its forward lines tonight in an effort to get the four-line formula which helped Canadiens win last season.

Ranger coach Phil Watson says he's going with the plan again tonight, using Red Sullivan between Andy Bathgate and Dean Prentice to try and throttle the high-scoring Canadien trio of Dickie Moore, Maurice Richard and Henri Richard.

Macs Lacked-Allan Cup Form In Shading Windsor Dogs 2-1 For 5th Exhibition Victory

The McFarlands won their fifth exhibition game in a row here last night, but they were far from impressive in the doing.

They eked out a 2-1 decision over the Windsor Bulldogs of the OHA-SONA League in a display that was lacking their usual scoring and passing finesse.

They battled for 33 minutes before they could find a chink in the Windsor armor with Davy Jones doing the trick. Floyd Crawford made it a double a minute later. The Bulldogs' Bob Brown whittled the margin to a goal seconds before the period ended to complete the scoring.

Johnny McLellan, Flori Goegan, Frank Bashignani and Paul Payette drew assists, with Joe Klukay helping with the Bulldog tally.

Referee Vern Cooper assessed eight penalties, two to the Macs. Joe Klukay of the Dogs drew a misconduct in the third. Andy Milne, former McFarland drew two of the minors one for unintentionally delaying the game.

The Macs were short their rangy defenseman Al Dewsbury who was barred from playing by an edict of the Ontario Hockey Council Lou Smrke, who was in Quebec helping bring his family to Belleville.

The Dogs used youthful Bob Olevich, an unified Western Canada junior in the nets and the youngster came up with a fine exhibition.

Both Brown of Windsor and Flori Goegan of the Macs were sent to the dressing room for medical repairs incurred accidentally.

In the five opportunities they had to use their power play the Macs did not flash their net-front facility. A stubborn Dog defence added to their woes. Their passing and shooting were not up to par and they kicked the team finish of other exhibition tilts.

The first period was scoreless and the scrappy referee failed to produce any thrills for the Belleville spectators.

Goegan sent Johnny McClellan and Davy Jones away midway through the second period and McLellan and slipped a perfect pass to Jones who found the corner with a low shot.

Less than two minutes later Bashignani shot Payette's pass to Bulldog territory with Crawford trailing. Payette slithered the puck to Crawford near the crease corner and his backhand drive put the Macs two up.

Andy Milne went in alone on Bell but was beaten at the nooretyep. With the clock ticking off the seconds the Bulldogs powered a drive with Brown through the entire Bulldog team to see his corner drive richochet off a pipe.

The Macs shoved the puck in the net in a goalmouth scramble while Klukay's drive a minute later was serving a minor sentence, but the tally was disallowed.

Andy Milne drew his second misconduct of the game and the Macs again applied the powers but the fates, the Bulldogs, and Olevich were against them.

The left for Clinton, N.Y. at one o'clock today where the Macs play the American squad tonight. The return game is scheduled for Tuesday.

Roger Pearce, 56½ Alexander St., Belleville, won the draw for the Scooter Club's two season tickets.

Line-ups:

New Card Trick For Giants Says Pop Ivy

NEW YORK (CP) — Frank (Pop) Ivy, whose thundering fullbacks ran over all opposition for years when he coached Edmonton Eskimos of the Western International Football Union, is cooking up something new.

His Chicago Cardinals are seven-point "underdogs" in their National Football League tilt with the New York Giants Sunday and Pop has worked up a new formation to bolster his sagging fortunes.

In Edmonton, Pop employed the line-busting twin-fullback formation of Normie Kwong and Johnny Bright in a campaign which led to three straight Grey Cups—1954, 1955 and 1956.

Sunday he is expected to give his new "lonesome fullback" formation a real workout. He tried it out last week and made things hot for Cleveland Browns.

In this latest card trick, rookie quarterback Jim C. Reynolds lines up directly under centre, both ends split about eight yards, two backfield men split one way and the fullback the other.

A move say, he might be "loosesome quarterback."

OTHER GAMES

In other NFL action, Bobby Layne will be at the controls when Pittsburgh Steelers meet Cleveland the the western division battle. Baltimore Colts will take on Detroit Lions; Los Angeles Rams tackle Chicago Bears and San Francisco 49ers are visiting Philadelphia Eagles. Green Bay Packers go after Washington Redskins.

Two old adversaries hook up at Philadelphia where Norm Van Brocklin, longtime Rams' passer now runs the Eagles' quarterback, tests the 49ers, coached by Frankie Albert, a quarterback contemporary of Van Brocklin's.

The Eagles are rated two points the favorite.

The Redskins get the nod by six over the Colts who has shown little, aside from the passing of Bart Starr, to match the Redskins' array of Eddie Le Baron, Jim Podoley, Ed Sutton and Don Bosseler.

Chatham Hands Whitby Dunlops Third Defeat

CHATHAM (CP)—Winger John Bailey fired two goals Friday night to lead Chatham Maroons to a 3-1 senior hockey win over the world champion Whitby Dunlops.

It was the second straight exhibition win for Maroons, last-place finishers in the Ontario Hockey Association-Northern Ontario Hockey Association senior B league last season.

For Whitby it's the eastern OHA it was the third loss in six exhibitions.

Bailey scored in the first period and Whitby's Pete Babando tied the score midway through the second. Bailey's winner came when Whitby's Al Treen was sitting out a hockey penalty.

On the Tracks

TORONTO (CP)—A crowd of 5,630 saw Jet Marine, owned by the Taronto partnership of Larkin Maloney and Conny Smythe take Woodbine Handicap.

Al Coy rode Jet Marine to her third win of the season and paid $6.80, $4.80, $2.30 payoff.

A crowd of nearly 20,000 is forecast for the $28,325 Coronation Stakes and the $7,500 Challenge Stakes today. The Coronation is Canada's richest event for two-year-olds. The Challenge, at 6½ furlongs, will have two outstanding United States horses — Arcandy and Flight History—competing against Nearctic, the Canadian sprint champ.

NEW YORK (AP) — Eleven were entered for the $75,000-added Jockey Club Gold Cup today at Belmont Park with Mrs. Adele L. Rand's Clem the probable favorite.

The winner of the two-mile race will net $54,367.50 from a gross purse of $84,950.

Clem will be ridden by Willie Shoemaker, who won the Gold Cup last year with Gallant Man.

Two 3 - year - olds, Mabel C. Scholle's Warbeau and George Lewis' Maritime Ruliah, appear to be Clem's chief rivals.

Preparation for Wing Shooting

Each year when we go afield, we see it happening — gunners in missing game which should be knocked down by anyone who is used to handling a fine gun. It makes a man wonder why the average gunner is so reluctant to do a bit of practising before the legal hunting season arrives.

Learning to shoot a shotgun at least reasonably well is not difficult. The first requirement, of course, is to shoot a gun that fits you. There have been volumes written about shotgun fit, and the more you read, the more complicated the problem becomes. Actually, the thing is quite simple.

There are four critical measurements in the stock of a shotgun — drop at heel, drop at comb, thickness at comb and length of stock. If any of these measurements are not in conformance with the way in which you happen to be put together, then you should do something about it.

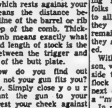
First, let's find out just what these measurements are. Drop at heel is the distance, in inches between the line of the barrel and the top of the butt plate. Drop at comb the part of the stock which rests against your cheek is the distance between the line of the barrel or rib and the top surface. Thickness at comb means exactly what it says. And length of stock is the distance between the trigger and the center of the butt plate.

Now, how do you find out whether or not your gun fits you? That's easy. Simply close y o u r eyes and mount the gun to your shoulder, rest your cheek against the comb and bring the muzzle up to then open your eyes. If the line of sight from your right eye goes to the top of the rib and the sight picture is perfect, then the gun fits you. If the line of sight from your right eye goes to the left or right of the rib, then you are all right on drop at heel and cast-off. If the line of sight centers along the rib, you are O. K. for thickness at comb. If there is a gap between your cheek and the top of your right hand, or if you can't get the grip, your stock length is all right.

If any of these measurements are off-line, don't despair; most of them can be easily fixed. You can drop at heel is the serious one; if you have a pump gun or a double gunsmith and get him to alter the pitch until the fit is comfortable. You will know when it is.

If the comb i sto high, y o u r head will rest on it a little uncomfortably and you will find that the stock is too long or too short, a little sandpaper will soon have removed from under the b u t t plate will take care of things. If the comb is too low, it is uncomfortable when you mount it to your shoulder. You will quickly learn to point it. That's right — you don't point the gun, you point it, just like you point your finger. If it fits, when you put the gun to your shoulder as a bird a p p e a r s and you press the trigger, it is your bird, not the muzzle of the gun, that is on course, at a skeet field. There you will accustom ...yourself to pointing the gun, swinging with the bird, and almost automatically taking the right amount of lead. There are always plenty of gunners at a skeet field who are glad to help a fellow with his shooting.

Make sure, skeet shooting is not cheap, but you will need only a few boxes of shells to learn what you need to know. Take our advice and see if there hints don't make a big difference in your game bag this fall.



Wildlife biologists a r e learning a great deal about the rehabilitation of fishless lakes. Time was when the fish that was overgrown with weeds, or which had been taken over by trash fish was given up as a bad job and allowed to remain useless. Not so today. Now the matter of making a good fishing lake out of a bad one is comparatively simple.

Weed seeds can be disposed of without damage to the fish or the bottom life. Useless fish can be poisoned, the whole lake rendered temporarily sterile, only to have the lake furnish excellent fishing a few years later.

In Wisconsin there is a s i l l e r call. The little Green Lake. The fish life therein was useless insofar as game fish were concerned, so the Conservation Commission decided to take steps. First, they poisoned the lake, removed the dead fish, and allowed the water to purify itself. Then they stocked the lake with bass.

Two years later the lake was fished experimentally by some men with spinning rigs. They took an average of a bass in every five casts. Of course, the bass were small, 8 to 10 inches, but it shows what can be done. In another two years, that lake should be a bass-trout excellent fishing for large bass.

ASK FARMER'S PERMISSION

Farmer's, as a group, are long-suffering people. When the shooting season comes around these folks are subjected, all too often, to all manner of indignities. How would you, my self-styled, still remain the good-natured people they are is a mystery not easily explained.

With the advent of the dove season, we start scouting the countryside to locate the flocks. Once a flock is found, we come down the next chore which in our book is the hardest. We ask the farmer.

In most sections of the country, dove like to frequent the cornfields. In the Middle-West, corn is still given on September 1st, and by that time it is certain that a farmer does not relish the idea of a bunch of crazy doe hunters tramping through a field of green corn.

We extend to these farmers that we are responsible, respectable people, residents of the neighborhood. We assure them that we will walk between the corn rows and not in them. We tell them in eight years of such explanations, we have not once, except once, refused.

Trouble is, all too many hunters seem to forget that all farm land and most woodland is owned by somebody, and that no land is open to hunting on the without permission of the owner or somebody in charge of property. The mere fact that the land is not posted constitutes no excuse. If you don't have the permission of the owner, you are, technically, a trespasser.

So this season, make it a point to call at the farm-house before you hunt. Tell them who you are, give your name, and ask permission to hunt. Then be prepared to be red signs or no, that permission will be granted.

If it is, and you are on that land, treat it as you would your own. That is all, you are a guest of the owner; behave like one. Be careful of his fences and his livestock and his crops. If you have good luck, stop by the farmhouse and leave a couple of birds or a rabbit or two.

And remember always that it is the careless hunter who causes so much trouble a n d many things so much worse. The majority of the more courteous gunners who respect the farmer's rights.

Vic Morrow, 26-year-old native of Toronto, is a familiar sight to stock car racing fans in Britain. One of the pioneers of the sport in Britain, he has about 100 wins in heats and finals to his credit. Stock Car, Harness Racing First Loves of Vic Morrow

LONDON (CP)—Vic Morrow's life revolves around two central points: stock car racing and harness racing.

The 26-year-old Torontonian is well-known to followers of stock car racing in Britain. His motivation behind stock car he is a favorite with drivers and his clean, skilful brand of racing.

One of the few pioneers of British stock car racing, Morrow is the sport. Morrow has been a consistently - placed driver through the years without ever being spectacular or hitting the big time. Since the sport was organized in 1954, he has won about 100 heats and finals.

He covers his racing expenses about £15 a week—but bemoans the reduced prize money in the sport today. In 1954, when he made £700 profit, best winners took up to £40 and grand final winners around £150. Today it's £10 for heat winners and £30 to £40 for final winners.

HAMPERED BY INJURY

This year the crowds have not seen a great deal of him. An early-season leg injury and business pressure kept him out for a while and he has not been able to regain his form of last season when he turned in some of his best displays. In this year's British championships at West Ham a burst tire ended hopes of a place in the grand final.

Half Irish by birth—his mother comes from Ireland—he has a strong love of horses. Before crossing the Atlantic he drove at the old Greenwood track in Toronto and he participates "as some horse breeding and operates a car - dealing business from Ilford, just outside London, where he lives.

Morrow left Toronto, where he was born, eight years ago for a holiday in Ireland. He made a visit to England and has remained there ever since.

The slim Canadian, who speaks with a soft Irish accent, says he likes it in Britain but hopes to return to Canada in two years to rejoin his family and friends. His mother, now in England, is returning soon to her Toronto home.

Finn Strains Russian Hold On Pentathlon

ALDERSHOT, England (AP)—Kurt Lindeman, weary - haired Finn with a determined stride, thrust himself over two and a half miles of hills Friday to crack R u s s i a ' s stranglehold on the world pentathlon championship.

The five-day tournament of five events—riding, fencing, shooting, swimming and running ended otherwise with overwhelming victory for the Russian team. Hungary was second, Finland was third and the United States fourth.

Russia's defending champion, Igor Novikov, was the individual crown with a world record of 4,764 points. Russians also placed third and fourth.

Lindeman, 26-year-old infantry lieutenant, spreadeagled the field in the 4,000-metre cross-country run which concluded the championship. He was clocked in 14:34.6.

Vitory moved him from fourth 13,310.

FIRST SUSPENSION

SUDBURY (CP)—Sudbury District Football Association's disciplinary board Friday suspended soccer player Ron Martin for life for his part in a brawl that spread to the stands. The 25-year-old Italia Flyers player was also fined a token $1. Tarin Sudbury Olympia in the season's opening game. Four others were also pouring onto the field. Sudbury police broke it up. Wonder not yet to appear before the board.

In second place in the over - all standings:

Novikov shattered the previous best pentathlon' mark of 4,833 points set by Lars Hall of Sweden two years ago. Hall won the world championship four times. Novikov now has won twice.

The best placed American was Cpl. Dick Stolz, former railroad fireman from Minneapolis, who finished eighth with 4,188 points.

Thirty nine athletes competed from 14 nations.

Final team order gave Russia 14,146 points, Hungary 13,022, Finland 12,426, and the United States 12,310.

by JOHN WETTLAUFER

To the average television fan the complex maze of tubes and wires inside the set is a baffling mystery, and as long as everything is working as it should, he couldn't care less. But — when the set goes dead right smack in the middle of "Gun Smoke" or the "first budget - shattering thought that enters his head is: "It must be the picture tube!"

There are literally hundreds of causes of TV failure, any of which may require from a few minutes to hours for a serviceman to locate, but most viewers live in terror of the day when that big 21 inch tube goes "fitt". That's the business end of his television . . . the part that gives him his entertainment . . . so obviously it must be the most expensive part.

These people will be pleased to know that picture tubes are now far less costly than they believe. Mass production and new engineering techniques have brought them down to about half the price of short time ago. A re-built picture tube is also a good bet. They've proven so satisfactory that they are guaranteed for a year.

You don't have to understand electronics to appreciate your favorite television program . . . when breakdowns do occur, leave your set and your worries with Circle TV Service, 358 Coleman St. They've made a study of that tangle of tubes and wires and have the equipment to give thorough work at reasonable cost. George Nader Doing Show Of Ellery Queen Every Week

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Fortunately, George Nader is youthful, strong and resolute. Otherwise he might not be able to withstand the rigors of portraying Ellery Queen every week.

The Friday night television mystery series is a maverick in the stampede away from live dramatic shows. In these days when most TV drama is in the can, sleuth Ellery is in the flesh, not to mention color.

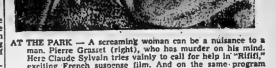
A live hour of drama is something most actors seek three weeks of preparation for. George sees his script six days before show time. And each day thence is marked by the hard labor of rehearsal.

Here's his weekly schedule: The script is put in his hands Sunday and he goes through it with the rest of the cast. More rehearsals follow Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday in Hollywood. Then the company moves to the NBC Burbank studios for two hard days of rehearsals with the cameras, followed by the show itself.

TOUGH GRIND

I can't recall any other actors who have been subjected to such a grind. Comics have days weeks hour-long shows, yes, and many of them ruined their health doing it.

"I can't even use a teleprompter, so there is no time to learn my lines anyway."



The season is young, but so far he has weathered hazardous and rouline.

Did Nader know what he was getting into?

"I did and I'm not sorry," he replied. "The money is very good I'd rather be doing this than I'd kind of movies they're making nowadays."

AT THE PARK — A screaming woman can be a nuisance to a man. Pierre Grasset (right), who has murder on his mind. BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

By WINIFRED WILSON

SPECIALIZED FEET

We are all born with feet made from the same pattern, but the inhabitants of Birdland are given feet that will exactly suit their special habits. A chimney swift's are small and weak, because they are used so little; a loon's have webs folding the toes together so that they act like paddles to propel the bird through the water. The extra long toes of the heron are slender and flexible in order to carry the long-legged creature as it walks on sandy shores, and the claw on the middle toe has a comb-like gadget attached to it. Our Canada grouse is non-migratory, and therefore must have a feet that will support it on the snowdrifts of winter. And the comb-like affairs grow on its toes when cold weather comes along, and are shed again in the spring.

Woodpeckers do not use their feet to stand on, but to cling to trunks of trees and to hold them in a perpendicular position. Therefore they require as much support at the back as at the front of the feet, and consequently only two of their toes, which end in well hooked claws for clinging to bark, point forwards. Kingfishers' feet are odd because their two outer toes are joined together for half their length, and they have peculiar, clammy, grasping surfaces.

STRONG FEET

Hawks and owls are all provided with particularly strong feet for the purpose of holding the prey which is pulled to pieces, therefore their claws are strong, long, sharp, and curved. One of these, the osprey, lives on a fish diet, for which a very special method of hunting is required. Soaring over a body of water at perhaps 75 or 100 feet, it looks with keen eyes for its desired prey swimming along unsuspectingly just under the surface. Then down it spirals, hitting the water with a mighty splash that sends spray in all directions, rather impeding our view. But in a moment up comes the osprey with a fish grasped in strong talons. This is not eaten on the spot, but taken home for supper, or to feed the family if it is resting peacefully. Just imagine the package — a wet, slippery, live fish. The bird divides its toes into pairs, and two from each foot are placed on each side of the fish, which is tightly held with its head facing forward. Sharp, horny excrescences on the grasping surfaces make the hold successful.

Close-Up One of the Better Shows Produced by CBC

By JIM MORRISON

Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—The imagination of the then head of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation combined with the skill of a young producer in 1957 to launch a fine show new to Canadian television.

Close-Up, a program of interviews, documentary films, and chatter, originated as an idea with A. D. Dunton, who resigned as chairman of the CBC board of governors last July 15 to become president of Carleton University in Ottawa.

The program, with 33-year-old Ross McLean as producer and senior editor, celebrated its first anniversary Oct. 6.

WISHED-FOR TYPE

"This is the type of program I have been wanting to do since I started television work with the CBC at its start in Canada in 1952," McLean said.

The producer dipped into the radio field for his editor-on-the-air and host of Close-Up: J. Frank Willis, who started in Canadian radio in 1925 with station CHNS in Halifax.

Willis's face has become known to television viewers only in the last few years but his voice first became familiar to Canadians in April, 1936, when he broadcast from the Ottawa River gold-mine in Nova Scotia, telling the story of the efforts to rescue three men trapped below ground by a cave-in.

Interviewers for Close-Up are Pierre Berton, author, Toronto newspaper columnist, former managing editor of Maclean's magazine; Charles Templeton, author, evangelist and once a newspaper columnist; Elsine Grand, one of CBC's first women interviewers; Jack Webster of Vancouver, who handles "first coast assignments; and Percy Saltzman, whose regular job is that of a federal government meteorologist.

"During the last year we have visited 300 people to get material McLean said. "We talked with the positive-living Norman Vincent Peale and the negative-living Lenny Bruce.

Others to appear on the program were Cyrus Eaton, the Canadian-born U.S. financier; Randolph Churchill; authors Somerset Maugham and Aldous Huxley, Sir Bernard and Lady Docker, playwright Peter Ustinov and Bruce Hutchison, author and editor of the Victoria Times.

"We did a number of documentaries," McLean noted, "including those on the Sons of Freedom Doukhobors, Spuink, the segregation issue in the unwed motherhood and mixed marriage.

"I feel our hour-long show on the Doukhobor problem was our best show of the year.

"The worst was our attempt to bring four typical Canadian families in four cities, their views and how they live and work, to television viewers. The show was a flop."

Ideas for Close-Up are worked out at weekly conferences of Mr. McLean's editorial board. A post-mortem is held on the previous program and future shows are discussed. After research has built a foundation for a program and the guests agree to appear, technical crews are assigned to put the show together.

Members of the editorial board are George Ronald of Toronto and Doug Letterman of Vancouver, story editors; Pat Watson of Toronto, co-producer; Daryl Duke of Vancouver, associate producer; Lois Parfitt of Winnipeg and Gail Hutchison of Toronto, research assistants; and Carol McIntyre, script assistant.

Responsibility for the show rests with the producer, who must watch details from the idea stage until the program goes on the air. Then McLean is in the control room watching several monitor screens, his script and a stopwatch.

McLean started as a part-time announcer for radio station CFRB in Brantford, Ont., when he was a 16-year-old high school student. Later he worked as a reporter - photographer for the Brantford Expositor and London Free Press. He served with the signal corps during the war.

Afterwards he went to the University of Toronto, where he edited the year book and The Varsity, college daily. He had a job at station CKEY in Toronto on the side.

He joined the CBC's department of talks and affairs in 1948 and was sent to Vancouver. He returned to Toronto in 1952 for the advent of television and became one of Canada's first TV producers.

Tabloid and Living, interview-type shows, were created by McLean before he introduced Close-Up.

The program now is televised on Wednesday nights, shifting from the Sunday night spot it held for a year.

"We have been given considerable freedom in choosing the content of our show and I like to feel we have not abused this freedom," McLean said.

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER

Sunday, October 19

Aries (March 21 to April 19) — Be certain not to irritate some higher up in early A. M. or you stand to lose a great deal, both in money and prestige. Later in day you are of a very serious turn of mind and can get support and admiration of influential person.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) — Avoid dull routines in early A. M. Listen closely to the wise words of favorite adviser or spiritual leader from pulpit or rostrum. P. M. fine for expressing your views with vital persons and getting their approval and backing.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — While you are most anxious to enjoy yourself today, the wrong bunch could land you far astray. See that you maintain a cheerful attitude, for more is accomplished through kindness, cheer than through any other means. P. M. analyze your position.

Moon children (June 22 to July 21) — Steer clear of any arguments going on all around you. Just stick to right actions on principles during A. M. Later there will be many admirers and comrades who will give you right ideas concerning how you can advance much faster.

Leo (July 23 to Aug. 21) — Forget tedious chores today and dig into the wonderful world of fine literature and great books, and you will be well repaid. Late afternoon is then fine to make an interesting upon a Big wig who will become your backer and protector.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 23) — By impressing others with the way you maintain equilibrium in the face of emergencies today brings much respect and admiration from others. P. M. enjoy yourself with new friends. Don't be so serious. Let your hair down and have fun.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23) — Do not give vent to the sharp words you want to give one feels filled to you. Win him or her over with dignified manner and speech. P. M. follow that intuition and you achieve harmonious relations at abode.

Scorpio (Oct. 24 to Nov. 21) — It will do no good to fret over the inevitable. Refrain from rendering evil for evil to wily partner. Live the Golden Rule yourself and know that all will be well. P. M. meet with all partners and have serious discussion.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — Adhere to orthodox standards and regulations, regardless of turmoil all around you, and then you win out. Prestige and friendliness of others will be yours. P. M. get new week's work and activities intelligently planned.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — Steer clear of that wily individual in A. M. who would decoy you from sanely travelling the straight path. Concentrate on others instead who are truly helpful to you.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — Private anxiety could keep you from accomplishing anything worthwhile today. Forget it and seek the best advice possible from experts in field of science, education or religion. P.M. reach fine, new understanding.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — Although some new venture may appear very desirable, it is actually worthless. So remain steadfast to present setup, to individuals who are serious, and you remain on solid ground. P.M. step out to some fine social affairs with friends, relatives.

If your child is born today ... The fine child born today will have a very quick mind, so it behooves you early to teach him how to keep in both actions and speech, and to give the proper discipline. The magnetism is very great here and your progeny could easily charm away the most valuable things from others, which they would be required to give. Give, combined education since the mature life is most active, interesting and lucrative.

Monday, October 20

Aries (March 21 to April 19) — If you are not able to understand where certain financial experts, et. al., fit into your immediate picture now, it is best to investigate or you get into most unfortunate situations. Do not decide anything until the morning.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) — Avoid any semblance of argument with higher ups today, for there is no reason whatsoever why you should become involved. Reserve your judgement and you will not get into any difficulties that could really be costly in the long run.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — Look into paper or other media, TV, etc., for the data you need are you delve into that myriad of little jobs that await you. Later in the day you can then operate with maximum efficiency. Get in plenty of research and study.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) — You are able now to simply concentrate and think out what the real issues are between two warring factors, partnership or organizations. Avoid getting involved in any way or you are in for much annoyance and anxiety. Be neutral.

Leo (July 23 to Aug. 21) — Associates and close family tie are so far apart in experience and knowledge that it would be foolhardy to expect any meeting of minds whatsoever. Clear the air with an understanding smile. Make the decisions yourself.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 23) — Avoid dull-doldrum tasks today in the best of your ability. Incorporate or adopt some of the wonderful new efficiency measures that will make your lot easier. Convince associates to follow suit. Be clever and admired.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23) — Caviar tastes are excellent provided one has the wherewithal to afford them. Keep within your budget right now, and enjoy the less-expensive luxuries. Proper thinking, however, can bring greater abundance in the future.

Scorpio (Oct. 24 to Nov. 21) — You arise this A. M. feeling that you should make some radical changes in both business and home life. A most unwise move. Analyze your present situation and personal life well instead and make slight adjustments where necessary.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — You have been dwelling on the same thoughts too long now, and this is not good for you. Branch out and increase success and happiness. Seek the proper people who will give you incentive and backing. Get shopping done, too.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — Don't do anything unpredictable where real estate or source of income is concerned. Be conservative instead. Then concentrate on how to add to abundance through orthodox methods. See the right people and formulate plans.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — You are sorely tempted to express yourself in no uncertain terms with powerful individual in your life. This would be the most disastrous. Concentrate on self - advancement instead for the future. Forget credit affairs.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — A secret anxiety could cause you to make unwise moves today if you keep worrying incessantly. Read your newspaper and get a new slant on things. Then decide where and how you can branch out into something new and lucrative.

If your child is born today ... The impulsive child born today would do well to mull things over more before running helter - skelter into them. While the energies are great, the need for better judgment can best be realized by proper training, which becomes your earliest and greatest duty.

POLICE ARREST

financially from outside Georgia. He also said evidence found would link the bombing of the Temple with similar blasts set off in recent months in Tennessee, Florida, Alabama and South Carolina.

IDENTITY KNOWN

Police announced they had identified the man whose name has been financing anti-Semitic activity in the south. One man was referred to as a "fat cat" in a letter police said they found in the home of Allen, one of the five under indictment. Police did not disclose the name of the "fat cat."

Rabbi Jacob M. Rothschild Friday night held the first Sabbath service since the bombing of the Temple. He spoke to about 1,000 persons in the damaged sanctuary.

Rewards posted for information leading to conviction of those responsible for the bombing mounted to $25,250.

NEW YORK (AP)—A rash of race-baited bomb threats shook New York Jewish organizations Friday.

Seven Jewish groups received telephone calls, and a headless effigy of a Negro figure was hanged in front of a synagogue youth centre. No bombs were found following the threats.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—Police revealed bomb threats had been made Friday against two newsviews and a synagogues here.

Officers searched the temple B'Nai Israel and the synagogue Agudath Achim but found nothing. However, squads of plainclothesmen and uniformed police were posted at both buildings.

The threats were made in letters to the Arkansas Democrat and Arkansas Gazette. Both newspapers have printed the letters over to the authorities.

Plane Lands Safely

SHANNON, Ireland (AP) — A U.S. Air Force Skymaster with 57 persons aboard returned here and landed safely today after one of its engines caught fire over the Atlantic.

The plane was about 400 miles west of Ireland on a flight from Europe to Argentia, Nfld., when the fire broke out.

The plane sent radio messages about the fire but later reported the blaze had been put out by automatic extinguishers. It made Shannon with one propeller feathered.

Your Car

Distributor Is Heart of Car's Ignition System

By EUGENE MILMOE

Your car's distributor has been called "the heart of the ignition system." It's easy to see why. It houses such important members as the contract points, condenser, rotor and advance mechanism which team up with other ignition parts to perform the highly technical functions vital to efficient engine operation.

Basically, it's the distributor's job to deliver high tension current to each spark plug at the precise time it is needed under varying speeds and engine loads.

You can't get your money's worth from your engine when any distributor part requires maintenance or replacement . . . or if a tuneup is overdue. Service details depend on the exact type of distributor involved. There are several different makes. Each varies in construction and each calls for expert know-how.

From D. S.: "A friend who did a lot of mountain driving this past summer insists that antifreeze gave him greater protection against overheating. Does this make sense?"

(A) Actually, it does. A solution of permanent antifreeze has a higher boiling point than water and is used for mountain drivers.

V. H. writes: "Is the carburetor air cleaner on my '58 is one of those paper elements. Can I have this changed to an oil type filter?"

(A) Why? The new paper air filters are said to be the most efficient of all.

C. M. asks: "Twice in two years, I've had to replace a muffler and it has been blamed on the type of driving I do. Is this possible?"

(A) If the car is used mostly for short trips and the engine and exhaust do not heat up sufficiently, the water and acid by-products of combustion are not carried off. Instead, they settle in and attack the exhaust pipe and muffler.

From R. G.: "How do you estimate depreciation? I have a one of the low priced models, just one year old, and would have much in trade-in value."

(A) The depreciation of any car is figured in the first year. As of this date, for example, a low-priced one year old is valued at approximately 70 per cent of its original sale price.

THIS WEEK'S SAFETY REMINDER

When night-driving, keep the dash lights low. The glare from them can strain your vision.

STRONG-WILLED WOMAN

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Mrs. Eva Deschner, who rallied from serious illnesses many times in the last two years and told her family she would not die before her 97th birthday, died Wednesday — on her 97th birthday.

"She always was a strong-minded woman," said a daughter, Mrs. Julia Gabler.

JOHNSTOWN

Hold Shower For Couple Recently Wed

JOHNSTOWN — A happy event took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William S. Harry on Saturday evening, when friends, relatives and neighbors gathered at the farm home in honor of their son and bride. Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Harry who had recently married at Bethesda United Church at Cobourg.

A large crowd attended this miscellaneous shower, with Mr. Basil Brooks as "master of ceremonies". A short program was arranged, with Mrs Don Sandercock giving a reading called "The September Groom". Miss Evelyn Harry, sister of the groom, entertained with a piano solo. Miss Marion Bush assisted with a humorous reading "Ma and the Auto".

A large table decorated with pink and white streamers with a large bell at the top, was covered with gifts. Mrs. Alec Vandervoort read an address to the happy couple in verse, asking them to accept the many gifts as a token of the esteem in which they were held in this neighborhood and wishing them the best of everything in their married life.

After the parcels were opened, Gerald thanked all for their kindness at this time in remembering them, and said they both appreciated them very much

Mr. and Mrs. Harry will live at R. R. 1 Brockville. Mr. Harry is a mechanical engineer at the Dupont Plant at Brockville. Mrs. Harry is a graduate nurse of Belleville General Hospital.

NO SLEEP

An Italian bank clerk slept only one hour in 39 years after his relatives and friends were affected in a First World War prison camp.

Tweed

TWEED — Miss Teresa Courtepatte, who is on the teaching staff at a Renfrew school, spent the long weekend in Tweed with her family.

Nine sons and daughters of the family of 10 children of the late Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Cassidy, enjoyed a turkey dinner recently at the home of one of the sons, Mr. and Mrs. Carthe Cassidy of Metcalfe Street. With their wives the party numbered 18 with Mrs. John Johnson (Kay Cassidy) of Windsor the only one unable to be present.

The rink committee sponsored a dance at the Tweed Park Pavilion on Friday night with a small crowd, no doubt due to the sudden turn of the weather to rain and colder. The Modernaire's Orchestra supplied the music. Profits from the dance will be used to put the outdoor rink in shape for winter use. The chairman of the rink committee is S. J. "Andy" Anderson of who is working hard along with his colleagues to assist.

Congratulations also to Mr. and Mrs. Art Vance (nee Barr) on the recent birth of their son, Mark William, in the Memorial Hospital, Sudbury, Mr. Vance is originally from Tweed.

Dr. S. R. Beatty of Madoc was the guest speaker at the last meeting of the Tweed Kiwanis Club, when he presented a series of pictures which he took of the St. Lawrence Seaway. The pictures were taken of both the Canadian and American sides of the river.

Recently visiting her husband at Prescot and Kingston was Mrs. Don Woods and son, Brian of Tweed.

Putting on storm windows, storm doors and patching roofs seems to be the main order of the day with the menfolk.

A weekend visitor of Miss Doris Duggan recently was Miss Donieta Dowdell of Kingston.

Chief of Police, Wallie Higgins, is carrying on his duties successfully after accidently falling from the police office steps on Spring Street. He fractured a bone in his shoulder and is now wearing a sling for the support of the arm.

Will Ask Court To Set Aside Hog Market Vote

Irregularities Charged By Opponents of Plan

BRIGHT, Oct. (CP) — Farmer Peter McDonald said today he will go to the Ontario Supreme Court in July 1961 to have the July plebiscite on hog marketing set aside because of irregularities in voting will be brought before the Ontario Appeal Court on Nov. 15.

Mr. McDonald is president of the Free Enterprise Hog Producers Association set up to fight Ontario legislation which makes it compulsory to buy or sell hogs through the Ontario Hog Producers Co-operative.

A province - wide referendum was held July 2 when 68.5 per cent of the voting hog producers endorsed the marketing plan—binding on all the ground hog producers.

Chief Justice R. J. Ferguson ruled the scheme invalid the same month, Attorney - General Kelso Roberts sought to have the ruling reversed and the Ontario Appeal Court, in a unanimous judgment on the legality of the scheme.

Mr. Justice Ferguson made his ruling on three grounds: the Farm Products Marketing Act required more than a majority vote to receive a favorable vote from producers before they can be put into effect and the plebiscites were not polled.

The plebiscite was approved by order-in-council and deemed to be valid by the end of June 1 the Legislature confirming it was passed last March.

Jordanian Ballot Boxes Stuffed Court Is Told

BAGHDAD (AP)—A Baghdad military court was told Sunday that a 1951 plan to unite the Arab kingdoms of Jordan and Iraq was defeated because Gen. Sir John Glubb of Britain, then commander of Jordan's Arab Legion, suffered Jordanian ballot boxes.

Radio Baghdad reported this in its account of the trial of Abdul Jalil Rawi, former Iraqi minister to Syria charged with plotting to overthrow the Syrian regime and bring it under Iraqi royal rule.

Testifying were Dr. Omar Nazzal and Hassen, both ministers in the Iraqi government under the July 14 revolution. They said that along with Rawi, they took part in a conspiracy to put the unity project to Jordan's leaders.

The Jordanians were described as enthusiastic at the idea. But, the court was told, Britain was against it.

The testimony went on:

When Jordan's parliamentary elections took place shortly after Rawi, "the British interfered and military force filled ballot boxes with forged ballots so that the leaders favored unity with Iraq were defeated."

British Troops Withdrawing From Jordan

AMMAN (Reuters) — British troops began withdrawing from Jordan today.

The first landing ship Charles McLeod sailed from the Red Sea port of Aqaba shortly after dawn for Cyprus with vehicles, supplies and a small party of paratroopers.

Ships now are expected to leave Aqaba for Cyprus daily for the next two weeks, a military spokesman said.

All Amman airport tents were being taken down and the men were moving into barracks.

The paratroopers said these troops will fly out under United Nations supervision from Cyprus next Saturday. They will stop at Cyprus in a transit stage en route to Britain.

The airlift will be over Syria and Lebanon.

Havelock Man Burned to Death

HAVELOCK, Ont. (CP) — Tom Smith, 71-year-old odd-job man, was discovered burned to death in the cabin in which he had lived for 40 years, by a dead and friendless man, provincial police said today.

Donnie Toms found the body last week as he was delivering a newspaper to the cabin, located in the bush behind this Peterboro county area community.

He ran to a farm that was unable to contact to his family what he had seen. A sister accompanied him back to the cabin.

Police believe that Smith's clothes caught fire as he was filling a lamp. The cabin did not burn.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) Synopsis: Another pleasant fall day is expected over Ontario today with temperatures ranging from the 70s in the south, to the 60s in the north. A developing storm centre in the south of Manitoba is moving northeastward, while cool Pacific air plunges southeastward behind it. This colder air should move into southern and central Ontario Tuesday afternoon and evening accompanied by cloudy skies and showers. Over northwestern Ontario this cooler air will give clouds and showers tonight and Tuesday.

N. Y. POLICEMAN SLAUGHTERS FOUR IN RESTAURANT

Whips Out 2 Guns, Mows Down Patrons

NEW YORK (AP) — What deadly impulse drove policeman Alton Wheelock to the coldblood slaughter of four men in a Bronx restaurant?

Did injuries he suffered last year in a car accident twist his mind?

Did he bear a grude against the victims? One was a convicted loan shark and two of the others had police records.

Had he been drinking?

Police investigated these angles today in a search for some explanation for the 34-year-old patrolman's violent outburst Sunday in the Pic-a-Rib Restaurant.

McDermott himself lay speechless in a hospital prison ward. Hospital. His body bore five bullet wounds inflicted by other policemen who waged a gun duel with him on midtown streets as he fled from the restaurant.

OFF DUTY VISIT

McDermott, married and the father of four, was off duty when he entered the restaurant on Broadway near 53rd Street early the day about 1:45 a.m. A few minutes later, without warning, he drew two guns and fired away at patrons. Four men fell mortally wounded.

McDermott crashed through the glass panelling of the door and fled. Patrolman Wheelock opened fire. He returned the fire, wounding the killer who pursued before he collapsed unconscious about three blocks from the restaurant.

McDermott, with a clean record, including one commendation, during his 10 years on the police force, Neighbors described him as a conscientious, quiet church-goer. Fellow policemen recalled he was a "nice, pleasant guy."

HURT IN 1957

Officials said McDermott had been under medical treatment since December, 1957, when he was injured in the collision of a radio car with a truck. Two weeks ago he underwent x-ray examinations and electrocardiograph of persistent headaches.

Four persons were all died in hospital. They were:

Edmund Leahy, 39, of Manhattan, a self-employed man who served a prison sentence as a loan shark. He still was also known for gambling and bookmaking convictions.

Frederick Joseph O'Hare, 55, of Manhattan, an usher at Madison Square Garden, who operated a self-styled burglary but released with all charge dismissed.

Lawrence Davies of Mt. Vernon, N.Y., known as "Larry the Bookie" because of his police record dating from 1933, includes a jail term for refusing to identify fingerprint marks on an automobile, a bookmaking fine and two other arrests.

BRIDGE CHAMPS

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — E. R. Bowman and Mrs. E. Elliott, both of Toronto, won the top award at the annual autumn Ontario bridge tournament, in a championship flight played by 43 teams here Saturday night.

Two Turkish Policemen Slain By Terrorist

NICOSIA (Reuters) — A gunman shot dead and killed two Turkish Cypriot auxiliary policemen today in a fresh terrorist stepped up their campaign of violence against Britain's partition plan for the island.

The policemen were killed as they stood by guard over a gasoline supply at Knousa, a hamlet near British-owned copper mines 65 miles south of Nicosia. The gunmen escaped on a motorbike.

The deaths brought to five the number of persons killed and 48 wounded in the last 48 hours. A Turkish Cypriot was killed in a traffic accident and a Greek Cypriot village in southern Cyprus Saturday night and a 60-year-old Greek Cypriot and his son were gunned down in their village in Cyprus on Saturday night.

TERRORISM INCREASES

Terrorism has increased on Cyprus since Britain introduced a new code of law to enable the colony in co-operation with representatives of the governments of Turkey and Greece to settle the problem that has accepted the plan and appointed a representative. Ontario Greece — and Greek Cypriot leaders on the island — have turned it down.

Seven-Year-Old Boy Catches Safecracker Who Cracked Jail

PETERHEAD, Scotland (Reuters) — Seven-year-old Ronald Reid's day caught a runaway convict who is one of the world's leading safecrackers.

Within 48 hours of breaking out of Peterhead jail—by picking a few locks, of course — Johnnie Ramensky was back behind bars where he has spent about 30 of his 53 years of life.

Little Ronald Reid found him hiding in the straw of a barn within sight of his home. David, the boy who had entered the barn to clean out the loft, hollered to his father: "Daddy, come here."

The modern Jimmy Valentine, who parachuted behind enemy lines in the war and cracked Nazi safes, said quietly: "You mustn't shout. Come in here, sonny—don't be frightened."

When David's father and farm hand, George Henderson, arrived, the fugitive pleaded: "Give me five minutes and I'll get away." They turned Ramensky over to police.

Prison authorities were baffled by the latest escape. They said Ramensky vanished from the sealed recreation room Friday night. Both doors of the room were locked and the windows barred.

The arc safecracker was serving 10 years for breaking into a garage and blowing a safe there. He was serving in January he was at large for 24 hours.

Ramensky was released from prison at the outbreak of war. He instructed commandos in the use of explosives and later developed behind enemy lines to crack German safes and obtain secret information.

His exploits gained him a secret service order of Britain's most skilled secret agents. During the allied occupation of Germany, he dropped behind enemy lines with a parachute and explosives and blew open a safe in a German headquarters. He escaped with the German mail full piece of evidence to northern Italy.

Ramensky ruefully raided Nazi air chief Hermann Goering's headquarters in Germany. He was caught and fled and escaped with more valuable secrets.

At his last trial, the lucky-fingered war hero admitted he had devoted his career to safecracking. The crown pointed to his wartime contribution through his "specialized knowledge of opening lock-fast places."

The judge said his career showed he could not be trusted to steer clear of crime.

Canadian Labor Congress Supports TCA's Air Monopoly

OTTAWA (CP)—The 1,600,000-member Canadian Labor Congress today expressed strong opposition to any moves to crack Trans-Canada Air Lines' transcontinental air monopoly.

"To introduce competition now is to risk serious economic consequences," said cross executive vice-president William Dodge as the air transport board opened final hearings in the battle of Canadian Pacific Airlines for a slice of the multimillion-dollar air monopoly.

The government - owned TCA claims that any sharing of its transcontinental business with CPA would cost TCA about $30,000,000 in revenue loss in the first three years of operation. CPA contends that the "limited" form of competition it proposes for the present will not be too hard on TCA.

The labor congress, supporting TCA, based its argument on the findings of Stephen Wheatcroft, noted British air consultant hired by the government to look into the monopoly situation.

Mr. Wheatcroft reported to Transport Minister Hees last June that Canada cannot support two transcontinental airlines economically before the mid-1960s.

He added that TCA could possibly meet "rationed" transcontinental competition in 1960 without going into the red, but just before daily transcontinental competitive flights would put TCA into a position where it could no longer expand.

A complete stripping of TCA's monopoly at this time would plunge the public service into a $6,000,000-a-year deficit or passenger charges upward, Mr. Wheatcroft concluded.

Mr. Dodge quoted extensively from the Wheatcroft report to support colleagues views that competition at this time would bring higher fares or a deterioration of service.

"In our opinion, Mr. Wheatcroft, in his analysis has exploited of possible economic consequences of airline competition in Canada far beyond those that whatever advantages might arise from competitive air services would be decidedly offset at this time by the disadvantages," Mr. Dodge said.

Eisenhower Carries Election Campaign Toward California

NEW YORK (CP) — President Eisenhower carried his election efforts tonight into California while others active in the U.S. congressional campaign centered around about his foreign policy and its place in the political debate.

A stepped-up weekend tempo found Democratic national committee chairman Paul M. Butler virtually inviting Democrats who did not agree with the party's record, civil rights program to get out of the Democratic party and form a third party.

With the campaign moving into its final two weeks, Democrats in the Senate and House of Representatives took to the campaign trail, speaks tonight in Los Angeles and Tuesday in San Francisco in Oakland. Vice President Nixon will be a hard-hitting explanation of Republican administration policies.

Former president Harry S. Truman and Vice-President Richard Nixon campaigned actively Saturday in the East, after a weekend of rest for each.

Adlai Stevenson, twice the Democratic presidential candidate called it "U.S. policy toward the Nationalist Chinese islands of Quemoy and Matsu "this miserable mess."

Speaking in Milwaukee Saturday night, he said "we have won almost two years of grace with the last crisis of Quemoy to explore peaceful means. Instead, we have allowed Chiang Kai-shek to bring us closer to war, to 'import' the danger of war into the United States over little islands that are militarily and politically untenable."

Both Eisenhower and State Secretary Dulles had said they thought foreign policy should not be a campaign subject. Eisenhower though each left some loopholes for later interpretation of the question in attacking Democratic critics.

Representative Joseph W. Martin Jr. of Massachusetts, House Republican leader, said in a statement that if the Democrats control Congress next year "we will have a left-wing spending program that will be unequalled in its history."

Senator Lyndon B. Johnson (Dem., Tex.) said in Welch, W. Va., that the Republicans are kicking around socialism, which "is certainly a dead issue in this the campaign, and added:

"We are faced with the challenge of whether we shall lead the world or default that leadership and let communism win it by firing through our nose."

PAKISTAN ARMY CHIEF PLANNING DRASTIC REFORMS

Seeks Quick Justice, Reduced Birth Rate

KARACHI, Pakistan (Reuters) — Gen. Ayub Khan, chief martial law administrator, Sunday outlined the sweeping reforms he hopes will clean up the "mess" left in Pakistan after 11 years of shaky democracy.

Pakistan's legal system, based on the British model, must be drastically altered to give the people "quicker justice," he said.

Pakistanis are breeding too fast and birth control must be introduced, he said.

The piecemeal distribution of farms must be abolished in favour of more practical development on a larger scale.

The life of the country must be put back on a sound economic footing even at the price of enforced austerity.

The 51-year-old army boss described the result of his country as "a heaping martial law to assist the civil power to clean up this mess."

CONSTITUTION ABOLISHED

Khan was appointed martial law administrator when President Iskander Mirza abolished the constitution, dismissed the government, ordering general elections—Pakistan's first nationwide ballot.

Khan, a tough professional soldier who was trained at Sandhurst, Britain's top military school, is now in effect the premier's office (PM) residence.

Khan emphasized the takeover would be brief and said he had decided a report that army officers had been shot for opposing the new regime.

He said not a single bullet had been fired and there was an overhaul of Pakistan's legal system.

"We have adopted the British system which is very expensive and dilatory and it's good only for the rich people," he added. "We must have a system which the people and the poor understand and gives them quicker justice."

He said authorities must halt the uneconomic carving up of land caused by the present practice of dividing property between sons, for a scientific solution "that is the land and does not lead to class war."

Shipbuilders' Strike Settled

LAUZON, Que. (CP) — Two months of unemployment ended today for Davie Shipbuilding Ltd., workers who settled their wage dispute with the company Sunday.

The 2,000 members of the National Metal Trades Association (CCL) voted unanimously to accept a three-year contract and wage increases amounting to 24 cents an hour over the next two years.

Rookie Las Vegas Policeman Kills Man Who Visited Home by Mistake

BOULDER CITY, Nev. (AP)—Police said Sunday a rookie officer killed his .38-calibre police revolver and shot him twice in the chest.

Police said Kuk told them he mistook Bowman for a prowler, so aroused it was "the getaway car," ran outside and fired two shots at him.

In the car were William J. Hagaman, 19, Jerry Bertalson, 18, and Mathan Patterson, 24.

Bertalson was struck in the right temple by one of the shots. He later was reported in critical condition.

Police said Kuk had the dead man handcuffed when they arrived at the scene. They said Kuk told them he had killed one fugitive and had several more to go.

Las Vegas police chief Ray Schaefer, who came here after the shootings, said of Kuk: "He's inconsistent, rambling, it appears to me he's been drinking. I don't know whether he's drunk or going out of his head."

Communist Shore Batteries Renew Quemoy Shelling

Reds Claim U.S. Warships Had Broken the Truce

TAIPEI (AP) — Chinese Communist shore batteries laid a new barrage of fire against the offshore island of Quemoy today, ending nearly 24 days of cease-fire proclaimed by Peiping.

The artillery caught four Nationalist supply ships in the Quemoy beach area—three lists and one navy transport.

There was no immediate word whether the Red guns scored any hits on the Nationalist ships.

The Nationalists said their returned artillery on Quemoy returned the fire.

NO U.S. SHIPS

A Nationalist spokesman said no U.S. ships were in the beach area. The Communists in ending the cease-fire charged U.S. warships had broken the truce by escorting Nationalist supplies to Quemoy on Sunday night.

The Americans flatly denied this, but they later admitted conducted a small-boat operation . . . lifting Chinese Nationalist supplies craft through the international waters," at least 15 miles off Quemoy.

The Nationalist defence ministry said the Communists resumed shelling at 4 p.m., 50 minutes after Peiping radio broadcast orders ending the cease-fire. The Communists announced a week ago their self-imposed hold-fire had been extended to midnight next Sunday.

The Nationalists said they waited one hour after the Communists had opened fire.

A Nationalist spokesman said the Red bombardment was not so heavy as on Aug. 22, when the offshore war began with an intense, two-hour bombardment. During that initial attack 41,000 Communist rounds were fired, killing 11 civilians and wounding 66 on Quemoy, and caused more than 200 military casualties.

DULLES EN ROUTE

The abrupt shore bombardment raised grave new problems for U.S. State Secretary Dulles, flying by jet tanker over the Pacific enroute to Formosa. His mission was to confer in Taipei tomorrow with Nationalist President Chiang Kai-shek and lay the base for a second Eisenhower-Chiang talk in Formosa.

Chinese Defence Minister Peng Teh-hai gave as his reason for resuming the bombardment the charge that U.S. warships had encroached on Chinese territorial waters Sunday night in escorting Nationalist ships to Quemoy.

Shelling also was ordered to resumed as a measure of punishment," the Communist order said.

The U.S. Taiwan (Formosa) defence command denied the charge was completely untrue.

U.S. Navy, commander, closed only Sunday that additional ships sent to bolster the U.S. 7th fleet here included destroyers started artillery attacks on the offshore islands had been completed.

In escorting Nationalist supply ships to Quemoy, U.S. warships have "layed three miles or more off the coast . . . out of territorial waters recognized by the United States. However, China claims a 12-mile limit.

Resume Search For Ten Bodies In Plane Wreck

ARGENTIA, Nfld. (CP)—Divers were to resume searching today for the bodies of 10 men believed still in the wreckage of a United States Navy Super Constellation that plunged into Placentia Bay on Saturday.

One wing of the giant Super Constellation was found on Sunday but there was no sign of the fuselage. One man was known to have been killed in the crash. Ten others are missing.

Eighteen men were rescued before the aircraft sank in 300 feet of the bay, on the south coast of Newfoundland about 20 miles northeast of St. John's, after missing the runway at the U.S. Naval Air Station here in a instrument landing.

Winds whipped the bay into a fury Sunday and halted search operations for six hours. One of the rescued men was found clinging to a wing that had snapped off the plane and was floating.

Lieut. John Koskey, the plane's co-pilot said he surrendered the controls to the captain about seconds before the crash. Altitude and speed at the time of impact were bad.

Lieut. Koskey said things happened so quickly he didn't know the plane was in trouble "until I felt something hit me." He escaped through a window in the submerged nose.

Electronics Technician Harold V. Macey realized the plane was in trouble when he heard "a metal ripping." He reached safety on the fuselage and escaped when water here admitted he had devoted his career to safecracking. The crown pointed to his wartime contribution through his "specialized knowledge of opening lock-fast places."

The judge said his career showed he could not be trusted to steer clear of crime.

65 Passengers, All Crew Killed in Crash

LONDON (AP)—The crash of a TU-104 jet airliner, showpiece of Soviet commercial air travel, cost the 65 passengers and all crew members, Communist China announced Sunday night.

The Peiping broadcast said there were no survivors of the crash Friday night at Kanash, 400 miles east of Moscow. The regular Peiping broadcast said 16 Chinese government officials were killed.

It was the first crash to be announced for the jet airliner, the pride of the Soviet commercial air fleet.

The other 49 passengers were described as "foreign friends" and experts of their way home from China. They included one Britan, four East Germans and seven of the Cambodian ambassador to Peiping.

The number of crew members was not given, but the TU-104 usually carries up to 10.

DETAILS ARE SCANTY

The Peiping broadcast gave the first details of the disaster. Moscow radio had put the date and announcements of air mishaps, said Saturday night that the plane "suddenly fell" on regular Peiping-to-Moscow flight but did not disclose the cause of the accident.

Aeroflot, the Soviet state airline, said the cause was under investigation is completed.

The delegation of the importance attached by the Soviet government to the crash was the fact that Aviation Minister M. V. Khrunichev is heading an investigation by six experts.

Peiping Radio disclosed only the names of the 16 Chinese victims. These included Cheng Chen-to, head of a cultural delegation to Afghanistan and the United Arab Republic, nine members of the mission, and six officials of the foreign and foreign trade ministries.

City and District News

YOUTHS WILL FACE CAR THEFT CHARGE

Two New Brunswick youths, Dennis Bastarche, 18, and Aulé LeBlanc, 16, have been charged with car theft by city police, following the disappearance on Saturday night of a car owned by Albert Lucas, 19 Bay St.

The car was said taken from outside a Charlotte St. address some time before midnight and the youths were taken into custody by Ontario Provincial police near Port Hope, after an alarm had been broadcast.

The youths were brought back to the city yesterday to face the car theft charge.

MAYOR, ENGINEER ATTEND CONVENTION

Mayor Gerald Hyde, and City Engineer Malcolm Turnbull have gone to Quebec City where they will attend a three-day convention of the Canadian Sewage and Sanitation Association.

FISH AND GAME MEET TOMORROW

Hunters of the district should not miss the opening meeting of the Belleville Fish and Game Protective Association tomorrow night at the YMCA starting eight o'clock.

Secretary Ken Yorke says a program of special interest for the sixmonth has been arranged, and all sportsmen in the city and district are cordially invited.

DEPARTMENT BUILDS GARAGE AT TWEED

A large garage to house trucks, jeeps and other vehicles, is being built by the Department of Lands and Forests near the radio station and offices in Tweed. The warehouse to house fire fighting equipment and material was moved this year, immediately adjacent to the new building.

On Friday last the department was host to the press of this area, when representatives of papers were taken on a tour of all offices in Tweed and the fishing pond station at White Lake.

History of Front Road Church Read at 85th Anniversary

On Sunday the reading of the history of the Front Road United Church featured the service. This year, the 85th anniversary, is being observed and yesterday autumn flowers added a lovely setting to the service.

The "Thanksgiving" was the sermon delivered by the guest-minister, the Rev. H. W. Middleton of Plainfield, to the large congregation. The minister expressed the hope that the church work, starting in the home.

He contended that the future of Canada lay in the country churches. He also said, "The people should not ". . dodge things on the home front". He closed his inspiring sermon with the words "what God has done we say, that is our preach".

The history of the 85-year-old church was recalled in a report read by Mr. Allan Clazie during the course of the services.

Mrs. Fred Hemmingway accompanied, by her own harp, was the guest soloist.

HISTORY OF THE CHURCH

On May 15, 1873 the Trustees of the Kingsford Hall Wesleyan Methodist Church, in Canada, of Shannonville, Ontario, purchased one acre of land on Lot 24, East, from the late Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Gooder and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cooper for the amount of $25. The trustees being the late Messrs. Thomas Ware, Stephen Vivian, Robert Gooder, George Bedford, John Dimmond, of the township of Thurlow, and Daniel N. Denill, Richard Leonard Laster and Chester E. Clark of Shannonville.

During the years the record book of the church is almost complete in 1900 the Rev. Paul was on the circuit with the following as the Rev. Ross, the Rev. Combe, the Rev. W. Ver. Jeffs, the Rev. W.T. Wickett, the Rev. Robeson, the Rev. A. E. Cameron, the Rev. Frank Langford.

It was during the Rev. Andrew's stay that Front Road was taken from Shannonville circuit and put on Point Anne circuit. By 1911 it was called Front Road not Kingston Road, but that is the recorded time of the change in the name.

Following the Rev. Andrew's term came the Rev. Beck. Due to his death Mr. Bruce Harrison of Albert College finished out the term. Next came the Rev. Brown followed by the Rev. Sharp. While Rev. Sharp was here church union was made among Presbyterian, Methodist and Congregational Churches on June 10, 1925, and became United Church of Canada. The Rev. Keough then was in the circuit, followed by the Rev. Harrison, Dwight Dills, the Rev. O. E. Wagar. In 1945 Front Road Church was taken from Point Anne circuit and put in the Belleville suburban circuit with College Hill and Centre Street Churches, where students minister Mr. Bruce Besley had been ordained.

While here Mr. Besley took his senior year at Albert College and graduation at Queen's University four years later. After ordination Mr. Besley presented his first communion, baptismal and received 22 members in the church. The congregation holds this memory dear to their hearts as this was the first church for him to conduct these rites. Rev. Dovey came in 1957.

A brief summary of each organization in the church follows.

THE LADIES' GROUP

The first meeting of the newly-organized Ladies Aid of the Front Road Methodist Church was held at the home of the late Mrs. Geo. Griffith. She was president and the late Miss Belle Clazie who was secretary-treasurer. This meeting was held January the 4, 1917.

The Ladies Aid worked hard having socials as jaws socials on private lawns or on the church lawn. They had pie socials but they were quite different from present day pie socials. After a good program, plates and forks were passed around, then came pies of all kinds. A cup of tea or coffee was passed and it was a genuine job balancing all this on the knee between church seats. Food suppers were also undertaken.

The late Mr. Allan Clazie would clear out his machine shed then tables and coal oil stoves were set, and this was used as a supply house and kitchen. The tables were set in the open faced church shed that at one time had been used to shelter horses and carriages while they attended church services. It was cramped and cold circumstances led the Ladies' Aid to build a church hall in 1936. This hall was started by money in the treasury was very scant, but with much prayer and extreme hard work the present hall was started by the men and women. Indeed all the hard work and efforts it was completed enough to dedicate the fowl supper in the fall.

Mrs. T. J. Brown was the president and a great task fell on her shoulders. It should be mentioned that the late Mrs. Robt. Bell who was secretary-treasurer took an extraordinary part in seeking money by writing Members of Parliament and several outstanding figures from which she received donations.

After the hall was built there were shelves built for dishes, tables built, and silver and dishes purchased. As time went on the cupboards were made into built-in units, the hall was insulated, the hall burners were bought for the church and one for the hall. The late Mrs. Fred Parrott while not a member of this women's group, was a generous supporter and also bought and gave the present altar carpet to this church. The painting of the outside of the hall and church was taken on by the willing workers of the church under the leadership of Mr. Bruce Besley. The year of 1955 a canvass was made by W. A. members and helpers to raise money for the redecorating of the church. As this amounted to such a great amount the following year three W.A. members painted the interior of the church and Mr. Bruce Besley varnished the ceiling. The next project was to build a coal-shed and to replace the worn, shabby seats of the hall.

The last item for them to undertake was buying new doors for the church.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL

Between the years of 1880 and 1890 Rev. Edwards wanted to start a Sunday school in the Front Road Methodist Church, so he came to the late William Clazie and asked him if he was superintendent, despite the fact he was a member of the St. Presbyterian Church. Mr. Clazie accepted this position and held the elective for the following year. The school was started in Shannonville in the year 1881 under the late Arthur Cooper. After Mr. Cooper, came the late Arthur Clazie, Fred Bedford Maidments, Jack Simmons, Mrs. Mary Ann Smith, Mrs. Gertrude Clinton Brown and Miss Lois Bradshaw.

From the time the Sunday School was founded prior to 1890, the church has been fortunate in having many outstanding teachers amongst whom were Mrs. William Clazie, Mrs. Arthur Cooper, Mrs. George Gilbert, Mrs. Fred Bedford, Miss Carrry Reid, Mr. George Greatrix, Mrs. T. J. Brown, and Mrs. Bruce Mrs. Mrs. Brown and Mrs. T. J. Brown are the only surviving this group.

The teachers of today extend a hearty invitation to everyone to visit the Sunday school and meet them. They are brought and fellowship with God each Sunday. In 1956 Allan Clazie donated attendance pins to the Sunday school. At midnight in the 85-year-old church's history was the presentation of a church sign in 1957. Adding to the beauty of the interior of this church are the communion table and hymn board, which were placed for remembrance by the confirmation and minister. Never to be forgotten the Sunday school was the presentation of two worktables and eight chairs of oak for the primary classes.

BOYS' CLASS

There have been some great teachers in this class. Mrs. Bruce Brown had one for a number of years, then she passed on. Mrs. Arthur Clazie exchanged, Mrs. Brown taking over the girls. Under the guidance of Mrs. Clazie the boys met some great objectives. The church hall was built and the following year 1932 there was the installation of lighting and paying for, having the church and the hall wired for electricy, and continued paying for it as long as the wiring remained, these payments were turned over to the W.A.

THE GIRLS' CLASS

The girls under Mrs. Brown's capable guidance never had to take a back seat from the boys when it came to raising money. The money on their class was donated on big draw curtains for the Ice church, window blinds, Bibles, hymnaries and also donated $20 on the building of the hall.

BIBLE CLASS

Three deceased leaders of the well attended Bible Class were Mrs. William Clazie Mrs. Geo. Hall and Mrs. Geo. Greatrix. Through the channels of this class came a large number of active church workers.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S GROUP

The very first Young People's group was started in April 1940, and continued for a year. There were some well enjoyed meetings which were held from home to home and which gave sociability and spiritual growth. There were different groups in different years and as the generations were growing up. The last group was started in the fall of 1957 and is now called Held now Mrs. Allan Dafoe as its president.

Looking back over the past 85 years it must be agreed that for a small country church they have made many outstanding contributions to the work of God. From the district have come a minister, the late Rev. Benjamin Greatrix, son of the

HUNT SUSPECT IN MURDER OF BOY, 8

The battered body of Joseph Takacs, eight, was found by his brother, Martin Takacs, in the living-room of their tower home in Fairground, Ont. Mrs. Takacs made the gruesome discovery when, worried because the boy had not returned from school, she and two friends set out to look for him. Police are searching for a suspect who came to the school where Joseph was a pupil, said he was the boy's guardian, and requested the boy from the principal to take the child out for a short time. The boy's stepfather, Frank Takacs, 40, is also being sought for questioning.

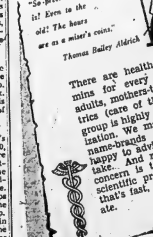
Work on Tower Of City Hall Now Completed

"When will the roof of the city hall be done?"

That is the question being asked by passersby as they admired the rejuvented appearance of the city hall clock tower following completion of restoration work by A. C. Horne Co. which completed its contract last weekend.

City Manager Drury Denyes stated today that he was "quite happy" with the situation now and would tonight get the opinion of council members.

Only the tower dome down to roof level was included in the contract just completed, but the city manager said he would suggest to council at a later date, possibly next year, that the balance of the city hall exterior be given a similar treatment.



Work done on the clock tower included roof repairs, repointing of brick and stone work and sandblasting of the brick.

The work was commenced in the latter part of July with a suggested time limit of October 1st for completion of the contract. Workmen were held up, however, by wet weather.

Scaffolding about the city hall entrance was taken down late last week and workmen now are engaged in final clean-up work.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Greatrix, a big minister the late Mr. Geo. Greatrix, also the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Greatrix and a missionary, Miss Mabel Clazie, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Allan Clazie. He is now retired and living in Belleville.

There will be an 85th anniversary banquet on Wednesday evening in the church hall sponsored by the W.A. and it is expected a large number of church members and their friends will take this opportunity of attending this fine function.

IN MEMORIAM

IN MEMORIAM
RUSHLOW. — In loving memory of our dear mother, Ellen Rushlow, who passed away October 20th, 1952.
God knew how much we missed her,
So He closed her weary eyelids,
And whispered, "Come home dear,"
We cried in the beautiful hills of God,
By the lake of the silver sea,
Sometime, someday, I know not when,
We'll meet you
In that beautiful home dear mother, there.
—Lovingly remembered by John Rushlow and family and grandchildren.

PHILLIPS. — In loving memory of a dear husband, Reid, George N. Phillips, who passed away October 20th, 1952.
What we would give, if we could but say,
"Smile, Dad," in the same old way
To hear your voice, see your smile,
To sit with you once more that awhile.
So you who have a father,
Thank him now
For you'll never know the heartache
We know.
Till you are in your chair.
—Sadly missed by wife and family.

CAVANAGH. — In loving memory of our dear father, Thomas Cavanagh, who passed away October 20th, 1957.
John Percy Cavanagh, who passed away October 20th, 1957.
His thoughts were all so full of us,
His deeds were kind,
And so we think that where he is,
He's thinking of us still.
Please God, let him know
That he is loved and not forget.
As we all miss him so —Deeply missed by Marion, son and daughter-in-law, Ronald and Cathy Cavanagh of St. John, N.B.

SMITH. — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Charles Smith, who passed away October 20th, 1952.
His smiling way and gentle ways,
Are a pleasure to recall;
He had a kindly word for each,
And died beloved by all.
God saw he was tired, sent him,
Some rest beside the stream,
To clasp his hand in the better land,
And call him home.
—Sadly missed by wife Cecilia and children, Mrs. Ruth Bedford, Cecil, Doreen, Paul and Dale.

WOODWORTH. — In loving memory of a dear father, Frank Wadsworth, who died October 20th, 1956.
A loving father, kind and true,
No friend on earth could wish for more,
He did his best,
And God gave him eternal rest.
Deep in our hearts his memory lingers,
Sweetly tender, fond and true,
As we think of him the dearest father,
We ever knew.
—Ever remembered and sadly missed by daughter, Mrs. Bernard and Mabel.

DOWNEY. — In loving memory of our dear mother and grandmother, who passed away October 20th, 1956.
We sit and think of days gone by,
Lonely are our hearts today;
We miss her smile, her gentle ways,
Her memory will never stray.
We think of her in silence,
We often shed a tear,
But when sweet tears are shed,
When there are none to see,
Sadly missed and ever remembered by Son, Daughter and Gary Lee.

DOWNEY. — In loving memory of a dear mother and grandmother, who passed away October 20th, 1956.
Peacefully she sleep, dear mother,
Sweetly she rests alone,
In life I loved you dearly,
In death I do the same.
Sit I think of you, dear mother,
And picture you at rest,
You left a memory dear to us,
Could I hear your voice again,
Could I clasp your hand in mine,
Never shall your memory fade;
Sweet thoughts shall linger ever,
Around the grave where you are laid.
—Ever remembered by daughter-in-law and son, daughter-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Kirk and Barbara.

Quinte Squadron Of Air Cadets Wins Award

TORONTO (CP) — The Air Cadet League of Canada was urged Saturday to keep expanding while efforts are made to achieve an authorized strength raised to 25,500 from 24,000.

National President J. E. Le-Droit told the league's provincial committee the league almost has reached its present ceiling but should continue to form new units.

Sault Ste. Marie Squadron was awarded the Westman Shield for attaining the highest efficiency among Ontario squadrons.

Awards for service to the movement went to G. H. R. Phillips of Algonquin Park, Dr. Ian Mackay of Toronto and Charles Morris of Mimico, Ont.

No. 608 squadron at Quinte won the Struthcona Award for the highest efficiency among Ontario squadron associated with a school.

Col. R. F. Inch of Hamilton was re - elected Ontario chairman. Other officers elected were: Lt.-Col. Erb, Kitchener; Victor Simpson, Port Colborne; Dr. W. Whitley Trenton; A. R. Cousins, Toronto.

$9,000 Collected In First Four Days of Campaign

Approximately $9,000 or slightly over ten per cent of the campaign objective of $85,000 has been raised during the first four days of the Belleville United Appeal, it was announced today by campaign chairman, Mr. Archie Lavelle.

The returns were from Wednesday until Saturday evening.

Mr. Lavelle noted today that it was still too early to form an opinion as to how the campaign was progressing as only comparatively few of the 700 canvassers' kits had been turned in. These are turned in only when completed and Mr. Lavelle indicated it would be several days before any concrete figures on the campaign total could be given.

"On a ten per cent basis it is still too early to form an opinion," he said.

The house-to-house canvass will get underway on October 27th.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — Golds were easier but the rest of the stock market moved ahead today in moderate morning trading.

Industrials set the pace, gaining almost three-quarters of a point on index. Base metals were ahead one-quarter while western oils showed a few decimal points gain. Golds were off a few decimal points.

Volume at 11 a.m. was 1,001,600 shares, down slightly from Friday's 1,108,600 at the same hour.

Trans Mountain Pipe Line was the most active industrial, gaining ¾ at 12¾ on 6,300 shares. Hollinger eased ¾ at 27½ to lead golds off. There were few changes especially among the seniors in the section.

Cecil Ellis Named Captain Of Trenton Fire Department

TRENTON — Cecil Ellis, 41, was given full charge of the Trenton Fire Department Saturday afternoon following a special meeting of the town council. He will hold the rank of Captain.

The section of the five councillors, Councillor Fox was out of town on business, left the post of Fire Chief open but their decision indicated that if Mr. Ellis could prove himself capable of the job after six months the rank of chief could well be his.

The councillors also left the decision of re-instating the former volunteers in the hands of Mr. Ellis, who later stated they would all be taken back on the volunteer staff.

The meeting of the council, which was not open to the press or public, brought to a conclusion the many weeks of anxiety by the firemen and Trentonians in general as to who would head the local brigade following the sudden death of the late Fire Chief Clarence Orser.

The meeting in charge of the firemen and police had secretaried contact with a most suitable man to handle the job of Fire Chief. To this end they received 15 applications. Nine of them had been called in for an interview by the councillors and included in these nine were two men in this district, and Lieut. Gord Coughlin.

All were eliminated for one reason or another until only three were left to pick from. One of these "finals" was reported to have failed to pass a medical test and another had been given a position with his home-town department and he said withdrawn. This left Mr. Ellis who was given the job as head of the Trenton Fire Department.

One member of the council, who did not wish to be named, said the councillors were in favor of hiring Mr. Ellis but they also felt he should receive more training in fire fighting. This will apparently be done by sending him on two-to-three courses at the expense of the town.

IN COMPLETE CHARGE

The member of council also said Mr. Ellis will be in complete control of the department. He will have the power to hire or discharge the firemen but the number of men he hires will be set by the town council.

It was reported that most of the councillors had high praise" for the way Captain Ellis brought the recent fire at the Boston Cafe block under control and the recent campaign of fighting local buildings for fire hazards.

With the naming of Captain Ellis as the chief of the department and the re-instating of the former volunteers, along with the new volunteers hired, the fire department is as follows: Chief, C. Ellis; Captain of the volunteers, Frank Sager; Lieuts. Harland with the assistance of Sgt. Jack Lewis of the Ontario Provincial Police, presented the Elmer safety pennant to the school. The pennant was raised by Sgt. Lewis with all the children in attendance, and informative pamphlets on safety rules were distributed to the children. It is to be hoped that the Elmer campaign will make the students more safety conscious.

CAPTAIN CECIL ELLIS

Damage Light In Two Mishaps

TRENTON.— Only two accidents on town streets were reported over the weekend with damage to the four cars involved estimated at a total of $150.

On Saturday at 8.35 p.m. two cars collided on Sidney Street near the CPR subway. A car being driven by Len Goudy of 311 Aylmer Street in Peterborough was proceeding south on Sidney Street and was being followed by another car being operated by Clinton Dopking of 96 West Street, Trenton. According to the police report the Peterborough driver had applied his brakes to make the turn into the CPR laneway and the second car, in attempting to pass, hit the side of the out — of — town vehicle. Damage to both cars was estimated at $70. The mishap was investigated by Constable Russell King.

Five hours later, at 1.30 p.m., another two-car accident was reported on Dundas Street West. Joe Gould, Jr., had stopped his taxi in the line of traffic and was waiting for the traffic lights on the bridge to change when a car being driven by Raymond Short of the RCAF Station, Trenton, also proceeding east, came down the left - turn lane and hit the rear corner of the taxi. Damage to both vehicles was estimated at $80. The accident was investigated by Constable George French. The airman was charged with driving without an operator's licence.

Bayside School Has Safety Elephant

Elmer the Safety Elephant has arrived at the Bayside Public School, much to the delight of all the children.

At nine a.m. on October 16th the president of the Kiwanis Club, Mr. C. Lusk, and Mr. G. Harland with the assistance of Sgt. Jack Lewis of the Ontario Provincial Police, presented the Elmer safety pennant to the school. The pennant was raised by Sgt. Lewis with all the children in attendance, and informative pamphlets on safety rules were distributed to the children. It is to be hoped that the Elmer campaign will make the students more safety conscious.

High School Activities

The United Nations Club of BCIVS will celebrate United Nations Day by presenting the assembly program on October 29. One of the features of this event will be a report by Joan Onderdonk and Armin Quickert of grade XII on the United Nations Assembly which they attended last spring.

The "Manhattan Ramblers" of the Senior Classes of the Commercial Course at BCIVS are planning a four day tour of New York over the Easter weekend, March 28 to March 30.

On Wednesday of this week the BCIVS Keyettes held a noon-hour candy sale from which they realized twenty-five dollars. This money is to be sent to CARE, the United Nations fund for sending supplies to needy people overseas.

A special committee of the BCIVS Students' Council is organized at the moment in a major revision of the Council constitution.

Town Briefs

TRENTON — Town fire trucks made two runs yesterday and another on Saturday but none of the fires was of a serious nature. On Saturday at 1.13 p.m. they went to the home of Mrs. J. H. Prud-Homme, 28 Dundas Street west where smoke had been noted and the firemen called. It was found to be in the flue in the furnace. On Sunday morning at 11:35 an oil burner at the home of Mrs. Forbes, 200 Front Street got out of control and the firemen called in to put it out. At 1:50 p.m. yesterday they were called to Frisks Avenue where a grass fire had been reported. It was found that weeds were being burnt off the marshland area there to clear it for the purpose of ice skating this winter. No amount of damage was reported in any of the fires.

WANT COMMISSION CHANGE

A special meeting of the Trenton Town Council on Saturday afternoon to name a chief for the town fire department also took the fire' step in a proposed change-over in members of the local Police Commission. At present it consists of the mayor of Trenton, magistrate and a judge. The councillors decided by resolution that the Attorney General's Department that a member of the town council be appointed by the Magistrate on the commission. Council named Councillor Ray Fox as their choice for this post and his name will be forwarded to the Attorney General along with the request.

CAT IS KILLED

Town policemen were forced to put an injured cat out of pain Sunday afternoon. A resident of Dundas Street reported that he had seen the cat behind their home and dragging itself toward the back of their property. Policemen in the cruiser answered the call and found the cat had probably been hit by a car and was in severe pain. It had managed to crawl about 400 yards when the officers arrived.

TAKE CHARTERED TOUR

A Rathbun bus left this morning at 8 a.m. with 36 passengers from the county on a chartered four-day tour which will take them to New York and back. Driving the bus will be veteran driver Henry "Hank" Barrie and Leo Jones. The bus will go via Kingston, over the Ivy Lea road to Watertown in the U.S.A. They will pass through the Adirondacks and the big highway which will lead through the Lisbon Tunnel and to New York. On the return trip they will drive over the George Washington Bridge and the Storm King Mountains to Watertown and back to Trenton.

FENCE DAMAGED

Mrs. Gordon Thompson of 96 Wragge Street reported to the Trenton Police that a hit-and-run driver had damaged the fence in front of her home sometime before 11 a.m. on Sunday. On investigating Sgt. Gord Steenburg and Constable George French found that the motorist had apparently hit the tracks, been proceeding east on Wragg Street and made a left turn onto Lorne. The car had apparently gone across the sidewalk and hit the fence. Damage was estimated at $50.

REPORTS DAMAGE

Nels Rhyne of Trenton reported to police that his truck he was driving to the extent of about $50 when he hit a pothole. He said he was proceeding west along King Street and when turning into the Market Square a parking area the side of the panel truck scraped along the side of a car there. The damage was caused to the left front fender and door of the truck with no damage reported to the pole. The mishap occurred about 9.20 p.m. Saturday.

OLD RIFLE FOUND

Doug Tyrer of R.R. 3, Frankford, made a strange find over the weekend when he pulled from town one of the outbuildings at his home. It was a rifle mark-ed 1863 with the word Victoria and a crown underneath the wording. Mr. Tyrer took the rifle to police station where it was driven by Sgt. Steenburg and Constable George French found that the motorist had apparently hit the tracks, been proceeding east on Wragg Street and made a left turn onto Lorne. The car had apparently gone across the sidewalk and hit the fence. Damage was estimated at $50.

His First Time

Fox Chases Cars on Street, Shot by Constable in Alley

TRENTON — Constable Fred Nokes shot a rabid fox in town yesterday afternoon after it was seen chasing cars on Division Street and also had a brief encounter with a dog.

The town constables got the fox cornered in a narrow alley behind McPherson's Tire store on King Street and it was then Constable Nokes took aim with a shotgun and killed the crazed animal. On going in the alleyway, which was about 18 inches wide, to get the carcass Constable Nokes noticed the fox move its head and he fired a pistol shot into its head to make sure it was dead and he would not be bitten.

The dog with which the fox had a fight will be quarantined to make sure it has not contacted the rabies virus. The dog is one of several very highly of skunk and also had possession of cattle in its nose. It was very thin and "scrawny" looking and is believed to have gone some time without food.

Earlier yesterday morning motorists had reported that a fox was seen on the Carrying Place Road and refused to move out of the path of the vehicles. When a constable from the Trenton Police Department arrived the animal was not in sight.

The police believe it could have been the same fox which was killed by the constable in town later in the day.

Trenton police officials got in touch with veterinarians in Belleville and it was later reported the animal had rabies. Most rabies cases handled chiefly on the smell of skunk on the body of the fox. They said it is rare for a fox or skunk unless they are crazed by the disease.

It is the first report of rabies in the town of Trenton this year.

MILK BAR CLOSES

The Dairy Queen Milk bar on the eastern outskirts of Trenton closed shop last night following a successful summer season but with business reported somewhat better than last year. The Dairy Queen was operated by Horace Wright of Belleville.

COUNCILLORS VISIT PLANT

Councillors Lloyd Worrell and Charles Hilton left yesterday morning for points in the province of Quebec on business for the town of Trenton. It is expected they will spend some of their time in the Thebault plant where the new aerial ladder truck is being built for the town. While there they will make arrangements to have one or two of the members of the permanent fire department from Trenton to go to the factory where they will be taught to operate the unit. It is also not expected the councillors will be back for the regular council meeting which is scheduled for tonight.

GARAGE MOVED

Graham's Garage is in the process of moving to their new quarters in the former Mc-Lean's Garage on Dundas St. east and just across the street from the Dominion Store. The former McLean's Garage will be moving to Kingston. They will take over the space formerly occupied by Graham's on Dundas St. West is not known.

SUPPORTS LOOSENED

Some Trentonians have expressed their fear of walking by the front of the Trans Block on Dundas St. west where a "protection front" has been built and from there since fire destroyed the building on August 12. Cars parking in front of the building have knocked some of the supporting boards loose and it is expected some others have been loosened by pranksters. The plywood partition has a bad lean towards the street and some people are nervous when walking past it.

SIX AWAY, HOME BURNS

OAKVILLE (CP)—A family of six was left homeless Sunday night when fire destroyed their five-room frame house near Queen Elizabeth Way. Mr. and Mrs. Robert La Roche were both on a trip and unaware of the fire.

PLATO'S AND TAIL FINS

Modern technology is certainly a wonderful boon to mankind. Pop-up toasters, chrome-finned cars, and mattresses that rock and roll are but a few of the creations manufactured and developed for our society. Atomic power plants, polio vaccine, and an international seaway system are but a few more. That technology should continue to produce similar benefits and more for mankind's use is certainly undisputable. That more and more young men and women should train for careers in scientific and technological fields in order to effectively fill the many positions which these fields have to offer is certainly quite important to our civilization's future.

However, we feel that in this flush of technical and scientific mazerainty over any other period in history, if not over all recorded eras in the past, we have lost sight of time's most enduring figures — the philosophers. Of these there have been many kinds — political, social, ecclesiastical — and they have left a definite mark on succeeding generations' ways of life. Some philosophers were duly honored in their time, others were persecuted or executed. But their thoughts and ideas have lived with mankind through the centuries. Some facets of our modern way of life originated with Plato, Aristotle and Pliny over two thousand years ago. Other concepts which our way of life embraces were formed during the "middle ages" by Thomas Aquinas; during the Renaissance by Bacon and Hobbes, and more recently by Locke, Mill, Marx and Hegel, to mention but a very few.

These persons were the products of what might be called "classical education." We hear very little about this today but we feel that it is something which cannot be forgotten or ignored because of a pre-occupation with material and technological advancement. Every where we hear the loud cries of educators, heads of industry, politicians for more and larger technological institutes (they may call them colleges or universities) to produce more and better-trained scientists and technicians. We do not hear many voices, however, crying for men of wisdom rather than men of knowledge. This should not be. It is possible that the best civilization is one in balance or harmony with itself. Too much emphasis on technology or, for that matter, too much emphasis on philosophy, is dangerous An unbalanced object must surely fail.

We need more Bertrand Russell's, Albert Schweitzer's and Woodrow Wilson's, as well as more Banting's, Einstein's and von Braun's.

Perhaps somehow, somewhere . . . .

YOU PAYS YOUR MONEY - - -

Very Rev. J. P. Leonard, national director of the Holy Child Association, is shocked by "the unbelievable behavior of many young people."

J. Harold Wilkins, president of Optimist International, says that never has youth been so "clean, honest upright."

Father Leonard says the behavior of youth points to "a civilization that has decayed because of the false theories of life and of education."

Mr. Wilkins says that "tomorrow the world will be in the safest hands of all time because the present generation of youth is the greatest of these 2,000 years."

It strikes us that the very fact that two people could hold such diametrically opposed views about youth is an indication that both may be right - - to a degree. If views can differ this sharply, so, too, can individuals.

Not all young people are as bad as those Father Leonard described, and, indeed, he did not say that they are.

Not all young people are as good as those Mr. Wilkins praised, and if he implied that they are we perhaps should not expect anything different from the president of the Optimists.

Our conviction is that young people today, like young people yesterday and old people today, are both good and bad; that the bad people may ruin the world, but not necessarily so; that the good people may make it safe but that there is no guarantee that in being clean, honest and upright people a man to solve problems of the dimensions which face the world today, and that, in the years that lie ahead, some of the young people who today shock Father Leonard will become leaders of high integrity, and some of Mr. Wilkins' clean, honest, upright youths will be in durance vile, and deservedly so.

THE INTERESTING ONE

By EDGAR A. GUEST

At breakfast time I love to read
The morning paper every day,
I read the news the while I feed,
Despite the cross words they may say.
It interests me through and through.
But still more interesting yet,
And one that I look forward to—
The paper that I do not get.

It always seems to me as though
Some wicked fate were mixed in thing
When there is news I want to know,
That is the paper that I miss.

I'll not complain about the boy—
But still it is my one regret
That I'm the one I do not get.
Is just the one I do not get.

When at an early hour I rise,
If you are near and hear me swear,
Lest it should take you by surprise
You'll know my paper isn't there.

It aggravates me through and through.
All breakfast time I sit and fret,
The paper I look forward to
Is just the one I do not get.

Would Unify Armed Forces

By Arthur Blakely, in The Montreal Gazette.

The Canadian Army Journal, which usually steers well clear of controversies, has launched one of its stiffest issue by publishing in full the prize in a competition sponsored by the Conference of Defence Associations. The subject on which the paper had to read with profit by Defence Minister George Pearkes, his staff and all the other experts plagued by the rising cost of modern weapons, and by the taxpayer who foot the bill for same.

The author of the winning essay was Major W. H. Pope, M.C., D.C., of the Royal 22nd Regiment.

He wrote on this fascinating subject: "Eminent authorities have suggested that the three fighting services can be replaced by a single unified fighting service. Discuss the desirability of such proposals. What do you think would be the preliminary phases in this conversion?"

Perhaps this is the sort of topic calculated to cause the orthodox thinkers to run around frenzied as to raise their heads in horror and their voices in righteous indignation.

And it is not for nothing that the editors of the Canadian Army Journal prefaced the essay with a polite note reading: "Publication does not, of course, that the opinions expressed in this essay are necessarily to reflect the views of the Department of National Defence."

Hmmph. Necessarily, indeed.

It is, of course, one thing to combine the medical services of the armed forces and from end to partially integrate the chaplain services of the same organizations. This has been announced recently — and to understand, between the three armed forces themselves.

This is, however, the line of thought followed and discussed by Major Pope, and with manifest intelligence. His prize-winning essay which netted him a $200-award from the Conference, makes fascinating reading.

Major Pope begins with the reasonable and basic conception of "sea power", "land power", and "air power" as being separate and independent entities" is totally false and misleading. Each is further subdivided into many components and the various trends make this perfectly clear.

Take, for example, the manned bomber upon which western air forces relied heavily to deliver nuclear weapons to enemy targets. Such bombers belong, clearly, to the air forces. But their days are numbered And rather so than later will be replaced by guided missiles. And which service will be able to claim the parentage of the future as their own- The air force, regarding the ICBM as its successor to today's bomber? Or the army, which considers the new weapon as a kind of long-range artillery piece? Or the navy, concerning the air types of vessels which will serve as huge, mobile launching platforms?

Major Pope argues that the land battles, the sea battles and the air battles will all a part of the whole and should not be considered separately.

"The army and the air force are not two services one learns for the winning of the land air battle," he writes, "their concepts, training and equipment are so separate. The navy, which operates the new ballistic missile submarine, also operates the field, helicopters for command, reinforcement, all-purpose operations, and evaluation of casualties, anti-submarine warfare, anti-air support and, finally, absurdities of absurdities, mine warfare. Does the big slice of the defence appropriations.

Major Pope concedes that some progress has been made towards unification in the fringe areas of the services. But this has involved, he says, starting on the wrong place.

"By all means," he comments, "let the parachute makers and candlestick makers But first unify the users; the general staff and the fighting elements of the forces; else the battle may be lost for the lack of a candlestick in the right hand, in the right place and at the right time."

Major Pope says bluntly that the inter-service controversy over whether the kind of war Canada is most likely to encounter will be of the conventional or nuclear sort, reflects the inability of army commanders to use the conventional war as a reason for maintaining the army's importance and, on the other hand, the preference of air commanders for a less clear war in which air power would be fully exploited.

The controversy, based more on pride of service than on fact," he says, "is highly dangerous.

Should the armed forces be unified?

Major Pope quotes Field Marshal Viscount Alexander: "If every nation had only one service there would be comparatively simple to determine how that service should be organized and equipped."

He draws attention to Montgomery's statement that tri-service organization prevents delay in the changes caused by scientific progress. And he cites Field Marshal Montgomery's view that disagreements, the friction, the hidden casualties, and waste of personnel, the vested interests and emotional attachments which are the sad by-products of the separation of the armed forces into three services and which do directly to reduce their efficiency"

He recalls the counsel of Maj.-Gen. W. F. S. Macklin, distinguished Canadian soldier now retired: "The three staffs now charged with planning, training and administration should be merged into one and be told to produce a single policy of defence and design a balanced force to carry it out. Likewise, the triple staffs now dealing with manpower, and with equipment and supplies should be amalgamated into one head apiece."

Major Pope, in short, calls for unification, and unification now. And it must, he says, be complete unification, even down to the abandonment of traditional uniforms and distinctive service names; a new service with new dress and new badges, perhaps the Canadian Defence Force.

The effect? There would, Major Pope believes, be a drastic reduction in the number of senior officers on strength at National Defence Headquarters. But there would be a "considerable reduction in the total number of personnel holding the rank of captain, major and lieutenant-colonel, or their air force or naval equivalents. In all, he estimates, there would be a saving in one-third and one-half in the number of officers required to run N.D.H.Q. which, of course, the Government succumbed to the temptation to increase and rejole by filling the vacant places with "supernumerary" officers designated to advise the one man who had retired than the two men who had been their respective services. He is certain that the new staffs of the three services would scarcely feel the impact of the change.

Once these steps were taken, manpower problems could be handled intelligently, Major Pope argues, as Major Pope points out, would the navy be discharging men when the army couldn't meet reinforcement quotas. The air force wouldn't be bidding against one another on the labor market.

Major Pope concludes: "A single, unified service can fight any war better and more economical" war. However in a nuclear war the disorgaffiliation caused by massive attack will be such that chaos and delay can be expected. The same thing less than a single, completely unified force.

"Let us, then, make traditional models, the British Army and the United States Army, have merged with their own navies and air forces. Might not Canada, with her traditions of compact and less committed forces, show the way?"

At the very least, it's a good question.

The Place of Parks

Winnipeg Free Press

A public park is an extended lawn; it is a playground only incidentally. There should be gardens in it and groves of trees. One thing there must be else it loses its essence as a park is spaciousness. It must be possible to stand back in a park to see and hear its clearing beauty from far off, across broad, rolling lawns.

Strength for The Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

REACHING FOR THE HIGHEST

Human life is a reflection of the life of God. The Bible tells us that we are made in the image and likeness of God, our creator. This is a figurative way of saying that there is something in us which reflects God, something of something in God. Furthermore, we are part of a great spiritual system. We are infinitesimal as regards size. We are immeasurably important as regards quality.

The trouble with most of us is that our lives are centre in ourselves. This is bad. Or it centres in the group in which we move, or in our work, or in our family. This is all vastly better — but not good enough. Because we are spiritual beings, our lives, if they are to be truly satisfying and fulfilling must be centred in God, even as Christ did. Human life is a reflection of the life of God.

We hear people spoken of as living full lives. We hear people live godly lives. This is a better explanation than we sometimes realize. For to be a truly godly person means, not something godly or artificial but simply being a part of the great divine current which sweeps through the universe. Real life is God.

We may think such a concept is far beyond us. But this is not true. It is more possible than we generally realize.

To Your Good Health

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

HEART ENLARGEMENT IS NOT ALWAYS SERIOUS

"Dear Dr. Molner: Please tell me what is meant by enlargement of the heart? Is it always serious? Is it good practice to take a small digitalis tablets for nervousness? M."

Enlargement of the heart means that, either now or in the past, the heart has had to work too hard, and is considered as a result. No, it is not always serious. Medical care it makes no visible difference to the person at all. Your question about digitalis puzzles me. If the digitalis is necessary, then certainly it is at all right to continue it indefinitely. But it won't prevent heart trouble just because you take it, and more than using crutches every day will prevent you from breaking a leg.

In fact, I know a fellow once who used crutches because of a sprained ankle, and then found his leg because he happened to get a crutch in the plate of strawberry ice cream at a church social, and it slipped. I know how it sounds — but it happened.

"Dear Dr. Molner: You will probably find this unimportant, but I thought I'd write you. I've too involved to go into, but what effect would the loss of a child's health to start drinking small amounts of root beer at 18 months and for years work it up to between a pint and a quart each day? — Ha. H. A."

You certainly stir my curiosity! I don't see any rare or unusual consequences from going on a root beer binge. It'll become very simple dangers. First, soft drinks contain a lot of sugar, and a child getting several hundred calories a day from pop — well, not that many, but nearly as less of the foods that will build him into a strong, healthy child. Second, I'd worry about his teeth from so much sugar. Third, I'd worry about what young is apt to hang on for life. Fourth, why should the child's mama keep the stuff as sort of an occasional treat?

"Dear Dr. Molner: What kind of a germ causes pneumonia? How does one come in contact with it? Is it curable? — Mrs. H. L."

It isn't exactly a germ, but a few small organisms known as pneumonias. How does one come in contact with it? This is not entirely clear. It is almost as common as the common cold.

Certainly most people come in contact with it, yet never suffer any ill effects. One important thing is treating a cold in the head or any other vaginal trouble — inflammation some kind of bacteria, pathogenic, faulty position of some part of the vaginal tract, etc. In time, general, after that, you can say it is curable. But individuals differ greatly in their ill effects to cure. Reinfection from the husband is a factor in chronic cases.

"Dear Dr. Molner: Recently I had a small hemorrhage in one eye, with the result that various specks and threadlike marks or circles appeared before my vision. Does this usually go away? Is it likely to occur again? Is there an indication of deeper serious trouble. I am over 60 but in good health. — C. F."

The specks and "threads" may well disappear — it depends on the location and severity of the hemorrhage. If small arteries have become fragile, and easily subject to fracturing, that isn't too unusual as we grow older. The things to watch out for are mainly high blood pressure, some blood disorder such as anemia, or diabetes. You may feel pretty good yet have a mild degree of any of these. What does your doctor say? Best known methods of reducing the fragility of blood vessels is a higher intake of calcium (milk), Vitamin C and Vitamin P (rutin), in some cases, a higher protein intake.

To you have a problem with old age? If so, write to me in care of this newspaper, requesting a copy of my pamphlet, "How to Keep Elderly Folk," enclosing a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 5c in coin to cover handling.

Cod Fishers Have Woes

— St. John's News

A review of the province's salt cod-fishery is an old story with something added.

From time immemorial, we have been plagued in that industry by a variety of misunderstables and uncontrollables.

There are years, when fish are plentiful and still won't come inside the trapping chamber.

There are years when there is plenty of fish and no salt.

There are years when fish are astonishingly scarce, bait or no bait.

All these things are age-old problems, and we've grown used to treating them as inevitable afflictions.

But over and above this has come a new problem. Many of our markets want hard-cured, light-salted fish and the Newfoundland fishermen are prepared to take the time and trouble to supply it.

And even if they did take the time and trouble, we would still have to face up to the fact that fish would have to be sold in competition with the bounty-fed fish of other countries.

HELP WARM THE WORLD

Warmth from the heart is the rarest heat in this world, for it costs nothing but one's desire to warm another. Help warm the world! Help warm the world with love. Spread what love you do. You have those famous lines: "And hearts of oak are more than hearts of oak, they are hearts of gold." That's why we need so much heart warmth in the world.

The friendly smile could easily warm a discouraged human being for weeks or months! — in fact, for a lifetime! I have saved great numbers of lives by smiling and signaling men and women, "You're my friend! You have proved it!" many a time. There are books that have warmed the world. I have a few of them. They are dear. One of these I have often mentioned in this brief space, is "Common Sense" by Michael Fabricus, who wrote under Thomas Paine's name. It is immortal little book that has warmed millions!

Do our blood to save life? Th i s may be one great way to warm the world. Blood is sweet and sacred ways. Why should there be bitterness, hatred, friendliness and lack of warmth as between nations? We should have warmth of heart and ideals. Without a lofty purpose people forget and are more cold. That's why we need so much heart warmth in the world.

There are people in this world who warm one, even though I may never have met them. I have a friend in Paris, in every world, however, and what a joy it is to bring this fact to those who have colder places than the two Poles, and they are many millions of millions of hearts, especially the mothers. We don't want any sort of a war. We want good will, and warm hearts to bring all mankind into the folds of peace.

Why can't we all turn in o u r warm hearts to all peoples, as we look

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

On the 80 mile an hour high-speed highway between Toronto and the home-going holiday traffic at 60, and occasionally 70 and a bit, I was tapping a rise, we saw ahead a long, line-up to the tail of which we were soon caught.

Only the odd one amongst us had been booked to fly at less, for negotiated around them and between them and better on the journey slight disturbances as our Miths homeward rush.

But here was a line-up of a hundred or more cars, and a spirit of impatience seemed to be transmitted both, from car to car, until the whole procession of cars was fuming and fretting on meeting the very infrequent upcoming car. This caused staggers in the line-up, and we were all very irritated.

Who could be holding us up? Why, there, one of those little squads of three or four slow-going cars. Three cars three or four of them in a bunch, all content to go 50, it is hard to pass them.

Then, about twenty minutes, as the line thinned out, we overtook the delinquents.

He was a provincial policeman, going peacefully 50 in his black and white car, radio antenna rising menacingly from the centre of his roof.

At a very cautious 51 or 52, we passed past him, and hurried on our way.

By the expression on his face as I passed past, I think he was listening to the Tchaikowski symphony.

Cardinals Begin Final Week Of Preparation

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The cardinals of the Roman Catholic Church today began the final week of preparations for election of a new pope.

The nine days of funeral services for Pope Pius XII ended Sunday in St. Peter's Basilica with a two-hour solemn requiem mass attended by representatives of 80 non-Communist lands.

The arrival Sunday night of Stefan Cardinal Wyszynski from Poland brought to 67 the number of princes of the church assembled in Rome for the conclave that will convene next Saturday to elect a new pope.

By the weekend all but two of the 84 living cardinals are expected to be at the Vatican. Absent will be Josef Cardinal Mindszenty, who has taken asylum in the U.S. legation in Budapest, and Aoljuie Cardinal Stepinac, confined to his native Yugoslav village by President Tito's government.

CHEERED ON ARRIVAL

A thousand cheering persons massed at the Rome railway station to greet 60-year-old Cardinal Wyszynski, who was kept under house arrest by the Communist for three years.

The welcome amazed the prelate, who exclaimed, "My God, I did not know I was so popular. Why? Why?"

Robed in purpose, the cardinals sat in two long rows on each side of the apse area of St. Peter's Sunday for the final funeral mass for the late Pope. Behind them were Roman and foreign nobility and representatives of the foreign governments.

President Sian O'Kelly of Ireland was the highest - ranking mourner, the only chief of state present. The Earl of Perth, represented Queen Elizabeth.

The general public was not admitted.

Still another funeral remained for the cardinals this week. They must arrange last rites for Celso Cardinal Costantini, who died Friday night in a Rome hospital.

STUDY EARTH'S CRUST

WASHINGTON (AP)—The National Academy of Sciences has formed a committee to study the possibility of boring below the ocean floor in a search for clues to the earth's origin. Dr. Gordon G. Lill, chairman of the new committee, said Sunday night the group was formed to prepare a plan for exploring past what is considered the crust of the earth. The crust under the ocean is believed to be more than three miles thick.

CHILDREN DIE

WILMINGTON, N. C. (AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Dewitt Carroll have lost all their children. Mrs. Carroll gave birth to a stillborn baby last Wednesday. Sunday, her three other children were en route to take her home from hospital when their automobile collided with a passenger train. The two boys, 5, and 18, and the girl, 13, were killed.

20 of Crew Die As Oil Tanker Ripped by Blast

BOMBAY (Reuters) — An explosion ripped a hole in a British oil tanker in the Arabian Sea today, killing 20 members of its 70-man crew.

Another tanker rescued the 50 other crew members. Several were severely injured.

The explosion ripped apart the Midship House and blew away the bridge of the 17,406-pound tanker Stanvac Japan. The captain and first mate were killed.

The blast occurred 220 miles off Bombay and some 160 miles southwest of Karachi. Owned by the Standard Vacuum Transportation Company of London, the tanker was sailing in ballast to the Persian Gulf to load a cargo of crude oil.

Another tanker, the Patricia, was standing by the stricken ship and two sister ships of the Stanvac Japan were racing to the scene.

The tanker was built in Japan and was the biggest ever built by the Japanese when she was launched five years ago.

Aga Dresses Joe College

By TOM HENSHAW

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP)—A spartan suite of dormitory rooms at Harvard College is a sort of headquarters for some 20,000,000 Ismaili Moslems scattered around the world.

It's the college home of the Aga Khan IV, darkly handsome, 21-year-old head of the Ismailis.

The Aga Khan has been to Harvard before. But that was before he succeeded his grandfather, the Aga Khan III, who died in July, 1957. Then he was Prince Karim Khan—or just plain "K" to his classmates.

Things have changed for "K" at Harvard.

"When he was here before," says a classmate, "he was best known for being vaguely related to Rita Hayworth (the actress-second wife of his father, Aly Khan). Now there's an air of Oriental mysticism about him. Guys are a little afraid of him."

On the surface, the Aga Khan is just another undergrad sauntering across Harvard Yard with a blue notebook under his arm or holding a tray in the dormitory chow line or intent on earning his letter as a member of the varsity soccer team.

But the Aga carries more courses (five) and probably studies harder than most students; he works fulltime at administering the spiritual and many of the physical needs of his people; and he refuses, politely but absolutely, to talk about his personal affairs.

In addition to studies, the Aga works hard at his job of Ismaili leader. The administrative work is carried on by letter and cable in the nearby hotel suite of his secretary, Gaetano Seguel, a blonde Frenchwoman who held the same post with his grandfather. The only other member of his official party in Cambridge is his personal aide, Michael Curtis, former editor of the London News Chronicle.

Around the Harvard Yard, the Aga dresses Joe College. His favorite outfit is a bulky dark green sports jacket and slightly baggy grey flannel trousers.

Fall Time to Take Root Cuttings

By FLORA M. SAVILLE

A chore for fall is the taking of root cuttings. Those plants which do not set seeds and are difficult to propagate by stem cuttings can often be multiplied by root cuttings. They are set into compost composed of two parts of sifted loam, two parts sharp sand, one part granulated peat moss and one part leaf mold. Mix and screen the whole mixture. The depth of the box or pan will depend upon the length of the cuttings but four to six inches deep will do for most. Fill very long cuttings place a few inches of loam on the bottom and cover with four inches of the compost.

November and February are the best times to start the cuttings. If you have artificial heat the November cuttings will have three months growth to the good and will be ready to bloom in the garden next summer. If you must depend upon a cool sunporch or a basement wall until February the natural season of growth and t h e longer days will aid in forcing new growth.

The length and thickness of the cuttings will depend upon what plants you are rooting. Those plants which produce large thick roots it will be best to take roots the size of a lead pencil rather than about inch-thick roots. In plants like perennial phlox where the roots are thinner choose fresh new roots rather than old mature ones. Two to four inches long is the best length for most varieties. If possible have some lateral as these will draw in moisture and feed the cutting. The new roots and top growth appear. It is possible to root shorter cuttings from some plants. A slice of root an a quarter of an inch thick has been rooted from the thin roots but longer cuttings are best especially where no bottom heat is available.

When plants have become infected with disease healthy n e w plants may be had from root cuttings. Be sure to destroy all portions of the stock.

When taking cuttings make sure you have the right end up by cutting the top straight across and the bottom end diagonally. Dusting the cuttings with some rooting hormone powder will aid in root formation. Water the compost in the box thoroughly and allow to drain for several hours before planting the cuttings. Cover the cuttings on the dry side until top growth appears. Too damp soil will encourage fungus growth and rot. Make a hole for the root with a pencil or dibble and place the cuttings two inches apart. Firm the soil around them and cover with a thin layer of compost. Set box in light but not sunny position. Water with weak liquid manure, or fertilizer when top growth is well established.

If the root cuttings are to be started in February, Dig them as late as possible in the fall and store in plastic bags buried in sand in the basement, or out on the ground in a protected position. Cover plastic bags of straw or leaves so the cuttings may be dug out in February.

Perennial hybrid gaillardias may be rooted by planting the parent plants in July without covering the drainage hole. Set in a bed of sand. In a few months the roots will have grown right into the soil. Tip the pot out off the roots. Cover and grow in that place to see if new top growth appears. When well established move to border.

FALLS 11 STOREYS

NEWARK, N. J. (AP)—A hospital attendant saw a patient slip from his grasp and plunge 11 storeys to his death Sunday after a nurse found the man hanging by his hands from a window ledge outside his room.

The man, Charles Rogers, 64, had been admitted to Martland Medical Centre a week ago for treatment of a urinary infection.

FIND HUNGRY CHILDREN BY MOTHER'S BODY

Unaware that their mother lay dead on her bed, these three children spent three days searching empty cupboards for food, while locked in their small flat in Toronto. Twins Michael, left, and Patrick Gallagher, right, and their sister, Darlene, five, told police they thought their mother was "asleep." The nearly starved children were rescued when the landlady and a tenant saw smoke seeping from the flat and called firemen. The children had ignited a piece of cardboard on the gas stove but the fire was soon extinguished. The dead woman had accidentally choked to death and the children were left with only a few raw potatoes and a tomato for food. The father, Walter Gallagher left Toronto October 14 to work in North Bay.

LADIES' AUXILIARY

The Ladies' Auxiliary to the Canadian Legion held its regular meeting in the Legion Hall, Pinnacle Street, Thursday evening with Mrs. William Bailey, president, presiding. A good attendance of members was present.

Arrangements were made for the coming bazaar and tea, also for the Hallowe'en party with Mrs. Ethel Pearce as convener. Other business matters concluded the evening.

EDWARDS — UENS

DESERONTO — A lovely autumn wedding, was solemnized on October 18 in St. Vincent De Paul Church, Deseronto, when Miss Muriel Joan Uens, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Uens, became the bride of Leo David Edwards, son of Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Edwards, Deseronto. The Rev. C. T. Martin performed the ceremony.

The bride was radiantly attired in a waltz-length gown of white satin with fitted bodice and full flowing skirt with nylon lace appliques. She wore long armlets ending in lily points. Her shoulder length veil of French tulle was held in place by a seed pearl and brilliant tiara, and she carried a bouquet of pink and white roses.

The bride's matron of honor, Mrs. Jack Edwards of Stirling as matron of honor, gowned in turquoise velvet sheath dress with matching headpiece and carried a bouquet of yellow and white carnations.

The bridegroom was attended by his brother, Mr. Jack Edwards, of Stirling.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the Legion Hall.

The bride's mother, wearing a navy taffeta dress with matching accessories and a corsage of red carnations, received the guests. Assisting her, were the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Uens in a navy bengaline suit, with pink accessories, and a corsage of pink carnations.

For a motor trip to Kentucky, the bride wore a royal blue wool dress, with navy duster, with matching accessories and a corsage of red roses.

Guests were present from Belleville, Napanee, Kingston, Stirling, Peterborough and Niagara Falls, N.Y.

Prior to her marriage, the bride was tendered a miscellaneous shower held at the home of Mrs. Glen Waddingham with Mrs. D. Meeks as co-hostess.

CLARK — NEWTON

TWEED — A quiet but pretty wedding took place in the Presbyterian Church, Tweed, at 2.00 p.m. when the Reverend Gervis H. Hodges united in marriage Nadine Nola Newton, only daughter of Mr. Edgerton Newton of Hungerford, and the late Mrs. Newton, to Howard Franklin Clark, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Clark, also of Henderson.

The bride looked lovely in a waltz-length gown of white, ruffled nylon lace over taffeta and taffeta, with matching lace bolero with long sleeves. Her fingertip length veil was in place by a tiara of sequins and simulated pearls and she carried a cascade of pink and white poms and carnations.

The bridesmaid was Miss Lorraine Clark of Henderson, only sister of the bridegroom. She wore a waltz-length gown of nile green nylon over nylon and taffeta with matching net bolero with three-quarter sleeves and carried a yellow and yellow roses and a tiara of the same flowers.

The reception was held at the home of the bridegroom's parents for immediate relatives and the bridegroom's mother received the guests wearing a charcoal grey dress with matching accessories. Her corsage was pink rosebuds and lily-of-the-valley.

Those who served were: Mrs. Mamie Steele, Mrs. Eric Clark and Mrs. Jessie Clark, all relatives of the bridegroom.

The bridegroom's (arrivari) was held in the evening at the home of the bride after which the couple left on a trip to Niagara Falls and other points.

On their return, they will reside at Henderson, Ont.

HENIGMAN — SAVARA

BATAWA — The Sacred Heart Church at Batawa, was the setting Saturday morning of a pretty fall wedding when Miss Ida Savara, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Savara, Batawa, became the bride of Frank Henigman, of Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Henigman, of Yugoslavia. Rev. Father L. Gaudreau celebrated the Nuptial Mass.

Pink and white gladioli and chrysanthemums decorated the church for the event. Sister Carmel Rose played the wedding music and Mass Mikaelcic was the soloist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white satin and nylon lace. The bodice was designed with long pointed sleeves and embroidered with sequins. The waltz-length skirt had a fingertip veil of embroidered silk illusion and carried a shower bouquet of red and white roses.

The maid-of-honour, Miss Helen Meier, wore a gown of pink crystal charm, designed along Princess lines with a V-neckline. She wore a pink headdress and carried a bouquet of pink roses and pink and white chrysanthemums.

The groomsman was Mr. Ivan Zelar of Gananoque.

At the reception, held at the

SPICER — WOOD

TWEED — Miss Irene Mary Wood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Wood, of Northbrook, was married to Clarence Stanley Spicer of Cloyne on Saturday, October 8th, in Northbrook United Church. The Reverend Douglas Lound of Tweed, performed the ceremony.

The front of the church was beautifully enhanced with baskets of asters and green foliage.

Mrs. Violet Hope presided at the organ, and accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Hotsebeker.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attractively gowned in turquoise velvet over taffeta, with pearl - studded headdress and turquoise veil. She carried a bouquet of roses, carnations, and lily-of-the-valley.

Her sister-in-law, Mrs. Arthur Wood, as matron of honor, was gowned in navy and white printed nylon, with copen blue accessories.

The flower girls were twin daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Verna and Vera Spicer, daintily dressed in flowered nylon with matching flowered headdresses.

Mr. Arthur Wood, R. R. 2, Cloyne, was groomsman. Pastor and Mr. Herbert Conboy of Ferrisleigh was the usher.

Following the ceremony, a wedding supper was served in the dining room with the bride's mother wearing navy and pale blue embroidered jersey, and corsage of deep pink carnations and lilies of the valley. The bride's table for reception and dance was held in the Northbrook Community Hall.

For the wedding trip to Niagara Falls, Mrs. Spicer donned a navy blue suit with accessories. They will reside on the bridegroom's farm, between Cloyne and Northbrook.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding were present from Toronto, Newburgh, Lansdowne, Ivanhoe, Cloyne, Tweed, Arden, Mountain Grove and Ottawa.

BOUCHER — WILSON

TWEED — By candlelight in a floral setting of yellow and green chrysanthemums at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Tweed, Saturday evening, October 11th, the Reverend R. D. MacLeod of Belleville, performed a double-ring wedding ceremony uniting Miss Doreen Marion Wilson and Mr. Gerald Edward Boucher, both of Peterborough.

The bride is daughter of Mr. and Mrs. McKinley Wilson, of Tweed, who was given in marriage by her father.

Her Empire line gown with fitted bodice was of white crystal charm. The flared skirt featured panel fullness in a center section at the back, and the high line sleeveless bodice was accented with a Sweetheart neckline. A matching jacket, also featuring the high line with sleeves, pointed and buttoned at the lower edge, and a pointed collar, was worn. Her three pearls were set in her crown headpiece and draped in the back topped with a larger seed pearl, and at the front was caught with a pearl, fingertip veil of silk illusion with hand-rolled edge. She completed a crescent of white Sweetheart roses and stephanotis.

Mrs. Eric Orbell, of Peterborough, was matron of honor for the bride wearing a gown and jacket identical to the bride's in pale blue and gold shot crystal charm, with matching pleated pin dot plateau hat. Her flowers were a corsage shasta mums in a cascade arrangement.

The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hector A. Boucher, of Toronto, was attended by his brother, Donald Boucher, also of Toronto. Ushers were Eric Orbell and Bruce Wilson.

Mrs. Clifford Wallenmaker of Tweed, was the soloist and sang, "The Lord's Prayer" and "Wedding Hymn" with Mrs. Garrett Morton at the organ.

At the Tweedsmuir Hotel in Tweed, guests from Peterborough, Toronto, Bancroft, Monireal, Ottawa, Oshawa, Belleville and Tweed were received by Mrs. Wilson who was wearing navy Chantilly lace over taffeta with navy hat with pink trim, and a corsage of pink baby mums and white Pinocchio mums.

The bridegroom's mother chose a gown of grape satin crystal charm and accessories in pale dusty rose. Her corsage was white carnations.

Mr. and Mrs. Boucher are spending their honeymoon in Northern City, after which they will live in Peterborough.

When going away the bride chose a sheath dress with back blousing detail of wool crepe in a combination of red, black, green grey and white, with a small feather hat in black, white and green, black handbag and shoes and carried her grey Persian lamb jacket.

University Women's Club Enjoys Talk by Canadian Designer

The first regular meeting for the fall season of the University Women's Club was held Thursday at St. Thomas' Parish House with Thor Hansen as guest speaker.

One of Canada's foremost designers, Mr. Hansen spoke on "Canadian Cultural Developments." A native of Denmark, Mr. Hansen came to this country in 1927 and was surprised at that time to find no truly Canadian craftsmanship, design or artistry. In fact only in the last ten years has Canada become conscious of industrious and Canadians are teenagers compared to Europeans, in this respect. The Canadian Cultural warned that culture which be defined as the refinement of passions, thoughts and emotions cannot be produced at will, but is to effect a two-way line consisting of true appreciation and achievements which evolve naturally from a desire for something beautiful.

For years North Americans have tried to emulate and import European culture and this is only recently that Canadians have realized that some of what they formerly considered to be pure commercialism was in fact the roots of a truly distinctive Canadian culture.

Universal culture is neither possible, nor desirable, said Mr. Hansen, as conformity and standardization lead only to stagnation. Culture must, by nature, have a regional flavor-if it is to be genuine. Canada is the "Group of Seven" by preserving the folk arts, have created a truly progressive art movement.

In order to further cultural development in Canada Mr. Hansen said that interest must be aroused first, as many skilled artists may be refused against its will. Canada must have more active producers and less mere-consumption, said Mr. Hansen in conclusion, if cultural development is to progress.

Prior to Mr. Hansen's address the regular business meeting was held with the president, Mrs. John Haig, presiding.

At this time members were welcomed into the club.

Mrs. Hansen was introduced by Mrs. E. Pugh and thanked by Mrs. Arthur May.

Parley Held By Business Women's Clubs

SARNIA (CP)—The Business and Professional Women's Clubs of Ontario held its annual conference here during the weekend and passed resolutions on wages, penal reform, air pollution and housing.

Some 300 delegates, representing 26 Ontario clubs, were present to see that employers observed the Female Employees Fair Remuneration Act.

The association also recommended special prizes be established for women and that the age limit for juveniles in sports be under 18 instead of under 18 years. It also recommended the provincial government be asked to increase the scope of the mothers' allowances law and to set up a committee to investigate and study the placement needs of children who appear before Ontario juvenile courts.

Delegates voted to support federation of water supplies in Ontario communities.

Those attending the weekend conference included Madeline Rooney of Cobourg and Mrs. Helen Hogg, Sault Ste. Marie, provincial vice-presidents.

St. Michael's Appeals for Used Clothing

The C.W.L. Communion Sunday and the Blue Army of Fatima were under discussion at St. Michael's Sub-division of the Catholic Women's League meeting held Tuesday evening in St. Michael's Academy.

Since this Sunday was Communion Sunday, all members were asked to be present at the 8.30 Mass. The Very Reverend Dean Garvin stresses the point that he pertains especially to the laity in their families rather than in a group.

Mrs. R. Ackerman talked on the "Blue Army of Mary". There are 13 films in Ottawa waiting to be released for TV upon request.

These are on Communism and dealing with "Zero 1960". She spoke of the scapular and passed around a sample on a chain. The pendant going with the scapular, if conditions are followed, is, release from purgatory the first Saturday after death. Mr. W. Finkle has "Our Lady of Fatima" statue.

Dean Garvin opened with the prayer.

Mrs. Boyd is making another appeal for used clothing to be sent to Father Glover, 36 Oak Street is the address. She will gladly look after packing and shipping.

Mrs.—Horabeck reported 418 paid members.

Graduate St. Michael's Academy Speaker at Commencement

An interested yet appreciative audience filled St. Michael's Academy auditorium on Friday evening, to witness the annual presentation of intermediate certificates, and of prizes for outstanding academic work.

A senior student, Robertson Collins, led in the chairman.

The Reverend Harold O'Neill was the guest speaker and he introduced his former Stone. Father O'Neill began his address by referring to the recent launching of the moon-bound American rocket. In quick succession, he analyzed the different scientists watched, hour-by-hour, as the rocket gained momentum, switching to the second, third, and finally the last stage of its flight. The rendezvous with the moon was not kept, but the flight was credited as having been a success.

Addressing himself particularly to the graduates, the speaker continued: "The stage before you may be compared to the launching stage of that rocket. Not too much has been asked of you, you have been lavished on you, in preparation for it. You have been launched into eternity. Parents, friends, and teachers are watching the flight of your spiritual rocket, scientists, counting your chances of success. In the language of rocketry, you are 'go' for launch. If you fail, you will be a "green bird," not a "red bird"—or a rocket which fails.

"The most crucial moments in the life of a rocket are not the moments after launching, when it has to fly through the first thirty miles of the earth's atmosphere. It may tumble back, a million-dollar mass of flames.

TERRIFIC FORCES

"In the first stages of flight on your own, you too will encounter terrific forces. Pulling you down, forces keeping you close to earth. If you are not free of earth, you must make sacrifices and give up the things you love most of all in order to keep up to the level of pure thinking and the faithful service of God and of your fellow man.

"The first force may be called the attraction of distractions which fritter away your emergency powers—powers which, in these dangerous days, are needed to keep you on the right course. Some of these distractions; too frequent movies — good, bad, and indifferent; not to mention T.V.

"The second attraction is solitude. Some young people, even down a teen-ager as fast as falling in love in high school days. This is a disaster as it often not only loss in marks but in character, as the result is bewildered youth without any special drive — not knowing where they are going.

"The third force is the magnetic force of money. Even when climbing is getting steep and the going difficult, a good salary is quite attractive. The lode-stone of money keeps many down in the obscure valleys of life.

"In order to keep you from discouraging yourselves as mere mechanical robots in a mechanized world, let us point out the motive that should inspire you tonight. Your ultimate goal may seem to you to be the first day you came here to St. Michael's Academy. It is, in fact, to preserve God on earth, and afterwards to see and enjoy Him for eternity."

Kerry Soden thanked Father O'Neill.

Vocal selections by the senior girls included "Canada, Holy Queen Enthroned Above" and "Happy Days."

The students of Grades IX and X, as well as the graduates, enjoyed a party for the remainder of the evening.

Tabernacle WMS Hears Talk on Mexico

The regular monthly meeting of Tabernacle United Church was held in the church on Tuesday afternoon, with the president, Mrs. Ray Lockyer, presiding.

Worship service was conducted by Mrs. Slavin who read a portion of Scripture and offered prayer. The hymn was "Immortal, Invisible, God Only Wise" and the scripture was from the Bible warns man not to forget God when he gains great power and wealth. Man's ownership of great wealth and power is not absolute.

Property and wealth are blessings which God bestows on man.

Man can use this power and wealth in a selfish manner or benefit his neighbors.

Mrs. Gorsline read a letter from Mrs. Bell who is secretary for Community Friendship for Belleville Presbytery.

A discussion took place on visiting those confined to their homes by illness.

Mrs. Roy Brickman, Mrs. Gorsline, Mrs. Hagerman were named as a committee to make arrangements for a meeting soon in the home for the aged.

Mrs. Kestrel - displayed the book of Mexico for the book shelf and gave a short resume of same.

Mrs. Lockyer reminded the members of the annual rally of WMS at Eastminster on October 29.

Mrs. Osland, Mrs. Archibald and Mrs. Slavin were appointed a nominating committee for the slate of officers for 1959.

Mrs. Osland took charge of the study Book "Our Neighbors in Mexico". Many students come to Canadian Universities from Mexico.

Some of the problems in which the church is interested in Mexico are, evangelism, agriculture, health and education.

Many thousands of Bibles and copies of the New Testament are purchased for Mexican missionaries are sent there who have outstanding training in Bible, health, Arden, and Canadian.

The president thanked Mrs. Osland for her informative talk on Mexico.

Students Need Perfect Quiet For Studying

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—A quiet, atmospheric music television or radio is essential for students to do homework efficiently, says Dr. Lionel M. Gelinas, principal of a high school here.

"The high school schedule is so heavy," he told a meeting of her school's parents' club, "that the student must cover every phase of study at the proper time if he is to graduate. He has little leisure time.

"Proper lighting and a quiet atmosphere are important for efficient study and a pupil cannot be expected to give his all to his studies when the radio or television blaring at his side.

"Many of the high school is not child's play, and cannot be accomplished when the student is bothered with distractions."

10,000 Shoes on Exhibit In London Hotel Rooms

By SYLVIA SACK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—A London 'shoe exhibition—10,000 shoes occupying 136 rooms at a West End hotel — forecasts that British women's feet will be shrouded in a wide variety of colors and shapes next spring.

For men, the exhibit suggested suedes in vivid and muted shades and unashamed of a longer, slicker look with narrow or chiselled toes. Even silver-green suede will be top fashion.

Women were offered a dazzling array of styles and color for round-the-clock wear. On display were creations from Belgium, Britain, Holland, Italy, Sweden and Switzerland.

STRESS LEGGY LOOK

Although the new lines had one common aim—to keep the shoe elongated to stress the up-to-date leggy look—there was a softening-down of the fine needlepoint toe line. Toes were still pointed, however, and are expected to remain so while the short bemline is in vogue.

New toe-caps included a variation of the O shape, from closegrained to a shielded version. In the extreme fashion group came the mandolin, French spatula and even the tapering.

Closed-in pumps probably will be high fashion decorated with cut-outs and varying throat lines. Dainty tie-straps on walking and late-day numbers replaced bar trimmings. Pleating, ruching and stitching abounded on all types.

Heels complemented toes. Fine and slender, mid-way and high, they sometimes tapered to match toe lines.

For evening wear, satin and jewelled touches added sparkle to the feet, while large pearl bows and feather pom-poms provided new decoration interests.

BRIGHT SUEDE

Among the shoes shown were pistachio green pumps with an oblique white strap across the instep. The O line was represented in a flamingo pink leather shoe with mid-way heel. It had a neatly - tied trio of straps across the foot.

A leather pump in novelty calf shaded from dark brown at the heel to light cream at the toe. Alongside, a red calf "doe line" pump had a moulded ridge down the centre of the vamp trimmed with a Spanish red suede bow.

Among the exotic evening slippers was an ideal pair for Cinderella in diamond embroidered gold kid. There was also a black suede pump with heel encased in a solid silver filigree cage — priced at £130.

For those who have to put on shoes in a hurry in the dark, there was an interchangeable style in leather, guaranteed to fit either foot.

A spokesman at the show said he thought the slender heels and pointed look in footwear will be with us for at least a year or more. "It complements the short, leggy look in fashionable clothes."

And what did he envisage for 1940? "Sandal-type shoes—but it depends so much on what else women will be wearing."

Mother's Helper

YOUR BABY will enjoy a bath in the big tub if he doesn't slide around and feel insecure. Immerse a small berry hand-towel in the water before you're ready to put the baby in, so the towel is thoroughly soiled. It won't stay completely flat, of course, but it does serve as an excellent non-skid base.

GOOD MANNERS

FORMAL INVITATIONS TO INFORMAL CHURCH WEDDING

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My wedding is to be an informal afternoon wedding in church but we are planning to invite quite a number of relatives of both families, many close friends of our parents and quite a few mutual friends of ours. Between 150 and 200 guests. Although all the plans are for an informal wedding, I would very much like to send formal invitations (I've always dreamed of sending formal wedding invitations). Is it at all proper, or even permissible, to send formal invitations to an informal wedding, when the informal wedding is to be quite a large one? — B. L.

Yes, it is entirely proper, quite customary procedure, to send formal invitations to an informal wedding . . . when the informal wedding is to be quite a large one. As a matter of fact, you may, if you wish, send your formal wedding invitations to your and your bridegroom's entire list of relatives and friends, in town and out of town. Then it is not necessary to send formal announcements after the ceremony has been performed. Today this procedure is quite customary.

"THE FATHERS" PREFER TO MINGLE WITH GUESTS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

We're having quite a discussion about "the fathers" in the receiving-line! My bridegroom's father and my father have been close friends for years, roommates in college, close friends ever since. Now they have come up with the idea that instead of standing in the receiving-line, they would rather mingle with the guests, my father as host, introducing the guests and so forth, and my bridegroom's father as his "social assistant" as he calls it. Would this be a correct procedure, or aren't the fathers always supposed to stand in the receiving-line? — Bride-to-be

It is entirely proper for your father and your bridegroom's father to mingle with the guests, instead of standing in the receiving-line . . . that is, if you, mother, are hostess of the wedding, agrees to this plan. And I have a feeling that these two devoted, long-time friends would do a fine job of social co-operation during that all goes happily and well!

GROOM'S PARENTS PAY THEIR OWN HOTEL EXPENSES

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Unfortunately our house is so small that we will not be able to invite the prospective groom's parents and his sister to stay with us, and when he explained this to them, they wrote us asking if we would kindly make reservations for them in a hotel here. Our budget for my wedding is very small, but still we very much want to do the proper thing. Should we simply make the reservations in their names, making no mention of the accommodations expense, or should we take it the responsibility of having the hotel bill charged to us? — E. T.

You simply make the hotel reservations in their names, choosing the available accommodations as carefully as possible. It is the responsibility of the groom's family to pay their own hotel expenses.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Editor's Note: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each week it is summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Mildred M. — Mother gets on our nerves.

Matthew R. — It is the daughter's responsibility to take care of her.

Mildred M. — I have been married less than a year. Shortly after my marriage my father died. My husband and I asked my mother to come and live with us at once.

Mother kept saying she didn't want to interfere with our lives, but we insisted that she would be no trouble to us. Well, things haven't worked out as we had hoped. Mother does get on our nerves in many little ways. She seems to think she still has the right to tell me what to do and not to do. She gets hurt if we don't include her in all our activities.

I think that if she stayed with my brother and his family, she would keep more to herself. My brother and his wife have grown small children and she could help them out. My sister-in-law is a very strong person and Mother wouldn't try to boss her as she does me.

Matthew R. — Mother has always been a bit of us that she was so happy she had a daughter, because it is much easier for an elderly woman to live with a daughter than a daughter-in-law. She said she would always feel unwanted, like a stranger in the house, if she had to live with a daughter-in-law.

Mother understands very well that my wife doesn't want her to live with us. If I were to ask her to make the change, she would immediately understand that Millie doesn't want her. I would be like kicking her out in the cold.

Everyone knows that it is the girl's responsibility to take care of a widowed mother. Millie shouldn't try to duck out. She must learn to cope with the problem. She should tell Mother of when she has to in order to insure her freedom.

The Council: It is important to note that Mother has been completely left out of these negotiations between brother and sister. It is very likely that Mother has been finding life with Mildred and her husband to be quite a trial. This woman evidently had a particular place for her life as a wife . . . but like many women in this spot, she finds that things aren't working out according to her dream picture.

Even with the best intentions in the world, parents find it almost impossible to refrain from interfering in their children's lives. Often, they claim that they are not "interfering" — merely expressing an opinion. But the authority that the parent's word has always carried as a factor in taking away a child's own feeling of power and independence. Ninety per cent similarly feels deprived of power, and hence, cast out, when a grown son or daughter flouts him.

This mother made a mistake in accepting her daughter's hospitality before she had a chance to think seriously and calmly about her widowhood. In her sadness and loneliness, she accepted the apparently easy solution. But the step has come for her to reevaluate her future. If she is in good health she very well may be ready to consider living alone or with another woman. Some elderly persons find that they can board much more happily with a family that is not their own.

As long as this mother is of sound body and mind, her children should allow and encourage her to decide her fate.

Lunch Box Lift

by Mary Moore

Is it possible that you need to take a long critical backward look at the lunch boxes you have been packing for the past month? Have you been keeping them up to par nutritionally? Have you been remembering to include a surprise every day?

Dinner Menus

by Mary Moore

MONDAY

Wieners and Sauerkraut, Sweet Pickles; Oven French Fries; Celery Hearts; Rich Rice and Raisin Pudding with Milk or Pouring Cream; Coffee.

To give your lunch box efforts a lift for your precious loved ones' sakes I have three ideas — not necessarily brand new, but different. One is for a new brownie recipe which all of the kiddies will welcome; the second is for a new walnut-topped muffin-in-a-cup; an-novation is baked apples in foil-wrap — carry-able!

LUNCHERS' BROWNIES;

Two eggs, 1 cup sugar, ½ cup butter or margarine, 2 squares unsweetened chocolate, ½ cup semi-sweet chocolate pieces, 1 teaspoon vanilla, ½ cup sifted flour, 1 cup miniature marshmallows, ½ cup broken walnuts. Beat eggs until thick and pale. Add sugar gradually while continuing to beat. Melt butter, chocolate and semi-sweet chocolate together over hot water, and add with vanilla to egg mixture beating. Fold in flour. Stir in marshmallows and nuts. Spread in buttered 9-inch pan and bake at 250 deg. F. about 30 minutes. Cut into squares or diamonds while still warm in pan.

BRAN CUP MUFFINS:

Of course if desired these may be baked in greased muffin tins. One quarter cup white or brown sugar or molasses, 2 tablespoons shortening, 1 well beaten egg, 1 cup all-bran, ¾ cup milk, 1 cup sifted all-purpose flour, 1½ teaspoon, baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, 9 or 10 whole walnuts; ¼ to ½ cup chopped walnuts if nuts are optional. Blend sugar or molasses and shortening and beat in egg. Stir in bran and milk. Let stand 10 minutes to allow bran to soak up milk. Sift flour, baking powder together and stir in until barely mixed. Fill 2¼" fluted paper cups 2-3 full. Gently top each with whole walnut. Bake at 400 deg. F. about 25 or 30 minutes.

LUNCH BOX BAKED APPLES:

Select choice large baking apples. Remove cores and peel halfway down from stem end. Place each on large square of aluminum foil. Fill centres with sugar, cinnamon, nutmeg and dot with butter. Fill with raisins, nuts and small amount of sugar. Sprinkle peeled surface with sugar. Bring foil up over apples and twist ends together. Place on shallow pan and bake at 400 deg. F. for about 50 minutes. Cool, then refrigerate. Put cold in lunch box at last minute. Wrap a piece of cream cheese in foil to be eaten with the apple. Remember to include a spoon.

2nd SIDNEY

Mrs. Ketcheson Gives Talk at Institute Meet

2ND OF SIDNEY — The Bay of Quinte Institute held their October meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Will Yeleman on Tuesday afternoon, with a large number present. The W. I. convention will be held at the Masonic Temple, Belleville, on October 23 and 24. A motion was passed that Mrs. Percy Bolton be in charge of the flowers for decorations at the convention. Delegates appointed for this were for 23rd., Mrs. W. Jones and Mrs. Casey Ketcheson; and for the 24th., Mrs. Donald Sandercock and Mrs. Alva Meyers. Donations were made to the Blind and the Mental Health Association.

The meeting was then taken over by the convener for Home Economics and Health, Mrs. Casey Ketcheson, who said "It was challenge to young people today to make a farm home for themselves, for it cost as much for machinery to run a farm that young people would have to deprive themselves of many things for a long time to pay for them."

"It seems pioneer women who had to make everything they ate and wore were more creative than this generation who have everything at their fingertips. Are we losing our creative home-making? To be a good home-maker, one has to keep on her toes for it involves many things," she said.

Mrs. Ketcheson reminded the members that health begins in the home were cleanliness and sanitation should reign. Plenty of vitamins should be found in the food chosen, she concluded.

A contest was enjoyed with Mrs. Don Sandercock winning the prize. Refreshments were served and Mrs. Clayton Stickle thanked the hostess for opening her home, and Mrs. Sandercock thanked Mrs. Ketcheson for her fine program.

The area convention at the Masonic Temple, Belleville, will be on October 23 and 24. Delegates from Uniondale will be on Thursday Mrs. Kenneth Faul, on Friday Mrs. W. Ross.

"Thank-you" notes were read from Jean and Bill McGouchie, Ila and Eileen Sine, Virginia Savage.

The program was taken over by convener Mrs. A. Sine, who had invited as a guest speaker Mrs. B. Kuglin, who had as her topic "Civil Defence," which should be covered by all as an emergency in case of attack by bombing. Volunteer groups should be set up in the community and family shelter should be equipped with a three-day supply of food, warm woolen clothing and blankets. Nylon material is of no value in shelters, in all cases plan for safety in case of an attack.

Mrs. Kuglin was thanked by Mrs. G. Harrington, and a small token of appreciation was also given her.

Mrs. A. Martin sang a hymn, "I'd Rather Have Jesus," and Mrs. Fred Farmer read a poem she had composed herself about the Uniondale Women's Institute and the electing of a vice-president. Mrs. H. Frost gave "all about rug care," also a few helpful hints. Mrs. E. Anderson read a poem, "Be Brave, Life Waits."

A demonstration by Mrs. R. Dafoe was a "Book of Braille," the story of Rebecca which is a book sent out by the library for the blind. One cannot help too much toward this worthy cause, "Help for the Blind." The canvass for this year was a liberal amount.

Mrs. Sine was thanked for opening her home.

Refreshments were served by October hostesses.

November meeting will be at Mrs. M. Grills' with convener Mrs. M. Dodds and the lunch committee to include Mesdames G. Burkitt, B. Bush, J. Morris, F. Farmer, H. Bleecker, B. Dafoe.

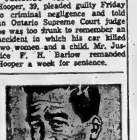
ATOM BLAST IN TAR SANDS

The first atomic blast in Canada may be set off within two years under the fabulous tar sands of northern Alberta. An American oil company which holds rights on 2,000,000 acres of the area about 250 miles northeast of Edmonton has come up with the idea of the nuclear blast as a means of freeing the oil in the sands.



The sticky, oozing sands are estimated to contain as much as 250,000,000,000 barrels of oil but extracting the oil has been found difficult and costly. As a result, the vast resources of the Athabasca tar sands remain unexploited.

Now engineers of the Richfield Oil Corporation of Los Angeles are interested in setting off an atom bomb deep down in the sands. It is thought that the terrific heat and pressure of the blast would help separate the oil and the sand.

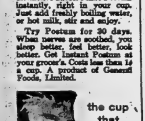
This map shows location of the sands, one of the world's greatest petroleum deposits and is probably the most difficult to exploit. (CP Newsmap)

PLEADS GUILTY

TORONTO (CP) — Thomas Hooper, 39, pleaded guilty Friday to criminal negligence and told an Ontario Supreme Court judge he was too drunk to remember an accident in which his car killed two women and a child. Mr. Justice F. R. Barlow remanded Hooper a week for sentence.

I was a sleepless wreck

My nerves grated from lack of sleep. Indigestion bothered me. I felt jittery, depressed, drained of all ambition and energy.



Some people suffer unpleasantness because their systems are aggravated by elements in everyday beverages. This is particularly true of those with "nervous" temperaments.

Some people can drink coffee, cocoa and some soft drinks without harm, others cannot.

Postum does not contain drugs such as caffein, theobromine or theophylline or thochemine which can rob you of sleep, irritate your nerves, speed up pulse with subsequent depressing letdown. Postum does not contain tannin to give you indigestion, nor any other ingredient to cause you harm.

Switch to Instant Postum, the beverage of comfort! Postum tastes and acts like no other beverage. Postum has its own distinctive flavor. Make Postum instantly, right in your cup. Just add freshly boiling water, or hot milk, stir and enjoy.

Try Postum for 30 days. When nerves are soothed, you sleep better, feel better, look better. Get Instant Postum at your grocer's. Costs less than 1¢ a cup. A product of General Foods, Limited.

Democrats and Republicans Clash on November 4th for Control of Both Houses

NEW YORK (CP) — American voters on Nov. 4 will decide the congressional lineup for the remaining two years of President Eisenhower's second term. And while the presidency itself is not an issue, the Republican and Democratic parties are campaigning as sadly as if the White House post were at stake.

Control of both houses of Congress—the House of Representatives and the Senate—will be determined in this mid-term election. So narrow is the margin now that a moderate swing either to the Republican or Democratic side is all that is necessary to assure control of the legislative branch of the United States government.

The importance of these "off-year" elections lies in the American constitutional arrangement whereby the presidency, or the executive branch of the government, is divorced from the legislative, or congressional branch. Because of this separation of powers Congress has often been controlled by a party opposed to the White House occupant.

MAJORITY OPPOSED

For example, President Eisenhower, who went to the White House by big majorities in the presidential election years of 1952 and 1956, has worked mostly with—or against—a hostile Congress.

There have been three congresses since Eisenhower was first elected, and two of them have been under the management of the opposite party politically. The Democratic campaign for 1958 is aimed at making it three out of four.

The constitutional limit on service in the Senate and House is responsible for these mid - term contests. Senators are elected for a term of six years, and congressmen for two. One-third of the Senate comes up for re-election every two years, along with the entire House of Representatives.

These elections coincide with the presidential voting every leap year, and the additional half-way through the presidential term serve as an indicator of public opinion as to how the current administration is faring.

Hence the major effort by the Democratic and Republican parties to win what might be considered a vote of confidence at this time. But in addition, there are practical aspects involved in control of Congress.

These mid-term elections point up the differences between the Canadian governmental system, based on British parliamentary procedure, and that of the United States. Canada's prime minister, to begin with, has to work with a hostile Parliament if he did, he wouldn't be prime minister.

The leader of the Canadian party winning the majority of seats in Parliament takes over the top post. Should he lose a parliamentary vote because of defections in his own party or a possible change of a narrow margin through by-elections, he has no choice but to resign.

Not so with the president of the United States. His personal election, for all practical purposes, rather resembles a popularity poll because of the scarcely balloting for that position as opposed to the congressional representation in any given district. And, as Eisenhower's two victories have made clear, the personality of a presidential candidate can overrule party lines.

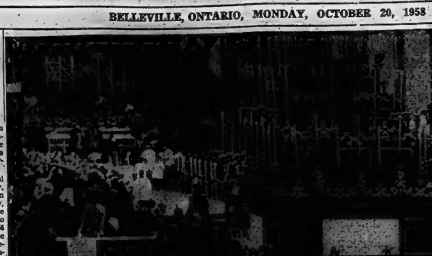
Eisenhower, as the nominal head of the Republican party, soundly defeated Adlai Stevenson of the Democrats twice in a row, but the same voters who put the chief Republican candidate into office for a second term in 1956 voted for the other side in the contests over who should represent them in the House and Senate.

DIVISION NARROW

After Eisenhower's victory in 1956, and including a handful of vacancies due to deaths in office, since, the Senate has 49 Democrats to 47 Republicans. In the 435-seat House of Representatives the Democrats have a majority of 255-180 to spare.

These two narrow margins mean that the slightest swing in this year's voting could result either in a return in congressional power by the Republicans or a bigger majority for the Democrats. And there is also the factor of importance for the parties in this measure of control.

From the point of view of pure publicity, the controlling party—the Democrats in recent years—takes the chairmanships and the party representation on the various congressional committees who often make the headlines on the television screens in the course of their work.



From the actual legislative angle, an opposition - controlled Congress can stymie any moves by the White House to put through desired bills. The president's veto power is largely negative, that is, he can turn down legislation passed by Congress to the White House for the president's final signature, but he cannot push through a hostile House any legislation inspired by his own party.

Eisenhower has worked under such a handicap ever since the mid-term elections of 1954, which swung control of Congress back to the Democrats after the Republicans had swept in on the 1952 wave of Eisenhower's own popularity—a circumstance of which the Democrats have made political capital ever since.

Their contention has been that the Republicans are not a party acceptable to the American people in general; and that only the Democratic monopoly kept the Democratic candidate out of the White House.

They point to events over the last two years—chiefly Russia's ascendancy in the field of scientific advance and the exposures of corruption under Republican administration in Washington—as evidence that the GOP stands as leading to knock down the Eisenhower image. In return, the Republicans are making much of Democratic smugness and overconfidence.

At stake also is this November's elections are a number of state governorships. Because of widely varying state constitutions these posts come up both in identical and off years, and usually because of primary fights in the ones involved, are not affected too much by the national trend.

Harriman and Rockefeller Running for Governorship Of N. Y. Both Millionaires

NEW YORK (AP)—New York State, which prides itself on being very progressive, has also chipped away at class consciousness to point where even a millionaire is considered as good as the next fellow.

Even better, when it comes to politics.

Just because a lad was reared in a 150-room mansion, instead of the traditional log cabin, and happens to own a couple of banks or railways, is no reason to think that he might not some day grow up to be governor.

This year's candidates, Democrat Averell Harriman, the incumbent, and Republican Nelson A. Rockefeller, the aspirant, both boast such patrician beginnings.

LIMITED RUNNING

Half a century ago, if left to the whim of the voters, neither Harriman nor a Rockefeller could have run for anything but the city limits, and then with an angry mob at his heels shouting "robber baron."

But over the years, a combination of philanthropy, press agentry and public service has helped make their names not only socially acceptable in the political districts but a good deal more politically attractive than the old barefoot boy type of candidate.

When Averell Harriman, with his boyish grin, shows up at a country fair or at the gates of a paper mill, folk for miles around come out to see not only the $40,000,000 Union Pacific heir, but a former ambassador to London and Moscow, former secretary of commerce, erstwhile and apologetic new dealer and outspoken liberal.

Nelson Aldrich Rockefeller, in running for his first public office, has emerged from the protective foliage of Pocantico hills, the family's 3,000 - acre Westchester County estate, like a frisky brown bear come out of the woods in search of friends in a Yellowstone Park picnic grove. Handsome beyond his party's wildest dreams of wooing the women's vote. The Rock, as he has been nicknamed, has wavy brown hair and twinkling blue-grey eyes.

GOOD FRIENDS

In a campaign devoid of red hot issues and dignified by practically no mud slinging (they have been friends for 20 years), Harriman and Rockefeller have been concentrating on the minute like two movie stars plugging a new picture.

Harriman's father was Edward H. Harriman, the little giant of Wall Street, who reputedly "feared neither God nor J. P. Morgan" and rose from a $4-a-week pad pusher taking down stock quotations at the exchange to ruler of a financial empire that included the Union Pacific and Illinois Central Railroads, Wells Fargo, several banks and assorted enterprises.

Nelson Rockefeller is the grandson of John D. Rockefeller, the oil magnate who formed the Standard Oil group, and the son of John D. Jr., the philanthropist.

Operating several echelons below Harriman, Rockefeller has been assistant secretary of state, assistant secretary of health, education and welfare, presidential adviser on foreign policy and a prime mover in the Rockefeller reports on government reorganization, defence and education.

Reuther Likes Earl Warren For President

CHICAGO (AP)—Chief Justice Earl Warren of the Supreme Court would receive serious consideration from American labor if he became a candidate for president, says Walter Reuther.

Reuther, head of the United Auto Workers union, said Sunday in a television interview that the Democrats have a dozen excellent potential candidates for president.

Among them, he said, are Governor G. Mennen Williams of Michigan, Senator Stuart Symington of Missouri, Senator John Kennedy of Massachusetts, Governor Robert Meyner of New Jersey and Governor Averell Harriman of New York.

Reuther termed Vice-president Nixon as a highly competent technician and politician but said he has "a streak of opportunism that bothers me as an individual."

The president of the 1,500,000-member UAW said there are several Republicans in Congress labor might back kindly. When pressed to name them, he said "Earl Warren would be qualified in serious consideration by the American labor movement and would get it."

BACK IN HARNESS

HONG KONG (Reuters)—Communist China's army generals have gone into the ranks for a month to learn about their own troops, Peiping radio said Sunday. The agency said more than 70 generals and 10,000 other army officers recently started the month's training course as ordinary soldiers.

Spends Last $20 To Clothe Corpse Of Murdered Son

SIMCOE (CP) — A penniless Hungarian-refugee mother buried her eighteen-year-old son today while police armed with a murder warrant searched for the boy's stepfather.

At Courtland, 17 miles west of here, Joey Takacs' body was taken to St. Ladislaus cemetery, dressed in the new jacket, shirt and tie which his mother, Mrs. Justina Takacs, bought with her last $20 Friday.

Sunday night, Inspector J. P. LePerriere of the provincial police said sworn a murder warrant has been issued for the arrest of Joseph Takacs, 32, the boy's stepfather, who was last seen Thursday with the boy.

Joey's body, savagely beaten and with the throat cut, was found Thursday night at the Takacs' former home in Fair Ground near here. Inspector LePerriere said police were watching the house on the chance Takacs would return.

The family left the house about two weeks ago when Joseph and Justina separated. The husband was thought to have gone to Goderich.

Joey left Houghton Central Public School last Thursday with a man who claimed to be his guardian.

Mrs. Takacs said she didn't know how she would pay for the funeral. A neighbor said she was destitute and owned no winter clothing. Neighbors planned to take up a collection for her.

Police were detailed to guard Mrs. Takacs. They carried shotguns.

The woman came to Canada seeking safety for herself and her son two years ago following the freedom fighters' uprising in Budapest.

Penicillin, Queen of Drugs, In General Use Since 1943

GENEVA (Reuters) — Penicillin has been called "the queen of drugs," but can this description withhold in view of the increasing number, of severe and fatal reactions reported in medical papers?

The World Health Organization asks this question in the current issue of its official publication. Its answer is yes.

Penicillin came into general use in 1943, says the article, but the first treaty on penicillin therapy was not reported until 1946. Another three years elapsed before a second fatality occurred.

During the last 10 years, however, severe reactions have been reported with increasing frequency and the number of fatal cases has multiplied rapidly. By 1956, more than 300 severe reactions had been reported, 81 of them fatal, and by 1957 it was estimated that some 1,000 deaths from anaphylaxis due to penicillin had occurred in the United States alone.

The W.H.O. Article continues: "To obtain a true picture, however, these figures must be set beside the phenomenal increase in the consumption of penicillin that has taken place during the last 15 years.

"In 1943, the first year of commercial production in the United States, only 6 million units of penicillin were produced, whereas by 1956, the world production of penicillin exceeded 300 tons a year — enough to provide 200,000,000,000,000 treatment of 2,000,000 units each."

The relative frequency with which reactions have been reported in recent years should be seen to be largely a natural consequence of the vast scale on which penicillin is being used.

In fact, the article adds, it is the general absence of untoward reactions that has encouraged such lavish use of penicillin.

"Unfortunately, it has also encouraged its indiscriminate use. "Penicillin has been widely prescribed for all kinds of minor infections and for conditions in which it is ineffective or not more effective than other drugs. Since it can be bought without prescription, self - medication is common."

The W.H.O. article emphasizes that severe reactions occur only in patients sensitized by previous exposure to the drug. It is known that many of the facilities that have occurred following the first or subsequent use of penicillin have been attributable to previous unnecessary medication.

The frequency of severe reactions to penicillin can be greatly reduced by taking a number of simple precautions, says the W.H.O. article, and it should be possible to eliminate fatalities almost entirely if the physician giving the injection has at hand the necessary drugs to deal with an emergency.

Before administering the penicillin, the patient should be questioned carefully regarding previous exposure to the drug and any manifestations of an allergic diathesis in himself or his family, and the entire procedure is viewed in perspective, it is seen that penicillin does indeed do its task and that there is ample justification for continuing to regard it as the "queen of drugs."

"But," the W.H.O. article concludes, "not unlike many queens of the past, she may retaliate on those who do not respect her powers."

Dies Same Way Husband Did 6 Years Earlier

LOW, Que. (CP) — Mrs. Rita McCorkell was killed Sunday night at the same spot, on the same day of the year and at the same hour as her first husband was killed six years ago.

Mrs. McCorkell, 32, of nearby Wakefield, died and her second husband, Ernest McCorkell, and her two children were critically injured in a two-car collision half a mile north of this town 30 miles north of Ottawa.

Six years ago to the hour—on Sunday, Oct. 19, 1952—Mrs. Babcock, 25, her first husband, was killed in a similar head-on collision one mile north of Low.

Their car collided with a car driven by Jean-Paul Lafond, 22, of Forbes, Ont. An inquest has been ordered.

Goderich Woman, 21, Slain With Shotgun; Hunt Husband

GODERICH, Ont. (CP) — Police hunted today for the seaman-husband of 21-year-old Elaine Dickinson who died from a 12-gauge shotgun blast in the stomach as she argued with a man at an abandoned gravel pit near here.

Police said they wanted to question Kenneth Dickinson, 31, Thirty-five provincial officers of the Goderich detachment were reported looking for him.

A woman and her nephew who parked nearby to gather watercress were witnesses to part of the events leading to the blast of the shotgun. Mrs. Fanny Watson of Goderich and Gerald Cook, 20, of Toronto told police they broke up one quarrel between Mrs. Dickinson and her companion and Cox said he returned the man's single-shot shotgun, believed it to be unloaded.

It was at the height of the second argument in the car parked about 50 feet away that the woman was shot, Mrs. Watson and her nephew ran over and grappled with the man but he got away.

In the first fracas, the struggle became so violent that the man and woman rolled 10 feet down an embankment into the gravel pit with Cox in pursuit. Cox said he didn't see the shooting.

He thought the pair had calmed down before he returned to his aunt.

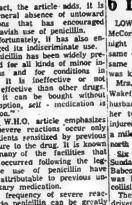
Two Are Killed In Head-on Crash

NORTH BAY (CP)—Two persons, one an expectant mother, were killed Sunday night and nine others injured in a two-car collision on Highway 17 a half-mile east of here.

Dead are William H. Stewart, 30, of North Bay, crushed behind the wheel of his car, and Mrs. Clarice Seeley, 30, also of North Bay, thrown from the wreckage.

Seven others in the Stewart car were taken to hospital with undetermined injuries. They are Edward Davi, 41; Mrs. Charlotte Bartlett, 47; Stanley Craig, 34, all of North Bay; Joseph Hanley of Montreal and the three Stewart children, Charlotte, 6, Linda, 9 and Sylvia, one year.

The two in the other car, John Montrevin, 62, and Laureat Cloutier, 36, both of Mattawa, are also in hospital.



Doctors were unsuccessful in their effort to save the dead woman's unborn child.

FISHERIES PAYMENT

The United States paid $5,500,000 to Canada for use of inland fisheries after the Halifax Award of 1877.

Two victims lie on floor of a Broadway restaurant where they were fatally shot Sunday by a berserk off-duty policeman, James McDermott, 34. They were identified as Edmund Leahy, foreground, and Thomas Joseph O'Hare. McDermott also fatally shot two other men before fleeing. He was critically wounded as he staged a running gun battle with pursuing patrolmen. (AP Wirephoto).

Hull Defeats Dogs, Trappers; Kingston Wins

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ottawa - Hull Canadiens overpowered Windsor Bulldogs and North Bay Trappers in weekend exhibition hockey games while Windsor also lost to Kingston Merchants.

Canadiens, of the Senior Ontario Hockey Association eastern division, defeated Bulldogs of the Western OHA 8-6 Sunday night, Saturday night they thumped North Bay Trappers of the OHA-Northern Ontario Hockey Association, 12-4.

Kingston, in the OHA eastern division, edged Windsor 3-2 Saturday night. Bulldogs now have lost four straight exhibition games.

SCORES THREE

At Hull Canadiens were sparked by forward Andre Dro-let with three goals. Bob Boucher and John Ansable each scored a pair.

Ansable scored a 15-foot slap shot midway through the first and Doug Risely made it look like the game would be close when he tied it up. But Drolet and Boucher scored two more Canadien goals before the period ended.

Drolet scored twice and Guy Black, Ansable and Boucher once each in the second while Erwin Grosse and Windsor lose counter.

In the third Bulldogs came to life with Garth Hayes and Reg Abbot scoring before Claude Richard scored for Ottawa - Hull. Wally Maxwell scored Windsor's and the game's final goal shortly afterwards.

SIX IN THIRD

Saturday, Canadiens broke loose for six third-period goals at North Bay.

The Trappers enjoyed a 7-6 edge at the end of the second period, but the better - conditioned Baby Habs turned on the power in the final 20 minutes.

Centre Andre Drolet paced the visitors with a four-goal effort. Ansable, Claude Richard and Norm Doyle firing two apiece.

Yves Locas and Jean Gauthier rounded out the scoring with singles.

Leftwinger George Gosselin, who was shifted to rearguard position when Trappers were forced to start with only two regular defencemen, netted a hat-trick, other goals going to Stan Maxwell, Doug Howatt, Cres Kozmeny, Cleland Morrison and Ken Gjibbons.

FIGURES IN ALL THREE

Meanwhile, at Kingston Saturday, playing coach Bus Gagnon figured in all three Kingston counters.

He scored early in the first period, again in the second, and late in the third set up Roy Partridge for the winning tally while the dogs were short handed.

Veteran Joe Bilsky tallied the first Windsor goal just 28 seconds after the final period opened, and Erwin Grosse made it 3-2 in the last half-minute of play.

CLINTON LOSES TWICE

Two OHA Eastern Division senior A clubs defeated Clinton, N.Y. Cornets during the weekend. Belleville McFarlands won their sixth exhibition game this season with a 5-1 win Saturday night at Clinton, and Cornwall Cheviks edging Cornets 5-4 Sunday night at Cornwall.

Paul Payette paced the Belleville attack by scoring three goals while Weiner Brown and Minnie Menard scored a goal each. Keith McDonald came up with three assists and Eddie Marineau registered two assists.

Against the U.S. Eastern Amateur League club Sunday, Reggie Crisp scored two goals for Cornwall. Ron Granville, Guy Henry and Doc Labelle got the others. Billy Watson, Willy Pawchuk, Joe Kardash and Marcel Bernasconi scored for Clinton.

Bisons Defeat, Barons, Bears, Win 6 in Row

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The skein is on the other foot in the American Hockey League these days with Buffalo Bisons, last-place occupants in 1957-58, at the top of the standings.

With the season about two weeks old, the Bisons have won all six starts to lead the league by six points. Buffalo beat Cleveland Barons on Sunday night. Hershey Bears, last year's pennant and playoff winners, edged Springfield Indians 5-4 and Providence Reds turned back Rochester Americans 4-2.

Saturday, Cleveland beat Providence 5-4, Buffalo defeated Hershey 6-3 and Springfield downed Rochester 6-1.

Larry Wilson scored twice for Buffalo Sunday, Bill Sweeney and Bill Dineen also found the range. Art Stratton collected two goals for the Barons and Bill Shvetz tallied once.

Mike Nykoluk scored two goals to spark the Bears. Harry Pidhirny's goal for Springfield in the second period set off a heated dispute. Hersey players swarmed around the officials but referee Lou Farelli allowed the tally which made the score 4-3 for Hershey. Goalie Gil Mayer drew a 10-minute misconduct penalty.

Cain, Guarente, Milan Marcetta and Floyd Smith also scored for Springfield and Hec Lalande, Lee Haley and John McIntyre for Hershey.

The Reds, weak on attack in previous games, struck for three goals in the second period to hand Rochester the defeat.

After a scoreless first period, Rochester went ahead on Guy Rousseau's goal in the second session. But the Reds hit for tallies by Larry Leach and Dan Poliziani. Lorne Davis made it 3-1 late in the period.

After Zellio Toppazzini scored in the final period Bob Nevin fired home a 30-footer for Rochester's second goal.

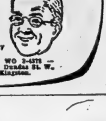
Bolton Blanks Blackpool 4-0; Scotland Wins

LONDON (AP) - Bolton Wanderers crushed Blackpool 4-0 Saturday and moved into a two-point lead at the top of the English League soccer standings.

Bolton's victory gave them 18 points from 13 matches. Four other teams - Arsenal, reigning champions Wolverhampton Wanderers, Luton and Preston - have 16 points.

In an international match played at Cardiff, Scotland defeated Wales 3-0. The win was a ton rally.

Arsenal, weakened by the absence of five players on duty in the Wales-Scotland international match, held Wolverhampton to a 1-1 tie before a crowd of 38,000 at Highbury Stadium.



Luton moved into championship contention with a 3-2 victory over Chelsea. Inside left Bob Cummins got Luton's winning goal in the 71st minutes.

The biggest crowd of the day, 60,000, turned up at Goodison Park Stadium where Everton edged Manchester United 2-1. The defeat dropped Manchester United to 10th place in the 22-team first division.

Tottenham Hotspur, moving slowly up the ladder, won a 4-3 thriller at Leicester.

In other games, Nottingham Forest won 3-0 at Birmingham; West Bromwich Albion defeated West Ham United 3-1; and Manchester City bowed out Portsmouth 3-2.

Hurled from a ladder by explosion of sparks caused by back-draft, a fireman is given inhalator treatments as his mates continued to fight a $30,000 fire at Toronto radio station CHFI-FM. The spectacular blaze sent two firemen to hospital. The three employees fled to safety after the station went off the air with the hurried announcement: "We are going off the air now, the reason being there is a fire."

Turley, Spahn, Jensen, Banks Baseball Tops

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Bob Turley, Warren Spahn, Jackie Jensen and Ernie Banks Saturday were named by the Sporting News as the outstanding pitchers and regular players in their respective leagues.

Turley, 21-game winner for New York Yankees of the American League, and Spahn, a 22-game winner for Milwaukee Braves of the National, each won two games in the world series.

Banks, Chicago Cubs shortstop, led the National League in runs batted in with 129 and in homers with 47. He also topped the major leagues in both categories. Jensen, Boston Red Sox outfielder, led the American in RBIs with 122.

The selections were based on a poll of members of the Baseball Writers Association of America.

Quebec Hockey

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

The sec - saw battle between Montreal Royals and Quebec Aces for first place in the Quebec Hockey League was still in Montreal's favour today.

Veteran Jean Paul Denis fired an overtime goal—his second of the game—to give Montreal a 4-3 victory Saturday night over Three Rivieres Lions and a one-point edge over Quebec.

The Aces briefly held first place when they beat Chicoutimi Saguenays 4-1 in a game earlier in the afternoon, but Montreal's win pulled out the margin.

MOVED AHEAD QUICKLY

Denis fired the first goal of the Royals-Lions game and Bob Sauvarin evened the count and Roland Lecterc added a Cec. Hockey quickly put Lions ahead 3-1 going into the third period.

Terry Gray cut down the Lions' lead a 3:51 of the third and Bill Sutherland's goal 1:43 second before regulation time ended forced the overtime.

At Chicoutimi, the Aces and Saguenens went into the third period tied 1-1 on goals by Ted Sullock and Ron Attwell respectively.

Quebec's Jackie Leclair, a former Saguenens, drove the winner into his old team-mates' nets at 8:30 of the third period and Chicoutimi couldn't get the puck clincher at 18:40, scoring easily for Quebec, Leclair after Chicoutimi yanked goalie Gilles Boisvert in an effort to force a tie.

On the Tracks

TORONTO (CP)—The formidable Sandy Galbraith - Cosh Smythe entry of Bull Vic and Major Flight ran one-two in the $5,345 Coronation Stakes at New Woodbine Saturday. New Providence, owned by Windfields Farms, was third while Sunday Bet, owned by James Boyle Jr., was fourth.

Fourteen two-yearolds went to the post for a run of 1 1-16 miles in the Coronation, Canada's richest race for juveniles. The Maloney-Smythe stables also entered Legrand Rouge, which finished fifth.

Saturday's second feature, the $7,000 Challenge Stakes, was won by Hasty House Farms' Arcandy, which ran 1 1-16 miles exactly by slightly more than a length.

CAMDEN, N.J. (AP) — Quill won tle duel of east versus west and perhaps the 1958 two-year-old filly championship Saturday by capturing the $135,950 Garden State at Camden State Park.

R. N. Webster's Kentucky-bred juvenile outdistanced the California contender for the divisional title, Khalita, who finished fourth after setting the pace in the 1 1-16-mile race.

Quill earned $81,576, boosting her 1958 earnings to $140,502. She paid $6.60, $3.60 and $3.80.

MILAN, Italy (AP) — British-owned Ragnhi Sunday won the $37,000 jockey club Grand Prix, beating out an Italian horse which is being pointed for a race in the United States.

Italy's Sedan finished second, a length behind. Sedan may be invited to contest Italy in the $100,000 Washington, D.C., International race at Laurel Park, Md., Nov. 11.

NEW YORK (AP) — Inside Tract, a 15-to-1 outsider, came from far off the pace Saturday and captured the $81,950 jockey club Gold Cup at Belmont Park for the first stakes victory of his career.

Little Conn McCreary waited patiently for Mrs. Adele L. Rand's Clem and Mabel T. Schutte' Warhead to knock each other out in a fairly fast pace in the tough two-mile race. Clem ran out of gas and finished last.

Inside Tract had been nominated for next Saturday's $50,000 added Canadian championship at New Woodbine.

LOCKER ROOM FIRE

REGINA (CP) — Fire caused $300 damage Saturday to equipment in the dressing room of Calgary Stampeders at Taylor Field. The Stamps had set up in the room for a Western Interprovincial Football Union with Calgary. A spark from a stove in the centre of the room apparently set off the blaze.

LAST RESORT

AMBERSTBURG, Ont. (CP)—Attorney-General Kelso Roberts of Friday night's investigation of the police force here will be made only as a last resort, he told reporter today. Any responsible governing body, in this case town council, had yet been received, he said in a telephone interview from Toronto. Two requests for an investigation had been received, but from private citizens. One was from a clergyman and the other from two disbanded police constables, Robert Forrestel and Walter Richardson. Town council has asked for a provincial investigation, but no request has yet to reach the attorney-general.

FAMILY PRIDE AT STAKE

WEST JORDAN, Utah (AP)—Gene Fullmer, former middleweight champion, has signed to fight Joey Giardello of New York in a bout here Nov. 10. Fullmer's manager, Marv Jenson, said Gene feels he should avenge the family honor against Giardello, who beat Fullmer's brother Jay Fullmer here last summer.

Illegal Pads Hurt Players Bruins Charge

CHICAGO (AP)—Boston Bruins officials were furious today about the alleged use of illegal elbow pads by Toronto Maple Leafs and rough play in the National Hockey League.

General manager Lynn Patrick charged that two of his players were injured as a result of illegal pads worn by Leafs. He was commenting on the jaw fractures suffered by all-star defenceman Doug Mohns and Bronco Horvath in Toronto on Saturday night.

Mohns and Horvath will be lost to the Bruins for about two months.

Patrick said Leafs apparently are still wearing elbow pads ruled illegal recently by league president Clarence Campbell. Campbell issued instructions some time ago that elbow pads must be covered with a half-inch layer of foam rubber.

Patrick said referee - in - chief Carl Voss was to have checked all teams to make sure they followed the instructions. He said Toronto was the only club not checked.

Life of Red Nichols Has Been Retold at Least Three Times

BY BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Most people live their lives only once. With Red Nichols it's different.

"First, he lived it. Then he retold it to Paramount Studios, which bought the film rights to his biography. Then he watched his story revived on the silver screen with Danny Kaye plays Red Nichols in the new film The Five Pennies.

But then, Red's story is worth repeating. One of the all-time great horn players, his career has led him to the top and also to the bottom of the music world.

He first found fame with his Five Pennies, one of the great Dixieland com bos. Then he moved into New York with a bigger band. Among his aidemen: Benny Goodman, Glenn Miller, Gene Krupa, Jack and Charlie Teagarden, Jimmy Dorsey.

STRICKEN ILL

The band was playing in the pit for the Broadway smash "Girl Crazy" when Red was stricken with appendicitis. When he got out of hospital, he discovered that his ace singers had been pirated away from him.

"That was the start of my problems," he said. "I was disillusioned and discouraged. I tried to start a go of it with the big band, but I went on tour and I got clobbered.

He admitted that his ill luck prompted him to hit the bottle, "though I was never an alcoholic." After his daughter was stricken with polio his despair was so great that he decided to give up the music business. For five years he didn't touch his horn.

He lived in San Leandro, Calif., and worked in a war plant. Then, largely at the urging of his daughter, he returned to jazz.

STILL PLAYING

Now he is in his mid-60s, and the red in his hair has long since turned to silver. But he still plays a great horn, as listeners to his film recordings can attest.

"Yes, I'm playing the 'sound track' for Danny," he said "that's one of the things I insisted on in the contract."

The film project has had a long history. It has had a dozen re-writers, being tailored for Bing Crosby, William Holden and other stars. One version even had Red smoking marijuana, but Red put his foot down.

"I don't even drink on the job," he said. "A fellow who drinks can't play good music."

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

The Clinton Comets of the International League, who are stablemates of the Whitby Dunlops in the hockey stable of impresario Wren Blair, will be the guests of the Mace in Memorial Arena tonight.

The Mace, rounding back into scoring form turned back the Comets on their home ice Saturday night by a 5-1 score, while down Kingston way the 1958-59 Merchants, nee CKLC's edged the Windsor Bulldogs by a 3-2 count. It-mmm, looks like the Brabin-Gagnon hockey corporation may have some potent stockholders, since the best the off-form Macs could do was nip the Dogs 3-1 in their outing here the other night.

Joan Paul Parrtie, who is bidding fair to become one of the club's top snipers, turned in his second hat-trick of the season against the Comets, albeit one came in the practice Reds-Whites game. Paul now shares four-goal honors with Johnny McLellan and Frank Balfagie. The "Wiener" scored another Saturday to boost his total to seven, while he also crashed the assist column.

Mlunie Menard, who has been going great guns in practice and exhibition games, finally shook the jinx that has been riding his shots, both last season and the present exhibitional ones to date. Minnie fired his first goal of the season against the Comets and believes he has rid himself of the gremlin that has been steering his shots either just outside the post, off a pipe, or the goalies' pads.

Keith MacDonald, the hardrock from down under Prince Edward way, was free-wheeling along with Eddie Marineau, in Saturday's tilt. MacDonald got himself three assists with Eddie helping himself to a pair, as did Moe Benoit.

There will be two familiar faces on the Comets' line-up tonight. One is Rene St. Illaire who played with the Belleville club for two seasons and later comes out of the Junior "B" to the person of Angy Defelice.

Angy was the slim will-o-the-wisp, who starred with Bill Cook's Junior "B" club here some years ago. He comes from a well-known Northern Ontario hockey family, and his brothers Norm and George. Norm, incidentally, will be seen in action between the pipes for the Comets tonight.

The Macs, who held a six-straight-win record in exhibition games to date, wind up the pre-season schedule tomorrow night when they travel to Lake on the powerful Dutchmen of the spare-ribs and sauerkraut city. Reports from Western Ontario state the Dutchies "tho the team to beat this season," and their record to date more or less substantiates the statement, as far as the OHA-NOHA league is concerned. They whipped the Windsor Bulldogs 13-9, if that can be taken as a criterion.

The Dutchmen will be all out to defeat the Allan Cup champions, for this is the club that defeated them four games to one in the all-Ontario championships last year, after disposing of the northern champions from South Porcupine.

However, there will be no let-up in training. Ike HILDEBRAND will whip his charges through their paces preparatory to the Eastern Senior League opener here on Friday when the arch-foemen from Kingston will furnish the opposition.

BOOSTER CLUB DANCE

The players will make one of their rare social appearances on Wednesday night when they will appear, with their wives, as special guests of the Booster Club at the "Meet The Mace Ball." The affair is being held in the ANAF hall auditorium on Front Street, and Booster president Armand Duffy, and his lieutenants Dick Beare, Jim Ward and company expect a bumper crowd to turn out to meet the team before the heavy schedule grind gets under way.

REFEREES' MEETING

OHA Referee-in-chief Pat Patterson will chair a special meeting of district referees and other officials in the city hall tomorrow night, starting at eight o'clock.

Rigid enforcement of standing rules and new ones will be the keynote of the get-together. At a recent Toronto meeting of the referee-and-whistle men, they were informed that slackness in officiating this season will not be tolerated.

District supervisors, it is stated, will be appointed who will keep keen eyes on officials at various games and report to the OHA any slackness or other official behavior on the part of the arbiters.

Gordie Howe Line Sparkles In Hawks ,Toronto Defeats; Canadiens Take Over Lead

By BEN WARD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Detroit Red Wings appear to have a solution to their biggest problem: Gordie Howe.

It paid off this weekend when the Red Wings became the only National Hockey League club to salvage two wins, scoring a total of six goals with four masterminded by the great right winger.

Coach Sid Abel discussed the Howe situation a week ago, saying Gordie was getting too much attention from opposing teams. They were bottling up his scoring power.

It wasn't like that until last season after left winger Ted Lindsay was traded to Chicago Black Hawks. He kept the opposition busy with his tough play and the line was weakened by his departure.

Now Abel has moved centre Alex Delvecchio to left wing. Alex isn't as rough as Lindsay but his stickwork like a charm again.

Howe, Delvecchio and linemate Norm Ullman figured in all the Detroit goals in Wings' 3-1 victory over Toronto Maple Leafs Sunday night and the Hawks Saturday afternoon.

CANADIENS RALLY

In other NHL action Sunday Montreal Canadiens rallied to defeat New York Rangers 5-3 and Boston Bruins whipped the Hawks 4-0 on standout performances by forward Vic Stasiuk and goalie Don Simmons.

The Wings dumped the Hawks on a three-goal performance by Delvecchio in Chicago. Three assists went to Howe. Ed Litzenberger got the lone Hawk goal.

Saturday night, Leafs won their first game in four starts, edging Bruins 3-2. A 2-2 tie between Canadiens and Rangers was featured by a goal-tending duel between Jacques Plante of Montreal and Gump Worsley of New York.

Canadiens' Sunday victory moved them into first place, two points ahead of the Hawks. The Wings and Bruins are tied for third with New York and Toronto trailing in that order.

WINGS EARLY LEADERS

In Detroit the Wings were off to a 3-0 shutout before Bert Olmstead of Leafs blasted a screened shot past goaltender Terry Sawchuk in the third period.

Ullman opened the scoring for Detroit in the first period when he picked up a pass meant for the well-watched Howe and poked in past Goalie Worm after most of the credit for the second goal in which Howe hitchhiked through the Leaf defence and let go a shot which deflected off rookie Bert Langey's stick into the net.

In the third period Howe stole the puck at the Toronto blue line, drew the defence off and slid the puck out to defenseman Red Kelly who drove a 25-footer under Bower's arm.

At New York the defending champion Canadiens were trailing 3-1 when Langey got rolling late in the game to beat Rangers.

Lou Fontinato and Wally Hergesheimer put New York ahead 2-0 in the opening period. Jean Beliveau broke the ice for Montreal in a power play while Rangers were short-handed but Camille Henry came back quickly with Rangers' third goal.

THREE-GOAL SURGE

Rocket Richard scored the only goal of the middle period and fired another in Montreal's three-goal upsurge in the third. Henri Richard and Boom Boom Geoffrion got the rest, Geoffrion scoring on an empty net after Rangers had taken Worsley out in the last minute.

Three goals by Stasiuk featured Boston's win over the Hawks and Boston undefeated going into the weekend schedule. Stasiuk's linemates, Johnny Bucyk, assisted on two and scored the fourth goal himself.

It was 4-0 before Hawks' Bobby Hull beat Simmons in the third period. Hawks got a big save by Hull but Simmons came up with some tremendous saves.

HOT GOALTENDING

At Montreal Saturday it was 28 shots to produce four goals as Plante and Worsley staged great goaltending performances. Geoffrion and Andy Bathgate matched goals in the second period. Andy getting the last of his big-league career, Marcel Bonin put Canadiens ahead in the third only to have Andy Hebenton even things up.

Don Stewart scored his first two goals of the season in Leafs' win over Bruins, rookie Carl Brewer getting the other. Gerry Toppazzini scored both Boston goals.

Bruins spent a costly evening in Toronto. All-star defenseman Fern Flaman and forward Bronco Horvath suffered fractured jaws, Flaman's requiring surgery and went to hospital for emergency operations. They will probably be out of action for two months.

UPPER MARLBORO, Md. (AP)—Fire raced through a large stable at Marlboro race track Sunday, trapping and killing at least 26 horses in their stalls. Two others were so badly burned they had to be shot.

About 27 other horses were injured.

Wind-whipped flames destroyed two barns and damaged two others at the half - mile track southeast of Washington, Dist. Ag. was estimate at more they $100,000.

Eight years ago 22 horses died in a fire at Marlboro.

Marlboro officials said racing would continue at the track this week.

RECORDHOLDER LOST

Track officials said they would probably have an exact casualty list today. Among the horses known to have been in the burned barns was Sonata, which set a new track record for a mile and a sixteenth last Monday, and Starwell Farm's Match won the first race Saturday.

Trainer Richard Maxwell, 24, received a possible ankle fracture when a wall fell. Ben Feld, 36, another trainer, suffered broken arm when he was kicked by a horse he was trying to round up.

Peg Can Clinch Top Today, Eskimos Snare Playoff Spot

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

League-leading Winnipeg Blue Bombers get a chance today to clinch first place and a bye in the Western Interprovincial Football Union finals when they tackle Saskatchewan Roughriders in Winnipeg.

A Winnipeg win would assure the club a first-place finish, but Saskatchewan will be fighting for its life.

Edmonton Eskimos captured a playoff berth in Vancouver Saturday night by defeating last-place British Columbia Lions 25-22 before nearly 25,000 fans while Stampeders kept alive their playoff hopes by edging Roughriders 21-17 in Regina.

A victory by Saskatchewan would have eliminated Calgary from the race for the third and final playoff spot. Now it's a fight to the finish.

Winnipeg with 20 points, and Saskatchewan with 12, each has three games left. Edmonton, trailing Blue Bombers by three points, Calgary with 12, and British Columbia with six, each has two games left.

Edmonton's victory in Vancouver snapped a three - game winning streak by the Lions who managed to defeat Edmonton only once in 23 league and exhibition games since B.C. joined the WIFU in 1954.

Fullback Johnny Bright powered Eskimos to their win, scoring Eaks' first touchdown. Others came from end Jim Letcavits and fullback Normie Kwong. Quarterback Jackie Parker kicked 4 converts and two field goals.

LIONS TOUGH FOES

End Jerry James grabbed two touchdown passes from quarterback Al Dorow to pace Lions. Sonny Homer scored the third Lions touchdown and Ted Hunt converted all three. George Wasylkiw kicked a single. Lions were down 19-1 at the half, but came back strong.

Teepees Take Over Lead With Two Wins

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

St. Catharines Teepees jumped into first place in the Ont. Hockey Association Junior A division with two weekend wins.

They opened the season at home Saturday with a 4-1 win over Barrie Flyers. In Toronto Sunday they tied for the lead neck - in - neck with Toronto St. Michael's, before downing them 7-4. Stan Mikita scored the insurance goal with just 22 seconds remaining.

Marlboros defeated Peterborough Petes 10 on Jack Martin's goal midway through the third period in Sunday's other game. Minutes later a full-scale battle erupted. Twenty - two players paired around the ice and when referees sorted them out eight drew a total of 72 minutes in penalties.

Marlboros' win with an earlier game put them three points and one - point place in the standings. They're third with a win in two starts.

Catharines scorers against St. Michael's were Doug Robinson, Terry McGuire, Chico Maki, Jim Hayward, Bob Corupe, Ray Cullen and Mikita. Darryl Sly scored twice for St. Mike's while Joe Krzack, Jack Costello and Dave Drapers scored one goal each.

In Saturday's game Carupe, Ted Wright, Maki and Robinson were Teepees' marksmen. Ray Dupuis scored the only Barrie goal in the third period while Teepees were shorthanded.

Lords Defeat Dutchies 28-25

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen teams in the junior and senior Ontario Rugby Football Union both came home winless this weekend.

The senior Dutchmen lost 28-25 offs. to London Lords Saturday on a last - minute touchdown that landed Kitchener from a second-place tie with London to third place. London meets the league-leading Sarnia Golden Bears in London Tuesday.

Kitchener's junior Dutchmen, winless in eight starts, were walloped 45-0 by Burlington Braves in the last game of the season Saturday. Neither Dutchies nor the third-place Braves made the playoffs.

Argos Blast Ottawa — Ti-Cats Whip Als, Clinch Title

Bury' Em Under 41-0 Score For Second Shutout in Row; Larks Beaten In Second Half

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto Argonauts, leaderless tail-ender for nearly three seasons, have become the hottest team in the Big Four Football League.

Argos, catching inspiration from the spectacular quarterbacking of borish Ronnie Knox, rolled over the Ottawa Rough Rough Riders 41-0 Saturday and thoroughly convinced 14,313 fans that Toronto is a real power in the Big Four.

The dazzling Argo performance stole the spotlight from Hamilton Tiger-Cats who eliminated the league's title Saturday with a 29-10 over Montreal Alouettes.

It was the second shutout in a row for Argos, who jolted the previously-unbeaten Texas 27-0 a week ago, and it gave them a big gain in their late-season drive to get out of the cellar and into a playoff spot.

BIG MAKE PLAYOFFS

Toronto now has six points, three behind third-place Alouettes and four behind Ottawa. Argos can make a playoff spot by winning the remaining three games of the schedule — against Ottawa this Saturday and Montreal Nov. 4 and Nov. 8.

This is the first real threat by Argos since Tom Dublinski quarterbacked them into the 1953 playoffs. Dublinski was lost through injury in pre-season exhibition in 1956 and the club foundered.

Knox, borrowed from Chicago Bears of the National Football League on a one-season (?) basis, has turned out to be the spark-plug Argos sought ever since.

The one-time UCLA hero was mediocre in his first three appearances when he shared duties with Gerry Nesbitt while learning Argo plays, then blossomed forth in the Thanksgiving Day clash over Hamilton.

Knox has a date in Hollywood next month to start a movie role and is supposed to return to Chicago at the end of the season. But if he keeps Argos in the win column, Argo boss Lew Hayman will probably change city hall to retain Ronnie.

SCORED IN ALL QUARTERS

Saturday, Argos struck early for a 14-0 first-quarter lead, scored in all quarters, broke up Ottawa scoring attempts with smooth defensive work and made only one fumble against Ottawa's five.

Knox completed 21 of 38 pass attempts and was deadly in the short-passing game which he quickly becoming his specialty. Riders intercepted only a towering long try that George Brancato ran back for two yards.

Argos had a standout offensive performances by Dick Shatto, Dave Mann, Bobby Kuntz, Carter, Pete O'Garro and Vic Kristopaitis, who kicked five converts and two field goals, both from beyond the 30-yard stripe.

FIVE TOUCHDOWNS

Knox threw touchdown passes to Shatto and Kuntz. Two more touchdowns came on forward passes following pitchouts from Knox to Shatto and Kuntz. The Shatto relay went to Carter and Mann's pass to O'Garro. Mann scored the fifth touchdown on a plunge from the one-yard line.

The Argo defence intercepted four Ottawa passes, recovered four fumbles and broke the Riders' hearts by standing them off on the Argo one-yard line.

In Hamilton the Ticcats racked up their 10th victory, and their second straight league title with a second-half outburst that had a small turnout of 17,915 fans roaring.

Alouettes, who needed the win to stay out of reach of the scorching Argos, battled strongly and held Hamilton to a 7-3 halftime lead. But the Montrealers just couldn't handle the Ticcats from there on.

OUTSTANDING ROOKIE

Hamilton also came up with an outstanding rookie. Guard Don Paquette, from Brantford Tiger-Cats of the Big Four intermediate league, turned in a sparkling defensive performance, picked up a Montreal fumble and intercepted one of four Sam Etcheverry passes grabbed by Ticcats.

Als opened the scoring when Bill Bewley kicked a field goal. Their only other scoring was a late-game touchdown on an Etcheverry pass to Ivan Livingstone.

Fullback Gerry McDougall paced Ticcats with two touchdowns and a 20-yard touchdown throw to Tommy Grant. The fourth touchdown came when Ron Howard intercepted Etcheverry's pass at the Montreal 45 and lobbed weaved around four or five Alouette defenders to score.

Steve Oneschuk kicked three converts for Ticcats and Cam Fraser booted two singles.

Auburn, Navy Beaten in College Upsets

NEW YORK (AP)—An upsing of perennial doormats and deposed champions had United States college football reeling and rocking today.

Northwestern and Purdue have uprooted the balance of power in the Big Ten. Navy's Cotton Bowl champions have been shunted from the unbeaten list. And snapped Auburn's 17-game winning streak.

Northwestern, winless last year, created the biggest shock of the topsy-turvy football weekend. Led by the shrewd Hales nearly off his pins. Bear guard Abe Gibron pushed Burroughs.

The entire Bear squad rose but a few words from Hales quieted the bustling of all time. He-Hales roused the Bears to retaliate with the football.

Baltimore Colts, meanwhile, retained the western division lead, trampling the defending champion Detroit Lions 38-14. Cleve land Browns defeated Pittsburgh Steelers 27-20 to remain at the head of the eastern conference.

Chicago Cardinals downed New York Giants 23-6, San Francisco 49ers edged Philadelphia Eagles 24-20 and Washington Redskins beat Green Bay Packers 27-21.

The Colts won on the arm of Johnny Unitas, who pitched a touchdown to Jim Mutscheller in the fourth quarter.

BROWN PACES BROWNS

Cleveland moved two games in front in the east on the running of Jimmy Brown and rookie Bob Mitchell. Brown boosted his rushing yardage for four games to 326 yards and scored two touchdowns. Mitchell scored once.

The Cards pulled the injured Lamar McHan off the bench for their victory over New York. The eight clubs wrapped in bandages, McHan fired two scoring passes to Vern Magher.

Johnny Olszewski paced the Washington attack, gaining 161 yards and scoring once. Eddie LeBaron passed for two touchdowns.

Harness Racing

BATAVIA, N.Y. (CP) — Howard Rosecroft, owned by driver Rod Gilmour and Blueman Service of Lucan, Ont., won the sixth edition of the pacing division of the autumn gold series at Batavia Downs Saturday night.

Argyle Jay, owned and driven by D. R. Campbell of Alliston, won the fifth and Widow Baldwin, property of Fraser Dewar of Kirkwood, Ont., captured the sixth.

Brawls, Boss Get Bears Tough, Whip Rams 31-10

NEW YORK (AP) — Chicago Bears are fighting mad and beginning to win.

Favored to win the western conference title in the National Football League, the Chicagoans are in sole possession of second place, a game behind first-place Baltimore.

Bears advanced by defeating Los Angeles Rams, 31-10 Sunday and it was owner-coach George Halas' inspired talk on one of the games several brawls, who probably instilled the "get tough" attitude.

With the Rams leading 7-0 in the first quarter, Chicago's Ed Brown hit Harlon Hill with a side line pass and the Ram defenders likewise hit Hill, shoving him out of bounds with authority.

HALAS PUSHED

Halas charged down the sideline, pushing the aging top of Hill. The Rams' Don Burroughs shoved Halas nearly off his pins. Bear guard Abe Gibron pushed Burroughs.

The entire Bear squad rose but a few words from Halas quieted the bustling of all time. He-Hales roused the Bears to retaliate with the football.

Baltimore Colts, meanwhile, retained the western division lead, trampling the defending champion Detroit Lions 38-14. Cleveland Browns defeated Pittsburgh Steelers 27-20 to remain at the head of the eastern conference.

Payette's Trio Paces Macs In 5-1 Victory Over Comets

CLINTON, N.Y. — Scoring two unanswered first-period goals, the Belleville McFarlands raced to a 5-1 victory over the International League's Clinton Comets here Saturday night.

The second game of the home-and-home exhibition series will be played in Belleville tonight. It was the sixth straight exhibition victory for the Allan Cup champions.

The Comets cut the margin to a goal midway through the second stanza but the McFarlands'roared back with a pair for a 4-1 lead. They scored the only goal of the third period.

Paul Payette was the top marksman for the Macs, firing home three goals with "Wiener" Brown and Minnie Menard scoring the others. Keith MacDonald had three assists, Moe Benoit and Eddie Marineau two each and Bart Bradley and Menard singles.

Wilis Fawchuk, who played with Kingston in senior "B" days scored the Comet's lone goal. Linemates Bob Bradley and Pete Powell assists.

The game was cleanly played with referee Burns handing out five minor penalties, three to the Comets. One of the Belleville goals was scored with the Comets a man up.

The Comets failed to capitalize on MacDonald's only penalty of the first period but the locals battled scorelessly until the 14-minute mark. Then Benoit sent MacDonald and Payette away. Fawchuk took Stringle's pass at 13.45 to give the Comets their lone goal of the game. Bradley also assisting.

Payette got that one back three minutes later, beating DeSilva for his second goal with Menard and MacDonald in on the kill.

Marineau got his name on his lines, and a minute later Paul racked up his third counter on a pass from Marineau to give the Macs a 4-1 lead.

Fawchuk got the gate after 13 minutes of play in the third period, and the Macs staged their power play. Payette, Marineau, MacPhee, Brown, Watson, A. Defelice, Hook, Ste. Hilaire, Calhoun, Kardash.

Belleville: goal, G. Bell; defence, Benoit, Georgin, Bailey, Crawford; forwards, Bradley, Brown, Hildebrand, MacDonald, Marineau, Payette.

Clinton: Burns; linesmen, Glary, Nardello.

Varsity Blanks Golden Gaels, Mustangs Ride Over Redmen

University of Toronto and University of Western Ontario sent powerhouses on the field Saturday and overwhelmed their opponents in Senior Intercollegiate football.

At Toronto the Blues blanked Queen's Golden Gaels 44-0 and kept Gaels in their own end for the first part of the game. Western Mustangs had the same drive 39-8 win over McGill University Redmen in London.

Unbeaten Toronto now leads the league with four, wins. Western stands second with two wins and two losses to Toronto while Queen's and McGill share the cellar with a win apiece.

Unless Western defeats Toronto in London Nov. 1, forcing a playoff under league rules, it stands little chance of catching up with them.

Toronto struck for a score within less than two minutes after Queen's fumbled on their second play of the game. Dave Creswell and Dune Brodie each scored two touchdowns and Dave Faulkner and Paul Burroughs scored one each. Larry Joyce kicked a field goal and five converts and kicked two converts and Doug Baird was credited with a safety touch.

Varsity held quarter leads of 14-0, 28-0 and 35-0. They rolled to 36 first downs, 23 on the ground, against Gaels' seven.

Brodie made a total of 122 days and overwhelmed their opponents in Senior Intercollegiate football.

COMMUNIST

In announcing the first cease-fire, effective at midnight Sunday, Oct. 5, the Chinese said a condition was that the United States halt its escorts.

The United States refused to accede specifically to the Communist demand. But after several days of cease-fire it withdrew the escorts and said they were no longer necessary.

PREDICTED IT

The Nationalists viewed the action again artillery war as a fulfillment of their predictions that the Reds would renew action when it suited them. They have claimed the Communists were only following accepted Red tactics of "fight and talk, talk and fight."

This was in conflict with Dulles' hopes. He has been working on the line that the Communists might institute a permanent cease-fire if the Nationalists would thin their large garrison on Quemoy in a point where it could not be considered an invasion threat to the mainland.

The interval since Oct. 6 has been used by the Nationalists for a replenishment of supplies. Heavier guns, including eight-inch howitzers and 155-mm. artillery, have been sent in.

Dulles was due here early Tuesday morning (7 p.m. EDT Monday) after a refueling stop in Alaska.

Dulles left Rome on the 9,300-mile flight after attending the final mourning service for Pope Pius XII in St. Peter's Basilica.

He broke his journey at the U.S. air base at Brize Norton, England, for a two-hour talk with British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd. There was no word on what they said but presumably the views exchanged bore on the offshore islands.

Rev. Bernard de Brienne, 33, discovered two years ago it was possible to reconcile his talent for music and his calling. He splits his time between teaching and preaching, and booming out folksongs in a rich baritone at concerts throughout Quebec province. Now a teacher and chaplain in Sherbrooke, Que., he accompanies himself on a guitar. (CP Photo.)

51 Meet Violent Death During Long Weekend

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canada's accidental fatality count hit the 51 mark during the weekend as mishaps on the highway accounted for 34 deaths.

A Canadian Press survey, conducted from 6 p.m. local time Friday to midnight Sunday, also showed thirty-four persons were drowned, two shot to death, three asphyxiated, two died from wood alcohol poisoning and one man was crushed in a tractor accident.

Five persons were burned to death, four of them when flames destroyed a cabin near Penbroke, Ont. The victims were a man, his wife, their child and the wife's brother.

The provincial count, with traffic deaths in brackets, was:

British Columbia 3 (3), Alberta 5 (4), Saskatchewan 2 (1), Manitoba 1 (1), Ontario 15 (8), Quebec 18 (12), New Brunswick 3 (3), Nova Scotia 2 (2).

Prince Edward Island and Newfoundland were fatality-free.

The Ontario dead:

Robert Graves, 72, of Howard Township killed Friday night a mile from Ridgetown when a car hit his bicycle.

Percy Beatty, 80, killed when struck by a car on a wrested Toronto street Friday night.

FOUR DIE IN FIRE

Ernest Hammell, 44; his wife, Freda, 27, their son Ezra, 3, and Leonard Burger, 16, Mrs. Hammell's brother, burned to death early Saturday in their one-room cabin eight miles west of Pembroke.

James Johnston, 18, of Peterborough, killed when the car he was riding in missed a curve and turned over Friday night 20 miles east of Peterborough.

Joachim Bernatchez, 20, killed Friday night when his car went out of control and turned over 10 miles east of Blind River.

Anthony L. McConnell, 74, burned to death early Sunday when fire destroyed his home near Merrickville, 25 miles southwest of Ottawa.

Vieno Wuorela, 48, killed by a car Saturday night as she walked along the highway near Port Arthur.

DROWNED IN LAKE

Dean Taylor, 20, drowned Sunday when he and a companion who was saved were flipped from their outboard motorboat in Lake Ontario near Pickering.

Danny Dailey, 16, of Fruitland, killed when he and Howard Aird, 15, were struck by a car just outside the Hamilton city limits. Aird was in fair condition in hospital.

William H. Stewart, 39, and Mrs. Clarice Seeley, 38, both of North Bay, killed Sunday night in a two-car collision just east of the city.

Youth Drowned Near Toronto

PICKERING (CP)—Dean Taylor, 20, from the Toronto suburb of Scarborough, was drowned in three-foot waves in Lake Ontario Sunday after a motorboat capsized about a mile from Frenchman's Bay.

Police said he was picked up afloat in a lifejacket but failed to respond to inhalator treatment.

Steve Dawe, 19, of nearby West Hill, owner of the boat, was rescued unhurt.

Police said the two left the bay to try out the outboard motor. When waves overturned their boat they clung to it for about 15 minutes without a lifejacket each. Both were wearing life jackets.

Dawe said he and Taylor decided to swim to shore, fearing they would not be seen in the rough water. He said both knew how to swim.

What every woman knows ...about her newspaper

Every woman knows her favorite newspaper, inside out and backwards and forwards. Knows exactly where to look in its pages for practical helps on homemaking and child raising . . . for latest tidings on who has married whom, and what "blessed event" has occurred where.

She knows that her newspaper will keep her up-to-date on what's new in fashion . . . and in education . . . on local goings-on as well as events of world-wide importance. Most of all, she knows her newspaper as a trusted friend, counsellor and guide, that she wouldn't willingly do without!

Reading the newspaper regularly adds zest and interest to the life of every member of the family group.

The Ontario Intelligencer

"My Life Insurance man did a grand job for me, Ed"

All talk over the back fence isn't about sport, or politics, or television programs. Very often it's about such vital things as looking after the family and having enough money to retire on.

Your life insurance man is well equipped to solve these problems. He is trained to analyse all the facts about a family's future requirements. He serves Canadian families by offering practical plans to meet individual needs.

Life Insurance representatives have exceptional training opportunities today. Their own companies provide them with basic courses covering a wide variety of subjects.

Through the Life Underwriters Association of Canada they have access to the experience of many able men who have helped to make Canadians the world's best-insured people. This Association has a 2-year training program for its members. And, in addition, for those who desire to pursue more advanced studies, there is a 3-year university extension course leading to the Association's designation of Chartered Life Underwriter (C.L.U.)

This thorough training plus practical experience in helping people explains why millions of Canadians welcome the services of the modern Life Underwriter.

Establishment of Permanent UN Police Canada's Aim

By DAVE McINTOSH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

For 11 crisis-ridden years, Canada has been pressing for establishment of a permanent United Nations police force.

It is small wonder, then, that the Canadian government has endorsed UN Secretary - General Dag Hammarskjold's recommendation that the UN set up the framework for an international military force.

But Mr. Hammarskjold's recommendation is only a sukeyarm version of the Canadian plan. It merely outlines general principles to govern standby arrangements for a UN force.

What Canada wants and has been urging continuously is that UN members keep part of their armed forces organized and ready for UN police duty, Canada decides.

CANADA AND KOREA

In 1946, former Liberal prime minister St. Laurent, then external affairs, pleaded at the very first meeting of the UN assembly for the organization to enforce these obligations more arise," the government declared.

No other country followed suit.

In 1953, 1955 and twice in early 1956 Canada renewed its plea for a permanent UN police force. It could win no active support for the proposal.

SUEZ CRISIS

But it did get fast support during the Suez crisis in the late fall of 1956. However, the UN Emergency Force sent to Egypt—about one-fifth Canadian — was established on a temporary basis only.

President Eisenhower proposed in August that the UN assembly create a standby police force.

But Russia has opposed any kind of UN armed forces on the grounds that they would be in the hands of the United States "and its partners in the aggressive North Atlantic bloc."

Mr. Hammarskjold has to try to deal with all UN members on equal terms. Thus he could not give full support to a Canadian plan opposed by the Communists.

He probably went as far as he judiciously could and, at least, his recommendation may result in another UN debate on the issue.

But chances of formation of any permanent UN force appear almost as slim as ever.

Four Convicts At Kingston 'Pen' Seize Hostages

Guards Force 2 Doors Rescue 3 Men Unharmed

KINGSTON (CP) — Four convicts at Kingston Penitentiary face possible wrangles and identity confinement for a half-hour uprising Monday in which they held two unarmed guards and a hospital officer hostages at knifepoint.

It was the third violent incident in the penitentiary since midsummer and the Ontario city in little more than two months.

The convicts, one a two-time convicted murderer, were working in a toy repair shop in the main prison yard with four other prisoners. They seized guards Cecil M. Grant and Clark Gardiner, James Sellers, a hospital officer, and held knives against their throats.

It is believed the four planned the break several days but when an alarm system sounded they barricaded themselves in the toy shop behind the prison's occupational therapy projects.

Grant was called the men to come out, then began hammering down the door. As they broke through, the prisoners ordered the guards into a small annex. They surrendered when guards forced the second door.

"LUNATIC FRINGE"

Warden Frank F. Johnstone described the four as on "the lunatic fringe" but said they were not typical of the prison's population.

Warden Johnstone said he is considering a similar episode last Friday when 21 convicts refused to leave prison officials and held them captive for 12 hours before they were forced to surrender at rifle-point.

The worst prison uprising in three years occurred Aug. 17 at the nearby Collins Bay Penitentiary when 66 convicts rioted and set fire to nine buildings. A guard shot a prisoner in the leg and the others quickly gave up.

Murder Suspect Found Hanged In Elevator

GODERICH, Ont. (CP) — The body of Kenneth Dickinson, 31-year-old murder suspect, was found hanging today in a lakeside grain elevator located in an area searched Monday by police.

Dickinson was wanted on a murder warrant in connection with the shotgun slaying of his 21-year-old wife Elaine last Saturday.

Tony Masse, an employee of the Goderich Elevator and Transit Company Limited, found the body hanging by rope in one of the unloading elevators.

A company spokesman said the elevator was clear when work stopped Monday at 4:30 p.m.

Police had boarded private and commercial vessels in Goderich harbor and dragged the harbor waters in the area of the grain elevators Monday in the belief Dickinson may have taken his life by drowning.

Elaine Dickinson of Guelph, separated from her husband a month ago, was shot in the stomach after a visit to their home in a gravel pit here.

Mrs. Fanny Watson of Goderich, on the Bayfield road, Dec. 30, were collecting watercress when they saw a man carrying a gun. They said the man dragged a woman out of a car and shouted: "She's going to shoot me."

TRIED AID WOMAN

They went to the woman's aid and talked with the couple. Mrs. Watson said Mrs. Dickinson wanted to be driven home but not in the same car as the man.

While they were walking back to the cars, Mrs. Dickinson was shot.

Mrs. Watson said "the man must have loaded the gun with out us seeing him and he was only three feet from her when he shot her."

Her nephew fought with the man and she hit him over the head and shoulders with the shotgun. But e broke loose and escaped.

Mrs. Dickinson died a few minutes later.

British Soldier Dies in Ambush

NICOSIA (Reuters)—A British soldier was killed and four others injured in ambushes in Cyprus today.

The soldier died when his car was blown up by a mine near Ayios Nicolaos in northeast Cyprus. He is the 20th British victim of Cyprus terrorists since Britain's Greek-Turkish partnership plan for island came into operation on Oct. 1.

Seven civilians in the car was injured, and the other three were wounded when three bombs were thrown at, their jeep in Famagusta.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) Synopsis: — Fine autumn weather continues to Friday. Ontario. Warm southerly winds will be strengthened to boost temperatures into the 65 to 70 degree range this afternoon.

A storm located in the Dakotas caused scattered thunderstorms, strong winds and blowing dust in Manitoba Monday night. This storm is weakening and is expected to yield only scattered showers at it moves through northwestern Ontario Wednesday.

SAYS SEPARATE SCHOOLS RECEIVE HIGHER GRANTS

Trustees' President Says Division Unfair

HAMILTON (CP)—Unexplained differences in provincial grants to separate and public schools drew fire Monday from the president of the Ontario Public School Trustees Association.

Earl Grant of Sault Ste. Marie told the association's convention:

"In some centres the Roman Catholic separate schools get as much as 50 per cent more grant than the public school in the same area.

"Public school trustees of these centres would like to understand why this difference exists."

He urged a brief be presented to the provincial government asking for a fair division of grants. In some centres the percentage age of grants from the provincial government had changed considerably.

RESPONSIBLE FOR ALL

"It must be remembered that the public school, do not care what religious denomination the children belong to, as he pays public school taxes," Mr. Grant said. "The public school trustees must be ready at all times to educate any or all of the children in their area."

He also said he was disappointed there was no follow-up in Ontario to last winter's Canadian conference on education in Ottawa.

A regional meeting should be held in Ontario so that the educational system can be improved from knowledge gained at the conference.

R. H. Macklem, a public school trustee from Toronto district, urged amalgamated schools to bring rural education up to city standards. He said Ontario seems to have two standards of education. "A good one in urban schools and a not so good one in rural schools."

NO DIFFERENCE IN IQ

Mr. Macklem said maris in the city and those in the country is no significant difference in their IQ. He said: "It is only rural children."

The trustees' task is to concentrate on the philosophy taught in schools rather than to bring in a man to training new building into the community, said William Rogers, chairman of the board for Scarboro.

"There is too much concentration on bricks and mortar and not enough time spent on what goes on in the building after it is constructed," he said in a panel discussion.

He said one of the weaknesses in present-day standards both at elementary and secondary levels is that too many trustees never bother to find out the basic needs of education.

H. E. Bray, personnel manager for the Steel Company of Canada, said he was concerned at the number of young people who hadn't the ability to get into university but were going into teaching. Some students were only studying 20 weeks in some schools before entering classroom.

SEES TOURIST BOOM

BROCKVILLE (CP) — The St. Lawrence seaway and power development will be responsible for a "tremendous" industrial and residential boom, Dr. Hammond Macy, governor of Rotary international, said Monday. Mr. Macy of Port Placid, N.Y., said resort business would more than double in the next five years.

U.S. Will Put Animal Into Orbit When There Is Chance It Will Live

WASHINGTON (AP)—The U.S. Air Force plans to put a "small animal" into an orbit around the earth within a month if there's a good chance of bringing it back alive.

The animal would be in a space capsule equipped to radio back to earth information on the animal's performance in a 24 hr. physiological condition.

The Russians got similar reports on 'the dog Laika, sent aloft in a Soviet Sputnik last year. No dog ever has been brought back to earth.

Brig.-Gen. Donald D. Flickinger, air force director of life sciences, outlined the service's plans in the Air University Quarterly Review published at Maxwell air force base in Alabama.

He said the attempt would be made providing techniques for the recovery of the space capsule and its occupant are developed satisfactorily.

The experiment would be made particularly to provide him with a study of the effects of weightlessness on animals and human beings.

Flickinger said consideration is being given to developing capsules putting laboratory animals, and later man, into a semi-ballistic flight path that would provide up to eight minutes of weightlessness.

Flickinger disclosed the air force hopes to develop experimental models of capsules to hold men and animals—with the capsules being large enough to be fitted into the third-stage and nose-cone assembly of ballistic missiles.

He said actual tests of these capsules in a semi-ballistic flight path may be achieved in the next 12 to 18 months.

Southern Democrats Feuding With Party's National Head

NEW YORK (CP) — Southern Democrats were feuding today with their party's national chairman — just as President Eisenhower was saying the Democrats are a hopelessly split party offering only deadlocked government.

What aroused the ire of the southerners in advance of the Nov. 4 congressional election was a statement Sunday by Democratic national chairman Paul M. Butler. He told interviewers Southern Democrats ought either to accept a strong civil - rights plank in the 1960 Democratic platform or leave the party.

Several Southern Democrats said Butler should leave the party. One called him a radical and suggested the party select as its leader for "northern radical votes and special minority interests."

Senator W.Va. Butler appeared to soften his stand somewhat Monday. He said he still "we're certainly not going to read anybody out of the party."

"Inevitably these will be some people who will not go along with the party platform," he added. Butler said he did not think such a split would hurt the Democrats in the 1960 presidential campaign.

Eisenhower, in a speech for Republican candidates in Minnesota, said the Democrats suffer from "political schizophrenia."

Without referring to the Butler row, Eisenhower said the Democrats are divided into widely separated wings—one in the U.S. South and "at the other end of the line stronger wing, dominated by political radicals."

The president also said, "they crash headlong into each other on every important domestic issue — in short, our opposition can offer America, only deadlocked government, government that wages war on itself."

Eisenhower spoke to a party rally in Los Angeles.

He defended his administration's foreign and domestic policies and said Democratic critics of his policies "would be a disaster to merchants of fear and defeat."

Many Types of Intimidation Used by Union Says Report

TORONTO (CP) — An Ontario Supreme Court judge has ask a new Toronto Teamsters' Union local of criminal "intimidation" during a four-year campaign two years ago.

Mr. Justice Wilfred W.G. Roberts said a six-month statutory limit prevents prosecution except with consent of the attorney-general of the Canadian Criminal Code.

Roberts was commissioner of a 100-page royal commission report by Mr. Justice W. R. Wells, appointed last year by the attorney-general. The report followed a provincial inquiry into the 1956 shutdown of about 30 gravel pits in the Toronto area by a strike in 1956 while the Teamsters' Union organized nearly 600 truckers.

Mr. Justice Roberts said the union members of the union violated "a multitude of sections of the code of intimidation and two officers of Toronto's Local 230 — business agent James Hunter and organizer John Buchanan—were parties to it.

The Ontario Labor Relations Act also was violated by numerous acts of intimidation and coercion used upon truckers to compel them to become members of the teamsters' union."

The report said:

"Truckers who wanted to resume hauling testified to do so only because of the threat to their safety and their property from roughing and other violence. Their purpose was to physically prevent them from doing so.

"Tires, tools, radiators punctured, brake fluid lines severed, failure to put in radiators and miscellaneous types of damage done when drivers' backs were unattended and even on their own property.

"It was risky and dangerous for a trucker to go out on the highway alone and for one to consider a convoy necessary for the police."

In one incident Hamilin threw a rock through a truck window, said Mr. Justice Roach.

He said the toughest doubt that Buchanan was the organizer of the procedure to be adopted by the union in dealing with the groups who went to the various gravel pits to persuade the truckers to prevent the owner-operators' trucks from continuing to haul gravel. This was not necessarily by violence, but by preventing their passage on the roads and highways.

The attorney - general, in releasing the report at a press conference, said prosecutions for refusal of trade, are only offered indictable and hence not subject to the six-month limit. They would be "taken under consideration."

The offence comes under section 501 of the criminal code—providing for up to two years' imprisonment for any person who trade unions and their members. Mr. Justice Roberts said the union members could not be bona fide members of a union because they were "coerced" into it by fear. In some cases had employees of their own operating extra trucks.

Mr. Roberts said that while prosecution might not be feasible, "I am sure that out of the findings of the commissioner will come a much clearer appreciation by both management and labor of what the law is and what courses of action and personal conduct of individuals should be taken."

Fewer Jobless In September Than in August

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadian employment began its yearly seasonal downturn in September, but the number of persons without jobs work fell off slightly from August.

September employment was 4,869,000, a 1,000 decrease, against 4,868,000 in August and 5,939,000, in September, 1957.

Reasons for the drop in employment during a month of declining employment, showing that 31 left the labor force of students and other short-term workers with the end of the vacation period and the completion of harvesting and food-processing operations.

Besides the estimates of actual employment and unemployment, the government also released figures showing that at Sept. 18 there were 227,112 persons registered with the country's new Unemployment Insurance Commission. This compared with 257,687 a month earlier and 192,895 a year previously.

The registrations are not regarded as a gauge of actual unemployment since there is an involvement — unspecified — experienced persons seeking to change jobs or who have found work after registering.

Ethnic Groups Hit Supporters Of Coexistence

TORONTO (CP) — Representatives of Toronto ethnic groups have assailed a Canadian Broadcasting Corporation film on Communist China as "propaganda for the gold-wrapped Communist slogan of peaceful coexistence with the West."

Monday night meeting, chaired by George Nagey, secretary-general of the Canadian Liberation Council, and Joseph Brwzek, Canadian president of the Ukrainian Congress Committee of Centrayr Europe, approved a statement appealing to the CBC to withdraw the film, appearing communism.

Mr. Nagey and James Muir, president of the Royal Bank of Canada, publisher Oakley Dalgleish of the Toronto Globe and Mail, the council of the United Church of Canada, publisher Bertrand Russell and Canadian-born industrialist E. P. Taylor were criticized for their views on recognition of Communist China and the policy of peaceful coexistence with the U.S., secretary of state.

The United Church decision on Sept. 24 to advocate recognition of Red China was "regrettable, short-sighted."

"Significantly, the above all-Canadian committee within a few peak of Communist aggression being felt all over the world and a stepped-up subversive activity apparent even in Canada."

IVTH RUSSIAN TEST

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Atomic Energy Commission said Monday it has detected another Russian nuclear test — the 11th since Sept. 30.

FRENCH REFUSE TO BE BOUND BY ANY TESTS BAN

Will Develop Bombs Unless Stocks Cut

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) France's blunt warning that she will not feel bound by any U.S.-British-Soviet agreement to suspend nuclear weapon tests touched fears today on the floor of the Geneva arms talks opening Oct. 31.

Diplomats wondered whether Russia — quick to blast the French position—might use it as the excuse to refuse agreement and continue its own tests.

Jules Moch, the French disarmament expert, caused a stir in the UN's political committee Monday by serving notice that "any agreement reached at Geneva would be "drawn up without the participation of France and not applying to her."

WANT OWN BOMB

The French government has been pressing to develop its own atomic bomb so that France can join the "nuclear powers" club.

Moch made plain France would hold off her plans for a nuclear weapons tests only if the Geneva talks produced agreement on (1) immediate cessation of tests, (2) controlled reduction of atomic stockpiles and (3) total banning and end to production of atomic weapons.

Valerian Zorin, the Soviet deputy foreign minister, said he insisted Moch's statement on the French France "does not intend to participate in the reduction of the atomic threat or take any concrete steps in the field of disarmament."

FEAR RUSSIAN CHARG

Some diplomats felt the Russian-French clash over the French position as evidence of Western fears of a Soviet walkout from Geneva talks. The French will not take part in the talks but their views usually are closely echoed by other two Western powers on such questions.

Russia, which has a resolution before the UN calling on the Big Four to ban the test at once for all time, already has accused the United States and Britain of attaching too many conditions to stopping test explosions.

Receive No Reply From Minsk Zenty

VATICAN CITY (Reuters) — Joseph Mindszenty, former primate of Hungary, has not yet replied to an invitation telegraphed almost two weeks ago asking him to come to Rome, a Vatican press spokesman said today.

Invitations were sent to all cardinals on Oct. 9, the day after the death of Pope Pius XII, for the Conclave of Cardinals that begins Saturday for the election of Pope.

The spokesmen would not comment on reports circulating Monday night that the Vatican had received Mindszenty's reply. Mindszenty, in sanctuary for the last eight years in the U.S. embassy in Budapest, would arrive in time for the conclave.

Vatican sources said today the fact the cardinal has not replied to the invitation has caused some surprise.

PREPARING TO LEAVE

One Vatican source said Mindszenty, who took refuge in the American Legation when the Hungarian anti-Russian revolt was crushed, has allowed to leave Hungary provided he never returned.

Heavy Smoking by Pregnant Women May Reduce Baby's Birth Weight

LONDON (Reuters)—A woman who smokes while pregnant probably will have a baby below birth weight, a team of medical experts reported today.

The team, from Birmingham University's department of social medicine, gave this view after canvassing nearly 1,300 mothers.

A baby is regarded as below in correct proportion to the number of cigarettes smoked daily, the experts said.

But women who smoke heavily during pregnancy and 401 smoked daily while their baby was on the way.

Charting the birth weights of babies, the experts found that:

1. The average birth weight for women who never smoked was 7.3 pounds.

2. The average for those who gave up smoking during pregnancy was 7.26 pounds.

3. The average for those who smoked 1 to 9 cigarettes a day, no number of cigarets.

4. The average for 10 cigarets a day produced, on the average, a seven-pound baby. The 10-or-more smoker mothers had babies weighing an average of 6.85 pounds.

The team thought a possible reason was that smoking interfered in some way with the food supply from the mother.

Another finding was that women who smoked had more premature babies than those who did not.

New Agreement With China Not Sought By Dulles

Says End of Cease-Fire Limits Scope of Talks

TAIPEI (AP)—State Secretary Dulles and President Chiang Kai-shek opened their conference today against a backdrop of renewed Red cannonading of Quemoy.

After a 2½ - hour meeting between Dulles and Chiang, a U.S. state department spokesman said "Mr. Dulles is not here to twist anybody's arm or apply any heat or pressure."

The Chinese Communists sent their guns into action early on the second day, but on a much lighter scale than the day before. They said up to noon only 365 shells hit but Quemoy, compared with more than 11,500 the first day.

But there was no doubt that abrupt Communist decision to end their self-imposed cease-fire had an important bearing on the Dulles-Chiang discussions.

Joseph Grew, special assistant to Dulles, said Dulles' first conversation with Chiang was "a stocktaking of the present situation."

He said the political and military situation was being assessed "in line with Communist propaganda.

U.S. PRESSURE REPORTED

Grew denied this talk on reports that the U.S. might bring pressure on Chiang to end the shelling but said Dulles and Chiang had the hope of obtaining a permanent cease-fire.

He said applying heat or pressure "would not be the way to build the relationship of mutual trust and confidence of the two countries as allies."

The Red action stiffened Nationalist opposition to any reduction of forces on the Quemoy islands. Dulles had indicated that Washington favored a reduction in hopes of a permanent cease-fire return.

The American secretary of state and Chiang Chinese Nationalist leader exactly 24 hours after the Communists broke their self-imposed cease-fire, following a 15-day lull in the Quemoys. There was a heavy barrage Monday, shelling was reported light today.

FLEW POLAR ROUTE

Dulles made his mid-morning in a military jet tanker that flew the polar route from Paris to Taipei. He told Chiang "we are not aimed at reaching any new agreements."

"We hope, through re-examination, to achieve a relationship of mutual trust and confidence which is of immediate value to all the free nations of the Far East."

The U.S. state secretary had been scheduled to fly on a smaller garrison on Quemoy equipped with more - powerful radar. Reds could not consider an invasion likely while there would be sufficient to protect the offshore islands from a concentrated air attack, he said in his statement:

"It is obvious that if the Communists are interested in peaceful fighting to achieve their political ends, the Communist and Nationalist have the same scope and character that would have been possible if there were a ceasefire."

AMERICANS CONFER'

Dulles went from the airport to the presidential villa to officials on Formosa before meeting Chiang.

Grew said arrangements for the visit to Chiang by Walter Robertson who, as assistant secretary of

Counsel for TCA Doubts That CPA Knows Business

OTTAWA (CP)—R. B. Phillips, Canadian Transport Airlines operations vice-presidents, says he can see a daily transcontinental air service "forever" with just seven aircraft".

That remark, made during a heated battle before the air transport board Monday, brought accusations from J. G. Edison, counsel for the publicly - owned rival, Canada Pacific Lines, that CPA doesn't know its aircraft - management business.

The fight between the two companies centres on CPA's proposed financial evidence in connection with its bid for a slice of TCA's long-held overseas monopoly on routes.

Mr. Edison charged that CPA's proposed operational estimates did not include sufficient allowance for the contingencies that it showed too small an amount for maintenance. Consequently, that it showed no item to be added "if another meals."

ALL PLANES IN AIR

He established also that on the basis of CPA's proposed flight schedules, the company's planned pilot-driven Douglas DC-6B aircraft "will be in the air" whenever Montreal route would be 'a the daily' at 11 p.m. and that all aircraft would be flying, leaving none on the ground for reserves, overhaul or maintenance.

"How long do you think you can operate on a route of this kind with seven aircraft on that basis?" he asked Mr. Phillips.

"Forever."

"For 30 years?"

"Yes — as long as they (the planes) would operate. They might not operate successfully for 30 years but I think the DC-6Bs that exist today will be quite capable of operating for that length of time."

How would CPA service the airport? That was no problem, Mr. Phillips countered. They could be serviced during stops.

"I can see no being pretty practical about the whole thing," he added. "I don't think it is going into an argument with you but the route can be operated with an aircraft."

"I suggest you need more than seven aircraft," Mr. Edison said. "I suggest you don't know your business if you are here with this application on this basis."

AGAINST CROSSOVERS

KITCHENER (CP)—The police commission Monday passed recommendation that no time has not come when pedestrian crossovers can be put on boulevards where vehicles must yield to a pedestrian. The plan has not yet received third reading.

PROLIFIC BLOOMING LILY

Another Easter lily makes news. This one is the property of Mrs. Charles Primmer, 43 West Frank Street, Belleville. In a little less than seven months this particular lily has been in bloom three times: first in April; then again on June 28, and now in October it has one full bloom and one bud, spreading its fragrance for many to enjoy.

Mrs. Primmer mentions that after placing it out in the garden, in a somewhat shady location she watered it with the hose, not too frequently.

SUGGEST USE OF LANDING STRIPS AT MOHAWK AIRPORT

The suggested use of landing strips at the Mohawk Airport at Deseronto as a commercial landing field, and the proposed connecting of the causeway between Deseronto and Prince Edward County were topics of a recent discussion at a meeting of Zone 3 of the Lake Ontario Development Association held recently at Tweed.

Approximately ten members municipalities of the LODA attended the meeting.

KINSMEN MEMBERS START PROJECT

The Kinsmen Club members, who have so successfully operated the swimming pool and the children's eye clinic are embarking on another project—on Tuesday night in aid of their welfare fund. The members will be out knocking on doors and will be selling again their light bulbs, neatly packaged and ready for use. This takes a lot of time and effort by the members but they feel every time when they see some child regain his eyesight or some youngster progress rapidly in the art of swimming for recreation at the pool. All of the projects require money and by buying the bulbs everyone will be in a small measure helping to further those projects.

LOVELY ROSES STILL IN BLOOM

In some sections of the Belleville district lovely roses are still blooming even though Jack Frost has twice this season left his unmistakable calling card. This morning, Mrs. Wesley Gray, Sr., of 14 Evans Street, who is noted for her beautiful flower garden, brought to the Ontario Intelligencer office a full-blown cabbage rose in deep pink shade with two buds, one partially opened. This is the third time this rosebush has bloomed; first in June, then on August 21st, and now in October. There are still ten buds on the bush.

It is also nice to know that other roses are giving of their beauty and fragrance in some gardens around the Frankford district.

Scouting Association Elects F. J. Lancaster as President, Hears Report on Year's Work

The annual meeting of the Belleville Boy Scout Association was held in the Kiwanis Centre, on Dundas Street, last night and was opened by President C. F. Leggat with a welcoming address and a discussion on his year in office. The meeting was attended by a large representative group for closing in this phase of scouting.

In his speech Mr. Leggat directed a great deal of praise to the uniformed segment of the association. He said that during his term in office they "had been wonderful . . ." Then he addressed the younger leaders and warned them of the great responsibility they accept with becoming leaders in the Scout movement.

In conclusion he said that it was his hope that they would continue to do all the good work and that he was sure, great divisions would be reaped by them.

The highlight of last year's meeting were read by Secretary John Hodgson and after one correction was made they were adopted.

District Commissioner, P. L. Allcorn, submitted his annual report for adoption stressing the great need of well trained leaders this coming year. He said that there were now nine qualified Gilwell leaders in Belleville, the highest to be obtained in scouting.

After the report and adoption of the treasurer's report it was stated that one member of the group, Phil Stewart, that he "Could not see why the Boy Scout Apple Day was held as the Scouts are now in the Belleville United Appeal." The question was answered by President, Leggat who said ". . . Boy Scout Apple Day is an institution in Belleville, Canada and all over the world . . ." he went on to say that he hoped the Apple Days would continue being held.

Treasurer F. L. Andrews reported that the Apple Day was successful. The boys sold $1,391 worth of apples to date.

The guest speaker, Air Commodore J. S. Harvey was introduced by Alex Jamieson.

Mr. Harvey, who has worked at training young men for 25 years, devoted most of this talk to the importance of teamwork today. He asked that they join in the advancement of the Russians in the fields of science and said that their success must be given to ultra-teamwork. He said that the Russians set a goal and nothing is permitted to stand in the way of its attainment.

He said that Canada must similarly have the same degree of teamwork as exhibited by Soviet Russia if it is to survive and surpass it." Continuing the speaker said, "we are limited by our powers of conception and revolution." He was certain that "we are limited by our ideals and aspirations of other people."

"How can we develop these qualities?" he asked. "In the many lessons we receive as Citizen and Scouts," answering his own question. He praised the membership of the association for their hard work and wished them luck in their future plans for Scouting in Brtiseville.

He was thanked by F. J. Lancaster, who in his usual "address."

The following officers were elected:

Hon. pres., Lt.-Col. P. H. Gilmour; president, F. J. Lancaster; vice-president, B. R. Collins; secretary, J. C. Overy; district commissioner, P. L. Andrews. Executive, R. D. Arnott, Q.C.; A. W. Baker, C. E. Blakely, Dr. Clarke, Dr. J. H. Craig; John W. Deacon, W. Lorne McGibbon, Sr. Fairman; W. N. Hurst, Rev. Father William McGee; Andrew Hunter, F. Leggat, Robert W. Munro; George McCulloch; C. Overy; J. Richard S. Robb; Dan Stewart; A. R. Symons; Bruce Thompson; W. Watson; V. J. White; A. J Woltenden; Rev. Canon A. S. McGregor; W. Lorne McGibbon; R. T. Wheeler.

After the completion of the election of officers, F. J. Lancaster asked for a special vote of thanks to the Ladies' Auxiliary for the refreshments that were provided.

Strange Light Seen in Sky Over Wide Area

Highway transport drivers and radio duty police officers in the Belleville area were puzzled when a strange greenish blue light streaked across the sky thumbnail the night sky early today.

The strange light was seen between three and four o'clock this morning and apparently was visible through Southern Ontario and Northern New York State.

City police officers reported seeing the light while motorists and transport drivers also saw it as far east as Cornwall.

Conjecture is that the light may have been a meteorite which burned itself out in the atmosphere high above the surface of the earth.

BUFFALO (AP)—A pre-dawn glow that lit up the sky for at least several minutes was reported by residents in a wide area of western New York today.

State police said troopers from Lake Ontario to the Pennsylvania border had seen a reddish or bluish-white glow that shined with the brightness of day for a moment.

State and city police reported they were flooded with calls by phone calls for information. Some police officials concluded the glow was caused by the passage of a meteor.

In Toronto police said they had received calls from persons who claimed to have seen the flash over the Toronto area.

A spokesman at Toronto's Malton airport said the flash appeared to be on the airport boundary and looked like a flare. He said nothing had been found and that fog had hemmed in the airport during the night.

The bright flash was seen at 3:30 a.m. at persons in London, Niagara Falls, Perth, Tillsonburg and other centres.

Volunteers Give Many Hours' Free Time to United Appeal

Volunteer workers for the Belleville United Appeal were highly commended by the Board of Directors at a special meeting held last night at the Appeal headquarters. The meeting was under the chairmanship of BUA president, Mrs. Jane Forrester.

Judge J. C. Anderson, a member of the board of directors, stated that the daily workers being paid from Appeal funds are the part-time typists working in the Appeal office and they are being paid only for actual work time at the current rate of $1.25 an hour. He explained not more than two of these typists, and frequently, only one, have been employed in the United Appeal office in any working week. From May until September 8 only one typist was used only for a few hours per month.

He stated all other work both in and out of the campaign headquarters has been carried out by Belleville workers. The meetings are held by divisional chairmen the luncheons are paid for by each individual member," he said.

At the conclusion of the meeting the board of directors extended their sincere appreciation to the volunteer workers for the wonderful work they have been doing to help make the 1958 Belleville United Appeal Campaign a success.

Citizenship Day Observed by Rotary Club

Monday was Citizenship Day for Rotarians across Canada and the local Rotary Club celebrated the occasion by having as its guest speaker, Richard V. Fuke, BCIVS student, who was sponsored by the local club as "Junior Conference Citizenship" rally held last May 15th to 16th in Ottawa.

Thanking the Rotarians for sponsoring his trip to Ottawa, Dick gave a day by day account of the program of the rally which 195 students from all over Canada attended. The highlights of the occasion included the opening of Parliament, group discussions re politics and inter-Canadian relations held at Carleton University, tours of Ottawa, the Parliament Buildings, and the RCMP training school, and an address by Prime Minister John G. Diefenbaker. The representatives of each province of Ottawa Rotarians and had their meals together, usually in the ballroom of the Chateau Laurier.

Most important of the many things seen and enjoyed, stated Mr. Fuke, was the hospitality and fellowship enjoyed by all. He felt, however that young people are not as united as they might be. During the discussion groups it became quite evident that there were a number of "hidden" divisions, and it is his feeling that if there were more such conferences the relief these differences could be ironed out and a "happy family" would result.

The speaker was introduced by Arnold Orr, and the motion of thanks was made by Bob Lanning. Ex-presidnig Joe Demeza, acting as chairman, expressed the thanks of the club with the presentation of a handsome leather-cased toilet set to Mr. Fuke.

Among the meeting's activities was the presentation of a white carnation to Mr. Homer Griffiths of Bonar Springs, Kansas, guest of the visiting Rotarian from the farthest point; red carnations went to local members Ben Houston and Jack Marshall for their work on the banner board, and to Newt Thompson for having represented the local club at a meeting in Quinte. Birthday recognitions were given to Jack Yanover and Art Fralick. It was announced that Fred Wilson, vice-president was to be "On To Conference Chairman" for the annual district conference to be held in Toronto this year.

Hospital Aux. Plans Annual Yule Bazaar

CAMPBELLFORD—The October meeting of the Hospital Auxiliary was held on Friday, with representatives from the I.O.D.E., The Legion Women's Auxiliary, the Rebekahs, the Lawn Bowling Club, the W.I., the Eastern Star, Stanwood and English Line in attendance. They joined in a discussion regarding the annual Christmas bazaar to be held on December 10th. The different booths, a new addition this year, will be conveyed by Mrs. Armour. The usual draw on two satin bound blankets and a turkey will be under the joint convenership of Mrs. Aberneth and Mrs. Spencer. The favors for the Thanksgiving trays were on display and Mrs. Spencer, Mrs. Mead and Mrs. Bennett were congratulated on their artistic efforts.

Miss Eidt, the new Director of Nurses, attended the meeting and was introduced to the members. She remarked that she was very impressed with the accomplishments of the Auxiliary.

A nominating committee, composed of Mrs. R. Bateson and Mrs. D. Heffernan, was appointed to bring in a slate of officers for 1959 to be presented at the next meeting.

The hospital report for the month of September showed there were 97 admissions, 19 new babies, 14 major operations, 26 minor operations, 139 x-rays, 184 lab. tests, 5 blood transfusions and 3,433 meals served.

The next meeting will be held on Friday, November 14th when final plans will be made for the bazaar as well as an election of officers. All members are urged to attend.

Misleading Highway Signs Cause Business Drop -- C of C

Bridge repairs at Trenton coupled with the official opening of No. 401 from Trenton to Marysville have resulted in a decided falling off in motel registrations and in the business of some downtown merchants, it was reported today by Mr. Herbert Hamilton, secretary-manager of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce.

Reason for the marked falling off in traffic passing through the city was said to be Department of Highways signs at Trenton and at Marysville indicating that No. 2 Highway was closed.

Actually the No. 2 Highway bridge at Trenton is closed only to heavy trucks with one lane remaining open for use of autos and light trucks.

The feeling is that many motorists seeing the signs at Trenton or Marysville indicating the Trenton bridge is closed to all traffic, are taking the 401 route who would use No. 2 if they knew the Trenton bridge was actually open to traffic.

actors is there," he said. These were always eager to embarrass the prison authorities.

Some were in for long terms and they haven't much else to think about."

He said he thinks the trouble has been caused by a small group of agitators who have taken advantage of other "weak" prisoners.

Some likely would be put in solitary confinement for a while as punishment and to keep them from stirring up other prisoners. It was possible others would get a strapping, as provided for under regulations for dealing with prison disturbances.

There would be no investigation, but "we'll certainly be on our toes" for any further signs of disturbance, Commissioner Yeomon said.

He said warden Walter F. Johnstone has dealt with the disturbances "very efficiently" so far.

Asked whether the disturbances might have resulted in any way from current crowded conditions at the penitentiary, which has a population of about 1,000, the commissioner said he has no reason to think so.

Mayflower Story Will Be Shown To Game Club

"The Mayflower Story", a dramatic color motion picture which documents the recent history-making voyage of the Mayflower II, will be shown tonight as the feature of the meeting of the Belleville and District Fish and Game Protective Assoc. at the Y.M.C.A.

The film, prepared by Aero Mayflower Transit Company of Indianapolis, covers the entire development of the Mayflower II, replica of the famed Pilgrim vessel which crossed the Atlantic in 1620. It records the period of construction, the highlights of the sea voyage, and the Plymouth (England) landing which culminated a modern-day maritime adventure that thrilled the people of two nations.

Within the film's 25 minutes is all the excitement, hardship and thrills experienced by Captain Alan Villiers and his crew of 32 during the modern re-enactment of the epic Pilgrim voyage.

There are unusual film shots of the tiny vessel becalmed in the South Atlantic, spectacular views of the giant barque at full speed under full sail, and tense scenes of the sturdy craft as it runs full tilt into a terrific gale almost within sight of its goal, Plymouth, too, are the glimpses of life aboard the Mayflower II during 54 days and 5,435 miles at sea.

The film, which will be shown to schools, clubs, fraternal organizations and civic groups throughout the country, was produced by Paul Alley, former newscaster Robert Hunt on the BBC, Narration is handled by veteran CBS radio and TV newscaster Robert Trout on the commentary as told by Maitland A. Edey, Life Magazine correspondent who made the trip aboard the Mayflower II.

Two Bancroft Youths Held For Car Theft

BANCROFT (Special) — Two youths, Wayne Poff and George MacDonald, will appear in magistrate court in Bancroft on October 29 on car theft charges following a break-in at the Maxwell and Evans Garage Sunday morning in which a car, a rifle and a number of ownership cards and car keys were stolen.

The pair were arrested by Huntsville Sunday after their car had been involved in an accident in that town. They were returned to Bancroft to face charges.

Provincial Police at Bancroft said that the auto ownership cards discarded by the two youths were later recovered. The car was stolen from the garage were still outstanding, it was stated.

state for Far Eastern affairs, is moulding U.S. policy on China, Robertson first, is Monday with George Yeh, Nationalist ambassador to the United States who also sat in on the Dulles-Chiang meeting.

As Dulles left the airport, a Nationalist C-46 landed with the first load of casualties from the renewed bombardment of the Quemoys. The number of wounded aboard was not revealed, but ambulances enough for 30 stood by. Reports from Quemoy said a number of civilians were among the casualties. The Nationalists said 11,530 shells fell in about 2½ hours and then after a lull sporadic shelling continued through the night, running the total to 11,729 by 8 a.m.

REPORTS COUNTER-FIRE

The Quemoy garrison commander claimed his counter - fire knocked out two artillery emplacements and destroyed four ammunition dumps.

Peiping radio said the bombardment was resumed because U.S. warships escorted Nationalist supply ships to Quemoy. Both Washington and the Nationalists denied this. Today, Peiping radio said it had "incontrovertible proof" and named three U.S. destroyers it said were involved.

"Any denial by the command of the U.S. aggression forces in Taiwan is a farce and can only make its crime more obvious," said a Red broadcast heard in Tokyo.

Official in Washington expressed hope that the communists would reinstate the cease - fire. But state department spokesman said American escorting of Nationalist ships would not be resumed unless military necessity dictated, it.

10-Day Crusade Opens at Church

Friday night witnessed the opening of a ten-day crusade in the Wesleyan Methodist church at Everett and Henry Streets, at which the Rev. James S. A. Spearman is pastor. The special speaker for the crusade is Professor Charles W. Carter, former missionary to Africa, crusade director in several universities, professor of philosophy and religion for eleven years, author, and presently editor for the Higley Publishing Company.

Mr. Carter addressed an attentive and appreciative audience at the Sunday morning service on the theme, "Soul Rest." The message was vividly illustrated by incidents and experiences from travel and African life.

At the evening service an interested and attentive audience viewed a fifteen minute pictorial African features representing native scenes, hunting expeditions, and missionary work from the experiences of the speaker, after which the crusade message was delivered to an appreciative audience.

The services each evening of this week will be prefaced by a fifteen minute prelude of pictures from 7.45 - 8.00, representing Africa, Mexico, and the Island World. Everybody is the crusade message by Mr. Carter.

A.D. Archibald To Give Talk at Commencement

Arrangements are now being completed for the annual Commencement Exercises to be held at the Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School on Friday evening, Nov. 7. The program is scheduled to begin at 7.30 p.m. and will be held, a former head of the Commercial Department at the school, will deliver the address to the graduating classes. The valedictory address will be given by David P. James, who is now a student at Queen's University. Rev. L. A. Page will deliver the invocation.

Honor graduation diplomas will be presented to twenty-five students who have completed grade XIIII with over two hundred and ten students will receive Ontario Secondary School Graduation Diplomas recognizing satisfactory completion of one or the grade XIII courses of study. Two hundred and thirty-one students who have completed grade 9 will receive intermediate certificates and twelve teachers who have completed the one year special commercial couse in grade XII will receive commercial diplomas. Scholarships and a total of more than $3,400 in scholarships, bursaries and special prizes will also be presented to their proud winners. An instrumental music number will be presentation of honor pins to seventy-four students who have attained first class honors for at least three years at SCISSTVS.

A reception for the graduates, their parents and special guests will follow the graduation exercises and a formal dance sponsored by the Students' Council will conclude the evening's entertainment.

Motel and Service Station Owners Dislike Road Signs Stating Town Bridge Closed

TRENTON — Discussion of traffic problems, created through the repair work on the town bridge, highlighted last night's council meeting held in the council room of the municipal building.

Only three councillors and the mayor were present for the meeting, with Councillors Ray Fox, Lloyd Worrel and Charles Hilton out of town on business. Clerk-treasurer A. W. Lacey, Town Engineer Eric Alderey and Town Solicitor Rod Campbell were in attendance.

A petition signed by several motel and service station owners on the eastern outskirts of Trenton and by several in the same type of business in Belleville was read. A delegation headed by Alex Wilson, president of the Trenton Chamber of Commerce was present to speak on the matter.

The petition asked that the highway signs which state the town bridge is closed to traffic be reworded to say there is one-way traffic allowed over the bridge and it is closed only to heavy over the weight of five tons.

The letter said that the signs saying the bridge is closed are causing tourists to take the 401 highway, by-passing Trenton and the places of business of those signing the petition.

MAYOR IN SYMPATHY

Speaking on the matter Mayor Ross Burtt said he did not want to see any one's business hurt and would recommend that the signs be changed. He said however there was no way of telling how many people are being diverted who would otherwise stop and do business in Trenton.

Councillor Vagn Lange said he is also a businessman on the east side of the river and that he was in sympathy with his fellow businessmen but as the problem stands now motorists coming off Cinnamon and Bay Streets find it almost impossible to get in the line of traffic on Dundas East. He said to do anything to increase the number of cars would only make matters worse. "If we get too many coming across the bridge," he said, "it will cause a bottleneck which will do no good for anyone."

Councillor Lange said that if the question is made any worse than it is now there is the possibility that all parking or stopping on both side of the bridge may have to be ended and this could be much worse for business than it is now. He said he was of the opinion that once a motorist got in the line of traffic and was going somewhere he was certainly not going to get out of the line to do any shopping. To increase the flow of traffic would only make things worse.

OPPOSES CHANGE

Councillor Jim MacDonald said that after talk with Lange's remarks saying that he had some very good points. He said the primary purpose of the signs on the highway at Marysville, Belleville and the west side of Trenton was to divert through traffic and heavy trucks, to enable the repair work on the bridge to be completed as soon as possible. He said there was no doubt that the people on the east side of the bridge are losing some business but not a great whole town. He said anything which may be done to speed the repair work on the bridge would be "foolish."

"All business in Trenton is suffering," he said and I feel the best way to handle the situation is to help and encourage the contractor to get the work done as quickly as possible."

"It seems we are doing all we can but I see quite willing to assist the businessmen of town," Mayor Burtt said "and as you know it has cost us about $7,000 extra to keep one lane open on the bridge."

LEFT TO ENGINEER

Councillor Joe Gould suggested that the matter of the signs be talked over with the Department of Highways and that Kingston and Port Hope. It was left in the hands of the town engineer Eric Alderey.

Alex Wilson addressed the council on behalf of the businessmen who had signed the petition and said they appreciated the extra work, time and money it had cost the town to keep the one lane of traffic moving across the bridge but felt that perhaps a mistake had been made when one lane was open and then signs were put up saying the bridge was closed.

Residents of Champlain Heights Unhappy Over Heavy Traffic

TRENTON — Two letters from the Champlain Heights Association were read at the council meeting last night. One asked about the increasing traffic on King Street and the other letter was concerning trees for the boulevards in the new housing development.

Both letters were signed by the president of the group, Howard Axiz.

Concerning traffic the group felt that an increasing number of trucks are using King Street in going from Division Street to Fourth Avenue and then over to No. 2 Highway.

The citizens stated in their letter that besides this heavy traffic hurting the road it is also causing a considerable amount of noise and raising clouds of dust. They felt that because the street was used by many children going to and from school it was also a traffic hazard for them.

Mayor Ross Burtt said he was of the opinion that trucks were using King Street because of the heavy traffic on Dundas Street with the set of traffic lights. The trucks, he said, would probably be using King to escape from this and that when the repair work on the bridge is finished along with the completion of the 401 highway to Brighton this problem will eliminate itself.

Councillor MacDonald, chairman of the town's traffic committee, agreed with the mayor and said he felt that the trucks would be using 401 when they are able to and that should be in a week or two.

The council instructed its clerk-treasurer, Mr. Lacey, to write to Mr. Axiz and explain the situation to him.

The second letter on trees for the boulevards was referred to the Parks Board for further consideration.

The letter stated that the citizens of the area would like to know what the town would do in helping to get trees planted as the boulevards are now ready for any tree planting the town council may wish to do.

Mr. Larry explained to the council that perhaps the citizens of Champlain Heights were looking for some kind of guidance as to planting uniformity.

However the council felt the matter was more in the Parks Board's line of work and referred the matter to them.

SOUND ADVICE

Down at Windsor, Magistrate Angus W. MacMillan has indicated his belief that some insurance companies restrict clients to plead not guilty to careless driving charges, on pain of having their insurance policies cancelled if they disobey.

We agree that if this charge is true, it is a deplorable state of affairs. No insurance company should have the right to dictate in what way well be a matter of personal conscience.

At the same time, the insurance companies have a vested interest in such court proceedings.

The Windsor Star says: "There is, in small print, in some insurance policies an advice to the insured not to admit guilt if in any accident. This is bad enough in itself, asking a man to make a liar of himself if he is clearly responsible. But it is something much worse, and much different, to urge a man to make a false plea in court."

Despite that last sentence, it seems to us that the Star is right under-estimating the true extent of the difference between giving advice and attempting to force adherence to this advice through pressure. It is not just a case of one course being bad and the other being worse. Rather, one course may be as admirable as the other is deplorable.

No person should admit guilt on any charge without first consulting a lawyer.

Almost any newspaperman who has covered police court must be able to recollect some case in which the accused has pleaded guilty, believing that he was, and in which the magistrate, after hearing the circumstances in which the magistrate, after hearing the circumstances of the case, ordered the plea changed to not guilty and dismissed the charge.

Very often a man believes he is not guilty of any offence when, in fact, he is guilty. But there are also times when, not knowing the law, or perhaps not knowing all the facts, an accused person believes he is guilty of an offence when in fact he is innocent.

RARE BIRDS, THESE

In Arlington, Virginia, a printer has acknowledged writing a letter which had been construed, he says erroneously, to refer to plans to bomb a Jewish temple in Atlanta.

George Lincoln Rockwell, 40, says that plans had been made for picketing at the White House and in Atlanta against "Zionist, Communist Jews."

George says Communist Jews may not be quite as rare of drunken teetotalers, but they are unusual. There may be, in Israel, a few Jews who consider themselves both Zionists and Communists, just as there are in Canada and Britain a few imperialist socialists, but they would be spurned by both the Zionist and Communist camps.

Zionism is anathema to the Communists. In the early days of the Russian revolution, many of the Communist leaders were Jews, or perhaps it would be more correct to say that they were the descendants of Jews, since many Jews maintain that the word is not applicable as far as to a religion and since no real Communist would be a believer in the Jewish faith. The Communists, at one time, treated Jews with a tolerance which was in marked contrast to the anti-Semitic record of the Czarist regime. There were no pogroms and if Jews were persecuted at all it was no more than the persecution meted out to believers of any religion.

There is every reason to believe that this tolerance towards the Jews has vanished in the Soviet Union today and the reason it has vanished is primarily because of Zionism -- because Jews were being talked to extend loyalty which was in conflict to loyalty to the Communist creed.

If Rockwell, and the others who, he says, have formed the World Union of Free Enterprise National Socialists, hated only Zionist, Communist Jews, they could do little damage. They would have to hunt long to find those hate.

As we have said, Zionist, Communist Jews are as rare as -- as -- why as people who think that it is possible to believe in both free enterprise and national socialism.

YOUNG FATHER WONDERS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

Oh, the world is full of wonderful things,
Inventions that fairly amaze;
And many a poet each day loudly sings
Of the world and its wonderful ways.
By far the most wonderful thing that I know,
Mere wonderful e'en than the law,
Are the garments of laces and ribbons that go
To make up a wee baby's clothes.

Man's ingenuity goes a long way,
It has solved many problems of note;
But where is the man who could build in a day
A baby dress or a coat?
What more wonderful things have ever been made
Than the garments of pinks and of blues?
And who was the man who mastered the trade
Of making a wee baby's shoes?

Tonight as I gaze on these wee bits of pink
And blue, as they're strewn about me,
I cannot but wobder, I cannot but think
Of the wonderful things we may see.
And looking them over I cannot but grow,
Though older the world daily grows,
The most wonderful things we have with us today
Are the dainty wee baby clothes.

Should Taste Water Here

Cornwall Standard-Freeholder

Dogs never know what color looks like. They are color blind and their world looks like a black-and-white photograph.

Man can see color, but he cannot explain its lasting by recent experiments. Water, according to the scientists involved, does here as dogs, frogs, pigs, monkeys, and chickens can taste water. Men women and children cannot.

Experiments in training animals revealed that the animals named have a water taste. Lack of such a taste in the human species was demonstrated in Stockholm recently during an operation for deafness. Sparks, sometimes caused the chorda tympani nerve, which was then hooked up with tiny wires to a record that registers pulses.

When bitter, sweet and salty solutions were applied to the patient's tongue, nervous impulses were recorded. When water was applied nothing happened.

This proves that man cannot taste water in Stockholm. But if the findings apply to water in some big cities, millions of people will be suffering from mass hallucination.

Banks Hire Cartoonist

Richmond Times-Dispatch

Those who were boys when the days were knickers-bockers, in-ter-, of slacks or blue jeans, will recall the practice of banks ard bankers of those days: the musoleum-like buildings, the bills in cases protected by lights and hushed voices.

Today's banker is usually a hail fellow well met, not secluded in an inaccessible office, but with his desk in plain sight, among well-lighted, cheerful surroundings. He has a smile of welcome for borrow-ers as well as depositors.

Now some banks have gone even further to popularize their institutions and attract new customers.

In Los Angeles, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, Dallas, Atlanta and smaller cities banks have engaged the services of an artist who draws caricatures of the bank's officers and employees free of charge, followed by a onenan show of his drawings in the bank lobby.

This enterprising gentleman is Virgil Partch, 40-year-old Australian. He has sold banks on the idea that a "sense of humor" is much in demand, and has attracted crowds wherever he has held forth.

Twenty-seven banks in 19 states have hired Mr. Partch to do Currie's talent for doing lighting sketches.

The arrangement is reported to be mutually profitable.

Being Pretty Cost Her Job

Brockville Recorder and Times

Things have come to a pretty pass when a girl is too beautiful for her job. Down New York way, pretty Joan Marchesani got the bounce from her airline ticket job, because a supervisor objected to her plaintiff beauty and her professional type make-up and her figure-hugging sheath dresses.

Joan, 30, wiped off all her make-up except lipstick, shed her dresses for the airline's blue-grey uniform, but balked at refusal to straighten blonde, Pan-American insisted. Joan balked again and got her walking papers.

The Air Transport Division of the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks, which naturally heaps out a weekly gripe, has now jumped to her defense. Pushing aside such mundane matters as dollars, cents, hours, overtime, etc., the union demanded to know:

1. Does a natural brunette who thins her hair lightness meet the set office procedure? 2. Is glamour make-up the standard for stewardesses? 3. Does Vogue have the final say on whether a sheath dress may be worn by a girl the boss? 4. Can a girl be too pretty for an airline?

The airline, a $200,000,000 organization, confronted with t h e might of a $750,000,000 union, backed down. Miss Marchesani went back to work.

Now the union, locked in collective bargaining talks with the airline, is demanding shut-down in part the leg muscles don't get enough circulation to nour-ish them, so walking quickly and long, increases e when the feelings of pretty discomfort (?) blonde are being slighted?

Yule Cards Overdone

Cleveland Plain Dealers

We're not opposed to Christmas cards -- a card is a friendly thing, and we appreciate every card we receive. Sometimes the cards from a number of people who wouldn't even know us is a heavy burden, however.

We get cards from politicians we've never met, from insurance folks, and there is always the smoking combination that pops up in December probably is thinking less of the manger than the next promotion.

We get cards from the most unusual acquaintances, complete with pictures of (a) the entire family or (b) the entire family plus grandmother. Now there is nothing wrong with grandmother, but she is not always a prepossessing universal appeal.

We get cards from business organizations and, strangely, such a card leaves one pretty cold; there is a difference between persons with axes to grind; from banks. And we have been interested when they were going to get smart -- and cut it out.

Well sir, according to the Wall Street Journal, the First National City Bank of New York has just informed its friends it won't send holiday greetings this Christmas because the bank feels the custom has been carried and has "become a matter of routine". Two other major New York banks and the Pru-dential Insurance Co. have announced they are following suit, according to the Journal.

Naturally, we hope nobody will use greeting cards are unhappy.

"We don't disagree with their right not to send cards," said the Greenwich Savings Bank, "but why should they publicize it?"

If this happens here we shall, somehow, be able to stand it. We like our customers, we trust it and we respect it -- but it never reminded us of Santa Claus during the past two months.

Why the wig boomlet? The wildcolored wigs caught the fancy of the fashion-minded last spring at the Paris fashion showings where many models wore wigs matching the colors of the latest dress creations. One woman appeared with red and white candy-striped hair.

Strength for The Day

DR. EARL I. DOUGLASS

SELF SUFFICIENCY

A national guard officer just finished his two-week summer training duty was telling about particularly impressed him about the new equipment and armament that only in the unit, nor even in the entire training base, could find them. When something went wrong, these parts had to be removed and sent back to the factory for repairs.

It was probably good for this officer to realize that his unit was not self-sufficient. Self-sufficiency does not exist in human life; and where it may seem to exist, it is an illusion. Man did not create himself. He cannot live apart from the will of his Creator.

Human comfort and arrogance take many forms. One of the most common is the notion that we are wise and strong enough to plan our problems and win all our battles by our own wisdom and strength. But experience shows that we are not that wise and strong. The psychiatric couches and the alcoholic wards are kept busy by those who refuse to face the fact that they themselves are not the ultimate power in life.

The Psalmist repeatedly exhorts us, "Take it to the Lord in prayer." That is still good advice.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

An aged and infirm member of the medical profession who is one of my fishing and rabbit shooting companions, and of his young years as a house physician in a large hotel.

"Apart from the DTs," he tells me, "one of my principal jobs was taking fish bones out of the gullets of diners in the hotel dining room. It seems to me I had four or five cases a week. Into my office on the hotel mezzanine would come a guest, usually a man, accompanied by the maitre d'hotel or head waiter, eyes bugging, face purple, coughing frantically and moaning his table mate. He had a fish bone in his throat.

"A familiar scene in any restaurant in those days was the diner leaping to his feet, clawing at his throat and feasting on wild air. Another fish bone.

"It is years since I have seen such an incident, and years since I have even heard of a case of fish bone in the throat. What's happened? Has modern fish filleting done away with the fish bone problem? Are fish bones getting softer? Are restaurants more particular in serving fish? I don't think so. Plenty of fish is well filleted, retailing with bones.

"What I think is," said the old medic, "men don't gobble and snatch their food the way they did fifty years ago. A man used to be in a hurry. They're dainty. Men eat like ladies."

Kingston Chapter Barbershoppers Sign Application

Last Wednesday night, the Belleville Barbershoppers trooped to Kingston to be on hand for the signing of Kingston's application for a charter. There was a good turn-out from both chapters. It was a big night for Kingston when 27 members signed the application for a Charter to form the Kingston Chapter of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America.

The evening started off with a sing-song led by Al Evans—a chorus director of the Belleville Chapter. The Kingston chorus rendered a couple of numbers, followed by a song from a Kingston quartet. The Belleville Chorus came on stage and combed through their repertoire to come up with old favorites as "Gypsy Love Song", and "A Son of the Sea". Then the makeshift Belleville quartet did a commendable job on "Coney Island Baby".

The business part of the meeting got under way with the introduction of guests, with the regular members singing "Sweet Adeline" and "Flowers in May."

Twenty-seven members signed the application for a charter to officially become the Kingston Chapter of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America. Later the two chapters paraded "en masse" to the post office to mail the application, singing all the way to . . . and all the way back, with a couple of numbers thrown in for good measure while they were gathered around the post office steps.

The evening ended the same way it began — with plenty of singing and harmonizing. The remain ain of the S.P.E.B.S.Q.S.A. is "to preserve for its members, and for all future generations of prospective members, the sacred right of men to seek harmony from the burden of their daily cares through indulgence in old-fashioned vocal quartet harmony."

Any men who like to sing and harmonize are cordially invited to drop in any Wednesday night at 8:30 p.m. for a meeting. These are held in the lower auditorium of St. Margaret's-On-The-Hill Church in Belleville.

Elderly Brandon Couple Wounded

BRANDON, Man. (CP)—Joseph Kacnar, 77, and his 73-year-old wife Mary, were shot down in their small north-end home here Monday and Brandon police said today they are holding a man for questioning.

The elderly couple was reported in serious condition in hospital. Doctors said Mr. Kocnar's chest was pierced by one bullet and he was struck twice in the left arm. His wife was struck in the head and neck.

Police recovered a .38-calibre revolver from a water barrel outside the one-storey frame cottage. It had been fired six times.

Less than a half hour after the shooting a man was picked up for questioning.

Electors Get Second Chance To Decide If City Aldermen Will Number 14 or Eight

Residents of the newly-annexed areas in Sidney and Thurlow township will have the opportunity along with present city residents to vote on whether they want a 14- or eight member council to carry on their municipal affairs.

Last night at city council members approved of a motion by Alderman Robert Templo, which will put the plebiscite before the people at the forthcoming municipal election.

Some 2,500 ratepayers in the area to be taken into the city on January 1st, will be eligible to vote at the city elections this year. Names of voters in the annexed area are now being added to the voters' lists.

It carried the vote would mean council membership would remain at its present figure — 14 councillors and a mayor — rather than be reduced to eight and mayor as approved by ratepayers at last year's municipal election.

At that time the plebiscite to reduce council was carried by a slim majority of 55 per cent.

As argument in presenting his motion to council Alderman Templo said last year's vote was ill-timed as it should have been delayed to allow residents of the annexed area to voice their opinion.

With annexation much of city business would be increased and would continue to be heavy, the alderman declared.

"I fell it would be a mistake to reduce council membership at this time", he said.

ONLY THREE OPPOSED

The vote to allow the question to go to the people saw opposition from only three members of council who thought that to do otherwise would be contrary to the wishes of last year's electorate.

Alderman Ireland said reductions would be critical of council to decide against their wishes by and said he could be remain at its present 14 members and mayor, the private bill passed through last year's vote would have to be changed.

"If annexation means more work next year any thought of increasing council should be on the basis of investigation," he said.

He maintained that it was "pretty well agreed" as result of last year's vote that council would be reduced to eight members and mayor along with city manager and auditor appointed.

Alderman Moxam "Declared that many people who voted for the reduced council last year did not know what they were voting for. He would be pleased to see the question placed again in simple words.

Declaring that increased business in the city could not be handled by eight men on other than a full time basis, Ald. Moxam said "we have a fine council and a fine mayor now, and I would not like to see it upset."

Alderman C. D. Tice took the attitude that a "clique" could be formed more readily in a council of only eight members. Fourteen members was not too large a council for 30,000 people," he said.

ALDERMAN OPPOSED

Also, he declared that with only eight aldermen it would be difficult for people in the newly-annexed area to obtain representation on council because they would not be as well known as those now within limits.

Alderman Digby said he was opposed to reverting to a 14-man council but was not opposed to allowing the question to go to the people. He felt that persons running for council should be prepared to do the work necessary.

He declared that Alderman Temple's motion was ill timed. He felt the new method of an eight man council should be given a trial.

Alderman George Wishart, one of three councillors opposing the motion, said his opposition was a matter of principal. The eight man council approved last year by the electorate has not been given a trial.

Alderman Dr. James Forrester took issue to a previous statement by Alderman Templo that the vote would have nothing to do with city manager form of government. "History had proven," he said, "that reduced council membership went with city manager form of government."

There will be nothing gained or lost by the extra ballot," declared Alderman Robertson Collins. "I therefore agree that the people should be given the further opportunity of expressing their opinion."

Alderman Effie McCabe declared that many people had "voted blindly last year."

"We should give the people in the newly-annexed area the opportunity of having their say," she said.

In reply Ald. Temple denied that his motion was ill-timed. The vote now would see 25 per cent additional electors. "Next year we will get the full answer" he declared.

RECORDED VOTE TAKEN

On a recorded vote acting Mayor Ralph Graham and Aldermen Argue, Digby, Collins, Grandame, Moxam, McCabe, Templo, Tice and Whalen approved the motion. Opposing were Aldermen Forrester, Ireland and Wishart.

Aldermen Les Digby in turn gave notice of motion calling for extension of the municipal franchise to all residents over 21 years of age who are British subjects and have lived in the city for one year.

The motion will be discussed at the next meeting of council and if approved would go to the people in the form of a plebiscite at the next municipal election.

Under recent amendments to the election act, the municipal franchise may be extended to all residents over 21 who have the citizenship and residential qualifications.

And under general business Alderman William Argue called attention to the fact that the town of Trenton had reduced speed limit in school zones to 20 miles an hour.

He said he had long contended that this should be done in Belleville but had been told it was not legally possible.

"They can do it in Trenton,"

Rome Medical Association Will Conduct Probe

ROME (AP)—The Rome Medical Association will conduct an inquiry to determine whether the personal physician to Pope Pius XII violated his professional obligations by selling articles describing the painful last illness and death agonies.

The inquiry involving Prof. Riccardo Galeazzi - Lisi, the Pope's personal physician for 19 years, will take about three weeks. A finding of guilty could result in a reprimand, suspension or ouster from the medical profession.

The association's governing council voted the inquiry Monday night at a meeting called to consider a storm of public demands that Galeazzi-Lisi be disciplined.

RESIGNS POST

The Roman Catholic Church's College of Cardinals earlier had accepted Galeazzi-Lisi's resignation as Vatican health services director.

Galeazzi-Lisi has contended his articles betrayed no professional secrets because his obligation of secrecy ended with his patient's death. He attributed the criticism to jealousy of doctors who were not called to treat the Pope. Articles written by the doctor were sold to a number of Italian and foreign publications.

Some Italian newspapers decided they were too explicit for publication. Florence papers also raised pointed questions about published photographs of the dying pontiff taken with a miniature camera.

In reply to a growing parliament, a spokesman for Premier Fanfani said any government action would have to be based on an official complaint by the Vatican or the late Pope's family.

Toronto Police Fail to Catch Murder Suspect

TORONTO (CP)—Police across Ontario have been told to watch for Joseph Takacs, 53 - year - old Hungarian community was made the scene of the weekend when police were told Takacs was in the city. Investigators said yesterday night they now believe the fugitive has left Toronto but still is somewhere in the province.

Joseph Takacs, 8, was battered to death early Saturday night at Simcoe in the Brantford area. He had been taken from school that afternoon by a man who told school authorities he was the victim's father.

Detectives said they believed they were only 30 minutes behind the wanted man when they raided a house in the west end Saturday night. They said Takacs had been given a ride to Toronto by a friend who knew nothing of the slaying.

He noted.

The only other major business in council saw the passing of a by-law amendment which will allow the use of pre-fabricated chimneys on new residential construction in the city.

Commission Given Interim Report on Water Supply

CAMPBELLFORD — Three representatives of the Canadian British Engineering Consultants were present at a special meeting of the Public Utilities Commission recently to present their interim report concerning their findings in the survey made recently at the Commission's request. The survey covered the supply and distribution system of the utilities with regard to power.

The spokesman on behalf of the Company said that they had studied the population trend and the consumption figures, the water rate structure and all pertinent information available and that the report is made on the basis of these statistics. The population according to past experience, should be between 4,300 and 4,700 people in 30 years. As this is the period over which the improvements would be paid for, it is reasonable to take this as a starting point and plan to serve 4,777 people and all the normal increase which would result from this growth in both commercial, industrial and domestic developments.

On this basis consumption would average .7 million gallons per day by 1988. In order to provide for the highest rather than the average, consumption figures are taken to provide for pumping 1.4 million gallons per day.

NEEDS OUTLINED

This would necessitate:

1, a new building, as the present building would not house the equipment; 2, a second intake from the river; 3, new pumps and motors as the one in use would not be adequate and they are very old; 4, a new chlorinating and treatment by microstrainer, supplemented by an improvement to improve the taste of the water; 5, provision for a better pressure throughout the town but especially for those who now experience shortages. This would require a stand pipe and it was planned to place a ½-million gallon standpipe on the Ogilvie Hill on lots owned by the Commission on Oak St.

The operating cost of such a system, including water meters for industrial and commercial premises, is estimated at $52,000 a year. This includes the two pairs to mains which by reason of higher pressures might need to be replaced and all the depreciature cost of the project. Financing under the Ontario Water Resources Commission plan would be over a period of 30 years.

The capital cost is estimated at $289,500, including engineering costs. It is made up of:

Pumping station, provision for treatment plant, etc., $68,640; machinery equipment, $67,680; water mains, $97,480; stand pipe $66,100.

LOCATION DISCUSSED

Much discussion followed concerning the location of the stand pipe as some commissioners thought water for industry should be planned near the industrial sites in Ward 2, on the island and below town at the Horkins property. The commission accepted the report as given and a complete survey will be submitted at a later date when these matters will again be considered.

Following the session concerning the water situation, power was discussed. It carried that the commission purchase Lot 15, Block N, on the east side of King Street (an unopened street west of Centre St.) from Mr. Thomas Doyle at a figure of $500.

It was decided to have the manager ask for tenders for the erection of a 3,000 KVA sub-station on the above mentioned property. When the price is known the commission will ask council for the issuance of debentures for that sum. The manager estimated the cost at $28,600, including all lines, switch gear, etc.

Stelco Workers Near Settlement With Company

TORONTO (CP)—Hopes for a settlement of the strike at Hamilton's Steel Company of Canada plant ran high today as negotiators for Stelco and the United Steelworkers of America (CLC) continued talks.

Official silence shrouded the results of Monday's meetings in Ontario Labor Minister Daley's office but it was reported the two sides had ironed out some minor items and were down to serious bargaining efforts.

Mr. Daley said after one session Monday that the parties were "into the finals." He wouldn't go further.

The strike of 7,500 workers began Aug. 18, hailing production at Canada's largest steel plant, in the one full-scale negotiating five-cent deal.

Stelco's basic wage rate now is $1.73½.

TWO SONS HOCKEY ACES

ENGAGEMENT NOTICE

The engagement is announced of Margaret Anne McGuire, daughter of Mrs. S. W. Symons, of Belleville, and the late Mr. F. C. McGuire, to Marvin Miller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Miller, Montreal, Quebec. Marriage to take place Saturday, November 8th, at Christ Church, Belleville, Ontario.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Legge and daughter, Barbara, of Toronto, spent the weekend with Mrs. Legge's father, Mr. Glen Jones, 43 Hastings Drive. Mrs. Jones is a patient in the Belleville General Hospital, undergoing surgery on Monday.

* * *

Mr. William P. Donovan, who spent the past week as guest of Mr. and Mrs. Len Rushworth, has returned to his home in St. John's, Newfoundland.

* * *

Mr. Arthur Burkitt of Benarraine, is a patient in the Belleville General Hospital, undergoing surgery on Monday.

* * *

Mrs. John Honeycutt, of Seattle, Wash., has left for her home after having spent four months with her sister, Mrs. Thomas Lavycock, of Stirling. Mrs. Laycock accompanied her sister as far as Toronto and spent a few days with her niece, Mrs. Bruce Adams and Mr. Adams.

Holloway W.A. Enjoys Talk on 'Thanksgiving

Holloway St. Church W.A. convened for its October meeting in the church parlors with the president, Mrs. F. Wilson, presiding, and extending a gracious welcome to all. She gave some fine thoughts on giving thanks for the many blessings enjoyed.

Mrs. N. Brown's group took charge of the worship period with Mrs. Brown in the chair.

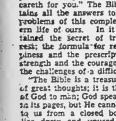
Mrs. William Wiley gave the Scripture lesson, Philippians 4: 6-13, and Mrs. Welburn the meditation, taking for topic our verses 6 and 7 of the chapter, stressed "Be careful for nothing" but in everything by prayer and supplication, with thanksgiving let your requests be made known unto God."

"Christians should not be full of care or anxious over anything. And here is the remedy. In everything by prayer with thanksgiving let your requests be made known unto God. He promises the peace of God. This is the attitude of thanksgiving and fulfillment of promise. The world is beautiful and everywhere there is evidence of God's handiwork.

The Bible says "casting all our care upon Him for He careth for you." The Bible contains all the answers to all the problems of this complex modern life of ours. In it is contained the secret of true success; the formula for real happiness and the prescription for strength and the courage to face the challenges of a difficult day.

"The Bible is a treasure chest of great thoughts; it is the word of God to man; God speaks to us in its pages, but He cannot speak to us from a closed book that lies dusty and unused on the shelf. Let us take time to read our Bible more."

Mr. A. Hughes favored with a solo accompanied by Mrs. Hughes.



Dr. MacKenzie principal of Alberni College, gave a challenging message; speaking of the ten lepers, only one came back to give thanks. "Let us embrace the whole world with the opportunities we have and use them for others, putting first things first. There is a pressing need in the world today, to the lonely, the needy and the lost. Do we know how to be thankful if we have never been hungry, sightless or homeless, as many in our world today?"

Mrs. Kilbank and Mrs. Beer received the offering which was dedicated.

Mrs. G. Dobbs thanked those taking part in a fine program.

Mrs. Wilson took charge of the business. Various reports were given by the secretaries and treasurer and letters of thanks read for cards and flowers received. Final plans were made for the bazaar this month.

Tea and pumpkin pie were served.

For a windstorm you would fain oppose,
Its size and height, but whereon you can't Get main advantage, homefolk agree,
Is plastic window canopy.

Women's Activities

WOOLER EVENING AUX.

The Wooller church parlor was decorated with colorful maple and oak leaves when the Evening Auxiliary met for its Thanksgiving meeting last Tuesday evening, with the Afternoon Auxiliary joining with them.

The president, Mrs. P. Smith, opened the meeting.

Each auxiliary held its business session.

Mrs. K. Austin, took charge of the worship the theme of which was "The Art of Living".

Mrs. Wilbur McColl gave a reading entitled, "Touching Shoulders With You."

"Prayer of Thanksgiving" was sung by a quartet composed of Mrs. Henry McCoil, Mrs. Ed Sedcliff, Mrs. W. Dow and Mrs. J. Goodfellow of Codrington.

The poem "Jack Frost" was read by Mrs. Jack May.

GUEST SPEAKER

Mrs. Austin introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. A. Sleggs, who, along with her husband, and son, have just returned from the Upper West Africa Mission field.

Colored pictures were shown of their work there, and her talk was most interesting.

During refreshments, everyone enjoyed visiting with Mrs. Sleggs and viewing the trifles they had brought back from Africa.

TRINITY UNITED W.A.

MADOC — Mrs. Perry Bronson, W.A. president, was hostess for the regular meeting of Trinity United W.A. on Thursday afternoon with a splendid attendance of the members. The president chose a poem, "Sharing," followed by the "theme song" and prayer for the opening exercises.

Several items of business were attended to. A donation of $25 is to be sent to the chapel in the new home of the United Church in Toronto and $100 to the M. and M. Fund of the church. An invitation to visit White Lake W.A. on November 6 was accepted and a reminder of the fall rally of the W.A. to be held in Eggleton church on October 23.

Mrs. Ken Gordon received the calls and letters of appreciation for cards and boxes of fruit which were read.

Mrs. W. McCoy and Mrs. Will Parks were in the charge of the program and assisting was Mrs. R. C. Jackson, who gave a concise report of the Bay of Quinte Conference rally held at Smiths Falls recently.

Mrs. L. Bennett gave a reading, "Now Is You Future"; Mrs. Tanner, "Advice on Thanksgiving Day and its Traditions," also to a humorous reading, "Carving the Turkey"; Mrs. McCoy two readings, "The Optimist" and "The Little Red School-house."

Mrs. C. Holmes was in charge of the worship service, which was on "Thanksgiving."

The Bible story from Luke's Gospel was read by Mrs. Tanner and comment by Mrs. Holmes.

St. Thomas' Church Marks Youth Sunday

The emphasis was on youth at the services at St. Thomas' Church on Sunday. At the 11.00 a.m. service of choral communion the Rector, Canon A. S. McConnell, preached a sermon directed especially to young people in which he outlined the demands of the Christian faith and the short-comings of so many who were proud to call themselves Christians. Hymns during the service included the children's hymn, "Saviour Teach Me Day by Day" and "Youth of the World, Arise". One of the servers in the Sanctuary was a young man, Tully Chambers, of Silbery, Quebec, who is a student at Albert College.

After the service the young people from Albert College who attend St. Thomas' Church were entertained to a delicious luncheon by the members of the Anglican Young People's Association. Some 30 young people sat down to tables laden with good things to eat. The thanks of the group were expressed by Miss VanVleet, president of the staff of the college.

Arrangements for the luncheon were under the direction of the Misses Jane Freestone, Judy Cox and Jackie Wood, members of the president of the A.Y.P.A., Miss Ann Crabtree. Assisting in the service at the luncheon were: Misses Jackie Watson, Elizabeth McGuigle, Joyce Glen and Mary Graves. The young people were pleased to have the assistance of Mrs. H. H. Murray, Mrs. R. A. Pringle and Mrs. H. S. V. Gibbon in their undertaking.

DOUBLE ANNIVERSARY

Corby Public Library Presents Report

Corby Public Library presents September report as follows: "There is a decided change in the tempo of life in a library during September. Summer, on the whole, seems a time to read for pleasure and relaxation. In September we have reading with a purpose. Club programs, night school classes, and extension courses offered by the universities bring new members and old in search information and assistance. Public school students and high school students have many requests. We have, too, the re-opening of the library in the four schools.

CIRCULATION

In August boys and girls borrowed 2,276 books. In September 3,081 books were loaned to children. This shows clearly the value of our four libraries. Are we losing a circulation of ten thousand books because we have no service in these areas during July and August?"

BOOKS

Some of the new fall titles have arrived and have been added to the adult collection, "Marlborough's Duchess"; "Dynamic Decade" (Alberta's oil), Herbert A. William Lapham, Cataraqui, Ontario.

Large baskets of 'mums flanked by palms and candles, adorned the chancel rail and white satin bows designated the guest pews.

Mrs. Lois Miller, church organist, provided the traditional wedding music and accompanied the soloist, Mrs. R. W. Moore, who sang, "I'll Walk Beside You", before the ceremony and "Through the Years", during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was radiant in her floor-length gown designed on lines of elegant simplicity, adorned with a wide sleeven lace rounded neckline, coming to an over - the - shoulder effect and accented with elbow - length gloves. Her tiny nipped-in waist was emphasized with a fully bouffant skirt of sheer chiffon over satin and net and many crinolines. Her bridal - length veil of tulle illusion was held by a crescent of sequins and seed pearls and she carried a bouquet of red Sweetheart roses and stephanotis with trailing ivy.

The maid of honor was Miss Faustina McCallum, who wore a ballerina - length gown of cerise chiffon fashioned with a torso bodice emphasized with a pleated collar at front and back with three - quarter length sleeves and full bouffant skirt. She wore a white feathered bandeau headpiece, and carried a crescent bouquet of mauve and white flowers.

Miss Shirley Lappan, sister of the bridegroom, as bridesmaid, was gowned in identical style dress of peacock blue with white feather headpiece and carried a crescent bouquet of yellow and white mums.

Mr. Robert Lappan, of Kingston, attended his brother as groomsman, with ushers Howard Lappan, Kingston, also brother of the bridegroom and Mr. John McBride, Belleville, brother of the bride, were ushers.

The reception was held in the Church parlor, where a bride's table was adorned with a white damask cloth and centred by a three tier wedding cake topped by red Sweetheart roses and lily-of-the-valley, and minded about the base with white tulle and red rosebuds. Tall ivory candles in silver holders and bridal bouquet flowers added a complementary nuptial note.

The bride's mother, wearing a gown of powder blue lace, designed on sheath lines with navy accessories over a corrage of dark pink Sweetheart roses, received the guests assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who wore beige crepe with brown accessories and a corsage of pink Pinocchio Sweetheart roses.

For the wedding trip to Lake Placid, N. Y., the Adirondack Mountains, Syracuse, Buffalo, and Niagara Falls, the bride chose a fitted suit of royal blue with sapphire Mauve colors, and a white feather hat and corsage of pink carnations with silver spray.

Mr. and Mrs. Lappan will reside in Belleville at 80 Victoria Avenue, upon their return.

Guests were present from Kingston, Syracuse, N.Y., High Rolls, New Mexico; Owen Sound, Toronto, and Madoc.

Previous to her marriage, the bride was entertained by the girls of the Ontario Hydro, Belleville, at a dinner party held at Hotel Quinte; at a miscellaneous shower held at the home of Mrs. Elgin Moynes, with Miss Faustina McCallum and Mrs. Moynes as hostesses and a presentation by the Belleville Ontario Hydro.

Shannonville H-S Plans for Hallowe'en

The regular monthly meeting of the Home and School Association of Shannonville was held on Wednesday, with the president, Alf Ryckman, presiding.

The treasurer's report was given by Mrs. Beri Spencer.

Parents attendance was taken by the junior teacher, Miss Milligan.

Mrs. Jim Harrington agreed to take membership convener again for the following year.

Plans for the Hallowe'en party were discussed and decided tentatively to have it on the afternoon afternoon instead of evening. Apples and prizes are to be provided by the Home and School.

Also plans are being made to have as many members as possible attend the conference held at Quinte Secondary School on October 25th in Belleville.

Women Keep Civic Affairs Running Smoothly in Several Ontario Cities

TORONTO (CP) — The hand that rocks the cradle also keeps civic affairs running smoothly in several Ontario cities.

Many of town clerks or treasurers, or top administrative assistants. There are 31 women working for a living in civic positions, not elected representatives and mayor under office in Gravenhurst, Ont., for instance, or Jean Norman, a member of the Toronto city board of control. Mimico Town of Guelph is an example of a woman paid to take part in city administration. She has been the city clerk for 12 years.

Her job involves sending deaths of births, marriages and deaths to the registrar-general every week, acting as clerk of the court of revision, supervising receipt of parking meter fines and attending all council meetings.

Born and educated in Guelph, she joined city hall as a junior clerk 40 years ago, and has worked there ever since.

Mrs. Alice Haggerty of Belleville, city clerk and secretary, is also a qualified hairdresser. A grey-eyed widow with two sons, she took a business course at Belleville high, started as a secretary before taking a hairdressing course at Rochester, N.Y. For a time she had her own beauty salon in Toronto.

During the Second World War Mrs. Haggerty worked for the wartime prices board in Belleville, then became secretary in a lawyers' office. She joined the city hall staff in 1951.

When the clerk-controller, H.D. Staples, died she was appointed acting clerk.

Mrs. Haggerty has a staff of 12 to assist in keeping records of council meetings and bylaws, issuing licences and preparing voters' lists.

Belleville has the city manager system.

Mrs. Dorothy Kidder of Sarnia, born in Toronto, graduated in business a d m i n i s t r a t i o n from Western University and now is secretary-treasurer and business administrator of the Sarnia separate school board.

She got this post six years ago from applicants.

Mrs. Kidder has all the duties of a director of education, being responsible for hiring of personnel, purchase of supplies and in truant, attendance and finance officer as well as secretary for board meetings. Her salary is $4,000 a year, plus expenses.

Wife of an invalid, she is secretary of the Canada Section Association of Ontario and of the separate school branch of the Canadian and American School Business Officials Association.

E. Anna Belden succeeded her father as clerk of North Oxford township in 1922. When her father was appointed clerk in 1894 it was agreed all council meetings would be held in the Seldon house—and they still are.

Wilma H. Mitchell, tax collector at Woodstock, joined the city hall staff about 25 years ago. The tax department staff then numbered four, and now there are 10.

In the Kitchener area Mrs. Ethel Jordan is town clerk and treasurer of Hespeler, and Mrs. Vera is town clerk, treasurer and tax collection in Palmerston.

Two women are justices of the peace, and the appointments add to their responsibilities, although neither has yet performed a wedding ceremony. They attend all meetings of the all-male two councils.

Another woman in public life is Mrs. Edgar Spurway, clerk and treasurer of Peterborough county for 25 years.

At North Bay, Phyllis Lumsden has been deputy city clerk for 10 years. She joined the city hall staff as a stenographer in 1930. Kae Elston, who also started civic employment as a stenographer, is the deputy treasurer.

In Wildfield township near North Bay, Mrs. Edgar Hennessey is deputy clerk - treasurer. She joined the township office staff in 1955.

Bridge Street AOTS Plans Ladies' Night

The members of the Bridge St. United Church Men's Club held their monthly meeting in the Sunday School rooms on October 15, in the form of a pot-luck supper.

Mr. Everett Fairman opened the meeting, informed the members of the turkey dinner to be held at Centre Church, Ameliasburg, on October 22.

The Club is holding its "Ladies' Night" on November 5th, in the form of a turkey dinner to be held in the Sunday School rooms of the church.

Mr. Stuart Robb gave an outline of the annual every member canvass of the church, which is being held on October 26th, and appealed to all members to attend their part. Two film shorts, based on the 'every member canvass' were shown; the one was "Go forth into all Nations", and the second, "Thy ingdom Come".

Mr. Doug Courtney, general chairman of the canvass, spoke briefly, and led a discussion with regard to it.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Leonard Lappan are shown signing the register following their marriage in Tabernacle United Church, Belleville, on Saturday. The bride is the former Miss Elizabeth Ann McBride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stewart McBride of Belleville, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Lappan of Cataraqui, Ontario. THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Mrs. M. R. — The whole town is talking about Lydia.

Lydia R. — They ought to trust me.

* * *

Mrs. M. R. — I recently learned through an anonymous letter that the whole town is talking about my 16-year-old daughter, Lydia.

When I went to make inquiries I found it was true — that everyone was talking. But Lydia claims it is an ugly rumor spread by one boy whose advances she repulsed.

My husband and I do not know what to make of it. Lydia has always been a well-behaved girl. The boys she went out with seemed nice and with only a few exceptions she kept the deadline we gave her for her return home. She has cried and cried and swears that the whole thing is a lie, but my husband feels that where there is smoke there is fire. He is heartbroken over this.

Lydia R. — It is very unfair that I should have to suffer just because some cruel soul was so hateful that he did not have his own way. Plenty of girls who have done the same things did not get involved in a dream of dodgy.

I feel that my parents ought to trust me and stand by me. Instead they have been worse than anybody. They have gone around digging for more dirt and embarrassed me so much I can't hold up my head any longer.

The worst part of it is, that as a result of all this, nobody will go out with me. I'll never be able to go out with the nicer boys and girls in our town. And I honestly don't want to go out with the others. I feel like running away or killing myself.

The Council: A grave injustice has been done to Lydia — whether or not there was any truth in the original story about her.

Her parents have aided and abetted in the destruction of her reputation. They have also destroyed her faith and trust in them.

The victim, anonymous letter should never have been the light. If he, R.'s had any doubts about their daughter's behavior they should have watched her discreetly or talked to her in a general way about her attitudes and about her friendships. She should never have been forced to defend herself against such a foul attack.

Our sympathy is 100 per cent to Lydia's side, but we feel that it is only right to point to one loophole in her story. "It is unusual for a "whole town" to credit the word of a cad. A well-behaved girl usually establishes the kind of reputation that is not easily smeared. She does not have to worry about gossips.

However, there are nasty individuals in every community and we believe that they can make a fairly smoky situation — even a clear one — look dirty.

A great deal of damage has been done here. A first step in repairing it would be fore the M. family to apologize to Lydia. A second step should be for them to let "the whole town" know that they have faith in their daughter and consider that the vicious gossips who have tried to smear her. The third step is a private family affair. They should see that Lydia is well-armed with the information and moral values that will steer her in the right direction.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Beeckman

GROOM'S FATHER'S SECOND WIFE IS "PERSONA NON GRATA"

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

The parents of my prospective groom are divorced. His mother has not remarried. His father has remarried, and his new wife is not at all "persona grata" to the relatives. At our church wedding where should the groom's mother be seated under these circumstances? And where should the groom's father be seated? Should the groom's father and his second wife be invited to both the ceremony and the reception? If have heard, and frankly I do hope it's true, that the second wife has said that, if she is invited, she feels she should not attend either the church ceremony or the reception. — Worried

The groom's mother sits, as is customary, in the first pew on the right of the aisle. (She may, if she wishes, ask a member of her family or other relative to sit with her.) The groom's father is seated in the third or fourth pew on the right of the aisle.

Customarily the groom's father and his second wife are invited to both the ceremony and the reception, but the second wife may not attend, indeed really should not attend, if she feels that her presence would not be welcome. Her staying away might create an awkward situation. I should think that your groom-to-be could give you best guidance about the wisest invitation-procedure.

NAMES TO BE IMPRINTED ON CHRISTMAS CARDS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

For Christmas this year I've made a firm resolution to be an "early bird" and order our Christmas cards early, when I can do it more leisurely! Also, for a b e first time, my husband and I are planning to have our names imprinted on our Christmas cards. Since we've never done this before, I'm not sure which name comes first when the names are imprinted. Mary and John Robinson or John and Mary Robinson?

When the names are imprinted on Christmas cards, the wife's name comes first . . . Mary and John Robinson.

"DINNER JACKET" IS BETTER THAN "TUXEDO"

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Which is the correct term "tuxedo" or "dinner jacket"? In my home town most people called it "tuxedo," which is a few d i d ferent from what I've noticed that most people call it a "dinner jacket," and my husband insists that I should say "dinner jacket." — Newlywed

"Dinner jacket" is the correct term . . . and you'd do well to follow your husband's advice!

Three week ago recipes were given for grape juice, jelly and conserve.

It seems however, I have said enough about the lovely purple grape —especially since the 1958 Concord grape harvest is a bumper crop.

TUESDAY
(Economical Neighborly Guest Meal)

Scotch Barley Broth; Savory Herb Omelette or Spanish Omelette; Baked Jacket Potatoes; Mixed Vegetables: Carrot Dilla, Baby Limas, Kernel Corn, Green Peas; Baked Apples (see Monday); Bran Cup Muffins (see Monday); Coffee.

To conserve this surplus the home Ec. girls in the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa worked on an unsweetened grape puree and think that some of you will go large families and deep freezes will snatch with thanks.

UNSWEETENED GRAPE PUREE (6 Cups) :

One 6-quart basket blue grapes (about-2½ cups stemmed grapes). Wash and stem grapes. In a preserving kettle measure enough grapes to cover bottom, then crush with a potato masher. Add remaining grapes, cover, and bring slowly to a boil. Boil gently for 20 minutes stirring occasionally to prevent sticking and to crush fruit. Rub through a coarse sieve to remove stems and seeds.

FOR CANNING:

Return sieved grapes to kettle, bring to a boil and pour into sterilized sealers. Process in boiling water bath for 15 minutes.

FOR FREEZING:

Chill sieved grapes. Pour into f.eezer containers, leaving ½ to ¾ inch headspace, seal and freeze.

NOTE:

Grape puree may be made in smaller quantities if desired. For 1 cup puree allow 2½ cups fresh grapes.

The next is repeated by request.

GRAPE AND PEAR JAM:

Eight cups stemmed and washed Concord grapes, 3 cups water, 10 cups chopped pears which have been washed, pared and cored, 4½ cups sugar. Wash grapes, slip pulp out of skins. Add 1½ cups water to skins and 1½ cups to pulp. Simmer skins and pulp in separate containers until tender — about 15 minutes. Press pulp through sieve to remove seeds, and add cooked grape skins, chopped pears and sugar to this pulp. Bring to boiling and boil uncovered to jam stage — about 45 minutes, stirring frequently. Pour into hot sterilized glasses and seal with double coatings of paraffin. About eight 8-oz. containers.

TWO CRUST GRAPE PIE:

Pastry for two crust pie. Six cups Concord grapes, 1¼ cups sugar, 4 tablespoons all-purpose flour, 2 teaspoons lemon juice, ½ teaspoon grated lemon rind, ¼ teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons butter. Remove and save skins from grapes. Put pulp in saucepan without any water and bring to a full boil. While pulp is still hot put through a sieve to remove seeds. Mix strained pulp with skins. Mix flour, sugar, lemon juice, lemon rind and salt together. Blend carefully through grape mixture. Pour into pastry-lined pie plate. Dot with butter. Add top crust and seal. Bake at 425 deg. Fahr. in preheated oven for 25 to 45 minutes. Serve slightly warm with cream cheese, whipped cream or ice cream.

NOTE:

This is beautiful with a lattice top.

MADOC JUNCTION — On Thursday afternoon the October meeting of the Eggleton W.M.S. and W.A. was held at the home of Mrs. William McMullen.

The W.M.S. president, Mrs. Bruce Stapley presided and opened the meeting by reading "A Missionary's Thanksgiving Prayer".

Miss Joyce Stapley presided at the piano.

The pastor, Mr. Dyson, led in prayer, and Mrs. Murney Kinsey read the scripture lesson, taken from St. Luke 10:25—37, after which the commentary "To Whom Am I a Neighbor", was given by Mrs. Stapley.

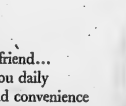
A duet, sung by Mrs. Forde Stapley and Mrs. Maurice Clancy was much appreciated.

Thank offering envelopes were handed in and dedicated.

Mrs. McMullen, W.A. president, took charge for the business period. Mrs. Frank Smith offered her home for the November meeting, with the program to be prepared by Mr. and Mrs. Dyson. Donation from Mrs. Carl Bridges was received for the W.A.

The Belleville east sectional rally is to be held this year at Shannonville United Church and discussion followed on those who could attend.

An invitation had been received from Thomasburg W.A. to attend their bazaar on Oct. 15th. Arrangements were made for those who could attend if on Wednesday afternoon.



Decided on Monday afternoon October 20th., as the day the ladies here would meet to clean the church.

The W.A. convention for district 2 is to be held this year at Eggleton United Church here on Wednesday Oct. 29th. A short discussion followed and several committees were appointed to arrange final details concerning the convention, and also for the coming bazaar, which is to be held on October 30th at the home of Mrs. Bruce Stapley.

Two chapters from the Study Book "Understanding Today's Girls" and "Other Churches and Faiths" then followed by a conference Ithelt.

Mrs. Stapley thanked the hostess and all, who had assisted on the program.

Mrs. McMullen served refreshments and all enjoyed a social half hour.

A New Find for those with Graying Hair

No more temporary "cover-up" rinses — no more trick tints or dyes to use. SCOTTS' ANTI-GRAY HAIR TONIC will bring back natural looking color and sheen to your graying hair. Use it for a short time period, if you follow directions. Then use only as required. It won't wash out, rub off on clothing or pillows. Equally effective for men and women, and because cream rinse has a lanolin base it is actually beneficial to the hair.

Simply rub it into the hair once a day, for two to three weeks, and marvel at the natural looking color and lustre which returns to your grey hair.

Scotts' Anti-Gray comes in two sizes, and you are protected by a money back guarantee if not satisfied.

Now available at Dolan's, Lemaire's, Schryver's, Seldon's and Tamblyn's Drug Store.

Exporters Urged To Go After British Markets

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

SEIGNIORY CLUB, Que. (CP) Now is the time to go after British and Commercial markets, Leo E. Ryan of Montreal, president of the Canadian Exporters' Association, urged Monday.

Mr. Ryan—president of Monsanto (Canada) Ltd.—spoke at the opening session of the association's two-day annual meeting.

Referring to Britain's relaxation of controls on imports from dollar countries, announced at the recent Commonwealth trade conference in Montreal, he said:

"While the restrictions removed may not have affected too many of our members, we should all consider this as the tin edge of the wedge, and that the United Kingdom will continue to abolish discriminatory controls. It is to be hoped that other Commonwealth countries will be able to follow suit."

"Our main theme," he added, "should be to be completely ready for the time when the pound sterling becomes convertible once more."

MAKING SURVEY

The department of trade and commerce, Mr. Ryan said, has already started a survey of potential markets for Canadian exporters in the sterling area. "Do take advantage of this," he urged.

In regard to comments were contained in a text made available to the press in advance of delivery.

Referring to prospects for long-term financing for exports, Mr. Ryan said Trade Minister Churchill had assured the association that the matter was "on the top" of the department's "agenda."

Canadian-American relations Mr. Ryan said discussions with departmental officials had brought out "interesting information" and "it is apparent that great strides are being made."

EXPAND TORONTO HARBOR FOR SEAWAY BOOM

Like most ports along the St. Lawrence seaway, Toronto harbor is being greatly expanded in anticipation of the expected boom when the seaway is completed, enabling big ocean freighters to glide into Toronto. At right is one of the two new $2,000,000 terminals which have been built. In centre, a dredge pumpers part of a complete new dock area, covering 26 acres and with 3,300 feet of lineal berth space. Shipping officials don't know what to expect from the seaway but they are optimistic. Since one-third of the purchasing power of Canada is in the Toronto area, they feel such cargos as sugar, cement and oil will greatly increase. At present less than five per cent of ocean freighters can get through to Toronto. With the seaway channel going down 27 feet, at least 85 per cent will be able to make it.

VICE-REGAL PRIVILEGE

In French colonial times Governors had the privilege of entering cloistered monasteries, without permission of the Roman Catholic bishop. This privilege was passed on to the English governors after the conquest of Quebec and still can be claimed by Canadian Governors-General. An order which has prospered under the French and English regimes is that of the Ursulines. Here three sisters of the order greet Governor-General Vincent Massey who has called to see repairs being carried out to their front-door entrance. (CP Photo).

ON THE RAMPARTS

During his autumn visit at Quebec Governor General Massey relaxes from his many functions by taking walks. Here he stops near the impressive battery of guns on the ramparts, facing the St. Lawrence River. The wall is part of the fortifications built by the British after the conquest of Quebec. BOY AND GIRL — BY ROUSON

New Ore Development

Canadian, American and German steel interests are reported discussing a plan to exploit the vast, low-grade iron-ore deposits in Quebec's Ungava region.

A proposed $200,000,000 program is said to include building a townsite at Hopes Advance Bay in Ungava more than 60 miles north of Quebec together with a concentrating plant, power facilities, docks and a 250-mile railroad.

This map shows where the community would be located near the northern end of the Labrador trough" — a 600-mile-long belt of iron ore. The southern part of the trough already is producing more than half of Canada's iron-ore output which is sent down a railroad stretching from Schefferville near the border between Quebec and the Newfoundland Labrador, to Sept Iles on the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

Since Hopes Advance Bay is ice-free only about four months a year, the ore would be shipped to Ryde Island in Greenland, 600 miles away, where it would be stocked-piled at an ice-free port for onward dispatch to markets.

Key figures in the Ungava plan are Cyrus Eaton, the Nova Scotia-born United States industrialist, and Alfried Krupp, German steel magnate. Eaton's Canadian company, Ungava Iron Ores Company Limited, was formed seven years ago to develop the deposits.

Governor-General Massey Delights in Moving to Quebec Residence on Cape Diamond

By RICHARD DAIGNAULT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

QUEBEC (CP)—In late summer and early autumn this old Canadian city, for three months the permanent or part-time home of French and English governors, again basks in some of its earlier vice-regal glory.

For a busy four to five weeks, the star - shaped, British - built citadel is a centre of stately ceremonial and social activities.

Scarlet-coated soldiers of the Royal 22nd Regiment march and go and limousines bring distinguished visitors to receptions and other functions at the massive 30-room stone residence of Canada's governor-general in the fotress on 300-foot-high Cape Diamond.

OVERLOOKS RIVER

From the cannon-flanked terrace overlooking the St. Lawrence River, the Laurentian Mountains and several south-shore towns and villages, greetings are exchanged with passing ocean liners as signals are flashed and received by trained army personnel.

All this activity pivots around Governor-General Vincent Massey who since his appointment in 1952 has come to Quebec in September or October when the normal business and social life of the city is resumed after the holiday season.

Annual visits by governors-general started on a regular basis in 1872 and since then the periods of official occupancy of the citadel have varied considerably. Mr. Massey has made his autumn stay something that has brought prestige and a new importance to the old capital city. This year he was in residence at the citadel Sept. 9-30.

If the importance Mr. Massey attaches to his stay in Quebec has given the historic citadel a significant function in Canadian contemporary life, it has also made the governor-general one of the best-known Canadians in his almost 100-per-cent French language city.

FLUENT IN FRENCH

The fact that the governor-general speaks French fluently has led to his establishing a warm relationship with leading citizens of the area. And his personality has broken through the walls of officialdom to reach out to the man in the street.

Members of Massey's staff relate how sometimes the governor-general is approached by pedestrians while he is walking in the city.

"Delighted you are back with us," is the usual greeting.

Once, while Mr. Massey was walking along busy Grande Allee, a man recognized him and walked ahead of him saying to passerby:

"C'est Monsieur le Gouverneur!" (It is the Governor)

The permanent residence of Canada's governors-general is at Government House in Ottawa. Quebec City now is the only other Canadian city where there is an official working vice-regal residence.

The entire Ottawa Government House staff moves to Quebec for the duration of Mr. Massey's visit here. This is so that the various functions of the governor-general can be carried out here as they are in the national capital, orders-in-council adopted by the federal cabinet are flown here to be signed by Mr. Massey.

FLEW TO QUEBEC

Last January, when Mr. Massey was in residence for a few days to inaugurate the Quebec Winter Carnival, Prime Minister Diefenbaker flew to Quebec and consulted Mr. Massey on dissolution of Parliament and the calling of a general election.

Why is Quebec the only other Canadian city where the governor-general resides from time to time? What is the significance of these Quebec visits?

A member of his staff put it this way:

"Canada is a country with two basic cultures, French and English. It is in recognition of the role of French culture in Canadian life that His Excellency makes it a point to spend some time here, acting in his official function.

"The role of the governor-general is to enhance the prestige of the crown, bringing the dignity and warmth of the crown closer to the people."

The governor-general's annual visit to Quebec was always looked upon, in the past, as a holiday from duties in Ottawa.

Actually, since his appointment, the citadel residence has become a working establishment and Mr. Massey adheres to a set work routine here as he does in Ottawa.

NEW APPOINTMENT

TORONTO (CP) — S. Leonard Tilley has been appointed a senior account executive and director of public relations for the Toronto office of J. Walter Thompson Company Limited. Mr. Tilley became managing editor of the Halifax Chronicle and Star in 1948 and joined the J. Walter Thompson Company the following year.

MORE PEACHES SOLD

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — Ontario Peach Growers' Cooperative preliminary figures indicate Ontario growers sold more than 32,000,000 pounds of peaches on the fresh market this year. That was 7,000,000 pounds more than last year, 17,000,000 more than 1956 and 8,000,000 less than 1955. For the province's estimated 2,500 growers it meant a net income of about $1,500,000 after subtracting the cost of baskets.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Pity the poor duck hunter! Several of our nimrod friends who brave the cool of the dawn and the damp of the hideout to quest for themselves feathered dinners, have bemoaned the fact they have brought down their airborne quarries but have been unable to retrieve them.

That is not the fault of the ducks. The hunters, perhaps innocently enough, are not only robbing themselves of their dinners, but adding to the millions of ducks that are wasted annually through crippling.

The reduction' of this loss is possible only in one way—by the hunters themselves. The responsibility of each gunner is a self-imposed campaign. To kill cleanly and recover each duck is the sole way the job can be done.

Studies reveal that an average of 25 per cent is the annual crippling loss of ducks knocked down within sight of the observer and not retrieved. Obviously the birds which fall to fall and die later add substantially to this total and it is felt that half again as many ducks are wasted as are taken home.

The problem ties right down to gunning practices. Only hunter co-operation can solve the problem. The Information and Education Committee of the Waterfowl Council has issued some timely advice to coincide with the season. The following practices will not ensure better hunting in the future.

Trigger-happy shooting — shooting at anything that passes even though there is not a chance to kill the bird.

Inability to judge distance — birds out of the range of killing but with serious wounding effects.

Poor marksmanship — the fellow who does not practise until he starts to hunt.

Inability to recognize limitations in the range of modern shells.

Failure to retrieve downed birds.

The Council puts forward two suggestions as a code to guide hunters in the campaign to reduce loss. Shoot only when birds are at reasonably close range. When you hit you kill; when you miss, you miss cleanly. Use a retriever—it adds to the sport and cuts cripple-wastage by more than half.

* * *

Hunters figuring on cutting the high prices of meat by going into the wilds for deer and moose steaks, had better study conditions carefully before they take off. A juicy venison steak or choice cut of moose may cost a lot more than the homegrown Hereford or Holstein dinners.

The farther the hunter roams the higher the price of his game dinners. The Land Use and Forests Department figures say that moose-hunting in the Gogama district of the Nickel Belt was a lot more expensive than picking over steaks, chops and roasts in the refrigerator of a chain store or butcher shop.

The average hunter who came into this territory last year spent five days searching for a moose. If he was a non-resident, it cost him about $485, while the resident paid $130 for travel and equipment.

* * *

It took the average successful hunter 4.2 days to kill a moose and it was easiest during the first week of the season while the run was still on. October proved the best and most popular month for the hunter.

KEEP THAT LICENCE'

Hunters purchasing the regular gun licence now on sale will notice that the new 1958-59 licence includes an application-for-renewal, similar to the system used for a driver's licence.

It is most important that hunters retain their 1958-59 gun licence until next fall because they must complete the renewal form to obtain their 1959-60 licence.

Any person just coming of age (16) or not having in his or her possession the application for renewal will be required to pass a special gun handling safety course. Required by the Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters, the Lands and Forest Department has given the scheme its full support.

The special course in gun handling will be given by instructors who come mostly from the various fish and game clubs. It is expected that most of the applicants for the courses will be in the 15-year-old class, preparing themselves for proper training and eligibility for a gun licence. Participants who successfully complete the course will be given a certificate of competence.

Bombers Break Eskys' Five-Year Hold On Top Spot

Touchdown in Final Seconds Gives Peg Win Over Riders And Western Union Pennant

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

For the first time in five years a team other than Edmonton Eskimos has won a title into the Western Interprovincial Football Union portfolio.

Winnipeg Blue Bombers did it Monday night when, with 50 seconds left in the game, fullback Charlie Shepard scored on a one-yard touchdown plunge to defeat the third - place Saskatchewan Roughriders 21-15 in Winnipeg.

The win sent Bombers five points ahead of second - place Edmonton. Each of the league's five teams have two games left in the regular schedule. Eskimos already have won a semi-final berth, and with British Columbia Lions out of the picture, Saskatchewan now must battle with Calgary Stampeders for the other playoff berth.

SATURDAY DATE VITAL

Riders, trailing Calgary by a single point, could decide the issue by beating the Stampeders in Calgary Saturday. If Stamps win that one they could take third place with a victory over Bombers at Winnipeg Monday night. Riders' last game is against Eskimos in Regina Nov. 1.

The semi-finals, a two-game, total-point affair, will be played Saturday, Nov. 8, and the following Wednesday, Nov. 12. The best-of - three finals begin Saturday, Nov. 15.

Riders blew a 14-0 halftime lead, built on Frank Tripucka's 34-yard touchdown pass to Jack Hill and a 66-yard punt runback by Mike Hagler for another touchdown. Hill converted both and Larry Isbell added a single to give Riders a 15-14 lead in the third quarter.

Shepard scored two touchdowns and Canadian half Ron Latourelle got the other for Winnipeg. Quarterback Jack Jacobs Pelt converted all three.

BALANCED ATTACK

Bombers' attack doing most of the passing. Bombers completed 15 of 24 forward passes. They gained 222 yards along the ground.

Tripucka, the WIFU's leading passer, completed 19 of 28 throws for 252 yards.

The Roughriders were heading for victory until Bombers marched from their own 31-yard line to the Saskatchewan one-with minutes remaining in the game. Shepard went over from there.

Kramer Will Tour Australia Regardless

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Professional tennis promoter Jack Kramer has announced plans for an independent winter tour of Australia because of a split in his relations with the Lawn Tennis Association of Australia.

Kramer said he has no choice about the independent tour because the LTAA, ruling body of amateur tennis in the land down under, has stalled for almost a year in agreeing to revised terms.

The latest is simply: Kramer said he insists on cutting out the heavy quota of complimentary tickets to his pro matches in Melbourne and Sydney.

He revealed figures that showed his organization was required to give out 4,206 complimentary tickets for the two-day matches at Kooyong in Melbourne last January, or about $13,000, and 5,150 for five days at Sydney, or more than $25,000.

Waiver Rule Hurting Hockey, Leafs Squawk

TORONTO (CP) — National Hockey League waiver rules are hurting the calibre of big-time hockey, George Imlach, assistant general manager of Toronto Maple Leafs, said Monday.

"How can you discipline players you know are dogging it?" he asked. "You can't even send them to a minor league club."

NHL rules stipulate that a player must be sent to a minor league by all clubs. The waiver price is $15,000.

Imlach, indignant over Leafs' 3-1 loss to Detroit Red Wings Saturday, said only the waiver rule is preventing him from sending three players to Rochester in the American Hockey League.

He identified the three as Dick Duff, Frank Mahovlich and Billy Harris. He felt certain other NHL clubs would snap them up if they went on waivers.

Imlach said each club should be a protected list of 17 or 18 players and be able to play them in Rochester "if I wish, even in a farm club.

"You can't run a hockey club any other way."

Share Lead In Big Four Scoring Race

TORONTO (CP) — Guard Vic Kristopaitis, placement kicking specialist with Toronto Argonauts, and Gerry McDougall, Canadian-born halfback who played most of his football in the United States, share top spot in the Big Four scoring race.

Statistics compiled by The Canadian Press Monday night show both with 47 points. Kristopaitis got his on 25 converts, seven field goals and a single and McDougall, line-crashing star with the league champion Hamilton Tiger-Cats, compiled his on seven touchdowns, a convert, field goal and single.

McDougall crashed over for two touchdowns Saturday in Hamilton's 29-10 victory over Montreal Alouettes. Kristopaitis scored 11 points on five converts and two field goals in Toronto's 41-0 shutout over Ottawa Rough Riders.

Two Canadian - born players with Hamilton are tied for second place, each with 42 points. They are Ron Howard and Tommy Grant, who came up with one-touchdown efforts in Ticats' victory over Argos.

Gino Cappelletti of the Toronto Argonauts and Golden Bears leads Ontario Rugby Football Union scorers with 77 points, 71 on 23 converts, one field goal, also of the Bears, is second with seven 12 touchdowns.

Tim Reid of Toronto Varsity Blues and Lionel Lemaire of Ottawa Gee-Gees, co-leaders of Western Ontario Mustangs are tied for the lead in the Intercollegiate race with 30 points each.

NHL Has Large Rookie Crop Bruins Lone All-Vets Club

MONTREAL (CP) — The National Hockey League standings and scoring race both have that old familiar look. It took just two weeks for that to change.

Montreal Canadiens, Stanley Cup champions with two wins and a tie in three games.

Official league statistics show Montreal with nine points, good enough for a two-point bulge over the plucky Bruins who've collected but one win in three games.

DETROIT EDGES UP

Detroit Red Wings won two of their three games and edged ahead in third place to the Boston Bruins, a point behind the Hawks. Bruins broke even with a win, loss and draw.

A pendulum for ties hung with New York and the Rangers who played to two more standoffs in three games to retain fifth spot with four points.

Toronto Maple Leafs picked up their first win of the season—a 3-2 victory over Boston—and are tied for sixth rank. It let Rangers the only winless club this season. In the individual scoring race Montreal's lone representative in the top nine last week was Dickie Moore of Montreal, collected a goal and five assists to vault into a tie for the lead with Chicago's Eddie Litzenberger.

Both have a goal and seven assists and also head the league in the play-making department. Litzenberger's goal was his first in five games.

Geoffrion earned three goals and two assists to push into the top nine. Teammate Jean Beliveau had two assists while Bathgate scored one and helped set up two other goals.

Grouped with six points are the Rocket and three other players who collected a goal - scoring spree. Gerry Toppazzini of Boston, Stanley Cup runner-up, has output to six goals by scoring three times. The Rocket got three goals and an assist, boosting his total to four goals and two assists.

They share the spot with Detroit ace Gordie Howe and Boston's Leo Boivin. Howe earned four assists to his two goals while Johnson picked up three more assists on one goal.

BIG WINNER ENTRY

TORONTO (CP)—Inside Track, winner of Saturday's $75,000 Canadian Cup Gold Cup at Belmont Park in New York, will be shipped here to run in Saturday's $50,000 Canadian Championship at New Woodbine. Inside Track is owned by Ray Debrino and Joseph Martino of Valatie, N.Y.

Old Familiar Look in NHL Habs Peer Down at the Pack

MONTREAL (CP)—The accent is on familiar faces in the National Hockey League this season with more than a dozen rookies battling for regular jobs and only Boston Bruins content to go with an all-veteran club.

"This is one of the best first training camps we've had in many years," says league president Clarence Campbell. "Most clubs have come up with the best talent from the minors. I expect there will be improvement to be helped by the three rookies and six other new players picked up since the end of last season."

The Black Hawks, who finished last place in the 1957-1958 season, acquired Earl Balfour, who led the Toronto Marlboros of the American League; Howie Glover, a 38-goal scorer with Winnipeg of the Western League, and Jack McKenzie, a right winger from St. Catharines.

HAWKS HAVE MOST

The Hawks had the largest personnel turnover among the six teams in the league. In addition to their rookies they also obtained Dollard St. Laurent from Montreal, Danny Lewicki and Jack Evans from New York, Al Arbour from Detroit and Ted Sloan from Toronto. Fred Whareham, who was in the league a couple of years ago, was brought up from Buffalo of the American League.

One of the most talked-about first year men is Charlie Burns, fleet forward who has impressed Detroit Red Wings' management. Burns was a member of the Whitby team which won the world amateur title in Germany last season. Jerry Eberman is another highly regarded Detroit youngster. He and Bob Backstrom, McDonald found the mark for 30 goals for Rochester last year. Backstrom scored 40 for the Hull - Ottawa Canadiens.

CHAMPS HAVE THREE

The champion Montreal Canadiens have spiced their veteran outfit with three newcomers—Ab McDonald, Al Langlois and Ralph Backstrom. McDonald found the mark for 30 goals for Rochester last year. Backstrom scored 40 for the Hull - Ottawa Canadiens. The Wings.

Comets End Mac's Win String In Boisterous Two-All Tie

By GEORGE H. CARVER
Sports Editor

The Clinton Comets clinted across the hockey sky here last night and left in their wake a clipped McFarland win string.

When the smoke of humping, bumping and shinny-like hockey had cleared, the scoreboard read 3-2.

And the brightest light in the Comets' tail and chief thorn in the Macs' scoring side, was Norm Defelice, who not so long ago stood between professional pipes.

The swarthy goalie flatly sparkled at times, especially when the Macs drove in close on penalty-propelled power, plays. He kicked out everything they fired in the latter half of the game and the most of their salutes in the first.

The clubs scrambled through a goal-each first period with the Macs taking a goal lead in the second. The hard-hitting, swarm-checking Comets evened the count in a boisterous final frame, and that was it.

Wiener Brown and Davy Jones triggered the McFarland goals with the ex-Belleville Junior Angy DeFelice and Bill Stringle slinging home the Comet counters. Hildebrand, Bradley, Marineau and Brown drew assists for the Macs with Watson, Hook, Balsom and St. Hilaire helping starring scorers.

Whether the Macs were thrown off-stride by the reputedly gangling hockey dished up by the Comets is not known, but they failed to show anything like championship form.

In fact the Macs haven't shown anything like form that the are capable of since that topflight tussle with the Whitby Dunlops in Trenton.

They play in Kitchener tonight, and they'll have to come up with a lot better performance than that against the Comets if they expect to twist the Dutchies tails.

The Comets preferred the boisterous type of hockey and the Macs were quick to accommodate them. Referee Vern Gioyen, however, keeping in mind the OHA orders to clamp down and clamp down quickly, followed instructions to the letter.

He sent eighteen sinners to the hoosegow with the teams dividing the sentences. There were nine miscreants from the Macs) a major and fourteen assorted minors.

He handled a second period ready-to-fight mass meeting near the penalty box after Hook had savagely boarded Davy Jones, fattening the Belleville winger like a punctured tire.

Gordie Bell sallied out of his net, and shed the offending Comet in no uncertain terms and the pushing started. The players flocked from the bench-es, rallied around the penalty box and for a minute "things" were looking for a place to happen."

Cooler heads prevailed and the blow-off ended in Hook getting a major and Bell a mile-conduct.

The third period was another ragged affair with eight penalties dished out. "Wiener" and MacIver were chased for roughing, and Bernasuez got a misconduct for an unlivvied option. A minute later "Wiener" broke out of turn and he, too, drew a misconduct.

The Comets ganged the Macs heavily in this frame and Gordie Bell came up with some fine efforts in kicking out Clinton drives. He was pulled with forty-seconds to go, but DeFelice and the huddle-orience of the Comets kept their citadel intact.

The teams:

Clinton — goals, Defelice; defence, Bouchard, Stringle, Buxton, Pawchuk, Bernasuez, Macken; forwards, Shaw, Watson, A. Defelice, Hook, St. Hilaire, Calhoun, Kardash.

Belleville — goal, Bell; defence, Benoli, Boitey, Geogan, Maglan, Crwerford; forwards, Brown, Bradley, Hildebrand, Marineau, Menard, Payette, Jones, Bathgate.

SUMMARY

Strengthened Kingston Club Looms As Strong Contender

By HUGH McCULLUM
Whig-Standard Sports Writer

KINGSTON — The Kingston Merchants, frozen last year as the Kingston CKLCs, will present to the fans of the Eastern Ontario senior A circuit a radically altered lineup from the one that finished last in the loop in the 1957-58 season.

The present club, under the management of Wally Brahin, is long the right hand man for Wren Blair of the world champion Whitby Dunlops, has dipped into the ranks of most of the senior clubs in this loop as well as outside junior and senior circuits.

Brahin's biggest prize of the year was to acquire Charles "Bud" Gagnon, formerly coach and star left winger with Whitby. Gagnon was probably the most "hated" man in the Kingston arena and most fans here will be glad to see him on the local side of the fence. Gagnon will play regularly as well as taking over the coaching reins from Bun Cook.

Missing from last year's line up will be John Gauthier and Don Senior. Gauthier will probably be back to play for Pollock's Hull entry while Senior's status as yet is uncertain.

Gagnon will go with regular goaltender Lynn Davis, a standout here the coaching chores with Ken Johnson doing any necessary relief chores.

Defence was always a weak point with the Kingston squad and Brahin has put a good many miles on his car this summer in an effort to strengthen the rearguard positions. In addition to Joe Levandoski, a regular last season, Vic Filion, Roy McNiff and Vic Gendron have been added to bolster the sagging defence.

Centers last year, McNiff comes to Filion were the Lumber Kings to Kingston from the Canadiens organization and Gendron previously a Montreal Junior and Belleville Colonels in the United States league.

Two other defencemen who will not be seen with the Merchants are Bob Paul, whose commuting made him an uncertain factor and Don Thompson who has retired to his home in Smiths Falls.

Up front the picture is also somewhat altered. Whitby Youngster, an aggressive centre with the CKLCs has turned out with Whitby and Gerry Moores, who led the league in scoring, has returned to the UK after one season in Canada. Brian Anderson, former University of Toronto star, failed to report at training camp.

The high scoring line of the Kingston club, judging from preseason performances will be Gagnon, Billy Colvin and Roy Partridge. Colvin led the league last year with a total of 66 points. Gagnon has tallied two in pre-season encounters and assists were credited to both linemates.

Wing positions are tentatively assigned to Moe Savard, late of the Cornwall Cheviux, Jim Maxwell of Perth-Smiths and Mike Buckoschecki back from, last year, Sarnia. Colvin is uncertain at this writing.

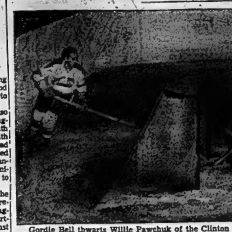
Another line that showed well in exhibition tilts is the Bep Guidolin, Ted Toppazzini, Don Berlinger and Gus Gudzinski, known in eastern hockey circles as a former player and coach with the Kingston Belleville McFarlands. The other two are veterans of Kingston hockey.

Other new faces seen at training camp are Bill Sowerby who was for years with the University of Michigan and who started his hockey career with Oak Block Hawks. Frank Chiarelli is working his way into the squad as well.

Coach Gagnon has been driving his team at a merciless speed and the training camp ranks were filled with 25 players competing for the team. A breakdown in the ice plant at the Community Centre caused an unfortunate delay in training and the team was forced to play in Belleville for two late practice sessions.

The Merchants have gone unbefeated in two pre-season exhibition encounters. They downed the St. Catharines' Teepees 5-3 and edged Windsor Bulldogs 3-2, both games played on local ice.

In addition to the high scoring Gagnon, Colvin, Partridge line positions were made by Don Bellringer, Ken Linesman, Chiarelli and Savard.



Training camp allowed only four goals and looked especially promising in game with Whitby when the Bulldogs put on a last minute drive in an effort to knot the score.

Sid Smith Will Screen Kelowna Packers

KELOWNA, B.C. (CP) — Sid Smith, playing coach of the 1952 world champion Whitby Dunlops was to arrive here today to screen the Kelowna Packers, now preparing for a nine-game European exhibition trip.

Packers leave early next month for a four-games series in Sweden followed by five games in Finland. Smith will watch the Packers in regular Okanagan Senior Hockey League play this week and report to the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

Dr. Mel Butler, past-president of the British Columbia Amateur Hockey Association, said in an interview Smith will try to find any weak points in the Packers' lineup.

Probes Charge Leafs' Use of Illegal Pads

MONTREAL (CP) — President Clarence Campbell of the National Hockey League says there is no reason why clubs shouldn't have the approved type of elbow pads or at least have the pads a former type modified to conform to regulations.

Campbell's comment was made following reports from Chicago that Boston Bruins were furious about the pads used by Toronto Maple Leafs.

Bruins' general manager Lynn Patrick said that jaw fractures suffered by defencemen Doug Mohns and centre Bronco Horvath resulted from illegal pads worn by the Leafs.

Campbell said he had not heard from the Boston officials there but is investigating the situation. He declined to indicate what might be the outcome.

WARNED IN JUNE

"Clubs have had since last June to get the proper equipment or have the present equipment modified," said Campbell.

Campbell said equipment of five clubs had been inspected but there hadn't been opportunity so far to inspect the Toronto equipment.

He said his information on the injuries to the Boston players is that Mohns' injury was caused by an elbow—there was a penalty at the time. But it hadn't been established yet, he said, that Horvath's injury was from an elbow in section of the NHL rule regarding dangerous equipment.

says: The use of pads or protectors made of metal or of any other material likely to cause injury to a player is prohibited."

A note under the regulation says: "All elbow pads which do not have a soft protective outer covering of sponge rubber or similar material at least one - half inch thick shall be considered dangerous equipment."

Hergy is Now A Regular With Rangers

NEW YORK (AP) — Wally Hergesheimer, a little guy with a world of courage, has battled back from two broken legs, a fractured shoulder and a "washed up" reputation to remain in the National Hockey League with New York Rangers.

The 31-year-old right winger was assured of a regular job by Ranger general manager Muzz Patrick who said Hergy is "going to help us a lot."

Hergesheimer was brought up from Buffalo of the American Hockey League a week ago on a three-game trial. He scored a goal Sunday night as New York dropped a 5-3 decision to Montreal, the defending titleholder.

"I never thought I'd make it back up here," said Hergy when told of his promotion.

A six-foot, eight inches, 195-pounder native of Winnipeg, Hergesheimer first joined the Rangers in 1955. He scored 18 goals in his first three seasons to become one of the leading marksmen in the NHL.

However, toward the end of his third year he suffered a fractured leg. He came down with the same injury in his 14th game the following season and sat out the remainder of the campaign.

Completely recovered, he scored 22 times in the 1956-1956 season and then was traded to Chicago Black Hawks for George (Red) Sullivan. A broken shoulder again put him on the sidelines in the 42nd game with the Hawks. Last year, Chicago shuffled him off to Buffalo.

Because Rangers instituted a working agreement with Buffalo last summer, coach Phil Watson of New York hoped Hergy to work out with his club in Niagara Falls, Ont.

"He looked real good," Watson recalled. "I asked him whether he thought he could score 20 goals if we brought him back."

"He answered 'give me a chance and I'll score 25.' So when we got off to a slow start, Muzz and I decided to make the move.

Wolves Defeat Trappers 5-3

SUDBURY (CP) Sudbury Wolves scored two goals in the third period Monday night to defeat Norta Bay Trappers 5-3 in a Northern Ontario Hockey Association senior A exhibition game. The teams play again tonight in North Bay.

Left-winger Joe Malo was the Sudbury hero, passing to Frank O'Grady for the winning goal and adding the insurance marker by himself. Earlier Sudbury goals were scored by O'Grady, Gordie Heale and Joe Zorica.

Defenceman Stan Maxwell, Junior, Barash and Ken Gribbons scored for North Bay.

The Wolves open the interlocking schedule opens Friday with Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds at Sudbury and Windsor Bulldogs at Chatham.

The millionaires bid for New York

Neither Averell Harriman nor Nelson Rockefeller has had to work a day in his life—yet both are stumping feverishly for the governorship of New York State! Why? Are their aspirations involved with personal power . . . perhaps a shot at the Presidency? Or is their interest for their respective parties?

Which one has the edge in this political battle? And what is the real difference between them? S—S.

In this week's Saturday Evening Post, famed political analyst Stewart Alsop gets behind the scenes, and the cleverness, to give you the answers—and to tell you why this election may have an overwhelming effect on the nation's politics.

And Alsop gives you the inside facts on the Buffalo nomination "incident" which may have popped Harriman's political bubble! Read "Battle of the Millionaires."

IN ALL, 9 articles, 4 stories, 2 serials, many cartoons and exciting photographs.

Bowman, Broda Junior Coaches Are Suspended

PETERBOROUGH (CP)—The coach of Peterborough Petes, Scotty Bowman, has been suspended for two games and four of his players fined $25 each for 5 free - for - all in an Ontario Hockey Association Junior A game in Toronto Sunday.

Coach Turk Broda of Toronto Marlboros has also been suspended for two games and three of his players fined $25 for leaving the bench to join the third-period fight.

Ray Tanner, president of the Petes, received a telegram from the OHA today advising him of the penalties.

The Peterborough players are Dave Besse, Len Marshall, Barclay Plager and Hugh Mcgonigle. Bowman said it was difficult to control players "when the referee let the game get out of hand." He said he will ask Montreal Canadiens, parent club of the Petes, for chief scout Lou Passador to handle the Petes in the next two games.

The Marlboro players fined were Roger Cote, Sonny Osborne and George Standing.

The fight started when Jack Martin of Marlboros scored the game's only goal while the Peterborough club was shorthanded.

CBS News Public Affairs Dept. to Start New Series

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP)—At the frantic rate life is changing on this planet, do you often wonder how much control you personally have over your own future?

CBS radio believes that you do and Wednesday (8 p.m. EDT) will present the first in an absorbing new series of special one-hour monthly programs called The Hidden Revolution.

Edward R. Murrow will be the narrator of the commercially-sponsored programs.

Irving Gitlin, director of the CBS news public affairs department, points out that change—or "advance," as many call it—is occurring as rapidly in social, political and human affairs as in the more widely discussed realm of science. All these fields will be examined in the series.

EVERY PROBLEM ATTACKED

"The thesis of the first show," said Gitlin, "is that the individual must know what is happening and must try to decide his own role in the scheme of things."

Later programs in the series will study (1) the impact of ever-changing world on personal freedom; (2) the effects of an exploding population on human relations; (3) what life will be like in the 20-hour week; (4) the increasingly difficult role of education; (5) the problems of war and peace in the new age. Gitlin says that radio can produce such a series more effectively and less expensively than TV. For example, "by using a simple tape recorder rather than the complicated paraphernalia of television, one can more readily capture people's true moods and thoughts." The cost of a one-hour radio documentary is about $10,000 as compared to $100,000 for a TV program of comparable length.

"It's easy to tell a specific story," Gitlin said. "But the story we're telling—its nothing less than the way our lives are being changed. We are not attempting to give answers. There can be no answers yet because there hasn't been enough concentrated thought applied to the problems. Our purpose is to stimulate thought and discussion.

AT THE BELLE — Pretending to hold a telephone conversation with an ex-sailor, receives vehement advice from Cary Grant, in a hilarious scene from "Indiscreet", the Warner Bros. romantic Technicolor feature, holding over tonight and Wednesday at the Belle Theatre. Matinee daily.

Horse Is Highly Overrated Animal Says Gary Cooper

By BOB THOMAS

ST. GEORGE, Utah (AP) — "The horse is a highly overrated animal. They're dumb as hell, and you can't trust them one bit."

Heresy, you say? Perhaps, but the authority is none other than Gary Cooper, one of the world's with an authentic western background.

The Montanan gazed up at the red bluffs of this southern Utah wilderness and reflected: "Where I was 11 or 15, I used to ride alone for days through country like this. One thing he learned: Never trust a horse.

Gie Coop is back in the saddle again. After two middling films, Love in the Afternoon and The North Frederick, he has done three horseback, pictures in a row.

FILMING ONE NOW

His latest, They Came to Cordura, is being filmed here. Technically it's not a western, but there are plenty of horses. Director William Goetz assembled 300 horses and riders to recreate the last U.S. cavalry charge, during General Pershing's invasion of Mexico in 1916. The rest of the picture largely concerns the trek of Cooper and five others across the Mexican wasteland.

How does it feel to be back on a horse?

"It hurts," Cooper confessed. He explained it's painful for me to be in the saddle too long. Not, it's not because of an injury I got from a horse. When I was getting started in pictures, I used to take horse falls for $15 a fall and I never had a scratch.

"But I did a lot of sliding after that," and that's what banged me up."

REVEALS PLAN

Newcomers might find profit in credo that might help explain Cooper's amazing three decades as a star: "I always made it a point to do at least one western every two years. In years when I did four pictures, usually one of them would be a western."

Doing his last three outdoor films in a row was more or less an accident, he said. But he admitted that his two previous films were not entirely successful. His analysis:

"Love in the Afternoon—"It did great in Europe and well in the big cities here, but not so well in the smaller towns. In Sabrina with Humphrey Bogart, Audrey Hepburn started as a young girl and matured. But in our picture she started as 17 and ended at 17. And I don't look any older than 90 but seldom younger than 50.

10 North Frederick—"The script was good, but they made it too cheaply. They just threw up sets and shot it fast in black and white. They should have gone to a real town and given it quality and color."

Aries (March 21 to April 19) — Be particularly careful while driving today, also in remarks made unnecessarily. Tonight is then fine for being with bosom friends and getting moral and social support from them. Let there be romance, too. Fun-speed ahead.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) — A jealous comrade could so resent your prosperity at this time that he or she would make trouble for you. But fortunately the latter part of the day other friends are aware of this and put a stop to it. Let there be a true meeting of minds.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — Do nothing that will arouse the resentment of an executive or you really get on the carpet. Be your most charming and courteous self instead. Then you are capable of such efficient work that one in real power takes a tremendous interest in you.

Moon children (June 22 to July 21) — If you neglect obligations so that you can run out on different site, be with newcomers, you will get into hot water early. Stick to duties, then you will be in a position to have a delightful time socially. Enjoy yourself.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — Your wishes and your bank balance do not harmonize at all, and your intimate and business advisers do not agree, either. Take it easy on A. M. and by lunchtime all eases up beautifully; you get approval of all about you.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) — Argument between partner and higher up, your goals and those of associates must not get you off balance today. After lunch, you will see that relatives, pals, business associates are then more than willing to co-operate with you.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) — Be sure you early clear up any important duties before you are able off to new sites and ventures as you feel you most want to do today. Only in this way can you advance properly.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) — While you are most eager for pleasure, the A. M. is hardly appropriate for leaving important duties that must be performed. At noontime you will then be at peak of efficiency and can accomplish much. P. M. have fun.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — Don't act on any decisions you have made concerning close ties until after lunch. A strong - willed friend will be about and will spoil your plans. Then how you can go ahead diplomatically and come to meeting of minds.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — Any nervousness exhibited in your activities during A. M. will cause trouble and damage. Be poised and careful. Later in the day you can also acquire much important information and also have fun with comrades. Be friendly.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — Fun and obligations just cannot be mixed this morning. Hence, make up your mind to get duties behind you efficiently. P. M. give a dinner or party for employer, customers, clients of great worth. This brings fine benefits.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — Be careful before you speak during morning hours at residence, or a big argument ensues. After lunch, however, all is quiet and harmonious and you will be able to run out to important business, civic or social meetings. Be alert.

If your child is born today ... The dear child born today is the type who early in life will get into one situation after the other since the mind is very inquisitive and wants to learn very fast, particularly concerning what causes other people to act as they do. The adult life, however, is fine, since the judgment is excellent, and many lessons have been learned the hard way. Give as fine an academic education as possible.

Strike May Spread

TORONTO (CP) — The International Union of Operating Engineers CLC announced Sunday it will demand province-wide agreements with major building contractors.

The announcement raised the possibility Toronto's $150,000,000 construction shutdowns may spread to other areas of the province. The operating engineers, one of four unions still without contracts with the Toronto Builders' Exchange, have been idle in Toronto since builders locked out all workers two weeks ago after a cement masons' strike Sept. 11.

Historian Says Dieppe Raid Canadian Manpower Waste

OTTAWA (CP)—American military historian Samuel Eliot Morison says the Dieppe raid was a British waste of Canadian manpower.

In his book Strategy and Compromise published this year, Prof. Morison writes:

"From the time American entered the war, the best chiefs of staff worked for 18 months before they could obtain the consent of their British opposite numbers to set up the cross-channel assault that finally took place, very successfully, in 1944, and whose direct consequence was the defeat of Germany.

WASTED MANPOWER

"In order to persuade the British chiefs of staff to agree to this, the United States had to take part more or less unwillingly in a series of Mediterranean campaigns and to stand idly by while the British wasted their manpower and Canada's on hit-and-run raids such as those at St. Nazire and Dieppe."

Asked by the Canadian Press to elaborate on this view, Prof. Morison says in a letter:

"My statement about Dieppe is based on the fact that the raid had no real purpose.

"The reason usually given for the raid was that it was to gain experience for the future large-scale operations (the Normandy invasion).

"Sir Winston Churchill in The Hinge of Fate indicates his personal interview in the raid. He states, but I find little support for his view, that no responsible general would undertake the cross-Channel without the experience a large-scale opera-

[illegible] JUSTIFIED

"I feel that Dieppe was put on largely because of successes in the earlier, smaller commando raids and possibly a less related to American prodding for a second front.

"Still, it was merely a hit-and-run raid with very limited objectives which, in my opinion, did not justify the effort put into it.

"It also tipped off the Germans to the weaknesses in their own defences and was in part responsible for the construction of their Atlantic wall.

"I do not question that the experience of Dieppe had a very sobering effect on planning for the second front and probably had an influence on delaying the invasion of France to 1944.

"With due deference to Canadian feeling I do feel, however, that the idea that Normandy could not have been planned and executed without the experience of Dieppe is an exaggeration. No doubt it had an influence on British planners but I doubt that it influenced American planners to any substantial degree."

H-S Assoc. Hears Panel Talk on C.A.S.

MADOC — The meeting of the Home and School Association was held in the public school on Monday evening with the new president, Thomas Hawthorne, presiding. The roll call was taken and the attendance banner was won by Miss F. Connor's grade 1 room.

The guest speaker was Mr. Bruce Kerr, introduced by the president. Mr. Kerr is president of the Belleville Branch of the Children's Aid Society, and who, in turn introduced four members of his staff, Mr. Holtzski, who is in charge of the Protection Department of the Society; Mrs. C. Grost who is concerned with receiving and care of the children; Miss R. Payne, whose department is Foster Homes and Mr. Adamson in charge of adoptive homes.

A panel discussion was held during which each member told of his or her particular work in the society.

A general question and answer period followed. This proved most interesting and informative.

A vote of thanks was tendered the guests by Mr. Harold Brenchell.

A social half hour followed.

Reports Molotov Drops From Sight

CHAPPED HILL, N.C. (AP) — A University of North Carolina professor just back from a tour of Russian territory says V. M. Molotov has dropped from sight in Mongolia where he was Soviet ambassador.

Dr. Robert A. Rupen, an American authority on Outer Mongolia, said Molotov has not been seen since he attended Mongolian national holiday ceremonies July 11.

Molotov, after his fall from Moscow's ruling circles, was banished to the post in Mongolia.

Doukhobor Plans For USSR Move Still Not Clear

Hold Application Forms Until Conditions Met

VICTORIA (CP) — An official statement was expected today to clear up uncertainties concerning the projected move of Sons of Freedom Doukhobors to Russia.

The deadline set by the federal and provincial governments for filing of application forms by Freedomites who wish to go to Russia ended at midnight Tuesday night. At that time the British Columbia government had fewer than 80 forms.

Government leaders said they were holding another 2,384 signed forms but wouldn't release them until the two governments agreed to certain new conditions.

STATEMENT EXPECTED

Attorney-General Robert Bonner of B.C. flew to Vancouver on Tuesday to talk with a Doukhobor delegation. He said he expected to make a new statement today.

The Vancouver meeting was classes as unofficial. The Freedomite delegates were to meet with Mr. Bonner here today for an official session.

Justice Minister Fulton was expected to be in telephone contact with Mr. Bonner periodically today to discuss the latest demands made by the government-in-council," Mr. Mooney said.

BIG CENTRES

He said the municipalities that approved the appeal represent the majority of the population of Canada and include Toronto, Hamilton, Niagara Falls, London, Windsor, Montreal, Quebec City and Verdun, Que.

The Montreal city administration decided to appeal the rates on its own instead of joining with the other municipalities.

The board of transport commissioners earlier this month awarded Bell a $17,000,000-a-year boost for the central provinces.

The appeal has the power to rescind the increase or order the board to take a new look at it.

$50 MILLION MORE WILL BE REQUIRED TO FINISH ROAD

Money May Be Voted At Next Session

OTTAWA (CP) — Parliament will be asked at its next session to vote an additional sum—perhaps $40,000,000 to $50,000,000—for construction of the trans-Canada highway.

This would increase the federal government's share of the 4,670-mile coast-to-coast road network to some $300,000,000, compared with an expenditure of $250,000,000 to 000 now authorized.

A works department official said the additional amount would not be known in a few weeks. The department has asked the nine provinces that signed agreements —all except Quebec—what mileage they can work they plan to complete by Dec. 31, 1960, target date for a paved highway from coast to coast.

Once this was known the department would determine the additional funds the federal government would have to spend. The original cost was estimated at $40,000,000 to $50,000,000 but has risen greatly.

AT P.C. PAVED

About 41 per cent—or some 2,000 miles—of the highway now has been paved. Construction started in 1950. There is an additional 1,300 miles paved to provincial standards but not to trans-Canada specifications.

Officials said the government will move early next session to ask parliament to approve arrival of the additional federal expenditure. It would receive top priority.

He said more money would have to be voted to enable the government to keep pace with the volume of highway construction by the provinces.

The provincial governments wanted to get as much work done as possible before Dec. 31, 1960, when the Trans-Canada Highway Act expires.

Hurricane Force Winds Lash North Carolina

CAPE HATTERAS, N.C. (AP) — A vicious northeaster with hurricane force winds and driving rains was due to move inland today after leaving its mark on coastal regions.

The U.S. weather bureau said the storm, which lashed the coast for more than 24 hours, probably will cross the Virginia-North Carolina border south of here.

However, much of its wind and rain already has lost and inland residents probably will escape the storm's fury. They can be assured of a quiet night.

The northeaster lashed some 200 miles of islands that reached 75 miles an hour, piling up flood waters across scattered highways, up inland rivers and into some coastal communities.

ONTARIO CHEESE BEST

LONDON (CP) — The Ontario producers marketing board was awarded the Bledisloe cup Tuesday for the best cheddar cheese produced in the Commonwealth.

President, Truman and Nixon Warming up in Campaign

NEW YORK (CP)—President Eisenhower carried his vote-Republican offensive into the Middle West today after raking the Democrats in a California foray. Former president Harry Truman said Eisenhower and Vice-President Richard Nixon are jittery over prospects in the Nov. 4 congressional elections.

Eisenhower flew to Chicago Tuesday night from San Francisco, where he blasted Democrats in Congress for preventing enactment of his proposals to "unorganize" compulsory labor unions.

He also said Democrats have given impetus to what he called a "dangerous drift toward centralization" of government power.

He was billed to make a coast-to-coast televised speech from Chicago tonight on behalf of Republican candidates for Congress. Earlier, Eisenhower planned to participate in a panel discussion to be broadcast in the midwest area.

Truman was due in Wilmington, Del., for a drum-and-bugle rally at the Delaware city, Truman scoffed at Eisenhower's talk of running a second campaign.

He said "a sound government like the Republicans is the kind of government in which the president makes nice sounds while the vice-president wields."

Truman said the Eisenhower administration is responsible for heavy unemployment, record living costs, a drop in farm income, big federal deficits, dangerous delays in defence buildup and what he called decay of our free world, position through blunder, and bribing Iceland.

The former president has cautioned Democrats to run scared. But he seemed to ignore his own advice Tuesday night. He told a party rally in New Castle, Pa., that the Nov. 4 election will bring the biggest Democratic landslide since 1932.

Truman said he had been asked "time and time" whether he had jitters because Eisenhower and Nixon were on the campaign trail. He said Eisenhower and Nixon who have the jitters, the 74-year-old Democratic leader said.

Khrushchev Says Russia Ready to Assist Needy

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Premier Nikita Khrushchev suggested Tuesday night that underdeveloped countries could be helped through an international fund created with savings made by reducing armed forces and cutting military budgets.

Khrushchev, speaking at a reception here, rejected other suggestions for the disarmament talks. He said Russia is ready to discuss ideas in the talks in the United Nations.

"We won't help them (the imperialists) to sit on the fence any further rob and impose a perpetual yoke on the peoples," he said. He looked at the reception given for Soviet leaders by Marshal Josip Broz Tito, Yugoslav president and minister of war of the United Arab Republic and visiting Moscow.

"We will help them ourselves and do it together with those countries with which we have agreements.

"They (the West) cannot compete with us in that. The world and the whole around live together because the wolf has fangs to eat the sheep with, not to help it."

The Soviet leader, in his first public appearance in Moscow "after two months' vacation on the Black Sea, said the United States is friendly with the United Arab Republic because "We don't need your gifts," he added.

"But the imperialists want to help you by giving you hundreds, millions, billions of rubles back.

"Why do they do it? Because they want to get back four hundreds, four new materials—not four rubles but four hundreds. They seek out and destroy the animals. Sometimes they kill a bull that can carry bags worth $50. The bull will be worth $100.

"They will be released in each of the 12 townships where

RABIES EPIDEMIC IN GREY COUNTY SERIOUS MENACE

Foxes Kill Livestock, Take After Children

OWEN SOUND (CP) — A federal veterinarian said Tuesday night there probably are 50 to 100 foxes a square mile in Grey County where a rabies epidemic he described as "worsening every day" has been killing livestock and menacing children.

Dr. T. J. Cornish spoke to a joint meeting of the finance and agriculture committees of the Grey County Council only a few hours after the latest known incursion by a rabid fox.

Donna Cornfield, 18, of the Heathcote district 22 miles east of here, met it on the road. The eyed animal Tuesday morning while on her way to meet the school bus. It lunged at her but threw stones and her books at it and the girl managed to kick it. It didn't waver in its advance on her. She turned and ran home but the fox gave chase. It was only a few paces behind when the girl reached safety.

"One of the most frightening aspects of this thing," he told the council, "is the fearless attitude so many people adopt, failing to realize that a rabid fox or one due to household pets becoming infected and not recognizing the danger in time soon enough."

The councillors decided to irap, tag and release 24 foxes whose pelts will be worth money in an effort to get some information on the seek out and destroy the animals. Bounties are paid on foxes that carry tags worth $50. The 24th will be worth $100.

Foxes will be released in each of the 12 townships where

British Viscount And Italian Jet Collide At Anzio

Thirty Aboard Airliner All Die in Explosion

NETTUNO, Italy (CP)—A British airliner and an Italian military jet collided four miles above Italy today, killing all 30 aboard the passenger plane.

Wreckage of the British European Airways four-engine turboprop plane was scattered for more than a mile near this village 30 miles south of Rome.

The military plane exploded in the air. Searchers found that the Italian pilot parachuted, landing in the Mediterranean. A fishing boat picked him up. He was taken to a hospital in critical condition.

The Viscount airliner was on a flight from London to Naples and Malta. Both aircraft were 15 minutes before the plane was due at Naples.

ALL BODIES FOUND

By late afternoon, three hours, Italian police had recovered all 30 bodies.

The shattered plane crashed into an Italian army artillery range, only about 200 yards from an explosives dump, on land owned by Prince Torlonia, the airport of Anzio where allied forces landed in the Second World War.

The airliner carried 25 passengers and a crew of five.

Giovanni Saverelli, mayor of Nettuno said that after the collision "there was a terrific explosion."

The British airliner blew up. Everyone on board must have been killed instantly. The wreckage came streaming down in a shower. The biggest piece was not more than a yard long.

The pilot of the fighter managed to parachute out of his plane immediately and the plane went on flying for a few seconds before plunging downwards."

Mayors Seeking Suspension of Phone Rate Hike

MONTREAL (CP)—Municipalities representing the majority of the population of Ontario and Quebec have decided to seek the suspension and eventual reversal of new telephone rate increases for the two provinces, George S. Mooney, executive director of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities, said Tuesday an appeal to the federal cabinet has been authorized by 34 of the 36 municipalities that originally opposed the Bell Telephone Company bid for higher rates.

"Inasmuch as it is anticipated that the other municipalities will also agree to participate in the appeal, instructions have been given to Lovell Carroll, legal counsel for the organization's municipalities, to proceed immediately with the appeal to the governor-in-council," Mr. Mooney said.

BIG CENTRES

He said the municipalities that approved the appeal represent the majority of the population of the provinces and include Toronto, Hamilton, Niagara Falls, London, Windsor, Montreal, Quebec City and Verdun, Que.

The Montreal city administration decided to appeal the rates on its own instead of joining with the other municipalities.

The board of transport commissioners earlier this month awarded Bell a $17,000,000-a-year boost for the central provinces.

The appeal has the power to rescind the increase or order the board to take a new look at it.

Man Accused Of Strangling Wife in Bed

RACERBRIDGE (CP) — A 146-mile oil truck driver went on trial Tuesday for murder, accused of strangling his wife when she resisted his nighttime advances.

When she fended him off, Shirley Maxwell Stewart said in a forcible statement admitted as evidence, "I grabbed her throat with my hands and pushed and pushed and body went limp."

Stewart, a mild - looking man who brought beseeching glances, was brought to the Supreme Court jury. The sitting resumed this afternoon.

In the statement ruled admissible by the judge, Stewart said he returned in the night of June 26 to his Brunel Road home near Huntsville after working for four days at Barrie. He found his wife, Mary, badly disturbed by receiving letters.

Husband and wife got into an argument. She statement went on, and this eventually led to tragedy.

Several witnesses testified to Stevens' devotion to his wife and their seven children. Michael, Steven's 14-year-old son, was called to testify but was excused after a sad sway.

Before he left, he quoted his father as telling him June 27:

"Don't ever lose control of your temper. You see what it's done to me."

Ontario's fine autumn weather is expected to be separated from wet skies today with cloud edges of into western and southern Ontario. Showers overspread early reported over Michigan and the Lake Superior region and Northern Ontario during the day while a much larger area of light and intermittent rain extending from the Carolina coast to Ohio is expected to reach Southern Ontario tonight. Cloud and scattered showers will be general by all regions Thursday. Daytime temperatures will be a little lower but will continue to remain on the mild side.

Claim U.S. Plane Flew Over China

TOYO (AP) — Communist China claimed a U.S. Air Force reconnaissance plane trespassed Tuesday over the coastal mainland provinces of Fukien and Kwangtung and Peiping said the act "deliberate war provocation."

The charge, made by Peiping's official Hsinhua news agency and broadcast by Peiping Radio, was accompanied by a demand that China's representative to the United States protest to the U.S. government since the outbreak of the Formosa Strait crisis. The Nationalist offshore islands are off Fukien.

The United States has denied all such previous charges.

FIND EMPTY BOXES

ST THOMAS (CP) — Three empty cash boxes from the safe-cracking at the Elgin - Maxwell Construction Company's premises Monday were discovered Tuesday by police in the bush on the south edge of the city. The company was not yet known accurately, may reach $10,000.

Scientists May Be Getting Close To Producing Life in Test Tube

WASHINGTON (AP) — Science may be getting close to producing life in a test tube, the Smithsonian Institution said today.

"The way seems open, following recent revolutionary chemical developments, to the actual laboratory synthesis of a structure having much of the complexity of a living agent," the institution said.

It did so in summarizing an article by Dr. Wendell M. Stanley, director of the virus laboratory of the University of California, in the institution's annual report.

Stanley has described remarkable recent progress in breaking down the barriers between nonliving and living organisms, the Smithsonian's digest said.

"The remaining essential step, he says, seems to be synthesis of one of the chemically highly complicated nucleic acids which forms an essential component of viruses and of genes, the units of heredity. This may be close at hand."

The government research agency said Stanley pictures a kind of "ladder of life" as being constituted as follows:

(1) nucleic acids; (2) viruses, which incorporate nucleic acids; (3) single-celled living things, such as bacteria and protozoa; and finally (4) multi-celled organisms of increasing complexity of life.

"The barriers between these have broken down one after another in the last few years," said the institution.

"This progress seems to have been carried very recently, Stanley says, in a demonstration by Dr. H. Fraenkel-Conrat of the University of California that one of the nucleic acids may have all the characteristics of a gene or of a group of genes. Already produced from amino acids."

This finding "nearly completes the connection" between non-living material and that which is undoubtedly living.

"The remaining step," it said, "seems to be the synthesis of this nucleic acid out of its constituent parts . . . just as protein have been synthesized from amino acids.

"It would be one of the outstanding events in all history."

Gold Watch Switch Wrecks Train

METHUEN, Mass. (AP) — A track switch opened by vandals derailed a passenger train in suburban Methuen Tuesday night, injuring 20 persons, none seriously. No casualties were listed among the injured.

A spokesman for the railroad said Methuen Police Chief Cyril Feugill said the two-car passenger train was derailed on a track when it came to an open switch. The left front wheels of both cars and then came to rest at a tilt against a grain shed. The switch train was the last from Rockingham Horse Race Meeting at Salem, N.H., a night program of harness racing.

ONE-MAN REBELLION

PARIS (Reuters) — Eight tried and handcuffed policemen told a court today how 36-year-old Claude Labbe went to them with bottles when they tried to arrest him for taking part in a bar fight. Labbe, who bullseyes as successive reinforcements arrived, was finally overpowered by three weight of numbers. Labbe, charged with "one-man rebellion," was jailed for three months.

Main Monetary Issues in Strike To Be Tackled

TORONTO (CP) — Negotiators were expected to begin tackling the main monetary issues today as talks between the Canadian group of Canada and the striking United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CLC) moved to a crucial stage.

The second full day of conference adjourned Tuesday with Louis Fine, chief conciliator, to confer for the first time with government reporting "considerable progress" on non - monetary items.

Steico and union spokesmen would not comment but it was reported the government - sponsored talks had moved to discuss the vital wage question. Steico has said it is prepared to increase its wage offer if the union agreed to a three-year contract. The union has been demanding a two-year contract.

Steico's last offer was of a five-cent-an-hour increase on a one-year contract. The union is holding out for a two-year contract with a 25-cent package increase.

Basic wage at Steico is $1.75 an hour.

Model on Way to Win Back Prince From Actress Dies in Plane Crash

LONDON (AP)—Jane Buckingham, London model who said actress Eva Bartok broke away her boyfriend, was killed in the British airliner that crashed over Italy today.

The auburn-haired beauty, 25, had boarded the plane in Naples to woo back handsome Indian Prince Aly Khan.

"Shiv is mine," Miss Buckingham told reporters Tuesday.

"We loves me and I love him. "And that Eva Bartok is going to find out pretty soon."

Miss Bartok's press agent announced Monday the 29-year-old actress was unofficially engaged" to the 27-year-old prince from Pakistan.

As Jane fumed and cried for reporters, Eva and the Marquis of Milford Haven—who friends marry Eva.

say had planned to become her husband No. 5—squabbled in an all-night session on the door-step of a glittering society party. Also attending were Frank Sinatra and Lady Beatty, for whom the party-in-honor have been predicting wedding bells.

Jane and the prince had been dating since they met July 31. They talked of marriage. Jane said Eva came along to spoil things.

Jane was interviewed in Paddington, Eva and the marquis were partying at Lady Northampton's in Kensington. The prince was speeding toward Naples to see his father, the 54-year-old Maharaja Sir Sir Bahadurjuk Ali Thakore Saheb, amid reports he plans to ask permission to

Pushing Sign Wins Him First Job in Year

DETROIT (AP) — Charles Hamilton, who pushed a huge sign through the downtown Detroit area Monday in search of a job, went to work today.

Hamilton, 37, father of a four-year-old boy and unemployed since he lost his job four more than a year, will operate a drilling machine at a machine shop.

Hamilton said he was overcome by tears when he saw his sign, which read: "First class all-around man wants job." He refused to discuss it further.

Now Hamilton says he's worried about how he can look all the people who offered him work.

Seek Release Of Americans Held in Cuba

HAVANA (AP)—For the second time in four months, the U.S. consulate in Santiago today sought the release of Americans held in the mountains of eastern Cuba.

The American embassy in Havana asked Premier Fidel C. Castro's Smith instructed Consul Park Wollam "to take a firm position with the rebels to release" the Americans.

Two Americans and seven Cubans were abducted from a Texaco refinery near Santiago on Monday and taken to rebel hideouts in the mountains. The rebels told the Texaco manager they would be released shortly, the embassy said.

The Americans are Charles H. Bennett, 34, the refinery's supervisor of maintenance and construction and Kenneth D. Drewes, 40, machine shop foreman.

KIDNAPPERS NOT KNOWN

It was not immediately known whether the kidnappings were ordered by Rebel Leader Fidel Castro, who has been waging guerrilla warfare against President Fulgencio Batista for the last two years from jungle camps in the Sierra Maestra west of Santiago.

Since Castro's forces came last June, a rebel force headed by Commander Raul Castro Ruz Head kidnapped 20 American and Canadian mining workers and 30 Standard Oil employees of the U.S. Ivory at Guantanamo Bay, south of Santiago.

Wollam and Vice-Consul Robert D. Wiecha obtained releases of the last group after more than three weeks of negotiations. The last American employee held by the rebels from Fidel Castro, who said he did not want to alienate the United States.

REGIONAL RALLY FOR H. & S. ASSOC. IS OUTLINED

Two local ladies, Mrs. R Jones, 47 Mikel Street, president of the Belleville Council, and Mrs. A. J. Fort, Strathcona Drive, were interviewed by Mrs. Harriet Stevens on radio station CJBQ, Monday morning, regarding the Home and School Association's regional conference for area C.

The ladies explained the conference which will be held Saturday at Quinte Secondary School is open to not only Home and School Association members, but also to all interested non-members. Interesting speakers and a varied program have been arranged for what promises to be an enlightening and entertaining conference.

Mrs. Jones and Mrs. Fort also appeared on C.K.W.S. T. V.'s "Afternoon Almanac" program this week.

HEAVY PROPERTY DAMAGE IN CRASH

Property damage amounting to an estimated $500 resulted this morning as a result of a two-car collision at the corner of St. Paul and Pinnacle Street. No one was injured.

Police said that a car driven by James Scobie and owned by Dr. J. Russell Scott collided with another vehicle driven by Mr. Alfred Tyrass. The accident occurred shortly after nine o'clock.

During the noon hour a chain reaction rear-end collision was reported on the Upper Bridge. Names of the seven drivers involved were not learned at press time.

SHORT IN SYSTEM SETS OFF CLOCK

The clock in the tower on the City Hall clamoured away Tuesday for half an hour due to a short in the electrical system of alarm that sets off the chimes. The exact whereabouts of the short is not yet known.

Essential That Canada Be Trading Nation Club Is Told

Yesterday evening the Belleville Sales and Ad Club held their monthly dinner meeting in the Knights of Columbus hall. Guest speaker was John James McGill, power professional hockey player with the Montreal Canadiens, presently advertising manager with the Imperial Tobacco Company, Montreal, and executive vice-president of the Association of Canadian Advertisers.

Mr. McGill, speaking on the broadening of Canada's merchandising horizons, described Canadians as "lacking in speculative capital, but . . . not lacking in desire, brain power or basic know-how" and having "a lot of moral fibre and style that is steadily growing." He asked two important questions: the first, "do we fully appreciate the tremendous possibilities of our country," and, "as a marketing people, do we see past Canada's boundaries and take a good look at the world's markets?" The answers to these questions will make the difference as to whether Canada progresses to the position of one of the major nations or assumes the position of a "secondary" nation whose natural wealth is merely exploited by or exported, in its primary or unfinished state, to the major merchandising and manufacturing nations.

Economically Canada must be a trading nation — "one that must sell to all the major markets of the world"—if Canadians are "to enjoy real prosperity." Mr. McGill suggests that in order to do this we must encourage more and more young, well-educated men into the marketing profession. Good products, made by labor and conceived and designed by research and development, can only be sold on the world market if properly merchandised by intelligent and aggressive sales staffs. This challenge will have to be met.

KEY FAST OCCUPATION

The role of a merchandising executive is not an easy occupation as described by Mr. McGill, it requires, on the one hand, a high degree of technical skill, both concerning the product concerned and merchandising procedure and, at the same time, a broad general knowledge to provide a fresh outlook and enthusiasm for the development of new marketing approaches and ideas.

Good merchandising benefits everyone in Canada, Mr. McGill gave the example of the farmer in Red Deer, Alberta, who purchased a piece of farm machinery made in Brantford, Ontario, which allowed his wife, a former worker to buy products from Prince Edward Island. At the same time the steel for the machine came from Hamilton, and the sale of the machine followed a Hamilton worker to buy a jacket made in Drummondville, pants made in Montreal from tobacco raised in Ontario. The shoes purchased were made in Oshawa, Oakville or Windsor and then was it on gas made from oil from Alberta. This example can be expanded further but it illustrates one thing — that "the tidal wave of business", it doesn't matter where the wave originates, it helps us all."

Looking to Canada's future, the speaker expressed his opinion that Canadians have one of the greatest stakes in the free world, Canadian citizenship and with this advantage goes the responsibility of seeing that Canada is developed to her fullest possible measure. Initiative and forward thinking is required to do this. Labor must put forth effort, its house in order; industry must make all the possible resources necessary; natural resources must be developed into marketable commodities; the producing must creatively rise to the challenge of providing new or larger markets.

Mr. McGill concluded on this optimistic note — "Some 30 years ago, Dr. Stephen Leacock wrote 'Canada's day is tomorrow.' Well with the sage and very dear old gentleman were after to see it in the year right now is Canada's day, and it's still early in the morning."

Dick Beare introduced the speaker and Bruce Miller thanked him and made a presentation on behalf of the club. The annual Christmas party was announced for December ninth at the Canoe Club. It was announced that N.C. 'News' Wilbur had undisputedly earned the right in the title of Turkey-Eating Champion of the club. The evening was concluded with a bridge session.

Fish and Game Association Holds First Meet

The lead-off meeting of the Fish and Game Association for this year took place last night in the YMCA when a good portion of the members attended. Guest speaker was Jim Bowers of there were guest-speakers, H. S. Bateman, District Conservation Officer for the Tweed district and George Warner, of Lindsay, Conservation Officer.

Before the first speaker was given the floor a film entitled "Big Game Stalking in Montana" was shown. The film had plenty of thrills and excitement as two young boys caught fish and stalked all kinds of wild game in Montana, even a monther grizzly bear which charged the camera, nearly the boys and the cameraman's day in the field.

Bruce Smith introduced the first speaker, Hugh Dorman. He spoke to the members on the soon-opening deer and moose season. He asked the hunter to bring in all their kills to the three conservation stations for a check-up and for a brief examination. He said that the lower jaw of the animal would be inspected to determine their ages.

Mr. Dorman offered to answer questions and the members supplied him promptly until Precinct D. I. MacKinnon was forced to intervene.

After Mr. Dorman's address another film, "Realm of the Wilderness" was shown. This gave the audience an idea of the importance of conservation and of the amount of game that dies every year because of a lack of food.

PLAN SAFETY COURSE

The second speaker, George Warner, told of a new course for novice hunters. This course is safety which is open to people of any district for gun lovers. The course is endorsed by the National Rifle Association and it was Mr. Warner's wish that some of the expert riflemen in the district would apply as teachers. He said that the course would be similar to that given by the Quinte district Mr. Bruce Smith said that the shortage of water in the surrounding lakes and streams would become serious if it did not rain soon.

The third film, the feature of the evening, was the story of the Mayflower II. This story was filmed on the voyage of the replica of the pilgrim fathers' ship. The film was greatly enjoyed by all.

A raffle was held and the winners were, Fred Rich, a hunter warmer, Art Davison, a conservationist and Cec Connelly, a hunting knife.

Also discussed by the members was the possibility of the association applying for revision of the "no hunting on Sunday" law.

Cuban Airliner Missing Over Rebel Country

HAVANA (AP)—A Cuban DC-3 airliner carrying 11 passengers was missing today in the rebel country of eastern Cuba.

Jose A. Vilaboy, manager of the Compania Cubana de Aviacion, said the plane was flying in bad weather and may have made a forced landing. The plane left Santiago Tuesday for the Preston sugar plantation near Amos.

Expect to Name Broadcast Board

OTTAWA (CP) — The cabinet was to meet again today as it sped towards a cleanup of top government policy matters before Prime Minister Diefenbaker's departure next Tuesday on his world tour.

Among matters under consideration are:

1. Appointment of 15 members to the new board of broadcast governors.

2. Other federal appointments, including judicial and perhaps senatorial.

3. The interim report of the Borden royal commission on Canada's economic prospects, expected to be released in the week of this week.

4. A legislative program for the next session of Parliament, expected in mid-January.

5. A reply to the United States protest last summer against Canada's new anti-dumping tariff legislation.

Revenue Minister Nowlan said he hopes membership of the new broadcast regulating board can be announced by the end of the week.

Some 300 applications had been received for the 15 positions, said the minister who reports to Parliament for the CBC. Selection members was "quite a challenge."

$400,000 in Accounts Passed At H.S. Board Meeting

Further indication that operation of the city's high schools falls into the big business class was given Tuesday night at the monthly meeting of the Bay of Quinte District High School Boards when September accounts amounting to over $400,000 were passed.

The big wage of the total, or $375,000 was in repayment of a bank loan, but the balance of $137,000 in regular accounts was still a record for any month.

"Just another indication that high school operation is now big business" commented school board secretary Roy Dulmage.

Last night's board meeting was a long drawn out affair with much discussion on matters of relative minor importance.

Arising out of last week's accident at the Secondary School when two young girl students were injured when struck by a car, the board authorized erection of signs on the driveways at Glenwood Park and Bell Street to limit the speed limit at six miles per hour. Also signs will be erected at the exits of parking lots both at Quinte and at B.C.I. A committee of the two high school principals, with board members, Mrs. Ralph Mowder, and Harold Seldon was appointed to report to the board on the matter of setting up nursing services at the two schools. The committee will investigate the advantages as the result of a report from the Home and School Association.

PURCHASE NEW UNIT

Purchase of an air conditioning unit for the music room at BCI was authorized. This unit will allow windows of the music room to be kept closed during the warm months, thus keeping sounds of practise sessions in.

Also authorized for purchase was a used combination record player and film strip projector from Pinder Motors.

The board appointed a committee to investigate salaries which will help in the new principals' offices and report back to the board.

Tenders for the construction of the proposed third new high school will be opened and a special meeting to be held October 28th. The opening of tenders was set back four days at the request of the architect.

LONDON SITUATION GOOD

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — A national employment service spokesman said Tuesday that while employment began its yearly seasonal increase across Canada in September, in London the number of jobless dropped sharply from the preceding month. There also was a noticeable drop last month in the number of claimants for unemployment insurance benefits, the official said.

Obituary

MRS. MEL RICHARDS

Following a lengthy illness, Mrs. Barbara A. Richards, 113 Hastings Drive, died in Kingston General Hospital late Tuesday evening.

She was born at Ottawa, 47 years ago, being the daughter of Mrs. Alice Fryer and the late Walter Fryer and had been a resident of this city for the past ten years. She previously resided at Kingston.

Since coming to this city, Mrs. Richards has taken an active interest in the church and social life of this community and was held in high regard by a wide circle of friends. She was a charter member of the Eastminister United Church and was active in all branches of the work of the congregation, especially the choir, of which she was a valued member.

Mrs. Richards was a woman of kindly nature, a firm friend and a fine neighbor. Besides her church, she was vitally interested in Home and School Association work and was a regular attendent, when health permitted.

Surviving are her husband, Mel Richards of the Houston Lumber Co., Belleville; mother, Mrs. Alice Fryer of Ottawa; two sons, Walter and David Richards at home and two sisters, Mrs. John (Ruby) Watson of Ottawa and Mrs. F. L. (Alice) Nicholson of Odessa.

Resting at the John R. Bush Funeral Home, 90 Highland Avenue. The funeral announcement appears elsewhere in this edition.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) The stock market slipped off today amid the slowest first-hour trading in a month.

The 31 a.m. volume of 440,000 was only half of Tuesday's 1,375,000 at the same hour and the lightest since Sept. 20.

Base metals slipped one-half point on index while industrials and western oils were off one-quarter. Golds were lower a few decimal points.

Profit-taking continued to plague industrials for the third straight session. Aluminium was off 1¼ points at 37¾ and International Nickel and Simpsons each lost ½. Steels were stronger as Steel Company of Canada gained 1 at 67¼ and Algoma was ahead ¼ at 39¾.

Base metals were easier as coppers dipped. Consolidated Mining and Noranda each lost ¼ and coupled with International Nickel they pulled the section off.

Public Relations Field New One To Kiwanians

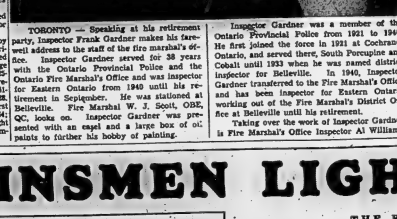
The mixture of international affairs and the profession of Public Relations were the topics of a speech given by Paul S. Peak, the Public Relations and Advertising Manager of the Imperial Bank of Canada. Speaking to the Kiwanis Club at their weekly luncheon Mr. Peak blended the two subjects.

The speaker, a native of England, said that we in Canada should help to distribute freedom to the countries that have no knowledge of it. He said that much of the surplus grain and wheat could be given to these countries, most of which are poverty-stricken.

"Right now," he said, "we in the western world are losing the battle for the headlines with the communists". He stated "we can defeat the communist if we capitalize on our most sellable product — freedom".

Mr. Peak then launched into a detailed report on the public relations profession. He said that field was a new one in Canada, starting a scant 25 years ago.

The main qualification needed to be a public relations officer, he contended, was confidence, and the ability to spread it around. "A public relations officer must create confidence in, and for the company he is employed by . . ." he stated.



He said that lack of confidence was a cause for depressions and recessions. "If people are confident they will buy, but if not — they won't . . ." he said.

In conclusion he told the members that they should be proud of the fact that they are Canadians and said that they should preach the "gospel of freedom . . ." He also asked them to remember that the greatest public relation men of all are those of God.

He was thanked for an "inspiring speech by 'Bud' Punchard.

It was announced that the new vice-president of Kiwanis was George Tripp.

SPEAKS AT FAREWELL PARTY

TORONTO — Speaking at his retirement party, Inspector Frank Gardner makes his farewell address to the staff of the fire marshal's office. Inspector Gardner served for 38 years with Ontario Provincial Police and the Ontario Fire Marshal's Office and was inspector for Eastern Ontario from 1940 until his retirement in September. He was stationed at Belleville. Fire Marshal W. J. Scott, OBE, QC, looks on. Inspector Gardner was presented with an easel and a large box of oil paints to further his hobby of painting.

Inspector Gardner was a member of the Ontario Provincial Police from 1921 to 1940. He first joined the force in 1921 at Cochrane, Ontario, and served there, South Porcupine and Cobalt until 1933 when he was named district inspector for Belleville. In 1940, Inspector Gardner transferred to the Fire Marshal's Office and has been inspector for Eastern Ontario working out of the Fire Marshal's District Office at Belleville until his retirement.

Taking over the work of Inspector Gardner is Fire Marshal's Office Inspector Al Williams.

Fire Destroys Frankford Home, Most of Contents

TRENTON — Mr. and Mrs. Cuthbert Warren of nearby Frankford lost most of their furniture and clothing Tuesday night when a fire destroyed the frame house they were renting.

The building was completely gutted as the flames and it was owned by E. H. Partridge. There was no insurance on the contents of the house and it is not known if the house itself was insured.

Mrs. Pearson noticed the fire at about 9 p.m. and called in the alarm and two hours later the fire was completely out but not before it had broken through the roof at the rear of the house and gutted the inside.

The Pearsons had only moved into the house a few months ago with their two sons and four daughters from the opposite side of the town. Mr. Pearson is employed in the machine shop of the Bata Shoe Company.

Frankford Fire Chief Mervin Dafoe said he thought the cause of the $7,000 fire was from faulty wiring but that further investigations would be made.

The department called in the aid of the Batawa Fire Department and ran a line of hose from the Trent River, a distance of about 500 yards from the scene. The house is located on a side street about 50 yards off Number 33 highway and behind the service station operated by Charlie Chase.

Neighbors pitched in to help the Pearsons move out furniture but were only able to get the kitchen cleared and a piano. The rest of the household equipment and clothing was either destroyed or badly damaged.

The fire, which was more smoke than flames, was slow burning and gave the firefighters a good chance to get it out, although they were hindered for a time by the amount of heavy smoke.

The Pearsons stayed at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Cooney last night and it is expected they will be moving into another home soon.

Bridge Will Be Closed All Day On Thursday

TRENTON — The town bridge which is now under repairs will close down completely tomorrow (Thursday) from 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. it was announced today by town engineer Eric Aldersey.

Mr. Aldersey explained this was made necessary to pour the cement on about one - third of the deck and a short period to set it. If everything works out successfully with this pour the balance of the cement will be poured under the same conditions either next Wednesday or Thursday.

The new cement which is being used on the bridge deck is known as "cinent - fondex" and is noted for its ability to be set for 24 hours after it has been poured. It is believed to be the first time it has been used on a large scale in bridge work but cementmen have little doubt of its ability.

Traffic will be re - routed around the 401 during the day and a fire truck will be stationed on the east side of the river during that period in case it is needed.

Seven Delegates Attend Business Women's Parley

TRENTON — The city of Sarnia rolled out the red carpet last weekend to members of the Business and Professional Women's Clubs of Ontario when 264 delegates and observers from all over the province attended the thirteenth annual conference of the B. & P.W. held at Glidwood Inn. Two delegates and five observers, in the persons of Kay Patterson, Fay Jeffery, Anne Johnson, Eva Smith, Verna Nelson, Allee Wilson, Marion Macfie and Mary Ann Mackin represented the Trenton Club.

The Business and Professional Women's Clubs of Ontario number 74 in 1958 with a total membership of 2,439 paid-up members. Of these 74 clubs 66 were represented at the Sarnia conference.

It was with regret that the Trenton members saw the passing of a motion to divide Region Five (which includes Trenton) into two regions, Nos. 5 and 11. The old Region 5 including eleven clubs from Alex to Napanee and as far north as Lindsay had become too extensive for coverage by one provincial adviser.

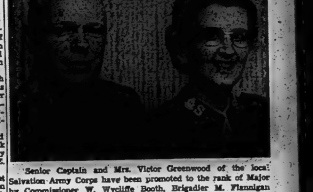
Reports from the various regions were received and adopted, as were the reports of the standing committees. A report which was of much interest to the Trenton members was that of the special committee on air pollution under the chairmanship of Dr. Margaret Bailey.

Reports on the special committee on United Nations Liaison and Fifth Annual United Nations Seminar were presented by the chairman of these committees, Trenton's Anne C. Johnson.

Legion Zone Semi-Annual Meeting Held

TRENTON — The semi-annual meeting of the zone F-2 of the Canadian Legion was held in the Canadian Legion Legion Hall on Oct. 15 with all branches in the Zone represented.

Present from Trenton branch were District Commander Louis Knack, Deputy Zone Commander W. Earl Donaldson and Comrades W. H. Milne, R. Carl Taylor, James Patterson and William O. Luscombe.



The meeting was conducted by Zone F-2 Commander Frank Hills, of Port Hope, assisted by Deputy Zone Commander W. E. Donaldson.

Regional Vice President "Scotty" Broughton, of Brighton and District Commander Knack each spoke briefly and emphasized the importance and necessity of increasing membership in the Legion.

Deputy Commander W. E. Donaldson reported on the Legion convention held in Edmonton, Alberta, last summer and the Branch No. 110 report was presented by Comrade James Patterson.

Comrade Wilson, of Campbellford branch, reported on Zone Sports Officer, defeating W. H. Milne of the Trenton Branch.

Interesting items revealed were that the membership of Zone F-2 is now the largest of any Zone in District "F" and that Trenton branch is now not only the largest branch in the Zone, but in the entire district, which comprises approximately fifty Legion branches.

Senior Captain and Mrs. Victor Greenwood of the local Salvation Army Corps have been promoted to the rank of Major by Commissioner W. Wycliffe Booth, Brigadier M. Flannigan announced today. Major Greenwood succeeded Captain Calvary as the local Corps Commander in September and is quickly becoming acquainted and appreciated in local circles.

The Major entered the Salvation Army work from St. Thomas, Ontario, in 1939 and has seen service in a number of Ontario centres including Trenton, where he was stationed in 1947. Mrs. Major Greenwood's home was in St. Thomas, Ontario, before becoming an officer in the Army in 1945. Both the Major and his wife are anticipating a happy and useful term in Belleville and Community.

DEMOCRATS AT A CROSSROAD?

On Nov. 4 U.S. voters will decide who will control the House of Representatives and the Senate for the remainder of President Eisenhower's second term.

However, because of the manner in which the U.S. constitution vests executive power in the president, and because both Republicans and Democrats are frequently split in voting in both the House of Representatives and the Senate on specific issues, the elections this year will attain much of this significance by reason of their possible indication of the results at the next presidential election, in 1960.

A two-year interval may, of course, bring altered conditions which will be reflected at the polls in 1960.

Possibility of a sweeping change in the alignment of the voters is created by a surprising statement by Paul M. Baker, national chairman of the Democratic party. He has virtually invited Democrats who do not agree with the party's civil rights program to leave the party.

Unless this attitude is vigorously repudiated by the party's leadership during the next two years, this could be the beginning of a political upheaval which could not help but harm the Democrats' chances of electing their candidate as president in 1960, although the long-term effect might be to give the party a cohesion and a solidarity which it has lacked in the past, even at the height of its power during the Roosevelt era.

In one sense, the political divisions in the United States have been akin to those which existed in Canada in the pre-Diefenbaker days. Here the Liberals were able to count on a solid Quebec vote, while the U.S. was able to count on a solid South. The Democrats' strength was firmly founded in the Solid South. In Canada, Diefenbaker has changed all that. In the U.S. Dwight D. Eisenhower's personal prestige and popularity cracked the Solid South but did not shatter it.

Indeed, if the Democrats wished to play the role of demagogues, their school integration issue could be used as the cause which would repair all cracks and make the south more solidly Democratic than ever. To do this, however, the Democrats would have to risk creating a Solid North for the Republicans.

The truth is that the Democratic party has a split personality. In the conservative south it has been solid, while in the north its strength has been among the liberal, rather than the conservative, elements. It was inevitable that some day there would have to be a showdown, and the civil rights issue now appears to have reached such a white heat pitch that the party can no longer manage to carry on both sides of the fence.

Truth to tell, we have misgivings about the devotion to civil rights of a great many of those who normally support the Democratic cause i.: the cities of the north. Racial riots in Chicago, Detroit and other places suggest that there is a great deal of racial prejudice among the masses in these urban centres. But the Democratic leadership in the north, whether it comes from intellectuals like Adlai Stevenson or from labor union chieftains, is solidly behind civil rights legislation and Paul M. Butler apparently believes that the time has come for the party to make a choice.

It ought to be added that, if the Republicans gain the support of segregationists in the South, many of their northern leaders will find their new harness mates as unwelcome as would Stevenson.

Any political party, though, is an amalgamation of groups with differing viewpoints. In the final analysis, if ever the segregation issue is settled, the predominantly conservative south may find itself more at ease in an alliance with the conservative Republicanism of the north than it would as a wing of a Democratic party which, at this time, appears destined to become the nearest approach that the U.S. can offer to a left-wing party.

WHITHER THOU GOEST --

Arthur Walker is home again in England.

He and his wife were reunited after a separation of forty years. Arthur is now 74. His wife, Maude, is 80. She was waiting for him when he returned from Australia.

He had gone there because of ill health. Mrs. Walker was supposed to join him "but I couldn't bring myself to leave London, where I was born and raised."

"What kept the marriage alive over all the years?" asked an Associated Press reporter.

"We believed in our marriage vows," said Mrs. Walker. "We have always been in love."

It seems obvious to us that the marriage was as alive as the love was strong.

OUT OF BUSINESS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

They say he is an epicure
And wants the best to eat.
They say he's fussy as can be
About his daily meat.
But the juiciest of beefsteaks
Doesn't tempt him as of yore;
He is just as hard as leather,
For today his throat is sore.

He is very fond of sirloin,
And delicious a nice lamb chop;
And when spaghetti's on the bill
He's quick to seldom stop
Until he's eaten all there is,
But such things tempt no more;
He cannot bear to eat them now
Because his throat is sore.

Bring him the rarest cut of beef,
The finest slice of pie,
A dish of stewed tomatoes
And he'll have to pass them by.
He's living now on mush and milk,
The stuff he cursed before.
He's stunning all the joys of life
Because his throat is sore.

HISTORIC BELLEVILLE

(Article fifty-two contributed by members of the Hastings County Historical Society.)

MOUNDS, MOODIE, AND MIKEL

Susanna Moodie, Dunbar Moodie, William Canniff, and Canniff Haight were four of the 19th century authors that helped to make Belleville a literary centre.

But they were not alone: this period of time cannot be completed without at least a brief mention of certain other writers.

At the memorable meeting of the Canadian Parliament at Quebec in 1864 (when the plan of Confederation was adopted), the Honourable Lewis Wallbridge of Belleville was the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, which body corresponded to our House of Commons. His address was printed.

His Canadian, Thomas Campbell Wallbridge, took an active interest in archaeology and ethnology, and his "Some Ancient Mounds Upon the Shores of the Bay of Quinte" was published in the Canadian Journal of 1860, and the Hastings Historical Society is currently endeavoring to locate a copy of this valuable work.

The names of two journalists might also be mentioned as belonging to this literary period. They were Reverend John Gillespie and Mackenzie Bowell, both were newspaper-men in Belleville, and often came in collision with each other as writers for papers having different political views. Then too, Mackenzie Bowell (later Sir Mackenzie Bowell) was a man of considerable literary talent. He moved the expulsion of Papineau from the Canadian Parliament after that resident of the North-West had been elected by the residents at Red River in spite of his having led an insurrection against Canada when that country took over his homeland in 1869.

The 20th century has witnessed the continuation of the literary tradition begun a century ago. Notable among recent authors have been Dr. W. C. Mikel, author of the "City of Belleville History." The gratitude of this and future generations should go to W. C. Mikel who has gathered so much material pertaining to the Belleville area. His book will long remain a valuable reference work for citizens desirous of knowing of this city's storied past.

Spot Hot Box As Car Passes

Detroit Free Press

The "Hot Box", major cause of derailments and a railroad term that's a part of the common language, is going electronic like so many things.

The first electronic hot-box detector to be installed in Michigan will be built in Ann Arbor within two months, New York Central Railroad announced.

The detector, resembling a box-car, would be set along a main track and pointed at the axles of moving cars. It records the axle or journal bearing pictures, regardless of the speed of the train.

When a hot box (caused by lubrication failure) is detected, a warning, the detector flashes a warning which tells the engineer to stop for the record-ing. Then the detector records tail on what car the hot box is.

N.Y.C. and Chesapeake and Ohio, both are installing the detectors as fast as they can get them.

Bachelors Go Crazy

New York Times

Single men will do well to ponder the statistical review issued not long ago by the office of the Registrar General for England and Wales in which it was reported that bachelors are more susceptible to mental illness than married men. It is too bad the Registrar General's office did not offer an extended explanation of its findings that might have been helpful to bachelors debating whether or not to venture into matrimony. Meanwhile, the helped bachelor bands to agonize how fortunate, conversely, they are (statistically speaking, at least).

In a way, that report is surprising. It is abundantly apparent that bachelors are free of many of the ills from the stresses with which husbands have to cope. Those of the latter who are the bachelor is aloof from innumerable small irritations. Such moments of doubt and pressures which beset about the married state. A bache-lor can, for example, rise when he pleases — in time to get to his office to work. He can without needing to explain why he is getting up an hour earlier or later (if he prefers to sleep a bit).

The bachelor may choose what he wants for his breakfast. If, this morning, he wants orange juice, a lemb chop, a dozen olives and five cups of coffee, he is free to have just that. He may make his own breakfast or eat it at a restaurant on the way to work. In preparing beper, if it be delivered to his door, is not observed by those or those other persons before it comes into his hands. He is not asked, as he prepares for the bouse, for small sums for the children's school luncheons, for large sums in behalf of some domestic project of which he had not been previously advised and for which he not prepared.

If it is raining the bachelor may decide unassisted whether or not it is wise to wear overshoes. If it is cloudy he has no one with whom to argue about whether or not to carry an umbrella, just in case. At darners and button sewers-on.

luncthime he does not need to study a menu with an eye to avoiding cream and vegetables he has reason to feel he may face again later. At dinnertime, he may, indeed, have lunch with a member of the opposite sex although nothing whether or not he has been seen by someone who may take an odd sort of pleasure in reporting that casual encounter and making it appear sinister.

The day's work done; the bachelor has his choice of number of excellent restaurants at which the cost of washing the dishes is included in the cost of the meal. He may go to the theatre, or to a motion picture, without the complication of planning such an excursion weeks ahead. Or he may return to his apartment and, if he is a writer letters — or to sleep — with no interruption from young people who do not understand what quadratic equations are or what "Hamlet" is about. He may entertain a few friends in for an evening without having to tell their wives to bring along a sack of fresh fish as their contribution to their ability to hit his ash trays with their cigar, cigaret or pipe ashes.

He may go to a baseball game with his cronies without feeling guilty about leaving a wife at home with a stack of dishes and a nursery populated by squalling children. He may, if he chooses, take a week end the block — or for several miles — by himself to think about need not explain why he wants to. He can bring home a foolish purchase without elaborate telling him that it is foolish.

The life of the bachelor, it seems can thus be a very even-tempered one. And perhaps there is a home life more conducive to peace and stress to keep them on an even keel. There is one adversity, upon a certain amount of conflict, a clashing of wills, personal and domestic crises and minor irritants, then husbands should indeed be less susceptible to mental illnesses than bachelors. It is safe to say, however, that even the Registrar General's report offered quite opposite conclusions, the institution of matrimony would survive. Marriage is secure so long as bachelors remain such. Some sort of

By GREGORY CLARK

On the one hand, as my Old Man used to say, there is time. And on the other hand, money. The chemical you use to convert time into money is a thing called a work.

Up around Sault Ste. Marie, if you have a little time on your hands, you can go to the local employment office and obtain a permit to go into the crown lands and stake yourself a hollywood job. It's chemistry, like. Her Majesty is always willing to let you convert a little time into money.

Well, sir, this Thessalon man got his permit, signed all the proper papers, armed himself with all the pamphlets and regulations as to how to behave in the bush, and was given a precise map location on where he could cut 500 many cords of pulpwood: spruce, balsam and poplar.

After three days' cutting, he had two cords of spruce and balsam, all neat and even feet long, and three cords of poplar. And he piled them tidy as a soldier on the bank of a little creek. And then he went out for three day's rest.

When he got back, there was the spruce and balsam. But all the poplar was gone, every last stick of it. In the mud, he could see signs which indicated that it's creek had been employed as the means of larceny.

Down the creek a quarter of a mile he found a beaver lodge, and his three cords of poplar firmly wedged into the structure for the winter rations.

The beaver don't qualify for per-

Mr. Eric Deacon, Hastings County Clerk, was the guest speaker at the weekly luncheon meeting of the directors of the Chamber of Commerce.

Mayor Jamieson Bone has received word that at a recent meeting of the Ontario Fire Casualty Insurance Agents' Association he was elected First Vice President of the Association.

A lightning bolt which shattered a section of masonry on the upper part of the city hall tower during a severe electrical storm this fall also gave the city hall clock a severe case of the jitters. But the clock is gradually getting back to normal, it is reported by Mr. Ellis Bowerman, keeper of the clock. Many complaints were received from citizens who said that they have been unable to keep their clocks and watches in line with the official city time. The veneration for the clock was found to be in a very dirty condition. It had not been cleaned since it was put in place. Mr. Bowerman says that the city council should remember the clock now and then and appropriate enough to have it cleaned right, then it would operate satisfactorily.

Mr. Noonman recalled that in 1890 he got six cents per pound for cheese and thought he was doing well. Mr. McVeigh stated that in 1907 cheese sold on the Perth Board at nine cents per pound. The price of the Perth Board on Friday last was 24 8/16 cents per pound.

Strength for The Day

By DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

TRUE TOLERANCE

It was said of Sir Thomas Browne, the great English physician of the 17th century, that he was a church of variety without offering up a prayer that the minister, priest or bishop would conform or would be blessed and made fruitful in his work.

The 17th century is in the rather distant past, but what we call tolerance today is the thing that Sir Thomas Browne had. He believed that every religion in the world has some good in it. This did not mean that he was a universalist or one as regarded his own religion. He had a very definite theology which he confidently commended to others but, and presumably he would other than his magnificent spirit,

To Your Good Health

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

WHAT TO DO IF YOU HAVE HARDENING OF THE ARTERIES

Picking up from yesterday's discussion, what should we do when hardening of the arteries has begun to bother our legs?

Yesterday J. P. K. wanted to know whether exercise was all right. Yes, it is. But don't exercise to the limit of your reduced endurance. When you get cramps while walking, the cramps are Nature's signal that you have overtaxed your available blood supply. So try to stop a little bit short of the cramp stage. By watching yourself, and learning to know your limitations, you can tell when you've walked long enough. Then stop and rest. You will presently build up enough reserves to go on.

One excellent exercise is called Buergers Exercise. It consists of lying on your back and raising and lowering first one leg and then the other, rhythmically, for a few minutes. This helps the flow of blood, both to the legs and feet. The muscle-toning helps in walking.

Anyway, the exercise, done a number of times per day — but it could be more depending on how you feel) can be the difference between a good night's sleep, and lying awake with cramps, cold feet, numb nerves.

(In cold weather there's nothing to be said against bed socks, and a lot to be said for them.)

There are standing exercises, rhythmic constrictors, which can be applied to the thighs, to encourage the circulation. The mechanical means instead of the physical exercise of Buergers Exercise.

As to baths, which J.P.K. asked about, warm ones are both pleasant and useful, as are hot water bags and electric pads. Be aware of excessive heat of water in a bath, and beware a too standing close to a radiator. The sense of feeling is reduced in the legs, very often, and it is quite easy to suffer a real burn before you are aware of it. So stay well away from really hot water or heaters.

AVOID TIGHT SHOES

Avoid pressures that can further reduce the circulation. Tight shoes, tight garters that impede circulation. They may have already reduced what your circulation was normal, but now, with the circulation failing, enfeebled, they make a difference and not in your favor.

Smoking? Nicotine caused spasm of the arteries — squeezing them down smaller, and thus, to an appreciable degree, reducing circulation. True, the hardened arteries may not respond to the nicotine — but as I said yesterday, not all arteries or smaller blood vessels are affected to the same degree. Some will still be resilient, and thus likely to react to tobacco by constriction. Cigaret or stinking tobacco is often helpful.

I know of no effects in this regard from drinking coffee. Alcohol might conceivably help a little. Some drugs do, but dilating the arteries which are capable of reacting, are used to good effect. Quinine, benadryl and some others, taken at supper or bedtime in small doses, are generally helpful.

Finally, if a particular closed-off point in an artery can be found, it is sometimes possible to open the hardened section with an artery graft. A fairly frequent operation, but one which can find such places. (This applies chiefly to larger blood vessels above the knee, and since it is a technical matter, confer with your doctor.)

Diet has little if any effect on the course of hardening that has developed. What effect it has beforehand, is a matter now under study and debate, but for practical purposes, if your arteries have hardened, just rely on a normal balanced diet, and don't waste time and worry that some faddish diet will help.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have been taking my tablets at work but am told this leads soon to hardening of the arteries. I've read a lot on that statement, and would appreciate your opinion. — Mrs. F. S.

No, that doesn't cause hardening, although in some instances when more or less standard medication is taken it may have to be limited.

Ship Funnels May Vanish

Hamilton Spectator

When the Queen of The Netherlands a few weeks ago presided at the launching of the 37,000-ton transatlantic passenger liner Nieuw Amsterdam she presided, in fact, over a scene that may be new to ocean eyes. For the remarkable thing about the new steamship she sent down the ways was the fact that it was to be a steamship without a funnel. Instead of the towering and often gaily-painted smokestack that has graced ships since the dawn of the age of steam, the Rotterdam carries, well amidships, a slim white mast stacks that appear to be nothing more than decoration.

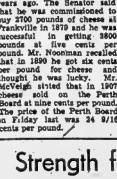
Elimination of the funnel permits more efficient use of the boat deck, gives room for extra swimming pools, tennis courts and the like, and gives the liner a streamlined appearance that suggests of grace and speed. Undoubtedly the new design has its merits. But for many thousands everywhere it will spell the same little dirge of regret so many of us have felt in watching the Diamond and Far Eastern trade, to satisfy an Oriental superstition the only safe and sound ship was one with many funnels!

The funnel may soon vanish altogether from the seas. Its passing may inspire regret, but if, as the owners of the Rotterdam suggest, such changes mean greater efficiency and cheaper ocean travel, the sorrow may be short-lived.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

TRAVEL PLEASANTLY — AND WITH A SMILE



I often stand on a street corner and watch the people go by. I look into their faces and wonder what each individual is thinking. Sometimes I think I note a person with a smile and who seems to be bubbling over with fun intrigued. What makes people smile, anyway?

People smile usually on their faces are usually the healthy people. They have their inner worrying about their aches or pains or their troubles, which are usually the result of worrying.

I like to travel on streets that show so many happy faces. Their influence is so subtle and engaging, just arrange to have one's man or woman walk down t h e street with you and watch the people traffic on Fifth Avenue, in N e w York City, with a broad smile upon his or her face and you will note oddness, of people turning around to see what happened to genuinely happy person is a rare occurrence! I wonder why it is? I'll tell you why: Travel pleasantly — and with a smile. More than one person has got up his rest for the night void of all worry and fresh and inspiring with thoughts that are pleasant and which he makes that smile reflect.

How essential it is that we early become a friend to ourself, or we may think of ourself as our severest enemy, as we are, and as we are capable of becoming, is the only end of life." We should be self-respecting. Each one of us is unique. We ought to think this fact over. We are entitled to be a human being, that no one else is.

There are those with a personality all their own, and we may be apt to excite our curiosity. We treasure great little things that we discover among those we love and admire. We can honestly say that we are kin to mitkind.

Canada Cement First Aid Team Gets Awards, Employees Honored for Fine Safety Record

Employees of Plant No. 3 of the Canada Cement Company at Point Anne and members of their plant first aid team were signally honored yesterday by company officials and also by the St. John Ambulance.

Company officials expressed their appreciation to plant employees for going 2153 days, or approximately five and a half years, without a lost - time accident, while their first aid team received trophies from Lt. Col. I. M. R. Sinclair, provincial commissioner for St. John Ambulance, and from Mr. J. D. Johnston, chairman of the Canada Cement Board of Directors, received permanent possesion of the J. D. Johnston trophy for being tops in first aid work for three years in a row.

In addition to the trophies the first aid team received jackets and club bags from Canada Cement, while in recognition for going five and a half years without a lost - time accident, plant employees, as well as those retiring within the past year, received travelling alarm clocks from the company.

PRESENTATIONS IN CAFETERIA

The presentations were held in the plant cafeteria during the late afternoon following completion of the day shift. Plant superintendent A. O. Drysdale acted as master of ceremonies and introduced guests, including chairman of the board, Mr. J. D. Johnston, Mr. J. M. Breen, president and general manager; Lt.-Col. I. M. R. Sinclair, provincial commissioner of the St. John Ambulance; Mr. V. C. Hamilton, general manager of operations; Mr. T. J. Kennedy, superintendent of plants; Mr. F. Johnston, sales manager for this district; Mr. A. Grant, vice president and director of sales; former plant superintendent Mr. J. H. Legate, and R. B. Hall, labor relations and safety supervisor.

Assisting in the presentation of company safety awards were William James, first aid instructor, F. M. Clarke, E. R. Anderson, L. Horwood and C. Fremming.

Last night following the official presentations a twenty five years banquet was held in the cafeteria for employees with the company for 25 or more years. Also attending the banquet were plant foremen and company officials.

Speaker Says Church Must Be for 'All'

Unitarians must strive to create a contemporary church, a church which is in touch with everyday life. This was the theme of the message given to Unitarians of the Quinte district by Rev. Howard Box, minister of the Unitarian Church of Ottawa. Mr. Box conducted the Unitarian service at last Sunday's meeting of the Quinte Unitarian Fellowship in the Legion Hall.

A contemporary church, according to Mr. Box, must come to grips with the modern conception of "one world". It must have a tradition but at the same time must be able to understand and learn from other traditions. Since mankind is one regardless of race and color the ideal church should be open to all mankind and should be able to accept within its congregation individuals whose beliefs vary widely.

All religion is an attempt to show that man's life has meaning and direction. To do this effectively the contemporary church must attempt to come to terms with science. Finally the church, if it is to be really contemporary, must be creative. It is not sufficient merely to discard those doctrines considered undesirable and carry on. Better ways of doing old things and new ways of doing new things must be found. Mr. Box announced that the next meeting of the Quinte Unitarian Fellowship will centre around a discussion of the topic "Religion in Our Schools".

Belleville General Hospital Chapel Dedicated With Simple Ceremony

Participating in the dedication ceremony for the new chapel at Belleville General Hospital yesterday afternoon were Mrs. W. H. Finkle, president of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary; the Reverend R. W. T. Middleton, who declared the dedication, and Mr. F. Domenico, chairman of the hospital's Board of Governors (left to right.)

With a simple and appropriate ceremony Tuesday afternoon, the new chapel on the ground floor of the new wing at Belleville General Hospital was dedicated for the use of nurses, patients and visitors. A few opening remarks were made by Mrs. W. H. Finkle, president of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary, which group had so tastefully decorated and furnished the chapel and R. W. T. Middleton pronounced the benediction.

The chapel is tastefully furnished with an altar and lectern of a bleached oak finish which blends with the beige colored walls, curtains and wall-to-wall carpet. The chairs are finished in bleached oak wood and green leather upholstery. An electric organ and a plain altar decoration complete the chapel's furnishings.

Conservationists TCA Charges Lesage Has Contest

By [illegible] Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — American aviation consultant says Trans-Canada Air Lines discriminates in its fares and charges less only where the publicly-owned monopoly is challenged by competitors.

"TCA has tended to charge less and to offer better service over competitive routes [illegible] the West-port, Conn., consultant Frederick Kimball told the air transport board Tuesday.

He spoke on behalf of Canadian Pacific Airlines which is seeking [illegible] Vancouver - to - Montreal franchise, breaking the TCA transcontinental monopoly. TCA counsel John G. Edison said he would accept neither the validity of Mr. Kimball's hefty book of tables nor the conclusions drawn from them.

Mr. Kimball said also that it CPA got its franchise, it would drum up a lot of new business, mostly in the tourist-class field bypassed by TCA. This would lend to provide passengers with a saving on fares and give them speedier service with little detriment to TCA.

CPA would get two-thirds of its passenger revenue from new business and only about one-third from passengers diverted from TCA. TCA would lose only about four per cent of its expanding business.

"Passenger traffic which CPA might divert from TCA in 1959 would be equivalent to slightly more than four per cent of the amount which TCA might otherwise expect to carry in that year," he said.

Mr. Kimball's other main points:

1. TCA had not attracted its "fair share" of transcontinental trans-border passenger traffic.

2. Its huge business — about 1,000,000,000 passenger miles a year—was sufficient to convince him TCA was ready for competition.

3. Canada's need for speedy transportation was too great to be shouldered solely by a monopoly, "however benevolent."

ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. William Belch of R. R. 6, Belleville, quietly celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary on October 10th.

Their family, also friends and relatives, gathered at the home to help mark the occasion.

Mr. and Mrs. Belch received a number of lovely gifts, also flowers and cards.

King George H-S Assoc. Elects Officers

The first meeting of King George Home and School Association was held recently in the school auditorium.

The meeting was opened by president Mrs. Lois Gill, who asked the chairman of the nominating committee, Mrs. Ruth Garfepy, to introduce the new executive as follows: president — Mrs. Phyllis Lane; vice-presidents — Mrs. Nan Scott, Mrs. Georgina Hall; treasurer — Mrs. Leslie Price; secretary — Mrs. Violet Densmore; executive members: — Mrs. Betty Whiting, Mrs. Michael Dowbyjuz, Mrs. Mary Malcolm; membership convener — Mrs. Sanford; social convener — Mrs. Muriel Wood.

The installation of the executive was carried out by the past president Mrs. Lois Gill.

Mrs. Phyllis Lane, the new president, took over the meeting and introduced the new principal, John Bacon B.A.

Mr. Bacon spoke to King George School with fine credentials. He received his B.A. from the University of Toronto; is married and has two small children.

Mr. Bacon then introduced the teaching staff and the expectant mothers were introduced to the parents.

Miss Hanes had some children present to do folk dances and all this was much enjoyed.

Refreshments were served by the new executive.

Wedding

GEHAN — KEHOE

TWEED — Yellow dahlias and fern adorned the altar of St. Carthagh's Church, Tweed for the recent wedding of Marion Lois, daughter of Mrs. Charles Kehoe of Actinolite and the late Mr. Kehoe, to Petty Officer Donald John "Bud" Gehan, R.C.N. son of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Gehan, Tweed, Ontario. The Reverend P. J. Meeply performed the ceremony.

The Rev. Sister Mary Carmel Theresa presided at the organ, and accompanied Mr. Ronald Cassidy, and the Rev. Leonard Hudswell who were heard in a duet.

Given in marriage by her grandfather, Mr. Levi Laton, the young bride was dressed in traditional white, in waltz-length brocaded satin. A back shoulder bow draped into a short train, and the long tight sleeves ended in lily-points.

The softly gathered bodice, featured a boat neckline, while the full skirt was accentuated by the tightly-fitted waistline. Her fingertip veil of tulle illusion fell from a headdress of seed pearls and sequins, and she carried a white prayer book centred in her bouquet of American Beauty roses and fern.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Cecil Morrow, of Tweed, was in ice blue nylon, designed with scoop neckline, and back panels which dipped to the hemline of the waltz-length bouffant skirt. Her headdress was a feathered bandeau in matching shade, and she carried a nosegay of pink and white baby 'mums centred with pink roses.

Mr. Alexis Gehan was his brother's groomsman, and ushers were the bride's brother, Mr. Francis Kehoe, and Mr. Cecil Morrow.

For the wedding—breakfast at Bramley's lodge, Kanata Beach, Tweed, the bride's mother chose a navy suit with white accessories and pink rose corsage. She was assisted in receiving by the bridegroom's mother, gowned in dusky-rose lace and crepe with corsage of pink roses.

In the evening a reception was held in Actinolite Hall.

For the wedding trip to Western Ontario, the bride donned a beige navy blue with matching gloves and dusky-rose shaded hat, with black accessories and corsage of flowers.

For the wedding trip to Lake Placid; Plattsburg; New Hampshire; Vermont and Montreal, the bride chose a black suit with black and white accessories, and corsage of red roses. Upon leaving, the bride gave her wedding bouquet to the bridegroom's sister, Miss Jennie Rogers.

Mr. and Mrs. Quinsey are residing in Belleville, at 20 Southview Crescent.

Guests attended from Belleville; Gananoque; Clayton, N.Y.; Cape Vincent, N.Y.; Rochester; Watertown and Montreal.

The bride was entertained previous to her marriage, at several showers and presentations; one at the home of Mrs. A. J. Bitlens with Mrs. Ann Buchanan as co-hostess; at a shower given by the classmates of the 1955 graduating class of Belleville General Hospital, held at the home of Mrs. Doreen Frederick, Coleman Street, Belleville; also at the home of Miss Margaret Kilpatrick with Miss M. Kilpatrick and Miss Elinor Boyce as co-hostesses. This was likewise tendered by the bride's fellow employees of B.G.H. when she was presented with a mantel clock, convened by the head nurses and instructors; at a presentation by the staff of the Big A Company when the bride was presented with a bridge set and also of an occasional chair and cheque by the manager of the Big A Company, Mr. D. E. Bell; and at "welcome home" party tendered by the bride's neighbors, who presented her and her bridegroom with an aluminum ice bucket.

QUINCEY — NICKEL

Multi-colored chrysanthemums and gladioli adorned the sanctuary in Christ Church, Belleville, for a recent, pretty autumn wedding when Eva Grace Nickle, of Belleville, daughter of Mrs. William James Nickle and the late Mr. Nickle, became the bride of Harold Frederick Quinsey, of Belleville, son of Mrs. Harold Quinsey and the late Mr. Quinsey.

The Rev. Everett P. Smith, assistant rector of the church, officiated.

The wedding music was provided by the church organist, Mr. John Croyden Withers, who accompanied the choir of six voices in their rendition of "O Perfect Love."

Given in marriage by her eldest brother, Mr. William Henry Nickle, the bride was lovely in her bridal gown of white organdy in full length featuring a molded bodice having a rounded neckline and long, lily-pointed sleeves. The neckline was outlined with appliqued flowers of lace accented by iridescent sequins and centered by seed pearls while the full flowing skirt was enhanced by side panlers of matching lace cascading toward the back. She wore a seed pearl headdress and fingertip veil of tulle illusion, and carried a cascade bouquet of red roses and white Shasta daisies with trailing ivy. A single strand of cultured pearls, the gift of her bridegroom, completed her ensemble.

Mrs. Ann Buchanan of Belleville matron of honor was her only attendant, attractively gowned in bronze taffeta in three-quarter length, with matching hat, gloves and shoes and carrying a nosegay of yellow chrysanthemums.

Mr. Alec D. Pierson, of Belleville, was groomsman, while Mr. Bruce D. Nickle, and Mr. Henry W. Nickle both of Belleville, brothers of the bride, ushered the guests.

A family reception was held at the home of the bride's brother, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Nickle, on Woodlawn Avenue, Belleville, where the bride's table was prettily appointed with white damask, and centred with a three-tier Belleville wedding cake topped by a single red rose, and flanked by baskets of roses. The lovely cake was made by the bride's mother, who received the guests wearing navy lace and matching duster, with mauve hat and gloves and corsage of white gardenias. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who was gowned also in suit with blue accessories.

Guests out-of-town at the wedding were from Toronto; Hamilton; Oshawa; Kingston; Trenton; Hull; Peterborough and Cobourg.

The young couple will make their home in Halifax, where the bridegroom is stationed at HMCS "Stadacona."

Belleville Weavers' Guild Holds Meeting

The October meeting of the Belleville Weavers' Guild was held Monday evening at the home of Mrs. George Graham, Trent Road.

Mrs. C. Hayes presided.

The first part of the meeting was taken up with the general business discussing the sale and exhibition of work, held by the Arts and Crafts in November.

The speaker a member of the group was Mrs. A. Gilroy, who gave an interesting talk on the weaving course which she attended in Guelph, last summer under the sponsorship of the Ontario Spinners and Weavers' Guild.

In order to attend one must be able to set up a loom. They were divided into four groups, setting up looms on ribbon weave; summer and winter rugs and lace weave. One day was spent on each and then one day was left for them to catch up. No weaving was done at night and they had a rest period at noon.

They were taken on a tour of the buildings and in the evening met in the common room for group discussion and refreshments.

Mrs. Gilroy gave a fine talk on her course.

A social hour brought an interesting evening to a close.

V.O.N. Makes 375 Visits In September

The September meeting of the Belleville Branch of the Victorian Order of Nurses was held Monday evening in the YMCA, 7th president, Mr. H. A. Parker, was in the chair.

The report on the nursing service showed that during September 375 visits were made to 91 patients. Two hundred and 80 visits were nursing cases and 85 visits were health instructive visits to mothers and babies. The cases died and visits for the month were as follow:

Going shopping?

If shopping is crowded into a smaller space of time this month, it may well be because there isn't time for it. On every hand we hear "there has never been such a busy month as October." One woman said, "You would think there wouldn't another month in the year but October!"

Bazaars and teas and turkey dinners are just beginning. We have had the long Thanksgiving weekend. We have had Business Women's Week and a Community Concert. The United Appeal Campaign is under way. The Home and School Area Convention and the Women's Institutes Convention are being held in Belleville this coming weekend. Next Tuesday the National Ballet Company arrives in town in all its splendor. Skating and skating instructors are starting for the Belleville Skating Club. And then there are all the boosters of the home town Allan Cup champions and the hockey games. Christmas is just around the corner. On and on we could go, listing the activities going on and coming during this busy October, 1958.

So how can we find time to do anything? For one thing, the crisp autumn weather gives an extra touch of vitality to things done, more quickly. The abundance of everything, food and other produce, delights the pace.

But we were stopped in our tracks during a rush down Front Street the other day by the sight of some odd feathered woollies in a window. That really is a foretaste of things to come.

The "woollen topsy" does not need to remind us of winter's coming.

GOOD MANNERS

WEDDING GIFT FOR SECOND MARRIAGE?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband and I are to be invited to the small, informal wedding of two very dear friends of ours. The bride-to-be is a widow, and the groom-to-be is a widower, and the first marriage of each took place before we knew either one. I've always understood that one isn't expected to send a wedding present for a second marriage. But would this idea apply to this wedding? Helena

Not necessarily. Since you and your husband did not know either this bride-to-be or groom-to-be at the time of their first marriage, a wedding present would be proper, though not a "must."

WHEN GODMOTHER GIVES CHILD'S NAME TO CLERGYMAN .

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am to be the godmother, the only godmother, for the child of my very dear and close friends. I've been told that at the christening, I'm the one who gives the baby's name to the clergyman who is to perform the ceremony. Please tell me: Do I give the full name? — Godmother-to-be

No. Say only the child's given names . . . his or her first name and middle name; if say . . . but not the surname.

DON'T SEND UNDERTAKER'S PRINTED ACKNOWLEDGMENT CARDS"

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please settle a vehement argument we are having about using those printed "acknowledgment cards" that many undertakers supply to be sent out by the family? "A" insists it is incorrect to use these impersonal cards to thank friends for their so-kind personal thoughtfulness. Instead of using these impersonal cards, "A" says that for each gesture of thoughtfulness to the bereaved family, a handwritten note of thanks should be written. On the other hand, "B" maintains that it is entirely correct to use these printed acknowledgment cards. Who is right about this? — A"ld B

"A" is right, absolutely right. These printed "acknowledgment cards" should not be used instead of handwritten notes. It isn't good manners or good thought or good sense to send these bleakly-impersonal printed cards to thank someone for a kind personal gesture: for flowers, for letters and cards and other messages of sympathy and understanding friendliness. It's certainly not a heart-warming experience

Colorful Blouse

By TRACY ADRIAN

If you are one of those who favor blouse and skirt separates for business, school or country wear, you'll take interest in this top.

It is crisply tailored in a shadow plaid of gay colors. The blouse has extra long shirttails for good tuck-in anchorage, smooth fold-up sleeves and a new tapered-notch open collar.

To receive this impersonal printed piece of paper to "thank" us when we have tried to express our thought in a personal way.

The thank-you note may be brief . . . just a sentence or two . . . and it need not be promptly written. The note should definitely mention the thoughtfulness received:

Dear Mrs. Blake,

Thank you so much for your very kind message and for the beautiful roses you sent. Your thoughtfulness was a great comfort to us.

Sincerely,

HER TOAST TO HER BRIDEGROOM-TO-BE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I'm planning to invite my five bridal attendants (maid of honor and four bridesmaids) to luncheon at my house a few days before my wedding. Since my fiance tells me that at his bachelor dinner he is proposing a toast to "the bride," at my luncheon I'd like to propose a toast to "the bridegroom." would this be proper? E.

Proper indeed . . . and a charming gesture!

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a woman's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Barbara A. — I tried to patch things up.

Allen A. — I could have told her she'd make things worse.

Barbara A. — I am caught in the middle of a conflict involving my husband and his brother and sister-in-law.

The sister-in-law, Margaret, has done many things to separate the two brothers who were very close as children. She said things against my husband and me to friends and relatives. She did not invite us to her home, yet complained when she wasn't asked to one of our parties.

The other day my brother-in-law called me and asked me to meet him to discuss ways of patching things up. I met him at a restaurant and he made terrible accusations against me and my husband, saying we did various things to hurt him. These things are all lies and we got into a battle royal. Now my husband accuses me of having made things worse.

Allen A. — I feel that Barbara never should have made an appointment with my brother without consulting me. I could have told her that it would only make matters worse.

I feel that my brother is not a very strong person and he is completely dominated by Margaret, who is a vicious, conniving woman. She has convinced him that we outdid him of a portion of our parents' estate. My brother knows in his heart that I would never do a thing like that and the fact that he could say it makes me feel that a reconciliation is impossible.

I once had hopes that things would somehow straighten themselves out, but since these things were said, I feel we should insist on an apology — which we won't get.

The Council: "Patching up" sessions, unless conducted by the parties immediately concerned often become free-for-all brawls. We agree with Allen that Barbara should not have gotten involved in this controversy.

Allen's hurt feelings on the whole subject are understandable, but we believe his is wrong to insist on an apology or to reconcile himself to lifetime estrangement from his brother. He should make a fight to save at least a portion of his once-happy relationship with his brother.

Misunderstandings concerning family financial affairs are common and if Allen has the right on his side he may very well convince his brother. If he is wrong in say way he would do well, for the sake of his own conscience, to clear the matter up.

The brother may at this time be dominated by a conniving wife, but it is possible that as time goes on he'll begin to assert himself. If he is armed with correct information and knows that he stands on firm ground from the ethical point of view, he'll be able to talk up to his wife.

With a vicious woman in the background, it is doubtful whether happy social relationships between these couples will ever exist. But it is to be hoped that the brothers can free themselves of suspicion and bad feeling toward one another.

NEWEST IS THE 59 METEOR

Canada's exclusive fine car in the low-price field

All-new Meteor is your kind of car. Fresh, trim of line, exclusively Canadian. Completely redesigned and distinctively restyled Meteor is a step up—a car ahead in its field in everything but price.

It runs on regular gas best. Six or V-8, you'll gain on mileage, too. Meteor's new Econ-O-Fuel engine design not only saves you money by the mile, but is also means better performance where you need it most. And with Meteor's full-flow oil filter, you'll only need to change oil every 4,000 miles. Another saving is a new aluminized muffler that lasts twice as long. And Meteor for 59 adds pleasure to savings.

There's almost six inches more legroom . . . 450 inches more viewing area . . . a heater that can't overheat . . . new Econ-O-Matic, the simplest, most economical automatic. Interiors have extra luxuries like individually night-lit controls and a more convenient foot-operated parking brake.

A 59 Meteor is an upward step in every way but price.

It brings you new assurance in safety features that include a deep-dish steering wheel, safety door locks and a wide-contour frame for all-around passenger protection.

There's more that's new, more that's desirable in Canada's exclusive fine car in the low-price field.

See 59's newest, the 59 Meteor, soon. Only then will you know how fine a low-price car can be. Make distinctive Meteor your upward step for 1959!

Certain features illustrated or mentioned are standard on some models, optional at extra cost on others.

Meat Economies With No Sacrifice of Flavor

by Mary Moore

Working on a cost basis without sacrificing any flavor I have made two main meat dishes that I think you will welcome with open arms.

One is Cantonese Chicken with Pineapple and Vegetables and the other is Oriental Beef Stew. Some Asian bug must have been biting me. If so it was to good effect. The chicken cost $1.28 and served six for Sunday's dinner. The beef was 50c and served three for Monday' dinner.

Chinese Girl Waiting to See First Snowfall

EDMONTON (CP) — For the first time Chan Mee Lee is seeing leaves turn to gold and orange, and the young Chinese girl is looking forward to seeing her first snowfall.

Chan Mee Lee, a graduate of the University of Hong Kong, is registered at the University of Alberta for post-graduate work in educational psychology. She is studying on a World University Services scholarship and is living at Athena Hall, the women's residence on campus.

Mee Lee means Little White Flower. Miss Chan chose Evelly for her European name because it sounds closest to Mee Lee.

COLORFUL TOUCHES

Miss Chan's residence room is bright with a colorful, elaborately-embroidered linen Chinese bedspread and a scroll painting of a typical Chinese landscape.

To classes, she wears her traditional Chinese dress with high mandarin collar and slim fitted skirt, slashed at the sides to above the knees.

When she returns to Hong Kong she hopes to work as a teacher. Despite her degrees she probably will teach high school rather than university. Many middle - aged persons there take university courses and they would be unhappy taking lectures from a young woman, she thinks.

Emily misses the all-summer atmosphere of her home but a compensation will be seeing the leaves turn color. At home the family keep goldfish in a pool in their sheltered courtyard. She says goldfish are favorite pets in China.

Women Invade Men's Domain in Woodworking

VANCOUVER (CP) — Women have invaded the sanctuaries domain of the woodworking shop, and they're turning out talented work.

John H. Crossman, woodworking instructor at John Oliver High School, says 30 per cent of those in night-time classes for some time have been women.

Men and women are much alike in their approach to woodworking, he says. Either they like it enough to return year after year, or they drop out after a few months.

CONVENIENT APPROACH

He has found that men whose work is sedentary are often more timid than women about using big power tools for the first time. It may be that women have become accustomed to working with mechanical devices through housework, he says.

Beginners follow specific projects, using hand tools at first and later machine tools. Experienced students can exercise their individuality in the projects they wish to do.

Mrs. Lois Grundy and Miss Sim Sim are typical of students who return for advanced courses. Both are registered nurses. Mrs. Grundy is in her seventh year and Miss Sim in her third.

Miss Sim's first project will be Queen Anne period chair to match a bench she made last year. The fabric on the bench is made by Miss Sim. It will be used also on the Queen Anne chair.

Fatima Jinnah Waits to See Wheel Turn

KARACHI (AP) — A woman known as the conscience of Pakistan is withholding judgment on the revolutionary regime of President Iskander Mirza and Gen. Mohammed Ayub Khan.

"How can I judge distorted waters?" asks Miss Fatima Jinnah.

"We must let them clear so we may see what they mean. Then we see how these men go about returning the country to the people. Let us see what follows their promises of a new democracy."

Miss Jinnah looks like a frail little lady of 65. In reality she is a steel-whip, striking all who let her eyes hurt Pakistan.

If the new regime fails in its pledges, she made it clear to this reporter, Miss Jinnah will certainly speak out. Furthermore, she will probably do so on a nationwide hookup and at the government's own invitation.

Miss Jinnah is Pakistan's "Mother of the Nation," the sole surviving sister of Mohammed Ali Jinnah, founder of this Moslem country.

Six times each year she broadcasts over Radio Pakistan —on Republic Day, Independence Day, two religious holidays, and the birth and death anniversaries of her brother.

She is called the nation's conscience because of her reminders that Pakistan has never lived up to Jinnah's ideals. He died barely a year after independence.

Miss Jinnah wears a white sari which matches the long hair flowing about her thin face. She lives alone, in a stucco house once occupied by the British military commander.

Mrs. Pearl Card, 70, daughter-in-law of the Mormon founder of Cardston in southern Alberta, reads one of her scrap books that bring back memories of blizzards, covered wagons and Indian playmates. She married Joseph Young Card, son of the town's founder, Charles Ora Card. Both now are dead. Cardston remains as the centre of Mormonism in Canada. (CP Photo).

Gentle, Grey-Haired Woman Daughter-in-Law of Founder Of Cardston, Mormon Centre

CARDSTON, Alta. (CP)—Covered wagon trains, blizzards, Indian playmates, 10g homes — all these are memories of a gentle, grey-haired woman who is the daughter-in-law of the founder of this southern Alberta town and centre of Canadian Mormonism.

Mrs. Pearl Card, 79, has several scrap books filled with stories of the pioneer days of Cardston, founded in 1887 by Charles Ora Card as a settlement for American Mormons who were being persecuted in the United States because some of them practised polygamy.

Mrs. Card's husband, Joseph Young Card who died two years ago was born at Logan, Utah, and was in the original wagon train that settled here more than 70 years ago.

EARLY LEADER

His father, son-in-law of Brigham Young who succeeded Joseph Smith as prophet and president of the Mormons, died in Logan in 1906 after returning there in ill-health.

Mrs. Card was a graduate nurse at Farmington, Utah, where she met Joseph. They were married at Salt Lake City which had been named for her father-in-law.

She has seen great changes. Today, Cardston has become the most widely-known Mormon centre in Canada and its many modern buildings include the $1,000,000 granite temple which was completed in 1923. Another building is the Latter-Day Saints Social Centre.

When Mrs. Card came to Cardston she was frightened of the many Indians in the area. The Blood Indian Reserve, one of the largest in Canada, borders the town on the north.

"My father was an early settler in Arizona where Indians were savage and fear of them was drummed into me, Mrs. Card said in an interview. "I had to overcome that."

INDIAN FRIENDS

Generally there was peace and friendship between whites and Indians here. A favorite friend was Panther Bone who at the age of 15 had worked in Charles garden. The early pioneers smoked the pipe of peace with Indians and we had no trouble," she said.

She remembers stories of the days when hundreds of Mormon settlers travelled across the western plains in covered wagons, bucking the blizzards and rainstorms of the 1890s.

In the early days, floods were a menace. They were responsible for wiping out several buildings in 1902, a steel bridge in 1920 and another bridge over the Lee's Creek in 1904.

In 1913 Cardston was "still in a pioneering state." The Cards moved into a three - room log house. The home still stands on the main street of Cardston. The Cards later moved into a 18-room house with their three daughters and five sons.

Mrs. Card remembers one other incident she says she'll never forget. That was a drive through Cardston in one of the first cars in town. "We travelled about 30 miles an hour," she says, "and it was hair-raising."

Russian People Most Patient Says Visitor

EDMONTON (CP)—The Russian people have incredible patience and "a gift for suffering," says a diplomat's wife who spent 24 years in Russia.

Mrs. D. J. von Ballmoos, wife of the Netherlands ambassador, visited Edmonton with her husband six months after he was posted to Ottawa from the U.S.S.R.

Russian housewives, she said in an interview, stand in queues for food for hours without complaint. Clothing she found drab and expensive.

While the quality of clothing improved noticeably during Mrs. von Ballmoos's stay, she said a pair of fashionable shoes comparable to those worn in the west will cost up to six weeks' salary. Slingers and ballerinas, highly paid in the Soviet Union, are among the fortunate who can wear such shoes.

Outlying towns were without sewage or electricity systems, while even in the larger cities living conditions were primitive by western standards.

New apartment buildings now under construction allocate two, three or even four rooms to a family, she said. But these still are a luxury and are reserved for important persons.

Mrs. von Ballmoos said friendship between the Russian people and members of the diplomatic corps is frowned upon. During her stay in Moscow she was never inside a Russian home.

Despite this she found Russians to be "extremely nice." They were friendly and hospitable.

First Time in U.K. History Women Seated With Lords

By FRASER WIGHTON

LONDON (Reuters) — For the first time in British history, women this week will take their place in the House of Lords with the right to sit and vote on an equal footing with men.

Four women are among 14 "life" peers recently created by Queen Elizabeth for the upper house, on the government's recommendation, as an aspect of constitutional reform.

There was bitter resentment of their invasion of the second chamber—one of the few remaining male strongholds of the nation—from some of the 850 nobles who sit by hereditary right as peers of the United Kingdom.

SWORN IN TOMORROW

The four life peeresses and the 10 life peers will attend special swearing-in sessions Tuesday and Wednesday so they can be present at the state opening of parliament's new session a week later.

All four women are well-known public figures. The youngest, Dame Katharine Elliot, 55, is the widow of a Conservative elder statesman. She was also chairman of the Conservative party's local organizations.

The oldest, the dowager Marchioness of Reading, 64, organized 1,250,000 housewives into a volunteer labor force in the Second World War.

The others are Mrs. Barbara Wootton, 60, economist and only socialist of the four, an intellectual who at 26 was head of a workers college; and Baroness Ravensdale, 63, once a member of the British suffragette group that won the vote for women.

COMMONS OPENS THURSDAY

The House of Commons reopens Thursday after three months' summer vacation for what is expected to be the last sitting before a spring general election. The Commons will meet only to formally close the current session in preparation for the subsequent state opening by Queen Elizabeth.

Politicians expect the speech from the throne to foreshadow various government plans which would be the forefront of a Conservative election campaign. Government supporters believe an election likely will come soon after the annual budget in April.

Treasury chief Derick Heathcoat Amory announced last week that in the first half of 1958, Britain, helped by falling import prices, earned an all-time record current surplus of £234,000,000 ($655,200,000) in its trade balance with the rest of the world. Conservatives claim the country's improved economy is the direct result of government moves last year—unpopular at the time—to stop inflation.

HELP LIBRARIES

TORONTO (CP) — Mothers of youngsters in suburban Scarborough schools are staffing libraries in the township's 63 public schools.

Miss H. Tummon Hostess for WMS Meeting

BETHEL - ZION — The October meeting of Bethel-Zion WMS was held at the home of Miss Helen Tummon with an attendance of 14 members. Mrs. Clarence Ketcheson presided and opened the meeting.

The thankoffering was then received and dedicated by Mrs. Middleton. The devotional period was under the direction of Mrs. Gordon Ray, who opened with hymn 389 followed by prayer. Mrs. Morden Brough gave the Scripture. Mrs. Ray then gave a reading followed by Thanksgiving readings by Mrs. Ralph Sills and Mrs. Harry Ketchebson. Mrs. Cecil Ketcheson then gave "Prayer of Guidance."

Mrs. Harry Ketcheson was in charge of the remainder of the program and gave a reading "Let Me Think and Let Me Pray." A reading, "Stewardship of Time" was given by Mrs. Clifford Ketcheson followed by a reading by Mrs. Allen Lott. The meeting closed with all members repeating "A General Thanksgiving."

A social half hour followed.

WOMN CLAWED

BOMBAY (AP) — The Indian Army is helping comb the Karara Valley 50 miles from here for a mysterious creature that clawed 11 women to death in 10 days. One report said the animal singled out the only woman among six persons asleep on a veranda.

Coat Trends

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

The away - from - the - body look is the big news about this fall coat. Even a cursory glance at the new fashions makes us certain that coat business is going to be big. The luscious colloring and exquisite fabrics, apart from the latest lines, are real temptations. This coat of red and black tweed sports a high-placed collar above the single-breasted closing. High - placed pockets are set above the seams that shape the front ever so little. All in all, the coat emerges a very

Working-Wife Trend Spreads Down in Burma

OTTAWA (CP)—Although the working-wife trend is spreading to Burma, Daw Mya Win still wonders how North American women can combine careers, husbands, babies and homes.

The wife of Burma's first ambassador to Canada, Thado Mh Thry Sithu U Win told a reporter she has noticed that "the woman is so independent" in marriages in this continent.

"In eastern culture women are more respectful," she said. But a Burmese marriage is definitely a partnership—husband and wife are joint owners of all property acquired during their marriage.

DUAL ROLE..

The Wins were making their first official visit to Ottawa. They live in Washington, since Mr. Win has the dual role of ambassador to both the United States and Canada.

The home in Washington is a "little bit of Burma," said one of the ambassador's secretaries.

Mrs. Win, wearing a native costume—a sheer blouse and a long wrap - around skirt — explained that in Washington she has Burmese servants, pictures, silverware and lacquerware, and Burmese food is served every day.

A room in the Washington embassy also has been set aside as a "shrine room," where a visiting Buddhist priest holds meetings.

YMCA Planning Big Drive for New Members

TORONTO (CP) — The Young Women's Christian Association is planning recruiting drives in Central and Western Canada, the organization's annual report says.

The report, presented to 140 delegates at the YMCA annual meeting Tuesday, said the organization is short of staff and help is needed from across the country to fill personnel posts.

The recruiting drive will be based on a successful pilot project conducted with various church groups in cities in the Atlantic provinces. More than 700 persons interested in working full-time on christian education were found.

The report also said that a special committee is trying to raise $100,000 in the next three years to extend YWCA work and recruit and train personnel.

Mrs. Kyrie Smith, National YWCA president, told the delegates that to attract lively workers the members themselves must make their groups vital and interesting.

"Every Canadian woman has some obligation to contribute something to her community, but she has many fields from which to choose. If we can show her the vitality and importance of our own work we can enrich her life and she can enrich ours."

The conference continues until Friday.

Roslin Couple Mark 50th Anniversary

ROSLIN — Mr. and Mrs. H. Horton celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary recently at their home in Roslin, with only immediate members of the family present.

Mrs. Horton, as a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Reid and lives on the same farm where she was born.

Mr. Horton, was born at West Huntingdon a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester Horton. Both are in their 70's.

Of the union, there are three children; Norman of Bridgenorth, Ontario, Milroy of Tweed and Mrs. Clare Carney (Myrtle) of Roslin. There are 11 grandchildren.

Mr. and Mrs. Horton have been well known residents of the Roslin district for many years.

Woman Climber Says Himalayas Begin Where Others Leave off

EDMONTON (CP)—Mrs. Joyce Dunsheath is one (of the few) housewives who have led a mountain climbing expedition into the Himalayas.

"The Himalayas begin where the other mountains leave off," she said in an interview here. She has also climbed mountains in the Rockies, Alps and Caucasus ranges.

Now compared to the Tibetan giants scaled by herself and three other women in 1956.

Mrs. Dunsheath and Eileen Gregory, a biochemist from Nottingham, England, drove 8,500 miles through Europe, Turkey, Syria, Jordan, Iraq, Iran and Baluchistan to reach the mountains.

CASUAL MEETING

They met the two other members of their expedition casually. They were Hilda Reid, a London nurse who had spent four years in Calgary, and Frances Delaney, a geologist in French Equatorial Africa.

The experiences of the four women are recorded in a book titled Mountains and Memsahibs. The tanned, lively Mrs. Dunsheath had another bit of high adventure last year when she climbed the Russian Caucasus mountains with five Russian climbers.

She had gone to Russia with her husband, Dr. Percy Dunsheath, president of the International Electrotechnical Commission, when she was given permission to join the expedition.

Mrs. Dunsheath described the Russians as keen climbers. Soviet trade unions have built camps at the 8,000-foot levels where young scalers may borrow equipment for vacation hiking.

Her party crossed the Caucasus range into Georgia, where they stayed in the homes of Russian people. Mrs. Dunsheath says they were friendly, hospitable and "contented."

Mrs. Dunsheath is working on a book describing her Russian trip, and also giving lectures.

Raising Living Standards In Undeveloped Countries Seen as Hope for Exports

SEIGNIORY CLUB, Que. (CP) — If the standards of living in underdeveloped countries can be raised there is almost no end to the demand for goods which can be set up, Sir Saville Garner, Upjohn Kingdom high commissioner to Canada, said Tuesday night.

Addressing the closing dinner of the annual meeting of the Canadian Exporters' Association, he threw out a challenge to his exporting audience when he said:

"The African villager, the Indian peasant and the West Indian laborer—who at present make almost no demand on the world's goods—present a stimulating opportunity.

"If we can meet it, we shall not only have achieved a great victory in the battle for men's minds, but we shall also have set up new demands."

Sir Saville addressed an audience which for two days had considered both the wide theories on the practical problems of world trade and a meeting which, in the words of its delegates, had presented a mixed picture of enthusiasm and some cynicism.

In reply to expressed doubts about British concessions announced at the September Commonwealth trade conference, they had heard R. Leslie Brown, assistant deputy minister of trade and commerce, say:

"Britain is sincerely and positively anxious to get rid of trade restrictions. British statements at Montreal were not made lightly."

He suggested that the next year would tell how far Britain would be able to go in removing all restrictions against imports.

This year she had at last broken the post - war two - year cycle of recurring financial crisis and if she could continue this for another 12 months, then full convertibility of sterling might be at hand."

However, it was estimated that to take care of all her liabilities in the sterling area, Britain needed foreign exchange reserves of some $8,000,000,000, rather than the present figure of around $3,000,000,000.

The audience was one, too, from which had been urged by various speakers to seek as many opportunities as possible in the whole trading world.

They were particularly urged to trade more in the Commonwealth and in Latin America.

Huge concrete cribs as big as five-storey buildings, are swung into place to form a wharf in Montreal in preparation for opening of the St. Lawrence seaway. When in position valves in the 4,000-ton cribs are opened, allowing water to flood in and sink it. Then the crib is filled with general fill. Method was originated by Foundation Company which has built more than a mile of wharves for the Montreal Harbor Commission. (CP Photo.)

4,000-Ton Concrete Cribs Used to Construct Dock

MONTREAL (CP) — Concrete "egg-boxes" as big as five-storey buildings are being scuttled in Montreal harbor to form new docks in readiness for the opening of the St. Lawrence seaway.

Using production line methods, engineers are making the 4,000-ton concrete cribs in dry dock, floating them free and towing them like barges into position along the harbor front.

It's a relatively new idea in dock construction.

But the concrete cribs are quickly expanding Canada's largest inland ocean port, filling in the few remaining gaps in the 13-mile line of shipping berths. The job is part of a $57,000,000 project to renovate Montreal harbor for an expected boom in shipping traffic after the seaway is opened next year.

The seaway—a 135-mile channel with four canals and seven locks—will provide an ocean route into the heart of North America, turning the Great Lakes into a new Mediterranean Sea.

More than 100 cribs have been made during the last five years. They are 112 feet long, 46 feet wide and more than 60 feet high. Five of them were taken in tow by tugs and hauled down the St. Lawrence for use in the dock at Trois-Rivieres.

They float because they are hollow. The floor and walls are made of foot-thick reinforced concrete, with the inside divided into cells as large as rooms. Built in a dry dock, they draw about 30 feet of water when completed. "It is something like putting the foundation and basement walls for a five-storey apartment building in the river and then completing the three upper storeys while it floats there," explained H. H. Poulton, job superintendent for the Foundation Company of Canada on the project.

The cribs lie in about 40 feet of water when sunk. Ballast, rocks and crushed stone are dumped inside them to make them sink. Then a roadway is built on top, forming the dock surface.

PICKING GOVERNORS

OTTAWA (CP)—Revenue Minister Nowlan said Tuesday he hopes the membership of the new board of broadcast governors can be announced by the end of this week. Joking with a reporter, the minister said he had about 500 applications for the 15 jobs.

Monty Says Foreign Policy Of U.S. Is Inconsistent

NEW YORK (CP) — Inconsistencies in United States foreign policy have weakened the West's general strategic position and, if continued, could lead to the breakup of the Western Alliance, Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery says in an instalment of his memoirs published Tuesday.

The British war leader's story is being serialized in Life magazine and, in Canada, by Weekend Magazine.

Montgomery writes that the United States must exercise convincing powers of leadership in the free world.

"I often think that the United States' foreign policy is inconsistent. She appears to have one policy in the assembly of the United Nations, and another and different one when her own national interests are involved."

NATO OVERHAUL

Montgomery says the time has come for a thorough overhaul of the concept and organization of NATO, and outlines the need for these changes:

Although a major war is unlikely, limited and cold war activities outside the NATO area are likely to increase. "These must be handled firmly," Montgomery says, "so that they do not become the forerunner of a full-scale war. The major contribution of certain selected nations to NATO defence could well be to produce forces which are organized and equipped for these contests."

The politico-military structure needs "a searching examination." Montgomery says it is top-heavy, expensive and does not work well. Staffs would be ruthlessly pruned and paperwork cut. Furthermore the NATO council is in Paris while its military advisers are in Washington.

There is "no organization for the higher direction of any war in which we might become engaged."

National organizations for producing the forces we need in peace and war are unsound in the case of many continental nations. They are based largely on a system under which large groups of men are called up only in times of emergency. The system is out of date.

TRAINED IN COMPROMISE

Simplicity and decision, two absolute essentials in war, have disappeared from the NATO military organization. "We are producing commanders trained in the art of compromise," Montgomery says.

The high cost of defence is not being seriously tackled, except in the United Kingdom.

In his instalment of his memoirs Montgomery also tells of his efforts late in the battle of Europe to alert the American high command to the military and political importance of capturing the capitals of Germany and the Eastern European countries ahead of the Russians.

"Once over the Rhine I began to discuss future operational plans with Eisenhower. We had several meetings. I had always put Berlin as a priority objective. It was a political centre and if we could beat the Russians to it things would be much easier for us in the post-war years."

IKE OPPOSED

Eisenhower, however, was opposed. A letter to Montgomery on March 31, 1945, ended with the following words:

"You will note that in none of this do I mention Berlin. That place has become, as far as I am concerned, nothing but a geographical location, and I have never been interested in these. My purpose is to destroy the enemy's forces and his powers to resist."

"It was useless for me to pursue the matter further," Montgomery says. "We had so much argument on great issues; anyhow, it was now almost too late."

"The Americans could not understand that it was of little avail to win the war strategically if we lost it politically because of this curious viewpoint we suffered accordingly from VE-Day onwards, and are still suffering."

Many Students Quit School Before Grade 11

HAMILTON (CP)—A Hamilton public school inspector says 28 per cent of the "cream of the crop" dropped out of school before grade 10 in a group of 360 students he surveyed.

Speaking to the Ontario School Trustees Association Tuesday, George Force said the students—all from the same school and attending grades 9, 10 or 11—were divided into three groups.

Of the best, 28 per cent dropped out before the end of grade 10. Fifty-five per cent of the average students quit before completing grade 10. More than 90 per cent of the below - average students quit during or before grade 10.

C. Ritter of Kingston suggested intermediate schools covering grades seven to 10 should be set up which would give students a chance to explore the subjects which would be open to them in senior school.

"I am wondering how well our senior schools are adapted to help the student make the proper choice as to his future education," said Mr. Ritter.

LEAVING POINT

J. C. Webster of Brantford said an intermediate school would provide a "leaving point" for students who leave at 16. "It would also leave the way clear for the non-academic student to drop out."

At the night banquet, Right Rev. W. A. Townshend, Anglican Suffragan Bishop of Huron, told the delegates "we must do all in our power to preserve the public school system because "there are those who would destroy our system."

"They would throw it right out the window and they are not confined to any one religious group."

Bishop Townshend said "there were those who were reconciled to "the inevitable collapse of the public school system."

"I am shocked by those who speak of the public school system as Protestant schools," he said.

2,000-MILE PLANE

LONDON (Reuters)—The Daily Mail says Britain's Bristol Aeroplane Company is building a plane capable of cruising 2,000 miles an hour. Its "polished skin will glow with the heat caused by air friction," the story says. Pilots have christened the plane, whose cockpit will be cooled by refrigeration, "the flying furnace." It is expected to fly late next year.

toronto's percentage of relief is the highest "of any major centre of population in the province." The city with a population of 666,000 in August compared with 2,048 on relief in 13 Metropolitan Toronto municipalities whose combined population is 720,772.

Ambushes, Quick Death Mark New Phase of Mafia

By HORACE CASTELL

PALERMO, Sicily (Reuters) — Ambushes and quick death today mark a new phase in the 180-year history of the Mafia, dreaded Sicilian underground organization.

Local leaders have turned against each other and are fighting savagely for territorial supremacy.

Scores of people have died in the last two years—Mafia leaders, hired killers and innocent people who happened to witness a Mafia murder and were promptly silenced.

The two most notable "wars" were in Palermo's noisy fruit and vegetable market and in the fertile grazing fields and twisting cobbled streets of Corleone, near the inland capital.

LEVICE TITLE

Nineteen people died in and around the fruit market in the struggle between rival Mafia bands for undisputed leadership of the profitable protection racket.

The Mafia levies a tithe on all fruits and vegetables passing through the market. No stall-worker dares to refuse to pay this "tax." No licences for stalls, barrows or stores can be obtained without Mafia support.

Which of the two rival bands won the fruit market war is a mystery. Here, as elsewhere in Sicily, the iron rule is silence.

The Mafia's motto is: "An eye for an eye," from its inception around 1800 to immediately after the First World War, the Mafia was a tightly-knit society that to all purposes ruled Sicily, the Mediterranean's biggest island.

It levied "taxes" and dealt out justice. The Mafiosi were the feudal - police, and their leaders wielded great political influence.

On Mussolini's orders in the late 1920s, a brave and energetic prefect, Cesare Mori, made the first determined effort to uproot the Mafia in Sicily. He rounded up hundreds of leaders. He held mass trials. Those he could not convict he expelled to remote Italian islands for up to five years.

The Mafia struck back through its political friends and Mori was transferred from Sicily. After staying underground for a decade, the Mafia re - emerged, more powerful than ever.

Man Arrested For Vagrancy Had Bank Book

TORONTO (CP) — Two policemen who arrested a man on a vagrancy charge said in court Monday they did not search him and consequently didn't know he carried a bank book showing a balance of $653.00.

The officers were testifying in the trial of Ernest Tate, 34, who said last week he was falsely arrested for standing on his "rights as a citizen." He pleaded not guilty to the vagrancy charge.

The case was adjourned to Wednesday.

The newly-formed Association for Civil Liberties asked as investigation of the case last week, saying police had infringed on Tate's personal rights.

Constable Edwin Lister said Tate, who was "very roughly" dressed, gave his name when he stopped on downtown street at 5:15 a.m. Thanksgiving Day.

He said Tate told him a suitcase he was carrying contained personal belongings but declined to open it when asked. "I explained to him why I had stopped him — because of the time of morning and the number of thefts in the district," the officer added.

"What made you charge him as a vagrant?" asked Tate's counsel, Irving Himel.

"He couldn't give a good account of himself," the officer replied.

Constable James Brown said police had not been able to learn Tate's proper address. He described Tate as unco-operative.

"Right to Work" Is Issue In Six of 48 States Voting In Congressional Elections

WASHINGTON (CP) — The "right to work" is an issue in six of the 48 states voting in the Nov. 4 U.S. congressional election.

In each of the six states—California, Colorado, Idaho, Kansas, Ohio and Washington — voters will be asked, in addition to electing federal and state officials, to indicate their approval or disapproval of proposed state laws which would outlaw the union shop in the industrial field.

Their votes may decide the whole national future of the controversial right - to - work laws, which already are in effect in 18 states, most of them non-industrial areas in the south and the west. Fresh support in the state field would be expected to trigger a campaign for a federal right - to - work statute and, eventually, an amendment to the United States constitution.

The issue, ripening into one of the hottest debates in the areas concerned, is primarily a battle between business and labor, with both sides putting up campaign funds.

PRO AND CON

Right-to-work laws are simple—at least on the surface. They prohibit unions and employers from entering into union shop agreements, under which all employees in a plant must join the recognized union within 30 or 60 days and maintain their membership. In other words, the laws rule out union membership as a condition of employment.

Federal law permits the union shop, but it does allow the individual states to ban it if they wish.

The laws have been hailed by management as beneficial to both labor and industry and denounced by labor leaders as vicious and destructive.

Their advocates claim they lead to better relations between management and labor, less industrial strife, steadier employment, stronger unions, greater state attraction for new industry and more security for employers, particularly small firms.

Foes are just as positive in asserting that the laws destroy unions or weaken them in their efforts to obtain more benefits, enable non-union workers to enjoy the gains won by labor organizations, impair job security, prevent union organization and reduce worker income.

Right-to-work laws have been in effect in some states for as long as a decade but the movement, perhaps nourished by the disclosures from the U.S. Senate inquiry into labor rackets, has gained momentum in recent months.

California and Ohio, both heavily industrialized, are considered key battlegrounds in the campaign. If right-to-work wins in either state, it will break through the fence that has confined it largely to agricultural states in the past. Big industrial states like Michigan might be next on the list.

REPUBLICANS SPLIT

Party politics inevitably color the right-to-work issue. The National Council for Industrial Peace, which is fighting enactment of the laws, is headed by two leading Democrats — Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and Herbert H. Lehman, former Democratic senator from New York.

Illustrating a Republican split on the issue, the council has several Republicans on its executive board and has hired Alfred Hall, former Republican governor of Kansas, to campaign against a right-to-work law.

In California, the Republican cleavage is even sharper. Senator William F. Knowland, who set the U.S. Senate to seek the California governorship, is backing right-to-work legislation while former Republican Governor Goodwin J. Knight, campaigning for Knowland's old Senate seat, is against it.

Nationally, Labor Secretary Mitchell is on record against right-to-work laws. President Eisenhower is non-committal. He told a press conference Oct. 1 the issue was one for each state to decide. But in states where the laws already are in effect are Alabama, Arizona, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Indiana, Iowa, Mississippi, Nebraska, Nevada, North Carolina, North Dakota, South Dakota, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Utah and Virginia.

1959 FORD
IN EVERY WAY SO BEAUTIFULLY RIGHT

Beauty queen of the hardtops—the new Fairlane 500 Town Victoria
Ford's new flat roof line is as practical as it's beautiful, provides added headroom for backseat passengers. Trim lines and tasteful styling are the trademark of the 59 Ford.
SIX or V-8
the savings are great!

The Fairlane 500 Town Sedan

SHORT STROKE
LONG STROKE
Short Stroke Design cuts engine-wearing, power-wasting friction for longer engine life with gas savings up to 10%. Ford V-8 and 6 cylinder engines are both short stroke design. In fact, Ford and only Ford builds a true short stroke 6 cylinder engine in Canada.

The Expressway Intake Manifold on Ford V-8's delivers fuel to each cylinder by the shortest, most direct route for smooth, even power without waste. In other V-8's, fuel must travel through long, winding passageways so some cylinders get too much gas, others too little.
This is the car designed to meet every kind of driving need today. And it does. Beautifully.
The new Ford, completely restyled for 59, has a clean, crisp look with dignity and good taste in every line. There isn't an ounce of waste fat on it. Yet there's room enough inside for the whole family to travel in big car ease and comfort . . . comfort that just starts with the foam-cushioned front seats (they're standard in all Fords).
That's just the beginning of the new Ford story. In addition to proven Cruise-O-Matic Drive there's a new Ford-matic Drive, quiet, smooth, economical because it's lighter, simpler and has ¼ fewer parts. The new Blendaire heater blends warm and cool air to give you the exact temperature you want, instantly, regardless of car speed.
As a matter of fact, Ford's new right down to the muffler. It's made of aluminized steel to resist corrosion, last up to twice as long.
There are 17 handsome new Fords to choose from and they're priced Ford-low. See your Dealer and take a discovery drive. You'll find the new Ford is beautifully-right for you.

Hayman Trying to Get Knox Back With Argos Next Year

TORONTO (CP) — Lew Hayman, managing director of Toronto Argonauts, is planning an all-out attempt to get passing wizard Hamish Knox back for the 1959 Big Four football season.

The 34-year-old quarterback, on loan from Chicago Bears of the National Football League, has been the key to the amazing Argo comeback.

Argonauts swamped Hamilton Tiger-Cats and Ottawa Rough Riders 37-0 and 41-0 respectively as Knox completed 41 of 59 passes.

The victories were Toronto's second and third of the Big Four football union season against slight defeats and left the club with a chance of making the three-team playoffs in their last three games.

Knox wants to come back with the club for 1959 but George Felas, owner of the Bears, may have other ideas. And so may Hollywood.

Halas holds Knox's football contract and if he wants to keep playing he may have to do it for the man he squabbled with last year.

Knox was drafted by the Bears in 1957 but left the club after a dispute with Halas and was suspended.

The movies may also lay claims to the services of the handsome player. Knox is bound for Hollywood as soon as Argos play their last scheduled game and he says football may take a backseat to his acting ambitions.

LOVES TO PLAY

He says he loves to play football and the publicity gained on the gridiron can be a big help in Hollywood. That's one reason why he'd like to come back with Argos next year.

"I'm free-lancing and waiting for the big break," he says about his acting. "I hope it comes."

Hayman says he hopes he can persuade Halas it would be to the Bears' advantage to let Knox play with Toronto next season. With the Big Four club he'll be first-string quarterback.

With the NFL team he probably would be second-string pivot and not get the work he needs to make him a top-flight quarterback.

Although Cut, Len Matthews Beats Zulueta

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Len Matthews, stung by a bad cut over his right eye that threatened to end the fight in the fourth round, poured on all his speed, youth and power to floor veteran Orlando Zulueta twice thereafter and take a unanimous 10-round decision Tuesday night.

Zulueta worked hard at trying to end the fight by opening the cut. But after Matthews decked him with a short right to the jaw in the sixth round, the Cuban turned cautious.

Apparently worried when his eye was examined by the ring physician after each round, Matthews moved even faster and again in the seventh dropped Zulueta with a left to the head and another right to the jaw. For the second time Zulueta took the eight count.

Matthews, unbeaten 19-year-old Philadelphian, seemed puzzled by the sharp boxing of the 30-year-old veteran of 109 fights through the early rounds. In his period Zulueta showed complete disdain for the knockout reputation Matthews had gained by stopping 13 opponents in 14 previous fights. But his craftiness wasn't enough to stand off the power-punching Matthews.

Matthews, at 132, spotted his opponent two pounds.

On the Tracks

TORONTO (CP)—Nine American-owned horses lured by the big money at stake are almost certain starters in Saturday's $30,000 added Canadian Championship stakes—the greatest two-mile turf event for foreign-owned horses in the modern history of Canadian racing.

The Ontario Jockey Club, proprietor of the Fort Woodbine race track where the mile and five-furlong race will be held, says a field of at least 12 horses will go to the post for a purse of more than $50,000.

The latest starter is One-Eyed King, four-year-old colt owned by Harry F. Guggenheim of Philadelphia, second in the $30,000 New York handicap at Belmont Monday and winner of more than $80,000 this season.

The Hasty House Farms of Toledo, Ohio, is planning to start scotch-bred entry of Blaba, Mahan and Jack Ketch.

Other American-owned horses likely to start are:

Inside Tract, owned by fruit growers Jay Dekrino and Joseph Martino of Valantia, N.Y., and winner of the two-mile $75,000 Jockey Club Gold Cup at Belmont Park Saturday; Civet, owned by E. Austin Corbin of Mt. Kisko, N.Y.; Andrew Alan, trained by Woody Stephens; Hirsch Jacobs' Spinney, 1957 winner of the classic owned by Louis Rowan of Los Angeles, Calif., and Bell Hop, French - bred horse owned by J. M. Schiff of New York.

How to Marry a Millionaire By Turns Amusing and Corny

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP)—A frivolous TV series, by turns amusing and corny, is How To Marry a Millionaire.

Its three zany beautiful girls are the subject of the series. Their object, as you may have considered, is a millionaire who will marry any one of them and support all three.

The girls are Lori Nelson, Merry Anders and Barbara Eden. We dropped around to see them, armed with statements from our bankers.

The result was edifying.

"Marriage—" said Miss Nelson.

"Would ruin—" said Miss Anders.

"The series," said Miss Eden.

But did the girls mean to say that they'd completed 29 filmed half-hour shows without anybody nailing a millionaire?

They nodded sadly.

"It's frustrating," said Miss Eden, the talented blonde who plays the role of Loco in the series and who — incidentally — was feeling mighty homesick to see her husband, actor Michael Ansara, back in Hollywood.

"But it's the way we must continue," said Miss Anders, who plays the role of Mike Page, a strawberry blonde nipper sophisticated than loco. Miss Anders, incidentally, is unmarried.

"No matter how long the series lasts, none of us can ever actually marry a millionaire without spoiling the whole plot" said Miss Nelson, who plays Great Lindy Key. Miss Nelson is not married and not a Miss Bete.

Getting personal about it, we asked the girls whether they actually knew millionaires and what they thought of them.

All have met millionaires. But Miss Eden said she had disqualified herself to answer the question because she is happily married to a fellow who is not a millionaire.

Rita Hayworth on 40th Birthday Beautiful as Ever

By BOB THOMAS

ST. GEORGE, Utah (AP) — Amid these rocky buttes you can find a girl who's relaxed, radiant and, although she is marking her 40th birthday, as beautiful as ever.

The reason for all this appears to be her fifth and apparently most successful marriage.

While Rita was lunching in the shade of her trailer dressing room here on the rocky Utah plain, Gary Cooper, Van Heflin, Richard Cooke and Tab Hunter were emoting before the camera. Rita is the lone actress in the cast of They Came to Cordura.

Her conversation was easy, contrary to what it usually is on the Hollywood stages. It was noted that she was observing a birthday. Does she like birthdays?

"Why, I'm fifth and anyone!" she said in an un-actressike reply. She smiled and refused to talk her return to the outdoor epic. "I'll start in wrestling," she said. "I was 14 or 15 at the time and I did about a dozen of them — jujitsu and other wrestling."

Rita said that this is her first separation from husband James Hill. While she's here, he's spouting locations for a picture in Mexico. But they burn the long-distance wires, and she left no doubt that their alliance is a happy one.

Their formulas: Golf and the quiet life.

"We don't go out much at all," Rita said. "We like to stay home and entertain a few friends now and then and maybe see a movie. Jim and I also play a lot of golf together."

Tis golf routine sounded off beat for this, who was once one of the queens of the Hollywood nite life. But their linking on the golf links is her idea, she said.

"I had taken two months of lessons once and then forgot them," she said. "When Jim and I were dating, I suggested we try some golf. He had been a baseball and football player, but had never played much golf. We tried it and liked it."

Say Sinatra Soon Will Wed Lady Beatty

LONDON (AP)—Frank Sinatra spent the last two days going steady with beautiful Lady Beatty, and London newspapers suggested Tuesday that a wedding is coming up.

"Sinatra will wed Lady Beatty," proclaimed The Daily Mail. It said the 36-year-old American-made beauty's friends indicated that "the only questions to be answered were when and where."

"Frankie's out again with Lady Beatty," headlined The Daily Sketch.

"When the companionship of a man like Sinatra and a beauty like Lady Beatty becomes a daily habit, it also becomes news," said The Daily Express by way of explaining the daily picture of the couple.

Lady Beatty was divorced from William O'Connor of California in 1949. Earl Beatty, son of the British naval hero, divorced her last June, charging adultery with a man identified only as George Henry Lane.

Sinatra is in town to attend a movie premiere next week. He has been escorting her ladyship around town until the early hours.

Ified herself to answer the question because she is happily married to a fellow who is not a millionaire.

Rouge in Last Two Minutes Gives Lords Win Over Bears

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—A rouge with two minutes left to play gave London Lords a 23-22 victory over Sarnia Golden Bears Tuesday night and robbed Bears of an unbeaten season.

The win clinched second place in the Ontario Rugby Football Union senior league for Lords who will get the home game for the sudden - death semi - final against Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen. Bears served up first place a week ago with their ninth straight win.

Dates for the semi-final playoff and the best-of-three final series have not been set by league officials. The last game of the schedule is next Wednesday night between Lords and Dutchmen in Waterloo.

POUNCE ON BOBBLER

Lords scored their winning point when Al Pfeifer kicked the ball over the Sarnia line in a 30-yard field goal attempt. Halfback Ernie White bobbled the ball momentarily in the end zone and Londoners Bill Needham and Al Bruno brought him down.

It was a thrilling game all the way for 4,500 fans with Lords putting on one of their best performances of the season. They made 36 first downs to 12 for Bears.

Lords struck quickly for a first quarter lead, trailed 13-8 at the half and then rolled over Sarnia three touchdowns in the third quarter. Bears had the stage a powerful rally to tie things up 22-22 in the last quarter.

THOMPKINS TOPS

Quarter Jerry Thompkins, Lords' top scorer, went for two touchdowns and completed 16 of his 34 pass attempts. Coach Al Bruno and fullback Ted Kostas collected the other touchdowns with Pfeifer kicking two singles in addition to the winner.

Import halfback Jim Smith scored two touchdowns for Sarnia and leads the league with 14 this season. Guard Dave Strickland and halfback Church Staley scored one apiece and quarterback Gino Cappelletti kicked two converts.

Curling Assoc. Defines Pro For First Time

TORONTO (CP) — A professional curler was defined for first time Tuesday by the Ontario Curling Association.

There haven't been many pros in Canadian curling—two notable ones were Saskatchewan's Campbell brothers, Don and Garnet. The ink wasn't dry on a new OCA bylaw Tuesday when Don announced he was quitting his job as instructor at the Royal Canadian Club here. He will still be secretary - manager at Toronto Thistle.

The OCA annual meeting sought to define professionalism with this rule amendment:

"No registered member who acts as an instructor or teacher of curling and receives payment or other remuneration for such services, shall play in any association competition."

The ruling was put together at an executive meeting in January and submitted for approval Tuesday. Among other things, the amendment clarifies the position of club secretary-managers who may instruct members.

There is no prohibition on teaching for free. The bylaw also excludes physical education teachers who may coach schoolboy curlers.

Any pro who resigns can return immediately to amateur status without penalty or waiting period.

B. C. Phippen of Sarnia was elected president at this meeting.

NEW YORK (AP)—Tony Anthony, Negr. York's No. 1 lightheavyweight title contender, has signed to meet Sonny Ray of Chicago in a 10-round bout at Madison Square Garden Nov. 14.

Don Newcombe Paces Pitchers .361 Average

NEW YORK (AP) — The old adage that pitchers can't hit doesn't always hold true.

A group of good hitting pitchers put on a display of batting proficiency during the 1958 baseball season that, at times, overshadowed their mound exploits.

Don Newcombe, who split the National League campaign with Los Angeles and Cincinnati, paced the major league pitchers in batting with a .361 average.

Milwaukee's Warren Spahn collected the most hits, 36, and tied teammate Lew Burdette for the runs batted in lead with 15 apiece. Lew also was the only hurler to hit a grand-slam homer.

Burdette socked two home runs in one game for the second time in his career, tying a National League record set by Newcombe.

The major league record is five times, held by Wes Ferrell.

LARSEN'S BIG BLOW

New York Yankees' Don Larsen was the only mounduan to deliver a pinch-hit round-tripper. He also had the highest batting average among American League pitchers, .306.

Don Drysdale of Los Angeles belted seven home runs to tie a National League record for pitchers established by Newcombe in 1955. Ferrell holds the big league record for a season, eight in 1930.

Baltimore's Jack Harshman, who originally came up to the Giants as a first baseman, was the American League's home run leader among the pitchers with six. He also had 14 RBIs.

Spahn had a .333 average and accumulated six doubles, one triple and two homers.

Lanky Yank at Oxford Centre of Big Rowing Row

OXFORD, England (AP) — A lanky Yank at Oxford who doesn't like traditional British technique has become the centre of the biggest rowing row in a century here.

Reed Rubin, six-foot, four-inch, 200-pound former Yale man from New York City, started it all by disagreeing openly with Oxford University's training methods and techniques for the 105th running of the boat race against Cambridge University in March.

Rubin, who rowed on the Oxford crew last year, formed a strais crew of his own—to train independently from the official Oxford crew.

"We have ordered our boat. It will cost between £300 and £400 ($840 and $1,120)," Rubin said. "The money is being provided by friends of Oxford rowing."

Rubin also said the crew has three coaches. But he refused to name them.

IGNORES DISSIDENTS

Ronald Howard, president of Oxford rowing and responsible for forming the crew to meet Cambridge, made it clear he will have no part of the rebels unless they disband and return to the official fold.

The dispute is much more than a minor domestic disagreement. Every year about 300,000 people watch the boat race over a river Thames course of four miles, 400 yards.

The Daily Telegraph said the dispute "has split Oxford rowing to a degree in which in all its long history it has never been split before."

The rebel crew includes some of the best oarsmen at Oxford, including Rubin and another Yale man, Charles L. Grimes of Locust Valley, NY.

Grimes, who rowed in the Yale eight that won the Olympic title for the United States in 1956, said: "We hope members of the University feel as we do—that there is room for legitimate differences in rowing policy.

"Our crew will be at the disposal of the president if he wants us to row against Cambridge in March."

REJECTS OFFER

Howard has turned down the offer. He's also firmly turned down a challenge by the rebel crew to race against the official eight. The rebels' idea was that the winning eight should row against Cambridge.

Rubin disagrees with Howard in training and technique. He thinks too much time is spent on the water and not enough spent in coaching the individuals before they are assembled in their boat.

He said he has rowed in Yale crews superior to this year's losing Oxford eight and spent much less time on the water.

Barrie Flyers Gain Top-Spot Tie With Win

BARRIE (CP)—Barrie Flyers moved into a first-place tie with St. Catharines Peepees Tuesday night when they defeated Hamilton Cubs 5-1 in the only OHA junior A game played.

Hap Emms' crew skated the visitors into the ice in their second win in three starts.

Pierre Gagne, Ray Dupuis, Bob Wilson, Jackie Leclair and Randall Miller scored for Barrie.

Don Wilcox scored Cubs' lone goal late in the third period while Flyers were two men short.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

If you can believe what you read in the papers, especially the Sudbury Star, the Kelowna Packers, readying themselves for a Russian tour, are wasting their time visiting Khrushchy's hockey domain.

"Kelowna," writes Sudbury sports columnist Russ Faiion, "is going there to represent Canada — and frankly, Kelowna is going to get bombed. If that isn't obvious to everyone now, then hockey has really sunk to a sorry state."

"It has been charged the only reason Kelowna was picked was because the team represented a western city, and hockey in the west needed a boost. That's a serious accusation. But it seems to be true. Why else would a team that lost the senior hockey championship right in its own backyard get to go?"

For Patton's information the CAHA chose Kelowna because they lost that senior crown in their own backyard, and because they were rated the second best senior club in Canada. Why should any other club which could not get out of its own league draw the assignment?

He goes on to say that "to send a team over that is going to get slaughtered hardly makes sense. It will be an insult to the intelligence of every hockey fan in Canada."

The funny part about Patton's blow-off about Kelowna, is that he hasn't even them play, apparently knows nothing of their strength or any reinforcements they have in mind. He didn't know that Sid Smith, playing coach of the Dunlops has been sent to Kelowna to screen the Packers.

Patton based his blaste on the story of a frustrated hockey play, Ivan Tenant, of the Soo Greyhounds, who jumped their camp to go to Kelowna. Essentially he returned to the Greyhounds camp and has aired his opinion of the Packers.

Tenant is quoted as saying the Soo Greyhounds of a year ago were a better team than Kelowna is now. "And," Patton remarks, "the Greyhounds of a year ago were a sorry aggregation."

Tenant, apparently goes up and down in the Patton opinion like a hotel elevator during a convention. A few weeks ago when Tenant jumped the Hounds to take an attractive offer from the Packers, he did not rate very high in the Patton estimation. Now after he returns from the Okanagan Valley, a frustrated puck-chaser, he suddenly blooms into a hockey expert of the purest water.

Patton does not say if Tenant told him why he left Kelowna. We are informed the Packers' offer, plus the ticket to Russia were not to be sneezed at. Could it be that Tenant was not good enough to make the Packers' squad? The fog always diminishes in stature when the pond gets bigger.

Besides Tenant was in the Apple Valley in plenty of time not to be ruled out of Packer plans by the Amateur Hockey Association's hands-off-the-eastern-players edict to the western champions.

Perhaps Tenant knows a good hockey club when he sees one. Perhaps he does not. In any event a sports story in the Vancouver Sun under the heading "Packers Pack 'Em While Walley," says Kelowna Packers who soon start packing for their Russian tour, have made it quite clear they intend to leave the Okanagan Valley Senior Hockey League like champions. They won their second start in as many nights by whipping Penticton V's 6-3 at Kelowna."

The Packers may not have been quite as good as the McFarlands in that Allan Cup thriller last spring, but, brother-it was awful close. Kelowna Packers will be strengthened accordingly. The CAHA will see to that.

They may be beaten, but we feel sure they won't be disgraced. Besides we can exercise the publicity the Russians used prior to their Canadian visit last year: "We are not sending our best."

Pop Ivy Introduces Double Wing-T and Triple Wing-T In Pro Football League

By JOE MOOSHIL

CHICAGO (AP)—This is the year of varied formations and Chicago Cardinals are adding spice to the already hopped-up National Football League.

Coach Frank (Pop) Ivy, who took over this season after winning three Grey Cups in four years with Edmonton Eskimos in Canada, has introduced the double wing-T and triple wing-T in the pro loop.

His success is a matter of record. Cardinals are tied for second place in the eastern division and lead the entire league in total offence. They have lost two of their four games only because of fallings on defence.

CANADIAN IDEAS

Ivy's innovations are handmedowns from Canadian football.

These wing formations enable a team to exploit the passing game, no end as attested by the Cardinal record of 63 completions in 119 attempts for 1,023 yards and eight touchdowns.

"We may sacrifice a little straight power," says Ivy, "but we also have four or five men to pass to quickly. Also our backs are close enough so that they can take the ball and run with it."

In the double wing-T, Cardinals split their ends as wide as desired. The quarterback and fullback remain in regular T-formation positions. The two halfbacks, however, are a yard behind the behind or a step outside the tackles.

This gives the halfbacks an advantage of several yards if they are used as pass receivers. Also they can pull back and block for the passer.

FIVE PASS RECEIVERS

In the triple wing-T, there is only one difference. The fullback leaves his regular position and moves in between the split end and the halfback. This way the Cardinals have five pass receivers who can move into the secondary quickly.

"It's a tough system to use," says Ivy, "because split-second timing is required. It has been a lot of hard work but I think we're getting the idea now."

Maybe others will too. Rival coaches are praising the system which is proving to be a real crowd pleaser.

Regina Halfback Showing Way In Scoring Race

WINNIPEG (CP) — Halfback Jack Hill of Saskatchewan Roughriders needs 25 points in his club's two remaining games to equal the record 151 points set in the Western Interprovincial Football Union last year by Winnipeg Blue Bombers' Gerry James.

He is collected 24 points in Riders' two weekend games to boost his total output to 106 points and a 31-point margin over runner-up Charlie Shepard, Winnipeg fullback. All clubs have two games left.

Statistics compiled by The Canadian Press show Hill's total comes from 11 touchdowns, 39 converts and four field goals. Shepard has 11 TDs and nine singles.

Edmonton Eskimos hold the next three spots, with end Joe Mobra at 81 points, quarterback Jackie Parker 59 and fullback Normie Kwong 54.

Maroons Beat Bulldogs 5-1

SARNIA (CP) — Chatham Maroons, paced by a four-goal effort by centreman Ken Aitken, defeated Windsor Bulldogs 5-1 in an exhibition hockey tilt here last night.

Lou Bendo scored for Bulldogs. Fred Fletsch ended Chatham's scoring.

The teams meet in Chatham Friday in the OHA-NOHA opener.

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Rugged Billy Tuck of Louisville meets Canadian middleweight champion Will Greaves of Edmonton in a scheduled 10-rounder tonight. Tuck is a wide-ranging fighter with a 38-2-4-1 mark. Greaves, a polished boxer has a 25-5-1 record in fighting some of the nation's top middleweights.

Jim Brown May Become Greatest Rusher in NFL

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Statistics are proving what many opposing football players already accept as fact—that Jim Brown may be the greatest rusher in the history of the National Football League.

Official figures released today show the bruising fullback of the eastern division - leading Cleveland Browns is well on his way to setting a rushing record for one season.

The former Syracuse star has accounted for 635 yards on 94 running attempts in the Browns' four winning efforts this year. That figures out to a 6.8 yards per carry and a game average of almost 159 yards. The game figure is about 64 yards more than Steve Van Buren averaged when he set the present NFL rushing record with 1,146 yards for Philadelphia Eagles in 1949.

Another big reason for the Browns' success is rookie Tom Mitchell whose season total of 370 yards rushing is second best in the league. Mitchell has averaged 4.8 yards in 42 runs.

Eddie LeBaron of Washington Redskins, John Brodie of San Francisco and John Unitas of Baltimore head the passers. LeBaron has the best average gain per pass attempt, 8.70 yards. Brodie has the best completion average, 58.8 per cent in 56 attempts. Unitas' passing has accounted for the most yards, 907.

Ottawa Goes to Rookie Bench To Put Team on Safer Ground

OTTAWA (CP)—Ottawa Rough Riders, stumbling badly in the late-season scramble for playoff berths in the Big Four football union, have called on a couple of Canadian rookies to move them to safer ground.

They are Russ Jackson, who got the nod from coach Frank Clair to start at quarterback in Toronto Saturday against Argonauts, and halfback Ron Stewart, who will spell 60-minute man George Brancato at flying wing.

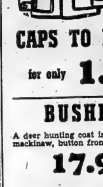
The two changes, as Riders drilled to avenge the 41-0 drubbing they suffered at the hands of the resurgent Argos here last week, came as Ottawa faced the necessity of winning one of their three remaining games to make sure of a playoff spot. Two of the games are away from home.

Hamilton Tiger-Cats, Canadian champions, already have clinched first place. Ottawa is second with 19 points, Montreal Alouettes third with nine and Toronto Argonauts last with six.

COULD BE OUT

Three straight Ottawa losses, combined with an Alouette win over Hamilton at Montreal Saturday and three Toronto victories would knock out the Riders.

After Saturday's game in Toronto, Riders play three more while Montreal and Toronto meet twice. The Riders have yet to beat Tiger-Cats this season.



In another Ottawa lineup change import half Gerry Nesbitt, used mainly as a corner linebacker on defence, will see more action on offence.

HAWK ROOKIE TO STAMPS

CHICAGO AP)—Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League Tuesday assigned rookie forward John McKenzie to the Calgary Stampeders of the Western Hockey League on 30-hour recall. General Manager Tommy Ivan said the Hawks had 13 forwards on the roster and McKenzie was deprived of steady playing time. Another forward may be lopped, he said. McKenzie last season played with the St. Catharines Teepees and led the OHA junior A in scoring with 49 goals and 56 assists.

Kitchener Dutchmen Hand Macs Initial Setback 4-2; Brown and Goegan Pot Goals

KITCHENER — Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen appear to have won the "Grapefruit League" honors in pre-season Ontario Senior Hockey exhibitions.

Last night the Dutchmen ran up their sixth straight victory when they defeated Belleville Macs 4-2 before a crowd of about 600 fans here.

The Macs, who were widely outplayed, particularly in the second period, rallied against the Dutchies in the third to make the score look respectable. The Dutchies fired 41 shots at Gord Bell who played well for the losers. The Macs directed 21 shots on the Kitchener net.

He took strong objection to the fourth K-W goal, scored late in the second period. "Butch" Martin, the only two-goal man of the night, fired from about 30 feet out, then skated in and shoved his own rebound into the goal. Bell protested to the referees, and got outvoted, as expected.

Ken Laufman gave the Dutchies 1-0 lead with a brilliant curtle down right boards in the opening period. Gerry Davidson made it 2-0 on a screened point shot.

Martin made it 3-0 in the first half of the third when his shot caromed in off Rags Raglan.

"Wiener" Brown sniped the short side on Ron Kilby, the second K-W goalie, midway through the third and Fiori Goegan drove in a screened point blank blast for the last goal of the game.

Only nine penalties were called, the Macs being assessed six.

Cornwall Chevies Swap Veterans for New Faces In Effort to Bolster Club

By FRANK ORR
Sports Editor
Cornwall Standard-Freeholder

CORNWALL — The Cornwall Chevies, who escaped the cellar on the Eastern Division of the Senior OHA last year by one point, will once again carry a large number of new faces in their lineup.

However an old face is back in the coaching job with the Seaway City entry, Bob Bingley, who took over from Joe Lepine in December last year is back for another try. Bingley will also hold down a defence post with the team.

Manager Ray Miron of the Chevies is rather non-committal about his team's chances this year.

He says "I feel we have strengthened our defence considerably and added some speed to our forward line up front. But we still have a couple of holes to plug. The league is set to be a five team dog-fight and at the moment we are a question mark."

However we have a good nucleus now with the right additions will be in good shape.

One of the Chevies top performers for several seasons Moe Savard is making this year as he has been dealt to the Kingston Merchants. Also gone from last year's team are George Aitken, goalie Ray Fredrick, Rene St. Hilaire and Pete Fayette.

Gerry Devaney, who had the leading goals against average in the league two years ago, returns to first string netminding duty after a year of second-fiddle behind Frederick. He has been sharp in practice and the exhibition games.

On defence, playing-coach Bingley, Don Labelle and Ted Szydlowski are back from last year's corps. Bingo Ernst, a veteran pro defender and a well-known name for his hard-hitting style is a part of the club although most of his duty will be in the home games. Ray Laplante who played centre last year has shifted to defence and is also looks good.

The club has a couple of new defencemen breaking in this week as the team is going all out to improve last season's rather shaky rearguard.

Two forward lines are set at the present moment, although these could be changed moderately.

Guy Henri, one of the league's best, will centre for left winger Ronnie Quenvillem a Cornwall product who played two seasons with St. Catharines Teepees, and right winger, Bryan McLay, a lanky 22 year old from the Canadien chain who was with Cincinnati last term.

Chet Melaki, another Canadien chattel who scored 33 goals with Cincinnati, will centre another line. Melaki is six feet, two inches tall and weighs around 203 pounds. On the right side is Reggie Grigg, who established himself last year with a fine season while Ronnie Mulr, another youngster who rolled 18 goals last year holds down the left side.

The third line is still a question mark. Nobby Clarke, from the defunct Penticton club is a possible for centre unless manager Miron can come up with another pivot. Veteran pro Jean-Paul Bisaillon, Mort Bollenow and Jack Purtle are still in the running for the left wing berth. Germaine Legre and Edmond who can also play right wing are candidates for the right side. Some rookies still have to get a player from the Toronto chain and he should be in camp by next weekend.

In exhibition games the Chevies have looked both good and bad. They downed St. Catharines' Teepees, The Quebec Aces of the QHL had a tough time with the Chevies with three late goals. The Chevies failed to impress however against Hamilton Comets although they won 5-4

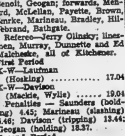
Gasper Ortega Takes on Tough One in Jordan

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP)—It was birthday No. 28 for Gasper (Indian) Ortega Tuesday, but he'll wait another day to cut a cake.

The third-ranked welterweight faces a tough foe in an important match tonight—Don Jordan of Los Angeles in a 12-round scrap. The winner is set for a title shot at welterweight champion Virgil Akins in Los Angeles Dec. 5.



Jordan, also 28, outpointed the Tiajuana, Mex., fighter in 10 rounds at Portland, Ore., Sept. 17.

The bout will take place under plush circumstances, in the grand ballroom of the Lafayette Hotel recent residence of the Miss Universe contestants.

The patrons, in semi-formal attire will pay $25 and $15 to see the fight and later have steak dinner. The local Optimists Club, and the sports promoting Century Club are co-sponsors with the Olympic Auditorium of Los Angeles.

Astrological Forecast

By CAROLL RIGHTER

Thursday, October 23

Aries (March 21 to April 19)—All secret anglings are just fine for you right now. And it is the height of wisdom to have conferences with the right persons in order to get best service that will see you closer to your ambitions. Good for any health treatments today, too.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20)—An ideal day for being with comrades and business alliances to work out any and all plans toward your combined goals. Keep your conversation somewhat objective and show regard for their allegiance. P. M. go to bed early and rest.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21)—A day when making concrete and constructive plans can see you realizing your goals very much faster and more efficiently. Don't be afraid to confide in closest family ties, for they hold the keys to many perplexing problems in your path.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) — Step out of dull doldrums today and impress others with your business and social acumen. Forget petty matters that don't count. High thinking will mean a real surge forward right now. Take it easy tonight and go to bed very early.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — If you want to maintain the harmony and security you now enjoy at home, it is important to give full time to matters of finances today. Also, get social life on higher level by being kind and thoughtful. P. M. stay at home and save money.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 23)—Long conferences with partners and even competition will result in more harmonious relationships plus increased earning power. Look into civic matters, too. P. M. steer clear of that pugnacious individual and save your nerves.

Libra (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23) — Labor is the real answer today, for it is possible to accomplish so much that has been impossible in the past. P. M. take real care while driving. And don't take any unrelated — for remarks.

Scorpio (Oct. 24 to Nov. 21) — A perfect day in which to dress most tastefully and then contact those persons from whom you want support and advice. They will be very willing to give both. P. M. don't be extravagant and be sure to use tact.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — For best results with present favorable condition at home, consult wise personal advisors and follow ideas given. P. M. be sure your laundry is taken care of and take those exercises, etc., that improve your health.

Capricorn (Dec. 23 to Jan. 19) — This is one of those lucky days when friends, business people, relatives all understand and approve your ideas, but be explicit in expressing them. P. M. be sure you do not answer until you have first checked your facts.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — An ideal day to do your best work, show fine business acumen; so that you are noticed by higher ups and are in line for advancement. P. M. a friend in need of money approaches you in angry mood. Give boost but no loan.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — While you are satisfied with present niche, you had better get out into the teeming world of activity today and take advantage of fine opportunities there for you. Study newspaper. P. M. be courteous while driving, especially to sifters.

Your child is born today — The delightful child born today is the kind who quickly takes to everyone he or she meets. But you'll think your youngster is gullible, for underneath is a very strong will and discrimination. So, be certain you give the most formal of educations possible, as there is real merit in both practical and artistic talents in this chart. The spiritual nature especially is highly developed.

First Balloon Satellite Fired Fails To Orbit

Disheartening End To Ambitious Project

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The first balloon satellite experiment was lost in space today, and no one knew just why.

The U.S. Army Wednesday night launched a Jupiter-C rocket containing the collapsed 12-foot-diameter sphere, and tracked it by Radio for about six minutes. Then the signals went dead.

Military and civilian scientists acknowledged that "it is practically certain the experiment was not successful and an orbit not achieved."

"Radio records received from the satellite instrument package show the performance of the rocket was normal," they said.

It was a disheartening end to an ambitious project for hurling into orbit an object that would be visible to the unaided eye at distances up to 1,500 miles.

HOPED FOR DATA

The balloon, from observation points in many lands, scientists had hoped, would provide data on the mysteries of that remote area where the earth's atmosphere and outer space meet in a fringe.

And they had hoped to gain experience to help with an even more spectacular experiment — a manned satellite off which radio, television and radar signals could be bounced.

That might be attempted next year.

The launching rocket thundered aloft from this missile test centre at 11:21 p.m. EDT.

It climbed straight upward for 70 seconds, then angled over in the southeast exactly as had been planned.

The rocket remained visible for a few seconds after burnout, then there was no longer be seen.

The first stage of the Jupiter-C was a modified Redstone rocket. Its burnout some 80 miles above the earth the speed that a bullet has at the muzzle of a gun. Then with the three upper stages to an altitude of 680 miles and then was to have fallen away as the upper - stage firings began.

TECHNICAL DATA

An hour after the launching, reporters were told the rocket had approximately 10 seconds before the second stage fired, and that it was most unlikely an orbit had been achieved.

The army's Jupiter-C score was balanced between successes and failures, with four of each.

Foreign Control of Canadian Industry Grows

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's net debt to foreign interests at the end of 1957 rose to a record $11,600,000,000, due mainly to a sharp increase in foreign control of Canadian industry, the bureau of statistics said today.

Value of United States investments increased to $12,900,000,000, accounting for 75 per cent of all long-term investments owned by non-residents. At the end of 1957 non-residents owned long-term investments totalled $17,100,000,000 an increase of 10 per cent over 1956.

The $17,100,000,000 figure accounted for most of Canada's total liabilities to other countries which were $18,500,000,000 at the end of the year. Gross external assets totalled $7,200,000,000, leaving the net indebtedness of $11,000,000,000.

NET DEBT UP

The net indebtedness has nearly tripled in the eight years since 1949 and now is 70 per cent higher than the amount at the end of the great investment boom of the 1920s. At the end of the Second World War Canada's net international indebtedness was $3,900,000,000, and the increase since then is $7,100,000,000.

"The most important factor contributing to the growth of external indebtedness has been a rapid rise in direct investments or long-term investments in Canada," the bureau said.

"The investments have contributed to a rapid rise of growth in the Canadian economy, particularly in the exploitation of natural resources and have helped significantly to Canadian production, employment and income. They have at the same time added substantially to the burden of Canada's external debt and to the proportion of Canadian industry controlled by non-residents."

Direct investments in Canadian enterprises controlled by non-residents were approaching $10,000,000,000 by the end of 1957, and equity portfolio investments exceeded $3,500,000,000.

Steel Price Up

MONTREAL (CP)—A spokesman for Dominion Bridge Company said Wednesday notice has been received from Algoma Steel Corporation of an increase of $4 a ton in the price of structural steel.

The spokesman said the increase, this year, raises the price to $139 a ton from $106 and is effective as of Tuesday.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) Synopsis: — Fine weather dominates the northeast; North Carolina is causing an extensive area of rain that overlaps across the eastern United States and over most of Ontario. This disturbance is slow-moving and will continue to affect the province for the remainder of today and tonight. Slightly drier air was edging into Michigan this morning and was expected to bring some clearing to southern sections of Ontario Friday.

FIREMAN KILLED, THREE INJURED IN SAINT JOHN FIRE

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP)—Flames raced through crowded streets in the Portland building at Main Street, Wednesday, killed one fireman, injured three and left 26 families homeless.

The 2½-year career ended four months short of his scheduled retirement when Capt. Lloyd J. Hayward, 64, was caught under a falling wall. Fire Chief H. S. Knight said he believed the captain was killed instantly.

Then the alarm was sounded.

Military and civilian scientists acknowledged that "it is practically certain the experiment was not successful and an orbit not achieved."

"Radio records received from the satellite instrument package show the performance of the rocket was normal," they said.

It was a disheartening end to the ambitious project for hurling into orbit an object that would be visible to the unaided eye at distances up to 1,500 miles.

George Hanna Ordered Deported, This Time Few, if Any, Oppose Move

OTTAWA (CP) — Christian Science practitioner George Hanna again. He will leave behind some of his admirers but few enemies.

During the years since he first chanced on Canada's Pacific shores, the cause has championed by people in high places and low.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker, then Parliament's Opposition leader, once appeared with the Labor Member of Commons for the Mayear-old laborer who landed in Canada penniless a few months at sea, a stowaway without a status.

Justice Minister Fulton, in an earlier phase of his career, once attempted as an opposition member to launch a special debate in the Commons about the trials and tribulations of the slightly built laborer from obscure beginnings in somewhere in the Mediterranean area.

Mr. Fulton's attempt didn't work. And neither did Hanna's engagement with Canada.

Immigration Minister Fairclough announced Wednesday that Hanna will be deported Saturday to Lebanon. They've already got him in custody in Vancouver.

Hanna proved to be a source of embarrassment to someone — from the day he arrived at Port Alberni, B.C., in December, 1956. He had slowed away aboard the Norwegian freighter Gudveig at Vancouver Island July, 1956.

The then Liberal immigration minister, W. Pickersgill, put all for sending Hanna right back aboard ship. But overnight his case became a national cause celebre.

He was inadmissible under Canadian immigration laws because he had no passport, no identification, no nationality and no place of birth.

He told Canadian authorities he was born at sea of a French

Wife of Car-Bombing Victim Swears Revenge at Inquest

AMHERSTBURG, Ont. (CP)—A woman whose husband was killed when a bomb destroyed his car, two months ago, accused a man at the inquest Wednesday night of being involved with the slaying and said she would seek revenge.

Mrs. Palama DiPasquali struggled on the floor of a courtroom with police and relatives for 10 minutes before she was removed from an inquest hearing and given sedatives.

She screamed in Italian that she would avenge the death of Antonio DiPasquali, 31, killed on Aug. 19 when his car exploded as he attempted to start it.

Earlier she told a coroner's jury that her husband had been told that if "John D'Almonte did not do it himself, he'll get someone to do it for him."

D'Almonte was convicted a year ago of stabbing DiPasquali. The slain man's wife said D'Almonte stabbed her husband in July, 1957, after examining a car Pasquali had been taking out Mrs. D'Almonte.

Pathologist told the jury this was the reason for the stabbing. But that does not look like him. "I did not hate him."

He said that when he heard of the death "I did not hate him, but I felt bad because he was a friend of mine."

Camille DiPasquali, brother of the victim, testified D'Almonte told him two weeks before the explosion "not to take my brother because something may happen and he didn't want it to happen to me because he has one."

DiPasquali was killed after he left work at midnight Aug. 18 at the Brunner Mond Company plant in this town 18 miles southwest of Windsor.

Normally he drove other workmen home but because of the late night. As he started his car in the company parking lot it exploded. No one else was injured.

Coroner Dr. C. V. Mills, after hearing 20 witnesses give 375 hours of testimony, said D'Almonte "had the motive," and an area of suspicion has been thrown on John D'Almonte." Any action would be up to the crown attorney, he said.

The alleged death was due to an explosion which shattered the car and was arranged by persons. It ruled premeditated murder.

The crown attorney and provincial police declined comment on the case.

8 Girls, 28 Youths Charged After Arnprior Gang Fight

OTTAWA (CP) — Charges of unlawful assembly were laid in day against eight girls and 28 youths following a gang fight in Arnprior, Ont., 25 miles west of the capital.

Some from Arnprior and Renfrew, 10 miles farther west, were said to have used sticks, stones, bicycle chains and sawed-off shotguns in the battle before police here reported. There were no serious injuries.

Police said they found and a charge of using an offensive weapon in connection with one of the brawlers today in county court.

The gangs were rounded up peacefully in a field outside Arnprior Wednesday after the battle being eased out of town when trouble started.

Police blamed a dead dog for touching off the latest and largest of a series of disturbances. Previous trouble between the two groups had been violent, they said.

The dog, owned by a Renfrew man, was run over two or three days ago, police said, and apparently an Arnprior resident was involved.

A cavalcade of Renfrew autos arrived in Arnprior before Wednesday night's battle started.

Police really broke up the fight but about 30 escaped quickly. The 36 who were detained were locked five and six to an auto in the Arnprior provincial police cruisers and there police station and Renfrew police. One constable was in each vehicle.

The arrested combatants, described as aged 16 to 21, were held in custody for their hearings in county court here. The field in Carleton County, given by the Ottawa County Court jurisdiction.

Officers laying the charges said there appeared to have been an "element" of trouble-makers in the two gangs already rivalries were known to be tightly organized, bear a gang name or wear distinctive gang identifications.

Deadlines Set For Christmas Mail Overseas

OTTAWA (CP)—Defence headquarters has announced deadlines for Christmas mail to Canadian personnel serving in the United Kingdom, Europe and the Middle East.

Airmail letters and first-class mail must reach Montreal by Dec. 12 to guarantee delivery by Christmas Day. They must be posted to reach Montreal by Nov. 22 and air parcels by Dec. 10.

The deadline for airmail letters and air parcels for Canadians stationed in Indochina with the International Truce Supervisory Commission is Nov. 15. Canadians being advised of arrangements for special Christmas delivery, by special RCAF aircraft.

Ike Ends Campaign Swing Against 'Radical' Democrats

NEW YORK (CP) — The radicals and the demagogues—known outside campaign parlance as Democrats—are the targets of Republican partisans—chased after votes Wednesday night in the campaign for control of the United States Congress.

The nasty names the rival speakers pinned on each other were echoed in the livelier-by-the-hour skirmishing for the November election that will largely control the Senate and House of Representatives, the U.S. legislative body, in the off-year election.

President Eisenhower, who concludes a crease-country campaign swing today, was accused by Democratic National Chairman Paul Butler of joining Vice - President Richard Nixon in "a desperate, intolerant campaign of smear and misrepresentation."

Eisenhower meanwhile carried on his battle for a Republican Congress with a renewed blast at "radical" Democrats and their dramatic economic policies.

He told some 5,000 party workers at Chicago that his administration has licked recession with "a federal wheelchair," despite radical demands from congressional Democrats for huge spending programs.

Eisenhower's repeated use of the word "radical" brought belated retaliation from Stevenson, 1952 and 1956 Democratic presidential opponent in 1952 and 1956.

"Ike and Nixon has been joined by the new foe—or a new speech writer — in a desperate, intolerable demagoguery type of campaign," Stevenson told a meeting of Democratic rebels in Chicago.

Stevenson described Republican campaign oratory as "an affront to the intelligence of our fellow citizens."

Joining Eisenhower in praise of administration economic policies, Nixon told a party rally in Providence, R.I., that the Republican administration has managed to curb "the runaway inflation it inherited from the Democratic party."

But, he added, "this administration is not well find it impossible to keep these curbs if the irresponsible wing of the reckless wing of the party—the radical group from the North and Congress and are able to overwhelm the moderate forces in the Democratic party and the southern Democrats.

In winding up his 5,300-mile speaking tour, Eisenhower said he will campaign after nothing but "deadlocked government."

He credited his administration with having to push personal economy to a record high and said election of a Republican Congress is the best insurance for even greater prosperity.

Nixon in particular emphasized—as he did in all other speeches during his tour—that just and lasting peace remains the overriding goal of his administration.

To achieve it, he said, the U.S. must stay militarily strong because power is the only language the Communists understand.

In New York, meanwhile, former President Harry S. Truman voiced disagreement with Democratic national chairman Paul Butler on the issue of Southern Democrats who oppose the party's stand on racial matters.

Truman, who winds up his current campaign tour in Boston today, said:

"I am not reading anyone out of the Democratic party. I want all the people in the Democratic party."

STARR WILL SEEK HIGHER BENEFITS FOR UNEMPLOYED

Sees Fewer Jobless Than Last Winter

OTTAWA (CP)—Labor Minister Starr, predicting somewhat less unemployment this winter than last, is planning to ask Parliament's approval at its next session to increase unemployment insurance benefit rates.

In an interview with The Canadian Press, he also disclosed that he put the proposal up to the unemployment insurance advisory committee last July. The committee several weeks ago expressed itself in favor of it.

Mr. Starr said that, providing he was able to win cabinet approval, he would propose two additional unemployment insurance benefit levels above the current $30-a-week maximum in the July, 1959, parliament expected to open in mid-January.

APPROVAL LIKELY

It was considered unlikely the cabinet would oppose Mr. Starr's plans.

The top benefit rate would become $38 a week. The other new one would be $34 a week.

Mr. Starr did not say to what income categories the new benefit rates would go but it likely wage earners within the two new benefit categories. There would be higher contribution for the unemployment insurance fund. This would be a correspondingly higher contributions from employers and the federal government.

The wage ceiling at which eligibility for unemployment insurance now ceases is $4,800 annually.

Mr. Starr did not discuss this matter but he has indicated his favor a revision in insurance legislation which would make the unemployment insurance compulsion to raise the eligibility ceiling to $5,000 annually without having to wait for Parliament's approval.

GREATER FLEXIBILITY

Such a change would give the commission greater flexibility in meeting shifting employment conditions.

Mr. Starr said he does not believe the unemployment insurance fund has been drained to a dangerous level.

It currently holds some $400,000,000, but this is not the figure on which he keep their eye on the fund consider the danger zone to be around the $100,000,000 level.

The present maximum unemployment insurance benefit of $30 weekly is paid to a person who has had at least 30 weeks of insurable employment during the preceding 52 weeks or more—up to the $4,800-a-year top.

The government issued its latest figures on the unemployment situation earlier this week.

As of Sept. 30 there were 271,000 persons unemployed and looking for work, 10,000 fewer than a month earlier. In September last year there were only 197,000 unemployed.

Renounces Force As Chief Means Of Ousting Reds

But Any Major Revolt Would Alter His Stand

TAIPEI (AP) — President Chiang Kai-shek ended his talks with State Secretary Dulles today by renouncing force as the main method of recovering the Communist-ruled mainland.

It was learned on good authority that Chiang also agreed to consider cutting his offshore island forces if the Communists silenced their guns. This was not contained, however, in the joint communique ending three days of talks with Dulles.

QUEMOY SHELLS STOP

(Reuters news agency said Chinese Communist artillerymen suddenly stopped firing at the Quemoy offshore islands today at Dulles' request. Talks are going on between Chiang and left Formosa by air for home. Reports from the Communist side said the Nationalists also halted their counterfire.

The mainland renewed shelling the Quemoys on Monday, on the eve of the Dulles - Chiang talks. Until then, both Communist and Nationalist guns had been silent under a cease-fire called by Peiping 15 days earlier.)

Chiang said in the communique that mission successfully is through nationalism, democracy and social well-being, "and not use of force," the communique said.

The communique also went a step closer toward an American commitment to fend the Nationalist-held offshore islands, although it did not make such a flat guarantee.

The statement said the United States and the Nationalist regime "recognized that under present conditions the defence of the Quemoys together with the Matsus is closely related to the defence of Taiwan (Formosa) and Penghu (the Pescadores) islands in the Formosa Strait."

WARNING TO REDS

This was interpreted as a new warning to the Red attempt to take the offshore islands might strengthen the U.S. hand.

Dulles left by jet tanker for Washington after he and Chiang in the communique in their fifth meeting since Tuesday.

The communique made no reference to the Communist bombardment of the Quemoys. What it did was described as a Red propaganda campaign to divide the United States and Nationalist China has instead drawn the allies closer together.

Chinese Communists and their Russian allies "ceased to exist" since the Nationalists began to concentrate on their economic and military development, the communique said.

Critical Survey Of Soviet Life Wins Nobel Prize

STOCKHOLM (Reuters) — The Swedish Academy today awarded the 1958 Nobel prize for literature to its Russian author Boris Pasternak, whose best-selling novel Doctor Zhivago has yet to be published in his homeland.

"Doctor Zhivago" depicts life in Russia during the last 40 years and is in many passages critical of Soviet society and government. Pasternak himself has been criticized as "not of sufficient literary value."

The Swedish Academy's citation for the award to Pasternak for his epic novel and important achievement both in contemporary lyrical poetry and in the field of the great Russian epic tradition."

Pasternak, 68, is the son of painter Leonid Pasternak. His father was a pupil of Russian realist painter Ilya Repin.

Pasternak himself is a Communist, resisted Soviet pressure to postpone or reject even before the publication. He ignored messages from Nikolai Bulganin and Nikita Khrushchev himself was asking for the return of the manuscript for revision. He did his best to stop the publication after he was told that the Russian Communist party did not approve of it," the publisher said. "I insisted, however, on publishing the novel because I think it serves a useful purpose."

Pasternak's novel immediately aroused great interest throughout Europe and at one point the doctor criticized Khrushchev himself in the first order in Soviet society.

Farmers' Union Asks Compensation For Animals Perishing From Rabies

OWEN SOUND (CP)—Ontario farmers, concerned over the steady increase of rabid foxes in Grey County, have called on the provincial government to provide compensation when farm animals contract rabies.

Such action made the suggestion in a resolution passed at the annual convention of the Ontario Farmers' Union in Guelph, following reports by a federal veterinary in Grey County overrun by rabid foxes.

Dr. T. J. Corcoran told council here that the rabies epidemic which he has been waging for years and menacing children is worsening every day.

The Scotish's remarks prompted Ontario farmers at their convention in Guelph to urge substantial provincial bounties on foxes. The price mentioned was $10 to $50 per animal.

In their resolution to the federal government, the farmers asked that "just compensation" be provided when farm animals contract rabies and that medical attention for farmers exposed to the disease be paid.

One farmer, Sam Bowman of Elora, said the epidemic "is not a temporary thing . . . and seems to be getting worse."

"We have 18 people in Wellington County now receiving medical attention," he added.

In Toronto, Ontario's district veterinarian Dr. G. H. Collacutt said the rabies epidemic in Grey County is being spread by the wild red fox.

"It is definitely in the quite serious" and probably "at its peak" but will continue to increase until the rabies population is decimated by the disease."

He said the rabies infection in the Simcoe area last year was as bad as the Grey County epidemic. Dundas, Stormont, Glengarry, Prescott, Russell, Shallow Lake and 18 townships.

The county, on the southern end of Georgian Bay, has an area of 1,706 square miles. Owen Sound has a population of 17,300.

THE PENSION PROBLEM

A news release from the Canadian Life Insurance Officers' Association has come to the editorial desk. This consists of a reprint of an article in the Financial Post of Toronto, entitled "Our Pensions Not Meagre."

The article is excellent and understandable and well worthy of editorial comment. It compares our old age pension system with social security arrangements in the U.S. and declares that, while U.S. payments make those in Canada look meagre by comparison, the facts are not so simple as they appear.

"The $55 a month now paid our elder citizens may not seem large," says the Post, "but the average couple receiving $110 between them will have had to have saved about $13,000 to buy an annuity at age 70 that would pay them that much for life. That's an addition to every Canadina's retirement 'savings' which is not to be sneezed at."

It is not only a contribution which is not to be sneezed at but it is also a contribution of a size which ought to give pause to those who advocate its replacement by additional savings, either through a social placement by additional savings, either through a social security scheme such as that which is in effect in the U.S. or through private pension plans.

The important thing about that $13,000 which would have had to been saved to provide an annuity equal to Canadian old age pension payments is that savings of this amount would be impossible for most couples unless spread out during the whole working life.

If a man starts working at 18, he has 52 years on the job before retiring at 70. To save $13,000, he would have to set aside $250 a year, or $5 a week except during his annual fortnight's vacation. Of course, there will be interest earned, which would lighten the burden, but we doubt whether this relief for the average man would do much more than offset those periods when he was unemployed, on short time or faced with additional financial burdens as the result of illness or some other trouble. Now $5 a week does not look like an exorbitant share of today's salary to be set aside as savings -- but $5 a week back in 1906, when the saving program would have had to be started, would have been an impossible burden for most men who this year reach their seventieth milestone.

There is no certainty that the decline in the purchasing power of the dollar, which has occurred during the past fifty years, will be duplicated during the next half century, but there is also no guarantee that it will not.

The $5 weekly which today's young man of 18 might be able to set aside would at 70 provide him and his wife with $110 a month, but in 2010 this $110 might buy no more than $30 or $40 does today.

This is true regardless of whether the savings are made by the individual, in conjunction with his employer or union or under some state-sponsored social security plan as in the U.S.

Private contributory pension plans are valuable, indeed essential, in supplementing any government pension scheme. But, if the government plan is also a contributory one, even the combined returns from private and government plans will fall short of providing for the security intended as long as steps are not taken to protect the purchasing power of the dollar and to assure those contributing that the dollars they receive when they reach pensionable age will buy nearly as much as the dollars they paid into the fund. Maintaining the purchasing power of the dollar is a problem which, to date, has defied the best efforts of economists. Under these circumstances, government pensions based on present-day living costs are the only workable plan.

In effect, the Canadian pension plan operates as it should, with today's working force paying the pensions of those who have served during the years past and laid the foundations for her present prosperity - - and with today's workers pinning their hope for pensions, in their turn, on the sense of justice of tomorrow's workers. We do not think this faith will be misplaced.

THE OLD-FASHIONED MAN

By EDGAR A. GUEST

The old-fashioned man would come in from his work
At the close of a busy day,
And the old-fashioned wife greeted him with a kiss
In the old-fashioned, lovable way.

Then he sat down to supper and poured out his tea
In the saucer and gustily blew
His breath o'er the beverage, to cool it, maybe—
A method that now wouldn't do.

Oh, the old-fashioned man, I can see him today,
With his saucer of tea held in air,
On the table his elbows are resting once more
And the old-fashioned wife's sitting there.
There is love in her eyes as she gazes at him;
The love-light once more I can see,
And the old-fashioned man sends a smile to his wife
Over the brink of his saucer of tea.

It may be I'm wrong, but I feel that I'm right—
Now these old-fashioned folk are at rest,
And the daisies bloom over their opposites of earth—
That the old-fashioned ways were the best.

Oh, I wish that this old-fashioned man was still here,
With his old-fashioned wife, as of yore;
Oh, I wish they could come from the Valley of Death To drink from their saucers once more.

Shrimps Pick Slice of Life

News release from the Smithsonian Institution, Washington, D.C.

A tiny blue and white shrimp in the Bahamas sets up permanent cleaning stations to which large colored fish make regular visits, like men to barbershops.

It attracts a steady type of business by swaying from side to side and vigorously waving its exceptionally long and slender antennae in the water to attract transient customers.

Specimens of this shrimp, collected a few months ago in the Bahamas, have just been added to the marine invertebrate collections of the Smithsonian Institution.

The phenomenon of fish delousing by other sea organisms often has been described and probably is world-wide, however, it is the most complete case of its kind ever reported.

The shrimp "sets up shop" on the head of a sea anemone, a flowerlike member of the coral age group, and waves its slender tentacles. These tentacles protect the female from attacking shrimp predators. The anemone, in turn, cannot survive without the presence of another species of shrimp at its base.

The delousing shrimp cleans its fish customer meticulously from head to tail of parasitic copepods, the smallest slice of life imaginable. They often are almost invisibly minute and infest most marine higher organisms. It also removes other minute parasites and cuts off dead tissue from sores. It does sue. It works inside and out.

This fish then has the stamp to forge within its gill cavities, mouth and throat by opening them one at a time as the shrimp approaches them. It also allows the shrimp to make minor incisions in its skin to get at parasites which have bored into the flesh.

Apparently such shrimp always does a rushing business, for they exact to the waving tentacles by approaching the cleaner stations at slowing down. They even assume awkward positions seemingly to be helpful.

Often they will fight for the right to be cleaned, or "having their teeth picked" chair, when there are vicious, battles. More double forms entered one another, and sometimes completely obliterate the cleaner from view.

What to Throw at Brides

Minneapolis Tribune

Our conviction that there'll always be an England is strengthened by the running debate in London over the suggestion by the Archdeacon of Chesterfield that wedding parties might abstain at the bride and groom with sugared almonds, instead of confetti.

Confetti, the Arch deacon told a Times correspondent, "seems to be a pest in the churchyard and is an embarrassment to the newlyweds." He advocated instead the "ancient Jewish custom of throwing almonds" as "it is much more pleasant and there are always children to pick them up."

A reader promptly took the churchman to task in a letter to The Times. "Admittedly confetti has been a rather abominable jitter," he wrote, "but sugared almonds present a far more formidable ammunition, and personally I am glad that at my wedding confetti was used as being less impractical."

Furthermore, this correspondent stated, permitting children to eat sugared almonds could open the floodgates and "would be considered by many races to be the emblem of fertility" and he hoped it also would provide food for birds who would quickly devour most of the confetti. "If brides who might prefer 'solzer pelting,' he recommended flaked rice.

"As I presume the Archdeacon is concerned only with the cleanliness of churchyards and has no financial interest in sugared almonds," he concluded, "sir, I say that I am engaged in the rice trade."

But The Times readers didn't let the issue rest there. Another correspondent took issue with the Archdeacon, arguing that "if brides have to pelted at all, then let it be with Scottish wheat or Scottish oats." He objected to the use of rice because "polished and white it will not grow" and thus is not a proper fertility symbol in England.

He, too, modestly admitted his interest. He was a sheep grower who "would like to see a substantial number of bushels used at every wedding."

Another correspondent ruled out rice because "a well-aimed handful in the face can be extremely painful" and rejected almonds because they "could result in a severe bride cut." Instead, she proposed soap flakes which in English climate "would serve the double purpose of fluttering delicately down the aisle upon the bride and eventually cleansing the church paths." Another interjected, she was admitted by this correspondent.

War may be threatening in the Formosa Straits, but the Soviet Union may be hurling new warnings about the use of new clean weapons. One of the last vestiges of the Empire may be fluttering in Hong Kong. But in the British countryside they're still debating the lively issue of what to throw at wedding parties.

We await the next installment in The Times with keen anticipation.

Mrs. Thomas Wilson, late of this city and now of Ottawa, is spending a few days in town.

Mrs. W. H. Henthorn has returned home after visiting friends where she visited friends.

Mrs. A. McCaig of this city is visiting friends in Picton.

Miss Lottie Conger of this city is visiting friends in Picton.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Less than fifty years ago, no city or town in Canada, no cat was safe. A war, centuries old, between the cat nation and the dog nation was still in full progress. It is true the old dog had been browbeaten, coerced and otherwise persuaded that cats were fellow citizens and had to be left unmolested. But the average cat in 1900 had the notion that cats were to be chased up trees, pursued along fences, and, if at all possible, grabbed by the neck, given a quick twitch and left dead in the gutter. I haven't seen a dead cat on the street for years. But around 1900, and for a time before, street traffic menaced them that a cat couldn't face, a dead cat was a familiar sight.

Yesterday, across on a neighbor's lawn, I saw a small young cat sitting taking the sun. Two dogs came by, obviously out for their morning's fun, and the tom-cat's attitude of calm, studied boredom was the infuriating to a dog, turned and gazed indifferently in another direction, as though dogs were of no interest whatever.

That cat's ancestor had to live every hour of the day and night by stealth. It had to confine its movements to the tops of fences, and warily, with twitching tail, watch its every step. What's happened to the ancient war?

If there is hope for cats, there is hope for us.

The dogs have been educated.

Famous Crew Is Scattered

Maurice Dekker in the New York Herald Tribune

Eleven years ago, six men on a balsa raft travelled the Humboldt Current from Peru to Polynesia, to test the theory of the expedition's leader, Thor Heyerdahl, that America, not Asia, was the motherland of the South Seas Pacific settlers. The successful voyage was the theme of a successful book, Mr. Heyerdahl's "Kon-Tiki".

Still testing his theory, the Norwegian explorer has been engaged in attempting to solve some of the mysteries of Easter Island, and this work has resulted in another best-selling book, "Aku-Aku" (Hand McNally), in N e w York at the time of its American publication, he was asked about what had happened to the other five members of the "Kon-Tiki" crew:

"The Peruvian radio operator returned to the University of Uppsala and got his doctors degree. He went back to Polynesia for an additional research. He is living on Tahiti. Then there were t h e four Norwegians. Herman Watzinger is a refrigerator engineer. He lives in Oslo, has a wife and a family, and is constructing deep-freeze plants in the north country. Knut Haugland is a major in the Norwegian army, and also directs a radio station in Kristiansand, in Oslo. The raft is on display there, and Haugland is present at it for usual hours nearly every day. The two hundred thousand a season. If you do much shopping in the neighborhood supermarket, you will be interested in some facts uncovered by management consultant Jamison Selove, head of Jamison Supermarket Institute in Chicago.

When you lay your purchases beside the cash register, there is only one chance in three that you will be charged the correct sum. But take heart, most of the time the error will be in your favor. As high as 65 per cent of the customers are overcharged and the size of one per cent of the total sale.

Of course, you already know that supermarkets suffer great loss by theft. Shop lifters get just most of the blame on light-fingered housewives. But according to Selove's investigations, the shoplifting customers' share of the loss is small indeed in comparison with what the employees steal. After all, they have more opportunities to cart off cash and goods. Supermarket employees are said to siphon off well over $300,000 every working day in this country. The average profit on $5 billion of sales. In some cases losses run to $1,000 a week per store.

More shocking still, dishonesty on the management and supervisory level is said to be even more costly than malpractice by t h rank and file.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEWS ADAMS

WHAT HAVE I DONE TODAY?

How few of us self-examine ourselves- If we did we would have far richer life than we do. It goes by so rapidly. I have been thinking of when I was young years ago, full of ambition, energy and dreams I was all that time! How quickly those years have flashed by.

I think if we asked ourselves at the close of each day — what have I done today? -- we would live more purposeful lives and be given the privilege of inspiring other lives. The days seem to slip away and we look out of my library window and note the trees growth that many of the trees set out have made. The sight of them makes me think of the rapid passing of time.

Benjamin Franklin used to keep a little book in which he would write his progress each day, and in which he would note his improvement. He seemed to be quite well acquainted with himself! He made friends because he didn't cover up his own faults. Rather he said he tried to get others to examine themselves.

Let us examine more carefully time in finding fault with others. We ought to do what we can to help others more concern with their life. Get them to ask themselves what have I done today? Let us ask myself this question every day of my life. My reply to it, and with it I make better plans for the day.

There is so much in life that is inspiring. So much beauty, so many wonderful things before us if eyes that we should thank God for it all and walk humbly through each one of days. I never tire of studying about all the beautiful things around me. Sometimes I look at a maple or oak tree is a perfect creation. So is every flower. So is every blade of grass.

What have you done today? What have I done?

To Your Good Health

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

NUMBNESS IN HANDS CAN FREQUENTLY BE TRACED TO NERVES IN THE NECK

"Dear Dr. Molner: Why do my hands go to sleep? They really hurt until I get the circulation going' — Mrs. F. A."

"I wake up two or three times a night from pain in my hand, a feeling as though it has fallen asleep. — F. S."

A very common complaint among those over forty is — and I've had a little experience myself — "pins and needles" in the hands. People take it for granted that the usual reason is rarely guessed by the patient.

A very common cause is osteoarthritis of the spine — the familiar "garden variety" of arthritis which is found so frequently as the result of normal wear and tear. The ends of vertebrae glide in the neck are subject to "slipping." (This is the same sort of thing that, in the low back can give a knobby look to the finger joints.)

When this does come out of the spinal cord, passing between the vertebrae, it may be pinched into a single nerve which in turn has branches serving the shoulder, arm and hand.

The "slipping" of the bones sometimes puts pressure on these fibres, and pinches them. Right there you have the cause of numbness, a sense of numbness of hands -- "going to sleep."

In making the patient point's out that this usually happens at night when he is lying down. This is a clue of the most useful sort. Standing up or sitting up relieves the pressure because it relieves the pressure on those nerves where they leave the spinal cord.

CHANGING POSITION HELPS

Many times just changing position in bed helps. Other simple things are to use a soft pillow, or putting two pillows at an angle, so that the head and the shoulders but the head can fall back into the hollow between them. Another neck traction helps -- a harness under the chin and back of the head, attached to a line with a weight, running over a pulley, so the head is drawn upward and the body, to relax the pinching between the vertebrae.

Posture is apparently quite important, for a person with poor posture is more apt to have trouble than one who stands erect.

There are other things that can cause this trouble, some of them simply other conditions of the spine which are at the same point — a partial dislocation from some old injury; or a short extra rib that causes pressure, freak of nature that sometimes occurs. Nerves as well as compressing one of the main arteries to the arm, or inflammation in which a muscle at the base of the neck exerts pressure on that burning The head or raising the arm in a certain way produces numbness and tingling. Less common causes can be a herniated disc, spinal cord tumors, the aftermath of a stroke, or even toxic conditions from chemicals, drugs, tobacco, alcohol.

"Pins and needles" of the ends of the bones, however, is the common one. So, you see, X-rying of the neck may often be the correct way of determining what is making your hand "go to sleep."

"Dear Dr. Molner: Does it affect women in later life who ignore old wives' tales about washing their hair, taking baths, etc. while menstruating. — A. L."

The same question arrived twice in the same day! The answer is no, it doesn't do any harm to anybody except it makes the old wives angry because their unfounded advice has proved wrong again!

A.L.B. (and others): A large dose is usually a combination of overweight, plus, as you suspect, a loss of tone in the abdominal muscles. Carrying 175 pounds on a frame 5 feet one inch tall is not ideal but over-eat well without putting on weight; it also can be overweight yet still be anemic if you don't eat the right things.

Leg cramps and foot pains? Next order, be dropped! To learn how, write to me in care of this newspaper, requesting my booklet, "How To Stop Leg Cramps and Foot Pains", and enclose a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 5e in coin to cover handling.

Prof Spoofs Engineers

Ottawa Journal

There was a day when engineers knew Latin, Universities demanded it as a prerequisite to engineering. Students who had blithely "skipped" Latin in high school found themselves laboring over decensions and conjugations before college entrance requirements.

Now it is disappearing. Even medical and law schools, once insistent on Latin as a necessity in reading law and writing prescriptions, accept students who have never been exposed to Caesar's Gallic Wars.

A misdemeanor against University professor due to the modern ignorance of Latin was the local engineers of the school of architecture "down by the railway."

The university had made land available as home sites for staff and it was decided to build an landscaping plinth. The profs had planned to build and they all plans approved, including a list of the plants with their Latin names.

Approved were a border of Lombardy poplars on the patio and a front yard of marigolds.

CONCERNING PROPER DIETS

As the ferry glides from the island to the mainland, having a brief respite from the shocking noise out and mark with their regard for the sanctity of human life, some how philosophy of life given forth the unutterable stench of the pulp mill. In these days of secularized education, devout persons often have the shocking experience of witnessing the destruction of the believer's faith by agnostic or atheistic teachers who consider themselves especially commissioned to route young people from the delusion of religion.

It is a strange perversion of taste which leads some people to garbage to wholesome food.

Prof Spoofs Engineers

Ottawa Journal

There was a day when engineers knew Latin, Universities demanded it as a prerequisite to engineering. Students who had blithely "skipped" Latin in high school found themselves laboring over decensions and conjugations before college entrance requirements.

Now it is disappearing. Even medical and law schools, once insistent on Latin as a necessity in reading law and writing prescriptions, accept students who have never been exposed to Caesar's Gallic Wars.

Women's H.A. Dedicates Chapel

The highlight of the afternoon following the well attended business meeting of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary was the dedication ceremony of the chapel in the Belleville General Hospital.

Some years ago the Belleville Ministerial Association co-operated with the auxiliary by relinquishing space for a chapel so that the coffee shop, an auxiliary project could be instituted. It is in appreciation for this that the auxiliary is now happy to have provided an organ and further shared in furnishing and decorating the beautiful chapel which has been included in the new wing.

This dedicated spot will provide a place for meditation at the hospital for all those who feel the need of such a sanctuary and will further serve the School of Nursing for religious services. Mrs. J. Marshall and Mrs. R. W. Smith, conveners of the decorating committee, are to be congratulated for their choice of colors and materials. The funds for this project have been raised through the efforts of auxiliary members who volunteered their services in the various year round activities of the auxiliary.

"FASHION FIESTA"

Plans for the Auxiliary annual "Fashion Fiesta" at the Collegiate auditorium on November 19th are well under way reported Mrs. B. Burley, convener. This has become a traditional event and since the first fashion show in 1939 has always drawn capacity audiences. The various committees have been set up as follows: tickets for chest of silver draw, Miss Ivey Dickens; fashion show ticket sale and distribution, Mrs. K. Smith; stage decor, Mrs. P. Deacon and Mrs. L. P. Radonicich; background music, Mrs. A. V. Barkley, vocalist, Mrs. Helen Grant Gaffney; commentator, Mrs. R. Tanner; door prizes, Mrs. Russell Scott. Mrs. J. Ribbon, Mrs. W. Finkle and Mrs. J. Forrester are also members of the fashion show committee.

ENCOURAGING REPORTS

Reports from the Opportunity Shop and coffee shop were most encouraging. Business has been flourishing and the Opportunity Shop shelves are in constant need of replenishment with articles of every description which are accepted from interested citizens either as donations or on consignment.

Miss Pearl, director of nurses, expressed the appreciation of the nursing staff for the assistance of the auxiliary's visiting control volunteers who work at the hospital during visiting hours.

Mrs. W. Finkle, the president, reported the gift of $50 to the auxiliary from a friend of a public ward patient who took this means of expressing appreciation to the hospital for the fine care received. Mrs. Finkle also reported the resignation of Mrs. W. B. Fonger as secretary, due to moving away from the city. Mrs. Fonger has served the auxiliary in many capacities, among those conveyer for a number of years of the Opportunity Shop, and the auxiliary is most grateful for her efforts while she was a resident of Belleville.

FINE GROVE W.I.

MARSH HILL — The October meeting of Pine Grove W.I. was held at the home of Mrs. Alex Tanner with 13 members and two children present.

The president, Mrs. William Slater, opened the meeting with a reading, "The Reaping."

The conveners of standing committees reported and Mrs Harold Deller, convener of Citizenship, filled in the TV and Radio Survey report.

The following are to be delegates to the Belleville Area Convention on October 23 and 24: Mrs. Grace Bartindale, Mrs. Allyn Finkle and Mrs. Alex Tanner.

The leaders' Senior Training School is to be held October 30 and 31 in Stirling and Mrs. David Little and Mrs. Farley Lindenfield are to attend.

Mrs. Harry Coulter is to get a map for the Tweedsmuir History Workshop which is to be held November 27.

Mrs. Alex Tanner, Canadian Industries convener, was in charge of the following program: A reading, "Fat's Mistake," Mrs. Charles Ross. Mrs. Alex Tanner gave a talk on her tour through the Imperial Oil plant at Sarnia. This is the largest refinery and has modern equipment. A guide took them in a company car to see around the plant. "An Up-to-Date Thanksgiving Dinner" a monologue, was given by Mrs. Harold Deller, and "Current Events" by Mrs. Frank Finkle.

Mrs. Bartindale passed out the CAC bulletins.

After the meeting closed refreshments were served.

ENDS MALE MAKEUP OF HOUSE OF LORDS

Baroness Swanzborough-Siella, dowager Marchioness of Reading—arrives at England's House of Lords to be sworn in as the first woman ever to become a member of the world's most exclusive men's debating society. The new baroness, like other life peers created under an act of Parliament approved this year, was awarded a place in the House of Lords in recognition of long public service. She and Baroness Wootton, sworn in after her, were appointed to strengthen the House which in recent years has suffered from an aging membership and widespread absenteeism. (AP Wirephoto).

Holloway W.A. Views 'Sector Plan' Film

The regular monthly meeting of the evening group of the W.A. of Holloway St. United Church took place last Tuesday evening at the church parlors.

Mrs. Helen Jobiin gave the usual greetings to new members and welcomed the group. Mrs. Fred Wilson represented the afternoon group. After the opening prayer, Mrs. Jobiin turned the meeting over to Mrs June Sine and her group.

Mrs. Eileen Moore opened the worship service by reading a poem entitled "Because I Have Been Given Too Much." A short address followed by Mrs. June Sine. Mrs. Rita Harland closed with prayer.

A short business meeting took place when the roll call and treasurer's report were given.

A special film was shown concerning the Sector Plan and the growth of the church in general. Mrs. Ethel Knight and Mrs. Edna Dobbs spoke on the film and a lengthy discussion followed with everyone taking part. This was particularly interesting and enlightening.

Mrs. June Sine and her group served delicious sandwiches and tea.

Quinte H-S Assoc. Holds Fine Meeting

The Quinte Secondary Home and School Association held its first regular meeting of the season, Monday evening.

The meeting was chaired by Mrs. C. Brown, president, who welcomed the large crowd, particularly the parents of grade 9 students who were there for the first time.

After the business portion of the meeting, the president thanked Mrs. Beeby and the ladies who helped, for conveying the graduation dinner on October 14.

A special mention was made of the Area Conference of the Home and School Council which will be held at Quinte Secondary School on October 25. An invitation was extended to anyone who would like to attend.

Reference was made to the Retarded Children's School of Belleville. There is an urgent need for women to give volunteer assistance to the teachers, for two hours any morning they are free. There is also a need for toys and books.

As a follow up of a spring meeting which dealt extensively with "Health Services in Our Schools," Mrs. Brown again expressed the hope that the School Board would take the necessary action to provide this service.

Mr. Schroder and his school band (cooking) added to their own uniforms, supplied music during the evening.

HOME TEACHING NEEDED

Mr. Reid, principal, extended a warm welcome to all of the parents, particularly the newcomers. He pointed out that there was a need for a Home and School Association. A need of a partnership that it was unreasonable to expect the school to teach all the skills of learning and to relive the church and home of their responsibilities. The habits, attitude and moral values should be taught at home and reinforced at school. He stated that there was an element in society today which cares not a whit for scholarship or true spiritual dignity of the human person. A desire for money was predominant.

A high standard of living rather than a high standard of life was preferred, and that a good life was identified with high purchasing power.

Mr. Reid said that the Home and School was made up of discussion of problems, engaging special speakers and by having panel discussions. He also stressed that the Home and School Associations are not moneymaking organizations, nor was it the function of the H. and S. to buy equipment for a school; that the regular meetings were not the place to discuss serious student problems.

MAJOR AIM

The major aim of the meetings is to give the parents an opportunity to become better acquainted with the teachers and better informed about the school.

Mr. Reid introduced each of the teachers.

Mr. Boyle, who is charge of the science department, gave an interesting talk on "Science Education."

Mr. Simson in charge of "Practical Education" for the boys, outlined the year's activities and explained how the final average mark was arrived at.

Miss Hunter, teacher of "Practical Education" for the girls outlined her program also.

A lively "question and answer" period followed.

Miss Rita Vincent sang a solo "My Hero," from "The Chocolate Soldier." Rita and her two sisters, Ellen and Lillian, also sang a trio "The Big Brown Bear," with Miss McEwan as accompanist.

Ricky Lock, president of the Student Council, and Donald Clark, vice-president, were present to speak to the parents about the Council and outlined the many extra curricular activities that are available to the students. Their good humor added to the enjoyment of the evening.

Mr. Smykalsky, who is in charge of the Art Department, spoke briefly and invited parents to visit the art room when the opportunity arrises.

STRATHCONA TROPHY AWARDED

Mr. Reid introduced Squadron Leader, Ed Craighead and Flight Lieutenant Ken Mitchell of the Belleville Air Cadet Squadron who presented the Strathcona trophy, presented annually to the most proficient school air cadet squadron in Ontario.

After a lengthy applause, Mr. Craighead spoke to the parents. Mr. Mowbray, vice-principal and guidance teacher, gave a short talk regarding "Home work". He said it was the parents' responsibility to provide an adequate place, privacy and time for study. He also stated that if a student succeeds, home work must be done every night.

Mr. Ronald Isaac from the Industrial Arts Department, showed many interesting slides of the finished projects of the year. He announced that there will be another display of this year's work.

Mrs. Dave McDonald, membership convenor, was pleased to report that 178 members were enrolled. She stated that "Invitation letters" were sent to 180 parents. In the letter she stated that the H.-S Association provides the best means of bringing the teachers and parents into a working partnership. There are fifteen teleboxes, contacting parents personally each month, reminding them of P.T.A. meetings. She expressed appreciation to mothers for accepting this responsibility. Parents, who do attend are encouraged to bring other parents to the meetings.

The social committee served refreshments in the cafeteria.

PYJAMAS SUGGESTED

EXETER, England (CP)—Delegates at a women's conference here were advised by Dr. G. P. McLaughlan to wear pyjamas and not frilly nighties in bed because of the fire risk.

Wedding

CASSIDY — GILBEY

A lovely autumn wedding was solemnized at 11 a.m. recently at the Church of St. Michael the Archangel, Belleville, when Geraldine Margaret Gilbey, daughter of Mrs. Phillipina Gilbey, became the bride of Raymond John Cassidy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Cassidy, of Tweed. The Reverend William McGee celebrated the nuptial mass and performed the double ring ceremony.

The church was decorated with pink and white gladioli.

Wedding music was played by the Rev. Sister Mary Bilanas and the guest soloist was Mr. Robert Burke who sang "Ave Maria," and "On This Day O Beautiful Mother."

Given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. Frederick Langevin, the bride was radiant in a floor-length white bridal gown of Italian chiffon with princess styling, emphasized by a hand-tucked panel down the front and the border of a tall cotillion skirt and outlined with pure silk lace. A court train fell in graceful folds at the back. Her fingertip veil of French illusion was held in place by a double coronet encrusted with seed pearls and she carried a bouquet of white snowdrop mums and pink Pinocchio roses.

Miss Paula Baragar, sister of the bride was bridesmaid and the bridesmaids were Miss Marilyn Merrow and Miss Jean Dean, cousins of the bride. They were identically gowned in pink taffeta organza, with draped bodices, bateau necklines and full gored skirts ending in floor matching feather headdresses, mitts, white slippers and they carried bouquets of white, blue and yellow snowdrop mums.

The bridegroom was attended by his brother, Mr. Bert Cassidy, of Tweed. The ushers were Mr. William Cassidy and Mr. Francis Cassidy.

The wedding dinner was held at Club CANADA for 65 guests. The bride's mother received wearing a two-piece beige tweed suit with brown accessories and a corsage of pink tea roses. Assisting her, the bridegroom's mother wore a two-piece green wool suit with bronze accessories and a corsage of yellow mums.

The bride's table was prettily appointed with white damask and centred with a three-layer pedestal, all-white wedding cake ornamented with silver leaves, white doves and topped by a miniature bride and groom.

Mr. Leo Meraw acted as master of ceremonies and proposed a toast to the bride to which the bridegroom responded.

For a wedding trip by motor to North Bay, Sudbury, returning by way of Toronto, the bride donned a green wool cashmere suit with mink trim, a feather hat with brown accessories and a corsage of Goldy-Locks Sweetheart roses. Upon their return they will reside at 4 Stone Street.

Prior to her marriage the bride was honored at a miscellaneous shower by the girls of the C.C.F. Cash Company. In addition the bride was presented with a gift corsage by the social club of J. J. Cash, and also at a miscellaneous shower by Miss Marilyn Carter, assisted by her mother, Mrs. V. Carter, where she received many beautiful and useful gifts.

announced that Quinte Secondary School Air Cadet Squadron has been awarded the Strathcona trophy, presented annually to the most proficient school air cadet squadron in Ontario.

After a lengthy applause, Mr. Craighead spoke to the parents. Mr. Mowbray, vice-principal and guidance teacher, gave a short talk regarding "Home work". He said it was the parents' responsibility to provide an adequate place, privacy and time for study. He also stated that if a student succeeds, home work must be done every night.

The social committee served refreshments in the cafeteria.

St. Joseph's HNS Discusses Fluoridation

The St. Joseph's Holy Name Society held its recent October meeting with president V. Mulqueen in the chair. The Rev. J. O. Buckley opened the meeting with prayer.

Practice to aid congregational singing followed.

During the business portion of the meeting, a sports committee was formed, headed by Garth Bradshaw, with Bill Mullin and Frank Terrett as assistants. The president explained how the chapter for the society might be obtained. This will be looked after in the near future.

A motion to form a restricted hockey pool in St. Joseph's Parish was carried.

The highlight of the meeting was a discussion on "fluoridation" with Dr. Letersky and Dr. McIlmoyle taking leading parts. The discussion and the question and answer period which followed were enjoyed by all.

Domonic Marrocco moved a vote of thanks to the speakers.

Two Members Initiated Into Lydia Lodge

Lydia Lodge No. 330 of the Independent Order Benvolent Association held its October meeting recently, with all officers present.

After the Worthy Mistress, Sister Mrs. Ella King, had opened Lodge, initiation took place. Two new members were initiated, in which the Worthy Mistress helped to initiate her daughter, Arlene King, into the Sr. Lodge.

Arlene has belonged to the Juvenile Lodge for some time being their Worthy Mistress, reaching the required age she wished to join the Sr. Lodge.

Sister Jim Lucas, who is the Sr. Guardian of the Juvenile Lodge and was also acting Guardian in the Sr. Lodge for that evening was pleased to welcome the new candidates after which Lodge resumed the usual business.

The ladies enjoyed a half hour of pleasant visiting with a cup of tea and cake.

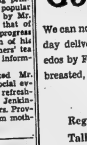
Queen Victoria H-S Assoc. Holds Meeting

The first regular meeting of Queen Victoria Home and School Association was held on October 15 with a record attendance. The meeting opened with the president, Mrs. E. Beatty, welcoming many interested parents and the full teaching staff.

Mr. Reid took the room count, Miss Victanen being the winner with the junior banner, and Mr. Marner the senior.

At the short business session it was decided the school would hold a skate sale on November 13th.

Mrs. R. Scott introduced the first guest speaker, Mr. Dore Cox, superintendent of the Ontario School for the Deaf, who gave an interesting and revealing address on the United Appeal.



He explained the budget of the campaign and how through the courtesy of the employer, it was possible for the wage earner to contribute a small donation each pay day to aid each organization without too great a burden to himself.

Mrs. Lepore thanked Mr. Dexter for assuring hope for the success of the campaign.

The second guest, Mr. J. Cousins, B.A., supervising principal, who returned by popular request, was introduced by Mr. Frink. His topic was that of the older child and his progress in school, a continuation of his address at the new mothers' tea which the parents found informative.

Mrs. McCabe thanked Mr. Cousins after which a social evening was enjoyed with refreshments served by Mrs. Jenkinson, Mrs. Savage and Mrs. Provins, assisted by the room mothers of grade seven.

Wife Preserves

With the abundance of vegetables around, it's a good idea to buy with an eye to the inside. Recurved wovens with long floats, for example, needs special handling to avoid snags.

ALLAN — BARAGAR

Mr. and Mrs. Francis Fraser Allan are shown cutting the wedding cake following their recent marriage in Centenary Alliance Church, Bethesda. The bride is the former Miss Eleanor Ruth Baragar, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest R. Baragar of Belleville, and the groom is the son of Mr. Francis Allan, Saskatchewan, and the late Mrs. Allan. (Photo by William E. Riley, Belleville.)

White baskets of multi-colored gladioli, interspersed with autumn colored chrysanthemums and ferns, formed an attractive setting in the Christian and Missionary Alliance Tabernacle, Belleville, on Saturday, October 11, at 2 p.m., when the marriage of Eleanor Ruth Baragar, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest R. Baragar, of Belleville, to Francis Fraser Allan, of Allan, Saskatchewan, son of Mr. Norman Allan, and the late Mrs. Allan was solemnized by the Reverend Gordon Eckville Palmer, pastor of the Tabernacle. White satin bows attached with wine-colored 'mums decorated the guest pews.

Mrs. J. B. Pickard presided at the organ for the prelude and processional and accompanied Miss Lenore Dixon in her rendition of "Together With Jesus," during the signing of the register, while both the organist, Mrs. Pickard and the pianist, Miss Grace Veley, played during the recessional.

Given in marriage by her father, Mr. Ernest Baragar, the bride was lovely in her bridal gown of embroidered French lace over satin fashioned with pointed molded bodice and high, round neckline with Peter Pan collar edged with seed pearls. The long sleeves ended in lily-points over the wrists. The floor length skirt of brocaded lace over satin fell in graceful folds over satin petticoat, stimulated pearls and sequins with embroidered motifs repeated in tulle illusion and carried a cascade bouquet of red roses and white chrysanthemums.

Miss Dorothy Atyeo, of Belleville, as maid of honor, was attractively gowned in tangerine crystalette taffeta over matching under slip. She carried a bouquet of white and copper-toned 'mums centred with red roses.

The two bridesmaids, Miss Carolyn Harwood, and Miss Mary Simpson, both of Belleville, were attired in leaf green jet copper-toned crystalette, respectively, with matching feather headdresses, and carrying nosegays of bronze and yellow 'mums, and bronze 'mums centred with yellow roses.

Sidney Jr. Farmers Plan Coming Events

The October meeting of Sidney Junior Farmers was held on Thursday at the 4th Line Community Centre.

Miss Frances Tucker, president, called the meeting to order. The secretary read a letter of invitation from the Canadian Order of Foresters, Pleton, to their dance on October 17th.

The members were asked for fund-making ideas. It was decided that a hard time sock-hop be held at the Stirling Community hall. The suggested date for this dance is November 21st.

Mrs. Dick Moore moved that a donation be given to the 4th line community for the use of the hall, and arrangements decided on for the next meeting to be "Parents' Night." This meeting will be held in the middle of November at the 4th Line community centre.

The committees for the banquet to be held in January were chosen.

The president extended a warm welcome to Northumberland Junior Farmers who were present at the evening. The Northumberland Juniors showed their talent by contributing a humorous recitation and a quartet number to the program.

All enjoyed a sing-song led by Miss Wanda Mallory and Mrs. Dick Moore.

Miss Kay Homan, from Thurlow Junior Farmers, presented the beautiful silver which she had taken on her trip to the British Isles.

The club's thanks were extended to Miss Homan by the president.

After the meeting was adjourned everyone enjoyed lunch and dancing.

H. and S. Assoc. Will Hold Regional Conference Saturday

The regional conference of area C of the Home and School Association will be held Saturday morning and afternoon at Quinte Secondary School.

Area C comprises an area bounded by Pickering on the west to Deseronto on the east, Hastings County on the south to Whitney, north of Bancroft, on the north.

Special speaker for the morning session will be L. A. Kelly, administrator of the Belleville Public Schools.

Mrs. T. M. Weatherhead, of Toronto, president of the Ontario Federation of Home and School Association, will be the guest speaker for the afternoon session. She will address the delegates on the topic, "The Role of the Home."

Mrs. Weatherhead was named to the coveted executive post in the Federation last spring and was installed, along with other new officers, at the organization's 39th annual convention held in Hamilton in the new president she heads a provincial membership of 141,391, an increase of 11,343 over last year.

A Queen's University graduate, Mrs. Weatherhead served on a farm home near Prescott. She taught for two years in Spencerville Continuation school. While working toward her degree, she taught for a time in a country school.

She married a Toronto barrister, also a Queen's graduate, in 1925. They have four children, three sons and a daughter; three of whom are honor graduates of Victoria College, University of Toronto. The youngest, Gerald, is attending Victoria College and is in his third year.

Mrs. Weatherhead has held various offices in Whitney Home and School Association and in the Toronto H and S Council. She became president of the Whitney Home and School Association for a two - year term in 1941, and from 1950-53 was president of the Toronto Home and School Council.

She served with the Ontario Federation as Parent Education chairman and for the last five years as vice - presidential post. She is also a past president of the Toronto Branch of Queen's University Alumni.

A panel discussion one the theme "Citizens of Tomorrow," will also be held during the afternoon session.

All interested persons, mothers and particularly fathers, are cordially invited to attend the conference.

F. WINDSOR AND SON CANNIFTON

WEDDINGS

KAWZENUK — DEVOLIN

Tall colored gladioli, tastefully setting in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Stirling, recently, for the marriage of Muriel Joan Devolin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Devolin, Stirling, to Mr. Paul Kawzenuk, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Kawzenuk of Oshawa. The Rev. W. H. V. Walker officiated in the double-ring ceremony.

Mrs. Harry Morrow presided at the console of the organ and accompanied the soloist, Miss Marilyn Eggleton, of Toronto, who sang the "Lord's Prayer" before the ceremony and "The Wedding Prayer" during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was charming in her gown of white peau de soie with chapel train. Seed pearls and French lace trimmed the round necklines. Her shoulder-length veil of Swiss net fell from a crown of mother-of-pearl sequins and she carried a cascade of red roses.

The maid of honor, Miss Shirley Devolin, sister of the bride, and bridesmaids, Mrs. Glen Anderson, Miss Elinor Woods and Miss Irene Kawzenuk, were identically styled street-length frocks of powder blue velvet. Contrasting blue satin cummerbunds with matching shoes and blue satin picture hats, trimmed with velvet; velvet mitts and pearl earrings, completed their costumes. They carried bouquets of white daisy 'mums.

Miss Beverley Juby and Miss Mary Lou Juby, cousins of the bride, were flower girls, wearing powder blue velvet with satin bonnets trimmed with velvet. They carried nosegays of blue and white 'mums.

Gordon McGee, of Oshawa, was ring-bearer.

Mr. Bill Kawzenuk was groomsman for his brother, while the ushers were Mr. Michael Kawzenuk, and Mr. Neil Attaway, Oshawa, and Mr. Bill Pritchett, Stirling.

Following the ceremony, the reception was held in the church parlors. The bride's table was centred with a three-tier wedding cake decorated with bride and groom ornaments.

The bride's mother chose for her daughter's wedding, a gown of rosewood lace with crystal-etie cummerbund with navy velvet picture hat, gloves and shoes, and corsage of blue and white 'mums. She was assisted in the receiving line by the bride groom's mother wearing navy lace with white feather hat and gloves and corsage of white 'mums.

The Rev. W. H. V. Walker, acting as master of ceremonies, proposed the toast to the bride, to which the bridegroom responded. A toast to the bridesmaids was proposed by the groom's brother, Mr. Bill Kawzenuk. Mr. Charles Devolin, father of the bride, spoke briefly as did Mr. Kawzenuk, father of the bridegroom.

Mr. Walker called on Mr. Harry Woods, Oshawa, uncle of the bride, and Mr. Roy Juby, of Peterborough, uncle of the bride, who also spoke.

Guests were present from Toronto, Oshawa, Peterborough, Kingston, Bancroft, Belleville and Madoc.

For a wedding trip to the United States, the bride donned a tweed suit with gold accessories. On their return they will reside in Oshawa.

Previous to her marriage Mrs. Kawzenuk was honored at a miscellaneous shower by Miss Audrey Allison, Oshawa; Miss Elinor Woods, of Oshawa; Miss Lois Cameron of Oshawa; Miss Lois King, Oshawa; Miss Barbara Bellhouse, Oshawa; also a shower by Mrs. Glen Anderson and Mrs. Jack Hanna, Stirling. General Motors executive staff presented her with a reversible all-wool blanket.

SOPINKA — ROWE

Tall white standards of bronze and yellow 'mums were the setting of a lovely autumn wedding, solemnized at the United Church, Sidney Creek, Ontario, at 3 p.m. on October 18, by the Rev. D. L. Bath, when Dorothy Louise Rowe of Toronto, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Howard Rowe, became the bride of Theodore Sopinka, son of Mr. and Mrs. Metro Sopinka, Sidney Creek, Ontario.

The church organist provided the traditional wedding music and accompanied the soloist, Miss Bonnie Rowe, Frankford, Ontario, niece of the bride, who sang during the signing of the register "The Lord's Prayer."

Given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Raymond Rowe, of Frankford, the bride was charmingly attired in a floor-length gown of white nylon and French imported lace with full flowing skirt. She wore a finger-tip veil of tulle illusion, held in place by a coronet of seed pearls and carried a cascade of red roses and snowdrift 'mums.

Miss Marion Frederick of Toronto, was attired in Dior blue velveteen, with matching head-dress and carried a crescent of pink carnations.

The little flower girl, Meribeth Rowe, of Frankford, niece of the bride, in white nylon over blue taffeta, with matching head-dress, carried a tiny basket of white baby 'mums and little red roses.

The bridegroom was attended by his brother, Mr. John Sopinka of Toronto and the ushers were brothers of the bridegroom acted as ushers.

The wedding dinner was held at Alpine Hotel where the bride's sister-in-law received wearing black jersey, white accessories and a corsage of white snowdrift 'mums and red roses. The bridegroom's mother assisted, wearing blue lace with matching accessories and a corsage of red roses.

The bride's table was appointed with fall flowers, centred by the traditional wedding cake. For travelling to their new home in Edmonton, the bride chose a beige wool suit with brown accessories and China mink jacket.

Guests were present from Windsor, St. Catharines, Hamilton, Toronto, Belleville, Brighton and Frankford.

Prior to her marriage the bride received a miscellaneous shower from her office co-workers; a presentation from the office employees of the Toronto Transport Company, and a linen shower by Mrs. Ernest Brown.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Joseph Collins are shown signing the register in the Church of St. Michael the Archangel, Belleville, following their recent marriage. The bride is the former Miss Geraldine Margaret Soaft, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur J. Soaft, of Belleville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Collins of Tweed. (Photo by William E. Riley, Belleville.)

COLLINS — SOAFT

On Tuesday, October 7th, in the Church of St. Michael the Archangel, Belleville, the marriage of Geraldine Margaret Soaft, of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur J. Soaft, to Michael Joseph Collins, of Tweed, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Collins, was solemnized by the Reverend Joseph Collins, brother of the bridegroom.

Mrs. Robert Callaghan was soloist and the Reverend Sister Mary Bibiana presided at the organ.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was lovely in her portrait bridal gown of white peau de soie with empire waist design. The bouffant, wall-length skirt was caught up at the hemline with a bow reveal-ing the white satin, Italian pumps. Her veil of nylon mist was cupped by a crown-of pearl beaddress, and she carried a cascade of red roses and white pom-pom 'mums.

Mrs. Gerard O'Connor, sister of the bride, was matron of honor, attired in sapphire blue peau de soie in sheath style with bouffant net overskirt, matching sapphire pumps, and pillbox headdress. A crescent of cane pink carnations and white pom pom 'mums was a striking contrast.

Mr. Donald Lapin, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, was best man, while Mr. Robert Soaft and Mr. Simon Merauw were ushers.

The reception was held in the Knights of Columbus hall, where the bride's mother received the guests, elegantly attired in silver - pink iridescent taffeta with deep pink hat, mink scarf and black suede accessories. Her corsage was of pink roses. Assisting was the bridegroom's mother, charming in hunter's green, with matching hat and black accessories. Her corsage was of pink roses.

For the wedding trip to New York City, the bride wore a deep, twilight blue suit with silver mink collar, while cloche hat and gardenia corsage.

The bride was honored, previous to her marriage, by a shower given by Mrs. Douglas Jones; at a presentation by Deacon Brothers, where the bride was a member of the office staff, and at a presentation by St. Michael's Catholic Library.

CANNIFTON-CORBYVILLE W. I.

The October meeting of Cannifton-Corbyville W.I. was held in the form of a potluck supper in the United Church dining hall Monday evening with 80 people enjoying the repast.

Following this a short meeting was held. The president, Mrs. D. Windsor, presided. There were 14 members present.

Plans were discussed re attending the area convention to be held in Belleville later this week. It was decided to enter to the postman's banquet the third Wednesday in November.

Returns were made by those canvassing for the Blind.

A film of the items for Retarded Children at Plainfield, Ontario, was shown. Dr. Hartt of Kosiin, gave everyone an opportunity to ask questions regarding the subject following the film.

Mrs. A. Boyd expressed thanks to Dr. Hartt and the gentleman from the Department of Lands and Forests, who came to operate the projector. A small gift was presented from the proceeds of the evening were $6.95.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Beeckman

CONSIDERATE CO-WORKER WOULD NOT WEAR ALL-BLACK

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. A young woman with whom I work has recently become a widow. Since her husband's death she has been completely attired in black at all times. She feels that this is necessary in order to show respect for her late husband. Her friends here do not agree with her. Who is right?

2. Also she insists that no woman should attend a funeral unless she is dressed in black. Is this correct? — M.

1. Today women who carry on in their positions in the business world after the death of a loved one, customarily, and very wisely, dispense with all-black mourning attire during working hours. They feel they should hold their grief in their own hearts, don't believe in expressing either their grief or their respect for the departed dear one by wearing mourning. And with a proper and kindly consideration for other people, particularly for co-workers, they are unwilling to inflict on them the depressing all-black attire. Your co-worker could wear her customary business attire; or she could wear a simple black dress, but add lightest it with, say, a white collar or small scarf; or she may wear a gray-and-white suit.

2. No. The women members of the bereaved family usually wear black dresses at a funeral. Other women, relatives and friends need not wear black, but should, with proper consideration, wear clothes of dark colors.

THEY DON'T LIKE THE IDEA OF "DUTCH TREAT-DINNER" BRIDAL SHOWER

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

If you will please answer my question in your column it will not only help me but also the other girls who have received the same invitation I have just received. The invitation is to a shower for a bride-to-be, and I have been informed that this shower is to be a dinner-shower, and that each person who accepts the invitation has to pay $2.50 for the dinner. I have never heard of such a thing. I have always thought that when a girl or group of girls give a shower, they are responsible for the plans and also the finances of the shower. I know of women that a shower means that each guest brings a gift, but I never heard of sending a person an invitation to an affair and, when they accept the invitation, telling them they have to pay. What do you think about this? — A.

I'm wondering what kind of invitation was sent? It should, of course, have made clear that the invitation was to a dinner-shower, and that each guest, with her acceptance, was to send $2.50 for her dinner-ticket. If you and some of the other girls invited have no interest in accepting this gracious kind of invitation, would enjoy going to the customary simple daytime shower but not to a Dutch Treat-dinner shower, then you each should write a note to the hostess regretting the invitation. You may or may not send a shower gift, as you wish.

CORRECT NAME-FORM FOR WOMAN LEGALLY SEPARATED

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband and I are now legally separated, this very recently. We are not divorced. My mother, who is generally right in her knowledge about such things, insists that in this circumstance I should continue to use my married name; for example, Mrs. John Robinson. Actually if this form of name is correct for me to use, I would very much prefer to use it, as I detest the form "Mrs. Margaret Robinson." Is Mrs. John Robinson correct?

— Legally separated

— Yes.

NOT CUSTOMARY, BUT PROPER, FOR WOMAN TO CHECK COAT

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it proper for a woman, when she is lunching or dining with a man in a restaurant, to check her coat? — Edith R.

She usually doesn't check her coat, but she may if she wishes to . . . and she probably would wish to check a raincoat.

Beautify Your Dinner Plates With Colorful Fall Vegetables

by Mary Moore

You know these menu-makers folks? They always say very the color and texture of the vegetables you serve for dinner — one yellow or red and one green?

Dinner Menus

by Mary Moore

THURSDAY

Oriental Beef (see Wednesday); Carrots; Buttered Steamed Chinese Lettuce; Salad Bowl of Tossed Greens with Thousand Island Dressing; Ice Cream with Shredded Brazils; Shortbread Cookies; Coffee.

SUNDAY

Cantonese Chicken with Pineapple and Vegetables (see Wednesday); Broccoli; Corn on Cob; Stuffed Tomato Salad with Sliced Cucumber Border; Apricot Pie a la Mode; Coffee.

To give the fall color treatment to the vegetables on your dinner plates, this month, bring the sun-drenched vegetables indoors on a cool October day. Here are two for the yellow and two for the green.

BAKED STUFFED SQUASH:

One medium acorn squash; 3 tablespoons butter or margarine, 1 small onion, minced, 2 cups soft bread crumbs, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, dash of nutmeg and grated cheese. Wash squash and cut in half. Scrape out fibres and seeds. Turn squash upside down on greased baking dish and bake at 425 deg. Fahr, for 15 minutes. Meanwhile, melt butter or margarine in a saucepan. Add onion, cook till limp, Stir in bread crumbs, salt and pepper. Remove squash from oven, turn right side up and fill with stuffing. Sprinkle with nutmeg and grated cheese. Return to oven and bake 15 to 20 minutes or until squash is very tender. Serves 4.

CRISPY CORN FRITTERS:

One cup sifted flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1½ teaspoons salt, 3 tablespoons sugar, 2-3 cup all bran, 1 beaten egg, 3-4 cup milk, 1½ cups whole kernel corn, fresh or canned, 2 teaspoons melted butter. Sift together flour, baking powder, salt and sugar and mix with all bran. Combine egg and milk; add to dry ingredients mixing till smooth. Stir in corn and melted butter. Drop by tablespoons into deep hot fat (365 deg. Fahr.). Fry until golden brown, turning only once. Drain on absorbent paper. Serve hot, 4 cups. Yield — 15 fritters.

BROCCOLI WITH CURRY SAUCE:

Wash 1½ lbs. broccoli and trim off a bit of end of stems. If any of the stems are more than 1" diameter, slash stem 4 to 6 times lengthwise. Cook covered, in small amount of boiling water that has been salted until just tender about 10 to 15 minutes. Top with Curry Sauce; ¼ teaspoon each dry mustard and paprika, ¾ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon sugar, 1 egg beaten, 3 tablespoons mild vinegar, 2 tablespoons salad oil, 1 tablespoons mashed butter, ½ teaspoon curry powder, 1 chopped green onion. Combine mustard, salt, sugar, paprika, egg, vinegar and salad oil in top of double boiler. Cook over hot water until thickened, stirring constantly. Add butter, curry powder and onion. Serve hot over hot broccoli.

SPINACH CASSEROLE:

Put 2-3 cups uncooked white rice in sauce pan, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 1-3 cups water along with rice. Bring to vigorous sil over high heat. Turn down heat to low. Cover with lid and simmer 14 minutes. Remove saucepan from heat but leave lid on 10 minutes more. Mix together 1, 10½ oz. tin mushroom soup, 1 cup water, ½ teaspoon salt and pepper to teaspoon. Wash and drain spinach. Cut up large leaves. Take 6 cups spinach and layer alternately rice to which 1 teaspoon minced onion has been added, soup and spinach in well-greased 1½ quart casserole or ring mould, beginning and ending with spinach. Press down with back of spoon. Cover well with greased lid or aluminum foil. Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. for 30 to 40 minutes. Remove from oven when spinach is tender and over the top of the spinach place two slices of process cheese which has been cut into strips, arranging lattice fashion. Place under broiler until cheese browns.

Women's Activities

FRANKFORD W.M.S.

The Woman's Missionary Society of Frankford United Church met on Thursday afternoon in the church. It was a Thanksgiving meeting. It opened with quiet music on the organ by Mrs. Sid Martin.

Mrs. Fred Charlesworth gave a thought for the day on "Thanksgiving".

Mrs. C. D. Powell and Mrs. J. M. Dafoe were in charge of devotions. Mrs. C. D. Powell led in prayer; Mrs. J. Dafoe read the 100th Psalm and gave a talk on Thanksgiving.

Mrs. Charlesworth gave a welcome to the visiting W.M.S. ladies from Wooler, Trenton, Johnstown, Zion, Stockdale and Hatawa. Reports were given by various W.M.S. officers. Mrs. Sid Martin gave an organ solo. The program was as follows: reading, "My Thanksgiving Song" by Mrs. F. E. Remfrey; vocal solo, "How Great Thou Art" by Mrs. Walter McCrady.

Mrs. Fred Charlesworth introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. Townsend of Hillcrest St. Church, Belleville. Her talk on her six weeks tour of Europe and where she spent her Sundays was enjoyed by all. She stressed also, "Hope, Duty and Love" the four letter words that have a deep meaning.

Mrs. C. B. Reid thanked the guest for her address.

Greetings were given from W.M.S. presidents.

Later, the ladies retired to Rose Lowery Hall and refreshments were served and a social half hour enjoyed.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Mrs. L. T. — Elaine dates outside of our faith.

Elaine T. — I can't date to please my parents.

Mrs. L. T. — My husband and I are terribly worried about our 26-year-old daughter who dates men not of our faith.

We aren't prejudiced or narrow-minded and we think there are good and bad individuals in all churches, but we don't think mixed marriages are good. There are so many problems in marriage, why look for trouble?

We have tried to get Elaine to come to the various social activities connected with our church, but she either refuses or she goes and then complains for weeks afterward about the awful time she had and how much she disliked all the young men at the gathering. She criticizes them so much that there is nothing left of them by the time she gets through. But I don't see where the ones she goes out with are so superior.

Elaine T. — I am not religious and it means nothing at all to me to marry within the faith my parents claim I belong to. How, by the way, can you belong to faith you don't believe in?

Anyway, as it happens, I have not yet married any of the men I have been dating and there is nobody in sight about whom I feel serious. I can't see any harm in dating outside your religion. Dating is not the same as marriage.

My parents just don't understand that I can't relax and enjoy myself if I am forced to go out with one of the jerks they recommend. Somehow the ones they want me to go out with are always the worst specimens. They don't treat me nearly as nicely as the boys I have dated out of my own choice. I can't date to please my parents.

• • • •

The Council: Elaine's excuse that she is merely dating, not marrying, doesn't hold up. She is perfectly aware that dating is preliminary to marriage — an essential preliminary in a society where marriages are not arranged by families.

We think that Elaine is being dishonest with her parents and, more important, herself, on other scores as well. Her wholesale rejection of the young men of her own faith is not a rational act. It is and unreasonable prejudice against her own kind.

In addition to devotion to God according to certain precepts, religious faith represents a family tradition that has been handed down through the ages. Certain traditions may change with the generations, but total rejection of the faith of our fathers involves a rejection of a good part of ourselves.

We'll make allowances for true religious conversion and for the fact that love and friendship dissolve barriers, but the fact remains that those who consistently go out of their way to find friends and marriage partners outside their own faith, have a compulsion to destroy part of their own personality. As long as this destructive need exists, the possibilities are not in favor of a successful marriage.

Family pressure probably won't make much of a dent in Elaine's attitudes, but we would urge her to try to be a little more realistic and to try to find the real facts behind her unreasonable prejudice against her own kind. We would also suggest that she expose herself to a greater understanding of the precepts of her own faith.

Belleville Presbyterian WMS Holds Rally at Centenary

A successful autumn rally of the west section of the Woman's Missionary Society of Belleville Presbyterial, was held at Centenary United church on October 17th.

Mrs. George Carlisle of Stirling, Presbyterial vice-president for the section, presided for the day, assisted by, which morning registration showed 56 in attendance, and 97 for afternoon, representing in all, — 12 Auxiliaries.

WORSHIP

Following the opening prayer and words of welcome by Mrs. Carlisle, the morning devotions were conducted by members of Alexandra Auxiliary. The Bible lessons, from Luke 10:25-37 and Matthew 25:31-46, were read by Mrs. Everett Hubble. Following this, Mrs. Ken Jones commenced on the lesson and offered prayer. Mrs. Harleigh Hamilton acted as pianist.

This story of the good Samaritan drew attention to man's responsibility to one another. Men and Nations will be judged somewhat according to their response to human need." "Inasmuch", said Christ," as ye did it not to one of the least of these, ye did it not to me."

Midday worship was in charge of Trenton King St. Auxiliary. The lesson from John 17, read by Mrs. E. Smithrim, gave an intimate revelation of God's divine purpose. Mrs. H. Langdon gave the devotional talk, stressing that Jesus had prayed that the whole world might be one, and that all might believe that he had been sent by the Father. "The Great Commission, —" Go ye, and make disciples of all nations", included all men in the world community.

Mrs. S. Hugh's solo, "The Beautiful Garden of Prayer", added music to the worship.

BUSINESS

Mrs. David Lucy of Stirling, acted as secretary and read the minutes of the last rally, in which mention was made of the invitation to hold the 1959 Rally at Mt. Pleasant church. Those present were warmly welcomed by Mrs. S. Harder, president of Centenary Auxiliary and by the minister, the Rev. R. Hall.

CHRISTIAN STEWARDSHIP AND FINANCES

Mrs. H. M. Davis of Belleville, the secretary for Christian Stewardship, was introduced by Mrs. R. G. Coulter, the treasurer, also from Belleville. Together they explained, in question and answer method, how missionary work of the Society is maintained and the many phases of Christian stewardship. A short definition of which is, "Christianity in Action."

Explanation was made of the use of "In Memoriam" cards, and life memberships for Auxiliary, Mission Band, and Baby Band members. Bequests are donations bequeathed the WMS by will of members deceased. There are in all Conference Branches across Canada and 102 Presbyterials, of which one is the Belleville Presbyterial, with a membership of 3155. The total year's objective is $1,360,000. for work at Home and Overseas Missions. The Belleville Presbyterial accepted for this year, an allocation of $77,314.

Any monies, over and above the allocations met, go for replacements urgently needed, or new projects (G.B.A. — Gifts for Building Advance.)

This year, two projects are in mind—

1. For Canada — an operating room and equipment for the John Neil Hospital, Cold Lake, Alberta.

2. For Overseas — money for a library at Ewha University, Korea. The work of the WMS is extensive, with heavy commitments, thus, money raised for the work should not be diverted to other channels.

LITERATURE

Mrs. Percy MacMullen of Stirling, literature secretary, gave an excellent resume of the new study books for the year, for use of all age groups of the missionary family. "Concerns of a Continent", by James Hoffman, is the new book for Auxiliaries, dealing with Christian challenge for North American neighbors from Alaska to the Caribbean. It shows how countries may learn and find new interest in one another.

Other books of the study packet, as well as items in the Bookshelf, were displayed: — "Journeying With the Years" by Mrs. V. Pratt, is still a best seller, as is also, "My Faith is Enough", by Alan Walker, a new book for Baby Band leaders will soon be off the press. Attractive folders, made by Allen School pupils were on display, depicting life in Japan.

Book sales at the rallies are encouraging.

YEAR AT WORK

Each year, certain phases of the work are given special consideration at the rallies. Departments stressed this year were: Mission Band, — citizenship; — community friendship — supply — Mission Band. Respectively, the secretaries for these were Mrs. Nesbitt McClure of Picton; Mrs. Percy Bell of Moscow; Mrs. C. W. Neelands of Deseronto and Mrs. Maurice Clancy of Holloway.

Mrs. Clarence Holmes, Presbyterial president, introduced each of these secretaries and interviewed them concerning aspects of their special work.

The aim and importance of Mission Band was explained, with regret that leaders are lacking. The Auxiliary members were asked to take personal interest in the Mission Bands.

Besides the regular supply allocations many other practical ways were mentioned of showing concern for others. Being a Christian citizen is part of life. Through various governing bodies look after social welfare, one also must show concern. The aged, the lonely, the newcomers, the ill are found everywhere. There are many varieties of human need, but word of friendship is one of the most vital. All need friendship!

Mrs. Holmes stressed the object of the W.M.S. and the need for more concern for others, not just in a local sense, but in a wider outreach of Christian fellowship and service.

"WHEN A CHILD ASKS"

This is a new program, heard Saturday morning over many radio stations. At the close of the morning session through kindness of Mr. H. Davis and Mrs. N. McKibbon, a recording from one of these programs was heard. Many a mother will benefit from "When A Child Asks", as she looks for the answer to some of those searching questions of children.

NOONDAY HOUR

The noon hour was a time of happy fellowship, as all enjoyed the delicious dinner prepared by Centenary women and viewed a film strip shown by Mrs. Donald Baxter, of Bloomfield, and Mrs McKibbon. It was a trip "From Sea to Sea" in the United Church of Canada", where 113 ministers serve on Home Mission Fields. This was much appreciated.

AFTERNOON SPEAKER

Miss Ida MacKenzie of Toronto, the afternoon speaker, was introduced by Mrs. R. W. Spafford, of Belleville. Miss MacKenzie a W.M.S. community worker at Regent Park United church, presented a vivid and most interesting picture of the development in that area and the life and work of the church there. The area of Regent Park covers an area of three major city blocks; an area extended from Parliament St. to River St. and from Dundas to Gerrard.

This had definitely been a sub-standard housing area, with 50 per cent of the buildings, tenant occupied, and most of them unfit for living — cold in winter — overheated in summer — no conveniences — infested with cockroaches — lice, dirt and squalor — rickety buildings, heated by stoves — a constant fire hazard.

Sometimes one is apt to criticize those placed in these slum houses, but if one were in their place, would one be any different from them?

"On the wings of imagination, may I ride,
Into the lives of others, and live at their side.
Forgetting myself and the life I live,
Entering another's life, to live as He lives —
If I were he, and this happened to me,
From him, no different, would I be."

("Living With Others" by Lois Lenski").

Ever since 1946 there had been a hue and cry over the need for something to be done for decent housing in this area. Toronto was having a terrible time to house its people, but a long last, with federal provincial and municipal co-operation things took shape. The Regent Park Housing Authority was given control of construction, and management of this housing problem.

823 families had to be moved somewhere; old houses torn down new property bought; and new houses built. By 1952 there were 1329 housing units where 5000 families were housed in five 3-storey apartments. Recently an additional eighteen building was built with apartments for the older folk.

This Regent Park Project is unique, in that, its rental is geared according to a family's income: A new baby arrives, and the rent is reduced for a time. A husband is out of work and again some adjustment is made in his rent. Naturally, there is a long waiting list for these homes. People have benefited greatly, in that, cleanliness and the attractiveness of their homes has affected their entire morals. There still are problems of human nature, where the influence of the church is needed. It tries to help and establish a fellowship with these people.

Patterns of living had been poor. There were problems of conflict between husband and wife; there were teen-age discipline problems and problems with even the little ones.

In 1951 the Home Mission Board united three congregations in the Oak United Church and a year after the bulldozers had started work, in December of 1954, the new church held the opening service and dedication. The new church serving the Regent Park community, seats 300, and has ample space for weekly groups, and aims to give these people, our neighbors of Regent Park, something for life, that they cannot get any where else.

Miss MacKenzie closed her address with an earnest plea for more young women to enter the work of Home Missions.

Highlights

from the School for Leaders, held in Whitby, were given by Mrs. O. Wilmot, a delegate. This was the 36th anniversary of the school and 110 full time delegates were enrolled. Mrs. Wilmot's report was much enjoyed by so many who never had the privilege of attending the school.

Mrs. Holmes presented a summary of ideas received from those answering roll call who made suggestions for a successful Auxiliary meeting. Some mentioned were: prayer-fellowship, giving members opportunity to participate, trying new methods of presentation, and making sure the service has a spiritual uplift.

Throughout the day, the Centenary women handled the registration. Morning offering was received by Mrs. Ross Dafoe and Mrs. Avery Martin of Scott's Auxiliary, with Mrs. Corrie Pollard making the dedication.

In the afternoon, River Valley took the offering. Those present were: Mrs. Glen Bush and Mrs. Jack Black. The devotional theme made by Mrs. Ernest Carr. Mrs. Percy Sutherland's lovely solo, "I'm Sure I Shall Not Pass Again This Way," was much appreciated. Mrs. Harold Hancock kindly acted as organist for the day.

Courtesies were extended by Mrs. Ernest Phillips to the folk of Centenary, the guest speaker, the president of the section and members of executive, and all who had in any way helped to make the rally a day of help and inspiration.

Benediction by the Rev. R. Rich and brought to a close this day of happy fellowship.

David Adams Stars in Ballet

Winnipeg-born David Adams, premier danseur with the National Ballet of Canada, has danced his way to international attention in Europe as well as Canada, the United States and Mexico. Noted for his superlative leaps and splendid physique, the handsome six-footer joined the Canadian company when it was founded by Celia Franca in 1951.

After early training in Winnipeg, Mr. Adams was sent on a scholarship to Sadler's Wells school in England. Later he danced with the Wells before joining the Metropolitan Ballet where he had leading roles.

As a choreographer Mr. Adams has created a number of works for the National Ballet Company and for television. With Miss Lois Smith, prima ballerina of the Canadian company, he has been filmed in several of the "Grand" pas de deux from the masterworks of ballet.

"David Adams . . . is an excellent technician with an elevation which at times can be breath-taking. To that he adds a husky manliness very well representing the Canadian ideal of manhood."—London Times.

Mr. Adams will star in the National Ballet's one performance in Belleville, October 28. Excellent seats are still available.

The program to be presented in Belleville consists of three ballets and will appeal to people of all ages and tastes. The first ballet, Les Rendez-vous, is a gay, light-hearted romp by the famous English choreographer, Frederick Ashton. Les Sylphides, the second ballet, is in the romantic tradition and combines pure poetry of motion with the immortal music of Chopin. The third is the ever popular Nutcracker Ballet (Act IV), which presents charming and exotic dances from many lands, including the Dance of the Sugar Plum Fairy, set to the well known Tchaikowsky score.

CARMEL— Many attended the anniversary service on Sunday. The junior choir sang during the morning service and was enjoyed, with Mrs. Clare Horton at the piano. Four ladies sang a selection, which was much appreciated. Also Miss Donna Robins provided accordion music, and Donnie Armstrong sang a solo. Everyone enjoyed the pastor of Frankford circuit, Rev. Ridout Riddell, a close friend of Mr. McCrea's of the Carmel appointment. Both were friends in northern Ireland and are still in the work here.

The pastor, who was guest speaker at the evening service and spoke of the "Seven last words of Jesus at Calvary." The senior choir provided the music and was enjoyed.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Patterson entertained Mr. and Mrs. Riddell and Mr. and Mrs. R. J. McCrea visitors at the home of Mr. and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Armstrong were entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Dafoe.

Mrs. C. Ketchuson and Miss Leona Morton, of Belleville, were visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clare Horton.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Robinson were visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Murie Robinson.

Mr. and Mrs. Kingly and Mr. and Mrs. Heath were visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. Sullivan.

Mrs. Edna Moorman spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Harry Moorman in town. She also enjoyed the anniversary service at Bridge Street United Church with her friends.

Canada's Farmers Had Good Year Despite Small Grain Crop Bank Review Shows

MONTREAL (CP)—The Bank of Montreal says Canada's farmers have had a good year despite a small grain crop and there are grounds for "cautious optimism" for the future.

The bank says in its monthly Business Review for October that "although grain crops were among the smallest in the postwar period, a buoyant market for livestock has contributed to a substantial increase in returns to farmers from the sale of their products."

Preliminary official estimates of farm cash income for the first six months of 1958 amounted to $1,000,000,000, a 6% per cent increase over the same period a year earlier and the highest first-half figure ever recorded.

UNUSUAL YEAR

Unusual circumstances contributed to the improvement, says the review.

Grain sales, except for flax, have been up compared with 1957, but the increase in income from grain has actually declined because of reduced participation by producers, payments and farmers' repayments under advance payments previously under the Prairie Grain Advance Payments Act.

Deliveries of wheat and oats reports increased 21 per cent over 1957 to the highest quarterly total in bushels, the bank says.

But future prospects are clouded by the possibility of vigorous efforts by the U.S. government to dump its huge surplus wheat." The United States crop was believed up 30 per cent from last year, and there was a possibility of stronger Russian competition.

Increased export, coupled with increased demand for livestock and grain, was reducing Canadian grain surpluses.

Soviet Writers Bemoan Defeat Of Soccer Club

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Soviet soccer writers today bemoaned Russia's 5-0 defeat by England in London Wednesday and said the result showed that the lesson of the world cup had not been learned.

Under the heading England's Revenge, the trade union newspaper Trud said the first half was even enough but when England was three up the Soviet players to all intents and purposes ceased resistance.

The Communist youth league daily Komsomolskaya Pravda criticized the state football authorities for not taking steps to raise the level of Soviet play after the world championships in Sweden last spring.

It said the Soviet Union had never suffered such a big defeat and added: "Clearly we must once more turn to a discussion about the state of the London game."

The newspaper Soviet Sport took a similar line and criticized preparations for the match.

The Communist party newspaper Pravda and the Soviet government newspaper Izvestia carried brief reports of the match without comment.

Public School Trustees' Body Elects Officers

HAMILTON (CP) — Rev. Gren Morgan of Port Arthur was elected president of the Public School Trustees Association of Ontario Wednesday, succeeding Orval Groves of Sault Ste. Marie.

Other officers elected at the close of the annual convention include: Vice-presidents, David Mc-Bishop, Woodstock; Bryson Comeau, Cornwall, and J. Lawrence Tron, Pembroke; honorary presidents, Leslie H. Saunders, Toronto, and Mrs. E. Hamilton, Ottawa; honorary vice - presidents, W. J. Saunders, Kingston, and Walter Watts, Thorold.

Among directors named were Mrs. A. J. MacDonald, Tillsonburg; A. B. Billman, Kingston; Mrs. R. Seaman-Kirkland, Lindsay; Mrs. M. McLellan, Brantford; Lorne Leard, Cranbrum Township and John Smith, Kitchener.

NATIONAL ORIGINS

British origin is ascribed to 46 per cent of all Canadians, French origin to 31 per cent.

Civilian throws earth on wreckage of crashed British airliner at Anzio, Italy, in attempt to quench flames. The British plane, a Viscount turbo-jet carrying 31 persons, collided with an Italian jet fighter plane four miles above the bloody World War II battlefield. Collision tore out front of the Viscount and most of those aboard it were sucked out into the air. All of them were killed. Pilot of the fighter plane parachuted into the sea and was rescued. Bell Phone Bid For Rate Hike Before Cabinet

OTTAWA (CP)—Bell Telephone Company's bid for an average rate increase of 6.8 per cent in Ontario and Quebec was before the federal cabinet today.

An appeal filed Wednesday by eight provincial cities except Quebec and Quebec—asked the cabinet to throw out the $17,000,000-a-year boost it let into effect Nov. 1.

The provinces were supported by the Union of British Columbia Municipalities. The Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities was to file a separate supporting letter.

Cabinet informants were unable to say immediately when the ministers would be able to deal with either or both of the appeals before they decide.

PM LEAVES TUESDAY

Prime Minister Diefenbaker was out of the capital when the eight-province petition was filed. He is leaving on a round-the-world tour Tuesday.

The increases awarded Bell by the board of transport commissioners would average four per cent on long distance charges within the two provinces, six per cent on provincial charges and seven per cent on business phones.

Main basis of the increase was a change in the company's taxation setup.

A previous increase of about seven per cent, based on an earlier change, had been put into effect in Quebec in April. Under this plan the company proposed to put away a deferred tax reserve and charge it to current years' service.

SWITCHED SYSTEM

In the present case, they changed their system of depreciation for income tax purposes, with the result that they now would pay more taxes. They would have to under the regulations but would run less chance of getting hit with higher taxes later.

The Ontario and Quebec municipalities and the eight provinces protested this, contending it was a means of augmenting the cabinet's earlier decision and arguing that the company should have full advantage now of benefits under the tax regulations.

The eight provinces not directly concerned got into the case—and the Union of B.C. Municipalities—because of a fear that such a tax precedent could lead to freight rate increases should the board allow the railways to adopt the system proposed by Bell.

Chapel Where Cardinals Will Elect New Pope Best Known Shrine of RC World

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Sistine Chapel, where cardinals will elect a new pope, is the official private chapel of popes and one of the best known shrines of the Roman Catholic world. Pope Pius XII built there in prayer for many hours.

The plain, fortress-like exterior of brick and marble contrasts with the interior, where privileged visitors are viewed by thousands of tourists every year.

The chapel is known to Italians as the Sistina. It is named after Pope Sixtus IV, who ordered it built adjacent to St. Peter's Basilica.

The chapel was completed in 1484, two years before Sixtus' death. It was consecrated Aug. 15, the Feast of the Assumption of the Virgin.

The architect was Giovanni de Dolci who also held the title of some of the greatest contemporary artists to decorate the walls. The contract, made Oct. 27, 1481, is in the Vatican archives.

Painters who worked on the walls included Botticelli, Pinturicchio, Ghirlandaio and Rosselli.

Then, 25 years after Sixtus' death, the genius Michelangelo was commissioned for the colossal project of decorating the vaulted ceiling.

Michelangelo, then at the peak of his artistic career, wrote in his diary May 10, 1508: "Today, I begin the work."

Four years later it was finished.

Sprawled on his back, he painted the story of Genesis, working in the reversed order. He began at the main entrance by depicting the fall of man and ended with his version of God separating light from darkness, over the altar.

Originally, Michelangelo had planned to paint only the 12 Apostles on the spandrels, but the actual ceiling covered with geometrical figures.

But his artistic imagination overruled this plan as a "poor thing." He told the pope he wanted to paint the entire ceiling. It is said that Michelangelo received 15,000 ducats. This likely had about the same purchasing power as $30,000 today.

The Michelangelo grandeur of conception transformed the entire chapel, stealing much of the show from Botticelli and the other 15th century painters.

In 1536, 24 years after completing the ceiling, Michelangelo returned to depict the Last Judgment on the entire rear wall of the chapel. It is a terrorizing chaos of horribly shaped devils, tortured souls and a wild, screaming humanity. The work leaves the viewer with no canny feeling.

Michelangelo completed his work in 1541.

The rectangular hall measures about 140 by 50 feet and has an arched windows on each side.

During the conclave, canopies over the cardinals' heads will keep them from seeing Michelangelo's story of Genesis but they turn their heads they can view his Last Judgment.

Tribute Is Paid Hon. G. Dunbar

OTTAWA (CP) — Some 400 friends, including Premier and Mrs. Leslie Frost, Wednesday night honored the veteran Liberal senator of political arenas.

Tributes to the Cornwall flowed freely during a testimonial dinner for Hon. George Harrison Dunbar at the Chateau Laurier hotel in Ottawa South in the Ontario legislature. He has been cabinet portfolios since 1943 and now is provincial secretary and registrar.

Premier Frost said Dunbar, editor of the Cornwall Standard-Freeholder, "has exhibited courage and determination in the face of opposition and criticism, has expressed doubts about the stability of the highest system of government for Asian countries.

The Asian cabinet system, he said, was based on having two parties joining into a coalition after obtaining an over-all majority in the assembly. When this situation could not be developed, there seemed to be difficulties because the people did not believe in coalition arrangements.

He admitted the British system had government now working in India, but said he could visualize that country falling into a period of uncertainties and difficulties if Prime Minister Nehru—"a great leader"—withdrew from politics.

Political developments in another Asian country, causing some disquiet to those who pin their faith in the parliamentary do-it-yourself Prime Minister Kwame Nkrumah's drive to centralize power in his own hands and to have the stripped local chieftains of much of the power they had enjoyed in development of opposition parties.

In all the fledgling nations, the basic difficulty is that the emotional appeal for independence has outrun the ability of the people to effectively exercise the functions of an enlightened electorate—functions which are the essence of democracy.

That is a long process, which indicates those independence governments will be a long time clearing up.

Canada Wins Fifth Straight Over Russia

MOSCOW (CP) — Canada's hockey team defeated Russia 5-3 Wednesday night for its fifth straight victory over the Soviet squad in a series of exhibition games.

Canada's Bill Hicke scored the winning goal at 15:30 of the third period.

Canada's Ken Laufman opened the scoring at 1:30 of the first period. Russia's Nikolai Sologubov tied it at 5:30 of the second period.

Canada's Bill Hicke scored at 6:30 and Laufman at 8:30 of the second period.

Russia's Vladimir Mayorov scored at 10:30 of the second period and Sologubov at 12:30 of the third period.

Canada's Bill Hicke scored at 15:30 of the third period.

Given 10 Years For Stealing Few Cigarets

POUGHKEEPSIE, N.Y. (AP)—Two young Puerto Rican farmhands each were sentenced here to 10 to 30 years in prison for scuffling with a youth and stealing a few crumpled cigarets. It was the minimum sentence allowed by law.

The defendants, Carmelo Caraballo, 23, and Gaspar de Jesus, 24, were convicted on Sept. 24 of robbery in the first degree, grand larceny and second degree assault. They again said they were innocent at the sentencing.

The prosecution said the two men, who worked on a farm in neighboring Putnam County, spent July 4 and 5 in Poughkeepsie. Early on July 5, they drove up to Charles R. Anson, 20, as he was walking home and demanded cigarets.

Anson refused and the two men attacked him. After a scuffle, they grabbed the cigarets and sped off. Anson said less than a pack of cigarets were taken.

He was treated at a hospital for superficial cuts.

CLOSE AT HAND

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP)—A repair man working on a roof at police headquarters came down a stairway just as the magistrate's clerk finished preparing a warrant for his arrest. He was promptly charged with burgling a summer cottage.

DESERONTO

Council Approves Appointment of Sports Director

DESERONTO — Correspondence took most of the time at the regular meeting of the Town Council held on Monday night. A letter from Pringle and Pringle, town solicitors advised that they were preparing a defence on behalf of the town for the suit brought by R. E. Neal against the corporation.

A letter from C. Gill, a member of the council, which was dated May 16 was referred to the Court of Revision. Mr. Gill was protesting the assessment of his property and felt that the assessment should be made on a percentage of the cost of the property.

As a result of a letter from Constable Clare, the Chairman of the Police Committee, H. Howard, moved that Constable be granted an increase in salary of $25 per month retroactive from August 1st. This was passed unanimously and a By-law authorizing the increase will be passed at the next meeting.

Three By-laws were passed. One corrected an error in the deed of a land sale made in 1946 which has only now come to light. The other two dealt with the appointing of polling booths and returning officers and naming the date for the nomination and election. The nomination is set for November 21st and the election for December 1st.

The chairman of the streets reported that the garbage collector would soon have a new garbage disposal truck and that he would be unable to empty cans over 32 inches in height. It was decided to advertise this fact in the papers.

The property committee advised that the Industrial Maintenance Co. had not done the painting of the town hall before Oct. 15 and had been advised to leave it until spring.

Court of Revision was set for Thursday November 6th at 8.00 p.m.

Letters from the Hockey Club and the Athletic Association took considerable time and discussion. As a result a notice of motion was passed to appoint a Sports Director for the town. The clerk was also asked to contact the auditors regarding the setting up of a Sports Committee. The Athletic Association was granted a two-year lease of the open air rink with an option of renewal. Council also granted the sum of $80 to the Hockey Club to assist it in its endeavors.

Irish Girl Smallest Baby Ever to Survive

BELFAST (AP) — A team of doctors and nurses has won a fight for the life of a baby claimed to be the smallest ever to survive.

Teresa Toner, nicknamed Penny, weighed only one pound, six ounces when she was born 14 weeks prematurely at a Downpatrick hospital Sept. 11.

She was taken to the Royal Maternity Hospital in Belfast and placed in an incubator. She has been there ever since.

After two weeks, Penny lost two ounces. Doctors despaired of being able to save her. Then she gradually gained weight.

Today the baby weighs almost two pounds, is 13½ inches long and has a head circumference of 9½ inches. Doctors hope she will be home for Christmas.

Penny is the seventh premature child born to Mrs. Rosaleen Toner, 33, wife of a postman. Twins Joseph and Mary Elizabeth, born two months early, are three years old. Four other babies died after birth.

'Up front is where I need protection' Says Dick Shatto.

The versatile Argonaut backfielder was talking about better protection for his car. "Prestone" Brand Anti-Freeze, he said, gives me complete protection up front in the cooling system. There's no fuss & mess, either, from foaming and clogging—but that's not all—not by a long shot; not the Big Four star. "Prestone" Anti-Freeze with Rapid-Fill stops rust and corrosion, too."

Dick has been well drilled in the signals to call when he asks for anti-freeze. Only with "Prestone" Brand Anti-Freeze does he get complete protection which costs every rubber and metal surface in the cooling system. That's why he insists on "Prestone" Anti-Freeze. You do the same—and make sure that's what you get by looking for the distinctive green flag which will be attached to your radiator.

The Misses Alice Pollock, Irene Pollock, and Mary Ann Pollock gave piano selections. Reading readings were presided by Mr. Mac Earles, Mrs. W. J. Pitchett and Mrs. Russell Sills. Mrs. Ted Pollock and Mrs. Dan Cooke put on two contests.

This pleasant evening was prepared by Mr. and Mrs. Dan Cooke.

Following the business period and contest, refreshments were served.

Redmen Win Track Honors

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Athletes from McGill University took top honors in the senior section of the senior intercollegiate track and field meet held here Wednesday.

McGill led the meet with 53½ points, edging Western with 47. In third place came Varsity with 37½ points, followed by McMaster, 31; Sir Sandford Queen's eighth, Ontario Agricultural College was a fairly easy winner of the intermediate section with 62 points. Then came Queen's 41, Assumption-St. Ryerson 37, Varsity 34 and Western one.

Points were based on five for a first, three for a second, two for third and one for a fourth.

Outstanding performer in the meet, was John Passmore of McMaster who was practically a one-man team for coach Ivor Wynn. Passmore won three events, he placed 130-yard high hurdles; the senior 440-yard dash and the senior 220-yard hurdles. He was also anchor man on the McMaster senior mile relay team which finished behind Western in that event. All this earned him the Bert Phillips Memorial Trophy.

Winners included:

Intermediate mile—Clarwenat, OAC; intermediate 220 low hurdles — Baker, OAC; intermediate discus—Chambers, Queen's; senior three-mile—Maycock, Queen's; intermediate hop, step and jump —Pecit, Queen's; intermediate long-jump—Lee, Queen's; intermediate three - mile — Beckett, OAC; intermediate mile — Lee, OAC; intermediate mile medley relay—Queen's.

GEORGE HANNA

Somali mother, who died when he was six, and a Libertan father who disappeared when he was seven. His countries had turned him away already, he said.

Viscount Harmar Denald S. While carried Hanna's case through the immigration board hearings right up to the S.C. Supreme Court. It declared invalid the immediate deportation order and deportation order against Hanna.

Richard Pickering allowed Hanna to stay in Canada and prove he wanted to be a good citizen.

He got a job as a deckhand aboard a tugboat. Then he lost it because of a strike.

He was charged with being intoxicated in a public place.

After forfeiting bail on that one, he went to the interior of B.C. to be a rancher. (CBC)

Mr. Fulton, by now acting immigration minister, said Hanna was staying in Canada on probation. Later he was given permission to stay permanently.

WANTED TO LEAVE

Last December, Hanna asked in simultaneous letters department to find him a ship. He wanted to leave the country.

But he didn't. He was convicted of intoxication in a public place.

Then he was found guilty and given a suspended sentence on a charge of disturbing the peace by act "with intent thereby to insult or offend a person." A 35-year-old housewife's complaint had given rise to the charge.

Mrs. Fairclough said:

"Although inadmissible within a strict interpretation of the immigration regulations, Mr. Hanna has been shown every courtesy by the federal government and by a number of persons in becoming established in Canada.

"As he has been clearly unable to do so, his deportation has been ordered.

Lebanon has agreed—orally—to accept him.

"Gateway to the Mind" First Of Bell System Science Series

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP) — Gateways To The Mind, first in the season's Bell System science series, will be on the home screen tonight, in an interesting examination of the human senses.

A previous last week of the filmed program to be seen on WBC-TV (4 p.m. EDT) revealed it as being of interest to any viewer willing to spend an hour in contemplation of how he communicates with the world about him.

Dr. Frank C. Baxter conducts the program, with relies heavily on animated drawings and a rather self-conscious stage organization.

The intent of this program is highly commendable, for it swims bravely against the escape-entertainment currents of the night-time channels. To find fault with it is rather like kicking a good egg to see what is all the way to Sunday school along a street of cookie-pushing delinquents.

Nevertheless, I found myself vaguely annoyed by some of the scenes and part of dialogue that flabbily padded the strong bones of the program. Dr. Baxter rambles around the stage while various actors, playing stage hands, drag equipment on with a "grey while, Doc" form of dialogue.

It seems a pity that the good doctor somewhat self-conscious, as well it might.

The gateway to my mind was opened widest in the last quarter of the program when it reached the razzle-dazzle stage of the human mind. There was an interesting examination of illusions on the basis of experiments by Dr. Hadley Cantril of Princeton University.

Even more interesting was the examination of mental activity through sensory stimulation as demonstrated by Dr. Wilder Penfield of McGill University, Montreal. There is, it seems, a stream of consciences in all of us, a total recall that can be stimulated.

Personally, I wish the program had started with its last quarter and went on from there. Take a look at it and see what you think.

Cal Gardner Scores Three In 5-1 Victory

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Cal Gardner, 34-year veteran of professional hockey, is 35 years old. But you never would have guessed it from the way he showed his younger rivals the tricks of the trade Wednesday night in one of the two games played in the American League.

The crafty Gardner, who played all of his pro hockey in the National League before taking over last season as playing-coach of the Springfield Indians, scored three goals in leading Providence Reds to a 5-1 victory over Rochester Americans.

In the other game, Hershey Bears strengthened their hold on second place with a 5-0 decision over Cleveland Barons.

Gardner got strong help from Ken Yackel and Larry Leach. Murray Balfour scored the Rochester goal.

The Bears, who pulled within four points of undefeated Buffalo and stayed two up on Providence, used a defensive system of attack in shutting out the Barons. Bob Perreault and Gil Mayer shared the job.

Mayor now has piled up 121 minutes and 21 seconds of play in four games without allowing a goal.

Jack McIntyre paced the Bears' attack with two goals. Les Duff, Mike Nykoluk and Larry Zeidel got the others.

Jordan Wins Split Verdict Over Ortega

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP)— Don Jordan of Los Angeles earned a crack at the world welterweight championship Wednesday night when he scored a split 12-round decision over Gaspar (Indian) Ortega of Mexico before a sociable crowd in the ballroom of a local hotel.

Referee Frankie Van, under California's 10-point-a-round system, scored it 116-116 for Jordan and judge Tommy Hart had it 116-114 for the Los Angeles contender.

To the surprise of most ring experts and the crowd which paid $8 and $18 for the charity event, Judge Lee Grossman had Ortega in front 118-112.

Matchmaker George Parnassus promised the winner a match with the world champion, Virgil Akins of St. Louis, in Los Angeles' Olympic Auditorium in December.

Ortega, who is rated No. 1 among welterweight contenders, weighed 145¾ and Jordan 145¾.

Harness Racing

BATAVIA, N.Y. (CP)—Governor G., owned by Saxman Nevlington of Leroy and William Errington of Exeter, made a great comeback Wednesday night in winning the featured class A pace for $1,900 at Batavia downs. Bud Gilmour put him on top and he went all the way to win by 2¾ over Finality Chief, property of Noah Potter of Orillia. Hal's Bomb, owned and driven by Hugh McLean of Port Elgin, Ont., captured the eighth race, a BA pace for $1,200.

MONTREAL (CP)—Rodette, a seven-year-old brown mare from Massena, N.Y., won the featured $1,700 A and B trot at Richelieu Park by doing the mile in 2:05 1-4 Wednesday night.

The mare was driven by Gerald Ness. Morris H, a nine-year-old brown horse, came second and Homestead Dan was third.

Daily Double Pays $2,058.10

TORONTO (CP)—An afternoon outing in the drizzling rain paid off handsomely for 11 racetrack fans at New Woodbine Wednesday who collected $2,058.10 each on the daily double.

The payoff—biggest double ever paid in the three-year-old track—came on the combined victories of Wil Gal in the first race and Corran's Warrior in the second. Wil Gal paid $13.20 for a $2 win ticket and Corran's Warrior a whopping $230.10.

Previous high at the track was $1,369 last year. It was almost equalled June 28 when Deputy Speaker and Cessford paid $1,047.70.

None of the 11 who collected was identified. There were 5,790 patrons at the track.

The win by Corran's Warrior was one of the major upsets of the season. The horse, a 99-to-1 shot on the board, had been out of the running in nine previous races this year.

Corran's Warrior is owned by S. W. Staples and was ridden by Hiromi Uyeyama. Win Gal, a 3-year-old filly is owned by Mrs. N. C. Harrington and ridden by Benny Sorensen.

On the Tracks

NEW YORK (AP) — Benguala defeated Neji by a head Wednesday in the $56,625 Temple Gwathmey steeplechase but all the cheers of the Belmont Park crowd were for the gallant runnerup.

Neji, who won the gruelling 2½-mile race over 13 jumps last year under 173 pounds, packed a staggering 178. It was just too much.

Benguala, owned by the Montpelier Farms and ridden by Albert Foot, the French jockey, carried 147 pounds. This was 29 less than Neji, who got second place by 4½ lengths over John M. Schiff's Tarboots, with 133.

Benguala won $34,850. The time was 4:46 3-5. Neji, greatest money winning steeplechaser in history, collected $10,000 for second place and sent his winnings to $387,664.

LONDON (AP)—Aggressive remarks as the 11-2 betting favorite for the Oct. 29 Cambridge Handicap.

But Britain's top bookmakers shortened the odds on second-choice Babur from 15-2 to 7-1.

The race at Newmarket will be over a mile and a furlong. An Irish sweepstakes is based on the result.

The odds called in London were: 10-1 Midlander; 15-1 Empire Way and Marshal Pil; 20-1 Cash and Courage; 22-1 Carbon Copy and Pals of Skin; 25-1 Faith Healer, Legal Tie, London Cry and Well Spoke; 28-1 Old King Cole and Loppylegs; 40-1 Amos, Love, Allwood, Punchinello, Radioyte, Epaulette and Daffodil; 50-1 Chevriot Hills, Fulminate, Guerrillas, Royal Chief and Stafford; 66-1 Toddhurst, Colours, Cool Debate and Judicature; 100-1 Brancusi, Dalmenion, Hedonist, Lisa Goblin, Master of Boyden and Nero's Lyre.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

The Eastern Ontario senior "A" bugles blow "They're Off" tonight when the Cornwall Cyclones meet the strong Hull-Ottawa team in the opening tilt of the fifty-game schedule in the new Hull Arena.

The McFarlands pay the bid off their forty-eight game list here tomorrow night when they entertain the revamped Kingston Merchants in what is predicted will be an old-time thriller.

Don Soutter, Kingston Whig Standard sports writer, in a Canadian Press despatch says "after a preliminary look at this compact financially-sound league, Eastern Ontario fans are already feeling confident of a third senior "A" dominion title."

With the McFarlands jamming a regular schedule into an abbreviated season before leaving for the world tournament in Europe Soutter says the league came up with a prize plum for the first-place finisher this season. The league winner will be allowed to pick its semi-final opponent. All four teams, Whitby, Cornwall, Kingston and Hull will be eligible for the playoffs.

All clubs in the loop have added strength this year, while a number of familiar figures and faces will be missing from their last-season positions.

Whitby won't have the famous scoring combination of Bobby Attersley and Bud Stevenson, plus the colorful Bus is now the playing coach of the Kingston Merchants. The Dunnies are also minus Charlie Burns, now with the Detroit Red Wings.

They have added Pete Babando who will play with Gordie Myler and Sandy Alr. Whitey Youngberg, with Kingston last year, will wear a Dunnies' livery and centre coach Sid Smith and Tom O'Connor. John Chazewski and Jack Kane will bolster the defence.

Soutter says the power-line for Whitby could be the Attersley-Samelesko-Eicher unit. Blair moved Freddy Eicher from the second line to give the Dunnies an all-amateur scoring trio which might pay off in Whitby's bid for a 1960 Olympic trip.

He points out that Kingston has made the biggest changes. The appointment of Manager Wally Brabin and Coach Gagnon was a prelude to the acquisition of eight new players for last year's roster team.

In a bid for a powerful offence, Gagnon, a 27-goal scorer in 36 games at Whitby last season, added Moe Savard, 28 goals, of the Cornwall Cyclones and Jim Maxwell, 25 goals, from the now defunct Pembroke Lumber Kings. He strengthened the defence by retaining Joe Levandeski, pairing him with Vic Fildes of Pembroke and getting a pair of heavy-hitting youngsters, Ralph McNiff from Cindinnatti and Vic Gendron, a former Chatham Maroons rearguard.

Soutter says Gagnon will team with Billy Colvin and Ray Partridge, "on a line that could be the best in Ontario." Both Colvin and Partridge were 30-goal scorers last season.

Savard and Maxwell will work with Mike Bukachevski, Bep Guidolin, former coach and player of the McFarlands, will line with Don Bellringer and Ted Topparzini. The starry Lyn Davis is back between the pipes.

The Cats have returned Gerry Devaney to goal after one year as an alternate. Playing coach Bob Bingley, Don Labelle, Ted Szydlowski and former professional Bingo Ernst will hold blueline spots.

Forwards Guy Henri, Ron Quenville and Bryan MacLay have been working as a unit but Quenville is to have a five-game tryout in the Western Hockey League. MacLay was with Cincinnati last season.

Chet Melahi, a 32-goal scorer at Cincinnati last season, and returning Reg Grigg and Ken Muir are a second line. Also with the club are Bobby Clarke, Jean Paul Bisaillon, Mort Belmore, Jack Porter and Germaine Leger.

Hull Canadiens are the unknown quantity. Entered this year by Montreal Canadiens' farm director, Sammy Pollock, as a straight senior "A" squad, their lineup is not certain, but there is little doubt the team will be a strong contender.

Canadiens, Hawks Will Prove Who Is Boss Tonight

Champs May Have Trouble Unless Moore and Richards Break Loose With Counters

By BEN WARD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Montreal Canadiens get a chance tonight to prove worthy sons of the National Hockey League.

The Stanley Cup champions play host to Chicago Black Hawks in the first meeting between the two clubs who have been running in front of the NHL pack since the season opened two weeks ago.

Hawks went unbeaten in their first four games but dropped two over the weekend and gave up first place to Canadiens. They're now one behind the Montreal entry.

Another pair of clubs will meet for the first time this season when Boston Bruins invade Detroit tonight to decide which will take sole possession of third place. It might even mean second place for the winner if Hawks just one point ahead, lose in Montreal.

WILL ACES GET GOING?

Most of the attention in the Montreal Forum will be on the line of Dickie Moore, Maurice Richard and Henri Richard. The Habs' ace scorers haven't been as productive as usual in early season. Moore, who topped the league with 36 goals last season, has lired only four in six games, plus seven assists.

Unless he stops the breaks loose Canadiens will have trouble with Chicago whose forwards have been finding the nets with unbelieving regularity. Tough they've been rated the best in the powerful Canadiens the Hawks don't seem to have heard about it. They have scored 18 goals so far, the same number as Montreal, and have given up 21 against them, compared with 14 for the Habs.

LEAN ON BIG LINE

Detroit fans will be looking to Gordie Howe and Alex Delvecchio to stir the Bruins' wings.

The Red Wing line of Howe, Delvecchio and centre Norm Ullman has been sensational this month, practically winning the last three games single-handedly.

Boston will be without defencemen Doug Mohns and Bronco Horvath who suffered fractured jaws in Saturday's game against Toronto Maple Leafs. Both will be out of action for several weeks.

Majors Ask Unrestricted Minor Draft

NEW YORK (AP) — An unrestricted draft of minor league ballplayers that would help curtail huge bonus payments to untried youngsters by major league clubs was recomended Wednesday by a major baseball committee.

Frank Lane of Cleveland, chairman of the committee appointed last month by baseball czar Commissioner Ford Frick, said, "we propose that there should be an unrestricted selection of all players assigned to pro baseball contracts followed by a reasonable draft selection."

The plan will be submitted to the major leagues at their December meeting in Washington, D.C.

Under the plan, each major league team would be permitted to draft as many players as desired from the minors regardless of experience. The current rule allows only the selection of any number of players who have four years experience. The draft price was raised from $10,000 to $15,000 last year.

Sam Smith, president of the Alabama-Florida League who represented the class B, C and D leagues on the committee, said, "curtailment of payment of a large number of bonuses to untried players will provide major league clubs with an opportunity to sign fewer but more talented additional financial help which will be of considerable benefit."

Hit 193 Homers In Coliseum

NEW YORK (AP)—The Los Angeles Coliseum was the favorite Home run park of National League batmen in 1958. But the Coliseum park was nearly as vulnerable as was expected early in the season.

An Associated Press survey shows a total of 193 homers was hit in the Coliseum.

This was well under the big league record of 249 established by Crosley Field, Cincinnati in 1957 and only nine more than in Kansas City's Municipal Stadium. New York's Yankee Stadium and Crosley Field were next in the American League.

The Dodgers collected 92 in the Coliseum with the other seven clubs combining for 101. San Francisco's Seals Stadium in 1958 was second as a major league stadium. The hometown Giants connected for 85 and the opposition had 8. Wrigley Field, Chicago was third with 172 in some runs. The Cubs, who led both leagues in homers with 182, had 101 at home.

Wilf Greaves KO's Billy Tuck

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) Smooth Wilf Greaves, Canadian middleweight champion, knocked out Billy Tuck in the third round of their scheduled 10-rounder at Fairgrounds Wednesday night.

Greaves, stumped in the first round by Tuck's busy fists, downed the Louisville fighter for the nine count early in the third and put him down again for the count at 2:31.

Greaves, who won his 34th fight against nine losses and one draw, had too much class. The Edmonton boxer has fought some of the top middleweights in the U.S. and now has won eight straight this year.

It was Tuck's fifth loss against 26 wins and one draw, including five previous successive victories.

Yankees Sign "Son of Kong"

NEW YORK (AP)—The "son of Kong" may be headed for Yankee Stadium.

The world champion New York Yankees have signed Charley Keller Jr. and Don Keller to contracts. Both were assigned to Fargo-Morhead, N.D. of the class D Northern League, a Yankee affiliate.

Their father, Charley (King Kong) Keller starred for the Yankees for 12 seasons and finished his playing career in 1952 with a lifetime batting average of .286. He also played for Detroit for two seasons and coached the Yanks in 1957.

Charley Jr. is a 19-year-old outfielder. He is a sophomore at the University of Maryland. Don, an 18-year-old shortstop, is just out of high school.

Charley Sr. breeds trotting horses on his farm in Frederick, Md.

BLUES DOMINATE

TORONTO (CP)—University of Toronto Blues continued their unbeaten senior intercollegiate soccer season Wednesday with a 6-0 victory over McMaster University.

Hull-Ottawa To Have Two Contenders

HULL, Que. (CP)—Hull-Ottawa Canadiens, key to the orphans of Canadian hockey this season than previously, will have contending teams for both Allan and Memorial cups, emblems of senior and junior supremacy.

The Habitants, stunted from city-rix city and half in and half out of Junior, senior and professional competition, will play a full league schedule for the first time in more than three years, making their new arena their permanent home.

The senior club begins a more settled existence when they tangle with Cornwall Cyclones tonight in the opening game of the OHA Senior A Eastern Division which has produced the last two Allan Cup champions.

MONTREAL BOUND

The parent Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League moved the club to Ottawa four years ago. The first year it played for the Lavrier Cup against OHA junior A teams, though not participating in the regular junior A schedule, and lost to Flin Flon Bombers in the Memorial Cup final.

Strengthened by over-age players, Canadiens also played Senior A exhibitions against the OHA Senior A Eastern Division and in the Quebec Provincial League.

Last season Junior Canadiens won both Memorial and Laurier Cups, again playing a string of games outside a regular league schedule. Over-age players, or "ace" players, Canadiens took on OHA Eastern division teams and would have made the division playoffs if they had qualified by participating in the regular schedule.

This season's senior team is made up of players from the NHL Canadiens' farm system who have passed the 20th birthday line, include a half a dozen who were junior Canadiens last season.

His oldest players on the senior club are 31-year-old defenceman John Longarini, with Junior Habs last season, and Jean Gauthier who played on a local Eagle-Kingston last season.

Most of the senior club's games will be played Sunday afternoon in the 8,000,000 arena and here last year, it took 2,300 with standing room for another 2,000. Canadiens again are in a city outside a regular league but about 30 exhibitions have been lined up for the season and the club is eligible for the Memorial Cup playoffs.

About 25 players have been working out with the Juniors who have lost most of their biggest stars of last season, including defenceman Ralph Backstrom now with the parent Canadiens and Billy Carter who went to the senior of the American Hockey League.

Phillies Name Tom Ferrick Pitching Coach

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Baseball's Tom Ferrick is coming back to Philadelphia and there isn't a happier coach in the game.

Ferrick, who has made his home here since his rookie days with the old Athletics in 1941, was named pitching coach of the Phillies Wednesday.

He had been with Birdie Tebbetts in Cincinnati since 1953, but has been available since Birdie's resignation as Redlegs' manager last summer.

"My first concern was to stay in baseball and I am joining a league organization," the 43-year-old mound veteran said.

Responsible in some measure for past successes with such Cincinnati veterans as Hal Jeffcoat, Hershell Freeman, Brooks Lawrence and Bob Purkey, Ferrick has high hopes he can help the Phils.

The Phillies finished last in the 1958 season.

SPORT IN BRIEF

NO REINSTATEMENT

CHICAGO (AP) — The University of North Dakota's appeal for reinstatement of hockey goalie Bob Peters was rejected Wednesday by the policy-making council of the National Collegiate Athletic Association. Peters last January was ruled ineligible by the NCA council on a charge of receiving money from Detroit Red Wings. The school said Peters accepted the money from the Red Wings to further his education at Fort William while playing with Fort William Hurricanes, a Red Wing farm club.

ICELESS ESKIMOS

IROQUOIS FALLS, Ont. (CP) — Iroquois Falls Eskimos cancelled their home opener in the Porcupine Mines Senior Hockey League because of lack of ice in the Abitibi Arena. Officials of the $600,000 arena, opened two years ago, have been attempting without success to rectify ice plant troubles for the last two weeks. Meanwhile, the Eskies, who were supposed to meet Kapuskasing Huskies Friday night, have been journeying 45 miles each day to practise at the McIntyre Arena.

Cards Have Pass Down Pat

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Frank (Pop) Ivy's Chicago Cardinals obviously have the forward pass down pat. They lead the National Football League in gaining yards with it and in defending against it.

Ivy took over the Cards this season after winning three Grey Cups in four years for Edmonton Eskimos.

The Cardinals have gained 963 yards in four games with the pass. On the defence, the Cardinals have allowed 38.7 per cent completions of the 75 passes thrown by its four opponents.

The Cardinals also maintained their lead in total offence with 1,071 yards; ahead of Baltimore with 1,658 and Cleveland with 1,567.

Leaders in the other departments included Cleveland, running, 1,043; Washington, punting, 43.7 yards; Baltimore, scoring, 142 points; and New York, running defence, three yards allowed

London's Famous Harringay Arena Being Closed

Twelve thousand fight fans cheered wildly for almost 50 minutes and 13 rounds later Welshman Farr had won on points and moved nearer a crack at Joe Louis' world heavyweight title.

All that happened 21 years ago, on April 15, 1937, at London's Harringay Arena.

Tuesday night, from the same Harringay ring, the Bass-Farr introduction will be staged.

The two boxers are among famous names in the prize fight business with a sentimental date —to say farewell to Harringay Arena.

The world-famous arena, scene of about 600 fights, is being closed as a sports centre and being turned into a warehouse.

FIGHT TOPS NIGHT

Tuesday night's show will be topped by the lightweight 10-rounder between Carlos Ortiz of New York and Britain's Dave Charnley.

From the ring will be introduced famous fighters such as Farr, Bass, Henry Armstrong — the only boxer ever to hold three world titles simultaneously—Freddie Mills, Gus Lesnevich and a score of lesser known British sluggers.

Harringay's closing will rob London of one of its finest indoor arenas.

The world ice hockey championships were staged there in 1937 and 1950; Billy Graham held revivalist meetings there; circuses went on every year. It was the Madison Square Garden of London and was built in 1936 as an ice hockey stadium.

The owners, Harringay Arena Ltd, decided it was economically impossible to carry on.

Ask Officials Of Indians To Resign

CLEVELAND (AP) — A spell among stockholders of Cleveland Indians came into the open Wednesday with a minority bloc, including Hank Greenberg, demanding the resignation of salaried officers of the baseball club.

A statement calling for the housecleaning was released by Charles M. Baxter, who said he also spoke for his brother, Maurice, and Greenberg, former general manager of the Tribe. The three control about 25 per cent of the Indians' stock.

Baxter said at a news conference his faction has offered to buy out the majority interests, or sell out to them, but the proposals have been declined.

He said his group wishes to keep major league baseball in Cleveland, "but we don't think that under the present setup the club will draw enough fans, therefore inviting the revenue for a first-class team."

His statement accused the club's salaried officers of inefficiency. It did not name the officers.

Salaried officers of the club include vice-president George Mingher, in charge of radio and television; vice - president Hotz Dolin, in charge of stadium operations and Harry Scnell, treasurer.

The minority group said a shareholders' meeting will be held next week to thresh out its complaints.

Commenting on the minority bloc's statement, board chairman Ellis Ryan Jr. said he has some definite ideas about front office changes, but added that he did not wish to discuss them "in the public press."

Baxter said Frank Lane, who became general manager after Greenberg was fired a year ago, should have more authority, taking over some of the operational duties under the direction of salaried officers.

Lane was at his home in St. Petersburg, Fla., that he didn't want to "bug him with a family squabble. I'm just a hired hand."

"But I will say I have never been hampered in anything I wanted to do in the front office or on the field. I have been given complete authority."

20,000 Japs Watch Cards Hold Workout

TOKYO (AP) — Some 20,000 Japanese baseball fans thronged Komazawa Stadium today to watch Stan (The Man) Musial and the visiting St. Louis Cardinals hold their first workout.

The Cards open a 16-game goodwill tour Friday against one of the strongest nine the Japanese have mustered from Japan's two professional baseball leagues.

"I never saw so many people watch a inner workout," said Solly Hemus, Redbird manager.

He added jokingly: "They can't be fans. I'll bet they're baseball scouts."

Manager Hemus predicted there will be an international world series of baseball some day with the best teams of several countries pitted against each other.

He told a Tokyo Press Club luncheon the Japanese champion-ship club might well play against a pennant winner or world series victor in the United States.

GUDDOLIN RETURNS

GUELPH (CP) — Veteran defenceman Aldo Guidolin has come to terms with Springfield Indians and will report to the American Hockey League club today. Guidolin attended New York Rangers' training camp at Stamford and was assigned by Rangers to Springfield. He refused to report and returned to his home here three weeks ago. Guidolin said he'll make more than he did last year.

Club Builds 27-Hole Course

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Five miles west of here the London Hunt Club is building a 27-hole golf course its directors believe will be one of the finest in North America.

The 275-acre, $1,500,000 project is to open in 1960. A large clubhouse, swimming pool, tennis courts and a curling rink are planned with it.

The club is forced to move because land it occupies now is owned by the University of Western Ontario and will be needed for university expansion in the next decade.

Paul Mash, London Hunt president, says the course "will compare with, and even surpass, any course in North America."

Knox Gets Prize Football From Ottawa

TORONTO (CP)—Ronnie Knox, the sparkling quarterback who has shored up Toronto Argonauts' hopes for a big Four football league playoff spot, returned from Ottawa last Saturday with the ball he used in fashioning a 41-6 victory.

Alex Poston, who used to play for both the Argos and Ottawa, saw Ottawa's Bobby Judd walking across the field after the game with the ball under his arm. Judd handed it over without too much arguing and Poston presented it to Knox in the tradition that used to award the ball to the winning team.

What Poston, Judd and everyone else except the Ottawa equipment man overlook was a rule adopted last year under which the ball must be returned to the home tea after the game. The rule followed the action by Ottawa's Bobby Simpson in tossing a ball into the stands at Hamilton after a game.

Moments after Knox was presented with the ball the Ottawa equipment man walked in looking for one to replace it. The Argos left Ottawa and Knox came home with the prize.

Johnny Bright Nears Western Rushing Mark

REGINA (CP) — Fullback Johnny Bright of Edmonton Eskimos has pulled to within 151 yards of the rushing record that he set a year ago in the Western interprovincial Football Union. He has picked up 1,486 yards and two games are left in the regular schedule.

League statistics released Wednesday night show fullback Cookie Gilchrist of Saskatchewan Roughriders in second with 1,147 yards and halfback Leo Lewis of Winnipeg Blue Bombers is third with 1,026.

Chuck Holloway of Calgary Stampeders and Riders' Jack Hill are waging a close duel for passreceiving honors. Both have caught 33 passes. Holloway for 897 yards and Hill for 872. Paul Cameron of British Columbia Lions has caught 55 for 734 yards, while teammate Jerry Janes has taken 46 for 812.

Hill is far ahead in touchdown passes with 11 to equal the league record set in 1952 by Calgary's Paul Salata. Saskatchewan's Ron Dundas has taken 21 of 23 aerials for the best completion average, 91 per cent.

Frank Tripucka of Riders has thrown the most passes, 297, and completed the most, 163, for the most yardage, 2,276. He has also thrown the most touchdown passes, 16, and has had the most interceptions, 17.

Mike Hagler of Saskatchewan has set a league record in punt returns, running back 57 kicks for 720 yards, easily surpassing the old mark of 624 yards established by Saskatchewan's Herbie Johnson in 1953.

WELLINGTON

Girl Friends Shower Future Bride With Gifts

WELLINGTON — The Misses Eunice Thomas and Carol Marvin were co-hostesses at the latter's home on the evening of the October 14th, a miscellaneous shower in honor of their friend, Miss Elliott, future bride-to-be of October 25th.

About 22 girl friends and co-workers of the Bell Telephone Company were present to wish her much happiness in the future.

The evening passed quickly with everyone helping to make a bride's book. This was followed with contests. In the name contest the winners were: Miss Nell Halloran; Mrs. Bruce Elliott; Mrs. W. Cournoyea and Mrs. Clare Elliott of Belleville, Mrs. R. C. Pyne and the winner of the soap contest.

Miss Carol Marvin read an address to the guest of honor after which the bride-to-be was showered with many beautiful gifts, for which she expressed her appreciation and in turn presented to come and see her in her new home.

Refreshments, assisted by Miss Beverley Alyea and Miss Mary Marvin, served delicious refreshments.

Guests of honor at the party were: the bride-to-be's mother Mrs. Percy Elliott, her sisters, Mrs. Bruce Pyne and Miss Barbara Elliott, of Belleville, the bridegroom - to - be's mother, Mrs. William Armstrong and sisters, Mrs. Carl Moore and Mrs. Ralph Perry of Cherry Valley.

On her way to the above shower, Miss Donna Elliott was asked by stop in at the telephone office where she is on the staff. She was most pleasantly surprised to find the manager and other members of the staff awaiting there to present her with a lovely gift from her fellow workers.

Laurel Rebekah Lodge Installs New Slate

STIRLING — Laurel Rebekah Lodge, No. 211, convened in the IOOF hall, Charlotte Street, Stirling, and installed a new slate of officers as follows:

Noble Grand, Sister Marion Carter; Vice-Grand, Sister Alice Macklin; RSNG, Sister Mary Hulin; LSNG, Sister Gladys Sine; RSVG, Sister Isabel Good; LSVG, Sister Mabel Hall; chaplain, Sister Nora Wannamaker; financial secretary, Sister Gena Spry; treasurer, Sister Adeline Bush; recording secretary, Sister Irene Pollock; warden, Sister Florence Post; conductor, Sister Hilda Rose; color bearer, Sister Harriett Kirn; inside guardian, Sister Doreen Ackers; outside guardian, Sister Ella Davidson; junior past Noble Grand, Sister Olive Whitehead; degree captain, Sister Neva Vandervoort, and press reporter, Sister Florence MacMullen.

After lodge opened D.D.P. Sister Bessie Heyworth and Noble Grand elect Sister Marion Carter were escorted to the centre of the floor and introduced to the large gathering by past Noble Grand Sister Mary Hulin.

A lovely surprise presentation followed when Sister Edna Post presented these two ladies with corsages of pink carnations on behalf of the latter's husband, Brother Charles Carter. Sister Fox also presented Sister Carter with a lovely gift on behalf of her sister, Mrs. Nina Neal.

After the installation ceremony Sister Dorothy McCaughan read an appropriate address to Sister Heyworth and Sister Iva Philp presented a gift on behalf of Laurel Lodge.

Past Noble Grand Sister Olive Whitehead was presented with her Past Grand's jewel. She voiced thanks for the gift and for the co-operation of the members.

Guests included members from Bellevile. At the close of a short program of speeches all retired to the banquet hall where dainty refreshments were served.

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER

Friday, October 24

Aries (March 21 to April 19) — The A. M. is the right time for any financial or material matters. Money problems can be ironed out swiftly. In P.M. you will then be poised and cool and can follow other important pursuits with maximum efficiency. Grow.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) — The ideal morning in which to be with business and personal friends in order to go after the goals you have set for yourselves. Later, get secretly from authorities the advice that will help you expand quickly. Don't scatter your forces.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — A. M. is the proper time to see those vital influential persons who can back you in your enterprises or talents. Then you can also get support from fine personal friends. P. M. have a fine time socially. Be gay and friendly.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) — A wonderful chance opens to you this morning to figure out better ways of increasing income and abundance. Turn on your radio, TV, read your paper intelligently, get wonderful ideas from them. P.M. contact experts and get advice, backing.

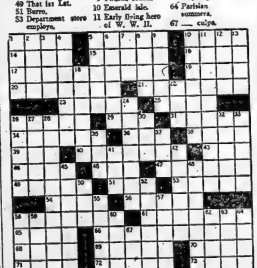
Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — Be with noted personal advisors today and get the right slant on how to progress quickly in chosen field of endeavor. Then follow advice, see those key persons, study the right literature and make great strides forward.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 23) — Fine plans and activities can be culminated during the morning. State your exact position with others, and you get their approval and support. P. M. think constructively and you know just where you stand in romantic, financial affairs.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) — Delve early into that myriad of small chores that await you and then you will have a free weekend in which to enjoy your friends, make constructive plans with business persons, etc. P. M. be in harmonious relation with all.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) — All free time today should be utilized getting your appearance and health at its very best. Then accept all really worthwhile invitations that bring prestige and pleasure. Have fun and also take in sports you like the best.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — It would be best today to know exactly what your position is with your relatives and closest of kin. Be more affectionate toward them. Buy sweets, little gifts and show your love. P. M. excellent time socially.



Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — A. M. and afternoon are fine for detailed work, consultations, research, shopping, etc. P.M. then can be very happy at own domicile, entertaining or simply relaxing there and enjoying kin and children.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — Spend the day hours improving your property, making other holdings pay off larger dividends. Get a proper budget set up, too. Then tonight it is possible to have a social evening that will also bring remunerative results.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — The sunshine hours are best now for getting health up to its peak, actuating more dynamism and being a social lion at some fine meeting or other social affair. P. M. take inventory of holdings and decide just how to add to them.

If your child is born today ... The charming child born today is the highly evolved, artistically inclined sort, and so it is necessary you give free training that will bring out best self - expression. Later on in life, the practical side of this youngster's nature will become manifest, and the same thoroughness and neat touch and finish will be applied to activities. So be sure you have given constructive combined courses of education.

Dept. Warns Fire Danger Still Exists

TWEED— Enough rain fell in keep the fire danger down to low for the most of this past week and no fires were reported. While fortunately so far this season. Tweed forest officials were against relaxing of care in the handling of fires for two weeks or so, since the leaves are falling fast and continued use for the next few days will raise the fire danger. Five years ago more than 60 per cent of the area burned over for the year went up in smoke during the last week in October, and the first week of November.

With even a week of dry weather in late October, Tweed district can find a hazardous situation developing, so officials hope partridge and duck hunters, in particular, will be most careful with their cigaret butts and matches.

Consolidated H-S Assoc. Holds Panel Talk

TWEED — On Wednesday evening the Tweed Consolidated School Association held its first formal meeting of the year in the school. Last month's meeting was in the form of a wiener roast in the Tweed Memorial Park. About fifty parents and teachers assembled for a most enjoyable and informative evening.

After the usual opening, the secretary's resignation was announced and the meeting was called open for nominations, a committee comprised of Wendy Nelson, Marguerite Fleguel and Heath Jones was appointed to fill the vacancy. Discussion of the "Talent Tea", which is to take place on December 9th, followed. Tickets to the tea will be available with the door prize being a turkey.

ROOM COUNT PRIZE

Mr. Connor was asked to give a report on the teachers' wishes concerning the room count prize. They have decided to keep the $5. award per month as usual. Mr. Connor kindly expressed his regret and that of the other members of the group in the loss of the secretary who is moving to Pembroke. Projects were discussed but no decision was made to date. Mrs. Montgomery's room won the banner and the $2. with 30 points.

President Stan Walker called upon Mr. Bruce Kerr of the Belleville Children's Aid Society, to introduce the members of his panel. After a preamble, concerning the aims and foundation of the Society he called upon Mr. W. J. Hallisid who discussed how the Children's Aid protected neglected children. Mrs. Constance Grout, who is in charge of child care, (which consists of visits to the homes and schools the children are placed in), discussed this side of their work.

Miss Rhona Payne was asked to explain how foster parents were selected and what was expected of them. Mr. J. D. Adamson carefully told about adoption of children of all ages, with Mr. Bruce Kerr as moderator.

Mr. Walker thanked the panel, and the meeting adjourned after which room 3 mothers served refreshments.

91 MEN TRAPPED IN SPRINGHILL MINE

No Hope for Miners Trapped on 2 Levels Says Dosco Manager With Tears in Eyes

This is the Cumberland Railway and Coal Company's No. 2 colliery pithead at Springhill, N.S., where a mine bump last night trapped 13,000-foot level, as yet unreached by the 60 to 70 men searching underground.

SPRINGHILL, N.S. (CP) — H. M. C. Gordon, vice-president and general manager of Dominion Coal Company, said today there is no hope for miners trapped on two levels of No. 2 colliery.

With tears in his eyes and his voice breaking he told a press conference there is only the slightest glimmer of hope for those on the third level of the mine where a sudden shift Thursday night cut off 125 men.

Ninety-one men remained trapped on the three levels today.

Rescue workers have determined the location of 35 men trapped by the fallen rock. But they have been unable to find the other 30, and it is for these that there remains some small measure of hope.

Mr. Gordon told reporters how the bump — or upheaval — had shaken the three levels and of the damage that followed. Then as his eyes welled up, he said:

"Gentlemen, I regret very much to tell you that I consider there is no hope for any of the men" on the 13,000- and 13,300-foot levels.

There is a slight chance some miners may have survived in the second level, as yet unreached underground.

For those men, he said, "there may be some hope only because we have not seen them."

He said derogatory remarks attempting to reach the 13,000-foot level were directed at "bare-faced" miners—men who enter the pits without gas masks—who were approaching from another level.

Mr. Gordon said examination revealed the bump extended to the two bottom levels. Damage in the upper levels cannot be determined, he said.

Mr. Gordon said the bump, described by citizens of this hard-coal town as the worst ever felt, ripped up the floors on the 13,000 and 13,300-foot levels. Conveyors and other machinery were rammed up against the roof.

He said efforts to reach the men in sealed-off areas will continue. He himself planned to return to the mine shortly after the press conference. He has already spent about eight hours underground.

He said the bumps occur when pressures in hard overhead and underfloor strata build up and release.

SLEMON STATES AIR DEFENCES MUCH STRONGER

Says Manned Fighter Must Be Retained

MONTREAL (CP)—A top air commander says atomic air defence weapons received recently by NORAD go far towards strengthening Canadian and American defences against a surprise attack.

The weapons may even be effective against intercontinental ballistic missiles, said Air Marshal C. R. Slemon, deputy commander of NORAD, in an address Thursday night to the annual meeting of the Canadian Industrial Preparedness Association.

The Canadian air marshal described intercontinental missiles and aircraft armed with atomic warheads as the most significant step forward since the advent of radar in the Second World War.

CASSELMAN WILL

BROCKVILLE (CP)—A. C. Casselman, who died last May, after 23 years as Progressive Conservative member of Parliament for Grenville-Dundas, left an estate of $207,281. His will, admitted to probate here, shows chief beneficiaries are his widow, Mrs. Jean Casselman, elected Sept. 20 to succeed him as MP for Grenville-Dundas; their two children; and two sons by a former marriage.

Because of the great depth and the pressures that have been put on them upheavals underground are a common occurrence. Usually they cause the overhead strata of rock and coal. Miners call them "bumps."

An explosion that killed 39 men in neighboring No. 4 colliery two years ago was attributed to an electric spark from a broken power cable that set off gas and coal dust.

Mine Disasters

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Springhill, N.S., where an underground explosion a heaval occurred Thursday night, was the scene of Canada's most recent major mine disaster and also one of its biggest.

Thirty-one were killed by an explosion and gas Nov. 1, 1956, at Springhill. A disaster there in 1891 took 125 lives.

The country's biggest mine disaster was at Hillcrest, Alta., in 1914 when 190 died in an explosion.
